INTEREST IN MORTGAGE DECREES.—This section applies also to mortgage decrees governed by O. 34, C. P. Code, and authorises the allowance of interest upon the decretal amount from the expiry of the date of grace fixed in the preliminary decree until the date of realisation. O. 34 does not in any way exclude the discretion of Court to allow such interest on the decree. Even in a case to which old r. 4 (1) of O. 34, before its amendment in 1929 applies, the Court has got such power. Rule 11 of O. 34 as amended in 1929, which in clause (b) specifically allows "subsequent interest up to the date of realisation" only gives effect to previous judicial decisions. 63 I.A. 111=15 P. 210=40 C.W.N. 328=70 M.L.J. 355 (P.C.). In the case of mortgage the question as to the rate of interest is to be determined by O. 34, r. 11 and not under section 34. 8 Luck. 315=144 I.C. 983=1933 O. 128. The date referred to in O. 34, r. 2 is the date fixed by Court for payment of money. The Court must ascertain the amount of interest due on the mortgage up to that date according to the contract rate, unless the Court, for some legal reason, sees fit to decrease that rate. 36 A. 220; 33 M.L.J. 679; 17 C.L.J. 120=18 I.C. 747=17 C.W.N. 457. See also 26 C. 39; 34 C. 150; 20 C. 360; 20 B. 744; 21 M. 364; 29 C.W.N. 118=1925 C. 268; 1925 N. 193. The date cannot be extended by an unsuccessful appeal by the mortgagor or mortgagee. 17 C.L.J. 120=18 I.C. 747=17 C.W.N. 457. The Appellate Court can extend time for redemption and the mortgagee would be entitled to interest at the contract rate up to the extended date. 29 I.C. 289. Where there is no express stipulation for the payment of interest after the due date, the mortgagee would be entitled to damages for non-payment of the debt on the date. The measure of damages would be prima facie but not necessarily the contract rate. 4 L. 406. [17 A. 511 (P. C.); 3 L. 200 (F.B.), Ref.] See also 44 A. 772. Where the trial Court did not provide for interest on the mortgage money after the date of filing of a suit for redemption it must be deemed to have declined to award any interest for the period. 37 B. 326=25 M.L.J. 101 (P.C.). Interest from the date fixed for payment to the date of realisation is to be calculated on the principal, interest and costs found to be due on the date fixed and not on the principal alone. Such further interest is to be calculated at 6 per cent., but the Court has a discretion. 42 M. 465=36 M.L.J. 288. See also 47 I.C. 701; 27 I.C. 522; 26 I.C. 177; 34 C. 150; 21 M. 364; 29 M. 176. A Court may in its discretion allow post diem interest though not allowed in the mortgage deed. 36 I.C. 685; 30 I.C. 323. See also notes under O. 34, rr. 2 and 4.

INTEREST IN CASE OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.—In suit on promissory note which expressly specifies interest payable, Court cannot reduce such rate to be paid up to date fixed by it after institution of suit, unless it is exorbitant or penal or otherwise against the law. 154 I.C. 470 (L.). At the same time it is not necessary that the Court should allow stipulated rate of interest up to date of realization. (Ibid.)

INTEREST ON COSTS AWARDED BY PRIVY COUNCIL.—The costs of the Privy Council do not carry interest, unless such interest is specially mentioned. 13 P. 21=15 P.L. T. 513=1934 P. 192. But where parties have agreed to have the matter of costs submitted to the discretion of executing Court, the latter can grant it. 3 C. 602=5 I.A. 78 (P.C.). Interest is awardable on costs realized but subsequently ordered to be refunded on reversal of decree. 4 C. 229; 8 A. 262.

COMPOUND INTEREST.—The Court has jurisdiction to award compound interest under section 34. [3 A. 91 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 150 I.C. 467=36 Bom.L.R. 68=1934 J. 86. An order allowing interest up to date of decree and compounding it with the principal on the date of the decree and allowing interest thereon at the Court rate is sanctioned by section 34. But where there is no contract, implied or express, and the interest ante litem as well as pendente lite has been allowed at a rate considered by the Court to be fair, there is no point in compounding the principal and the interest due up to the date of the decree and making interest to run on the aggregate sum at the same rate. Section 34 or its principle is not intended to be used as a means for providing for compound interest but to relieve the debtor of a harder rate of interest. 61 C. 711=1935 C. 39.

DAMDUPAT.—The rule of damdupat is not applicable after suit even in cases where it is otherwise applicable. 40 C. 710; 22 B. 86; 33 C. 1869; 78 I.C. 632; 1925 N. 193. As regards application of rule to mortgage, see 134 I.C. 274=1931 N. 161=27 N.L.R.

of payment or other earlier date, the Court shall be deemed to have refused such interest, and a separate suit therefore shall not lie.

COSTS.

35. (1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed and to the provisions of any law for the time being in force, the costs of and incident to all suits shall be in the discretion of the Court, and the Court shall have full power to determine by whom or out of what property and to what extent such costs are to be paid, and to give all necessary directions for the purposes aforesaid. The fact that the Court has no jurisdiction to try the suit shall be no bar to the exercise of such powers.

(2) Where the Court directs that any costs shall not follow the event, the Court shall state its reasons in writing.

(3) The Court may give interest on costs at any rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and such interest shall be added to the costs and shall be recoverable as such.

SEC. 34 (2).—Where a decree is silent with respect to interest, the Court must be deemed to have refused it. 45 M.L.J. 687 = 18 L.W. 606 = 75 I.C. 566 = 1924 M. 102. There is no inherent power under section 151, to award interest in such a case. 82 I.C. 427 = 1924 R. 275. As to the object of the rule, see 106 I.C. 270.

SEC. 35: AWARD OF COSTS, PRINCIPLES REGARDING.—The ordinary rule is that costs should follow the event; but the Court has a discretion to depart from this rule and such discretion is to be exercised on well-recognised principles. 145 I.C. 376 = 1933 R. 160; and not arbitrarily. 27 M. 341; 7 C.W.N. 647; 58 I.C. 421 = 24 C.W.N. 352; 90 I.C. 577. See also 1926 O. 35; 5 O.W.N. 35. The Privy Council or any Court of appeal will not interfere with the discretion exercised by the lower Courts. 59 I.A. 1; 35 Bom.L.R. 569; 142 I.C. 656 = 1933 M. 224; 1933 O. 455; 1933 A. 311; 1933 N. 49; 149 I.C. 901 = 11 O.W.N. 754 = 1933 O. 259; 144 I.C. 76 = 1933 A. 311. Costs by way of disciplinary measure not permissible. But costs against non-parties are awardable. 52 A. 619 = 1930 A. 225 (F.B.); 53 M. 708 = 58 M.L.J. 318. Under section 35, Courts have in certain cases power to make persons who are not parties liable for costs. (1930 A. 225, Foll.) 1934 N. 250 (1). Court's power to award costs is not confined only to amount of costs incurred after filing of suit. In certain cases, as where Receiver applies for leave to sue, Court can include in suit also the costs of application for leave to sue. 40 C.W.N. 762. Where both parties make false allegations costs may not be allowed to either side. 31 I.C. 862. In deciding the question of costs, a Court is entitled to consider not merely the conduct of the parties in the actual litigation but also matters which led up to the litigation. 13 C. cer, each party may be ordered to bear his own costs. 24 C.W.N. 189 = 53 I.C. 741 = 30 C.L.J. 270. Where the litigation was due to vagueness of testamentary directions, costs of all parties should come out of testator's estate. 19 S.L.R. 220. See also 8 P. 419. The plaintiff in a suit claimed mesne profits for two years, but the Court by an oversight awarded him profits for three years instead of for two. The defendant appealed, and the appellate Court, while reducing the period for two years, allowed the plaintiff only proportionate costs. Held, in second appeal, that the defendant could have had the mistake corrected without an appeal, and that the plaintiff should not be made to suffer for the mistake of the trial Court and that he should be awarded full costs. 152 I.C. 180 = 11 O.W.N. 1165 = 1934 O. 449. Unless there is a specific reference to any personal order for payment of costs, a decree for costs should not be interpreted to imply a personal decree for costs. 1930 O. 167. Costs ordered to be paid by creditor to debtor on setting aside adjudication cannot be set off to the prejudice of solicitor's lien against the debt due by debtor. 32 Bom.L.R. 1076. A solicitor can enforce in execution costs awarded to him. 1932 B. 378. Once a solicitor is on record, the opposing party is entitled to look to him if successful for his costs, if it turned out that the so-called plaintiff is a non-existent person. 145 I.C. 641 = 35 Bom.L.R. 554 = 1933 B. 317. In insolvency proceedings, an order for costs against Receiver imports a personal liability. 54 A. 444. Parties are the recipients of costs and not their pleaders. The duty of an advocate is to file an execution application on behalf of his client. Though he has to sign it in the course of his duties, it is only on behalf of his client. The execution must be in the name of the person to whom costs have been awarded (i.e.) the client. 1940 A.M.L.J. 18.

COSTS OF SUCCESSFUL PARTY.—As a rule costs should be awarded to the successful party. It is not necessary that he should be wholly successful, and substantial success is enough. 18 B. 474; 3 C. 473; 24 C.W.N. 352; 40 C.L.J. 504=1925 C. 297; 1923 L. 513 (2); 54 M.L.J. 603; 1923 L. 302 (1); 1936 C. 277. No matter how bona fide the defence may be, the plaintiff cannot be deprived of his costs unless he has done something which would warrant the Court depriving him of it. 145 I.C. 376=1933 R. 160. See also 162 I.C. 837=1936 Sind 52 (Case where defendant succeeds). 170 I.C. 9=1937 Sind 159. Mere variation in appeal as to method of computing compound interest in a mortgage suit, would not deprive respondent of his costs in the appeal. 1935 M.W.N. 408=157 I.C. 232=1935 M. 468.

FULL COSTS.—Where full costs are not awarded to the successful party, reasons ought to be recorded. 14 L.R. 92 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 164. Plaintiff who declines to accept a tender of part payment is nevertheless entitled to full costs. I.L.R. (1938) 2 C. 337=42 C.W.N. 1023.

COSTS OF SUCCESSFUL PARTY, WHEN MAY BE DISALLOWED.—In a proper case the Court may deprive the successful party of costs. 59 I.A. 318=56 B. 374=63 M.L.J. 623 (P.C.); 30 C. 213; 25 A. 287; 31 C. 332 (P.C.); 1929 R. 148 (2); 1929 B. 267; 148 I.C. 246=1934 O. 10; or even saddle him with costs of the other party. 9 C.W.N. 844; 21 C.W.N. 1137 (P.C.); 40 A. 558. PRACTICE AS TO AWARD OF COSTS.—See 39 Bom.L.R. 820 as to the duties of mufassil Courts and of parties and advocates in the matter of costs if interlocutory proceedings in the matter of compulsory winding up of companies under the Indian Companies Act. On a dismissal of suit several defendants should not be awarded separate costs where they are represented by the same advocate and their case is practically identical. 152 I.C. 71=1934 R. 259. Excessive costs should not be allowed where a plaint is rejected at an early stage. 35 P.R. 1914=25 I. C. 435. The Court-fee paid on part of the claim subsequently withdrawn cannot be recovered. 23 I.C. 231. Withdrawal of suit—Court's discretion to award costs is not restricted by the use of the word "shall" in O. 23, R. 1. 2 O.W.N. 901=1925 O. 699. Suit not pressed—Defendant not to be deprived of costs because he refused to disclose the details of his defence to plaintiff before suit. 1930 B. 152. Where the appellate decree is silent as to costs, the decree of the trial Court is the guide to determine the costs. 62 I.C. 299=13 Bur.L.T. 173. Travelling expenses of witnesses can be recovered. 67 I.C. 277=1923 C. 315 (1). Where a party had actually paid diet money to the witnesses on certain occasions when the Court could not examine them, there is no justification for disallowing costs incurred in that manner, especially when the summoning of those witnesses had been necessitated by a false plea raised by the opposite party. 42 P.L.R. 263=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 182. It is not the law that it is only the expenses of the witnesses summoned through the Court, that can be included in the costs of the party. The costs of the witnesses not summoned through Court are allowable if the party satisfies the Court that he has brought the witnesses from another district and he had paid the expenses and further satisfies the Court that the expenses are reasonable. 1928 L. 800. In awarding costs, the Court should not include costs of witnesses who were summoned but were not examined in Court. 164 I.C. 689 (1)=38 P.L.R. 219=1936 L. 681. On a question of pleaders' fees, the Court will not interfere with the opinion of the Taxing Master unless it is wrong on principle or very clearly wrong in detail. 45 B. 1234. The words "abide the result" are equivalent to the words "costs in the cause". 39 M. 476=28 M.L.J. 441. As to proper order as to costs that should be passed when suit is remanded for trial on merits, see 164 I.C. 133=1936 R. 316. Order for costs in an interlocutory application to be costs in the cause, cannot be varied by the trial Judge. 50 B. 430. Taxation of costs in third party proceedings, see 59 I.C. 18=21 Bom.L.R. 808 at p. 816. As to costs incurred before the arbitrator or umpire, see 54 M.L.J. 580; 54 A. 122. District Court can decide even after an appeal has been disposed of by High Court, whether its own order of taxation is right or not. 28 Bom.L.R. 550=95 I.C. 515=1926 B. 367. The costs of an application for stay of execution pending appeal should ordinarily be costs in the appeal. 56 C. 276.

SEPARATE SETS OF COSTS.—In the case of several plaintiffs only one set of costs is generally permissible. 1938 Rang. L.R. 252. Different sets of costs can be awarded when there are several defendants raising various defences. 31 I.C. 312=1915 M. W.N. 1021; 1929 O. 536. When the suit of a reversioner against various alienees is decreed with costs, each set of defendants are liable only for the costs proportionate to their interest. 1928 M. 16. Where plaintiff's suit is dismissed each defendant is entitled to costs taxed on the basis of the suit valuation and not on the basis of what each defendant's interest might be in the suit itself. 27 Bom.L.R. 692=89 I.C. 211=1925 B. 432. When a defence is common and not separate only one set of costs should be awarded. 9 A. 205; 4 M. L.J. 281. And it is not material that separate counsel have been engaged. 1936 A.M.L.J. 63. See also 11 Bom.L.R. 158 (P.C.). Where a suit was brought by the plaintiff against two defendants claiming relief against them in the alternative and his suit was dismissed as against both of them, two sets of costs, one set to each of the defendants, may be properly awarded. 144 I.C. 703=1933 A.L.J. 796=1933 A. 466. Award of costs on abatement of suit, see 37 M.L.J. 596=43 M. 284; 22 M.L.J. 439.

APPORTIONMENT OF COSTS.—As to rule for apportionment of costs in England and in India, see 4 P. 510. See also 88 I.C. 141. The expression "costs will follow the event" means that where the action involves separate issues, whether arising under different causes of action or under one cause of action, the costs of any particular issue go to the party who succeeds upon it. So where in a suit praying for sale as well as a personal decree, the plaintiff was given only a mortgage decree and not a personal decree, the Court, if it deprives the defendant of his costs on the issue relating to the personal decree, should, under S. 35 (2), state its reasons for so doing. If it failed to do so, the appellate Court can interfere with the order. 141 I.C. 262=29 N.L.R. 8=1933 N. 49. See also 95 I.C. 446 (2); 142 I.C. 835=1933 R. 38; 144 I.C. 738=1933 L. 329; 1936 A.M.L.J. 63. Case disposed of on a preliminary point—Scale of costs to be awarded. See 1933 R. 337. A party succeeding on a particular issue must ordinarily get his costs of that issue unless there is special reason to deprive him of it or the issues are closely and inseparably connected with each other. 45 I.C. 738=27 C.L.J. 78. Where alternative relief was claimed against either of two defendants who were disputing their liability, the unsuccessful defendant should be made to bear the costs of the successful defendant. 42 I.C. 636.

COURT'S DISCRETION TO AWARD INTEREST ON COSTS.—The power to award interest on costs is discretionary and can be inserted after judgment while framing the decree. 35 I.C. 218; but see also 60 I.C. 345. Where a decree does not allow interest on costs, it cannot be allowed in execution. 6 Bom. L.R. Ap. 33; 3 C. 351.

NO SEPARATE SUIT FOR COSTS.—No separate suit for costs is maintainable when the Court has made no order as to costs. 2 B. 360. Contribution for costs among several defendants. See 145 I.C. 250=1933 L. 960.

COSTS IN MORTGAGE SUITS.—Where provisions of O. 34, r. 10 apply as to costs in mortgage suits, this section has no application. 49 L.W. 525=1939 M. 654=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 687. A mortgagor is ordinarily entitled to costs in a redemption suit unless he forfeits his right by laches. 38 I.C. 655. A mortgagee is ordinarily entitled to costs of suit, unless he is guilty of grave misconduct. 19 I.C. 474. Or he denies the mortgagor's right to redeem. 91 I.C. 943=1926 M. 405. As to the circumstances in which a puisne mortgagee may be called upon to pay costs, see 10 R. 308. The Court has jurisdiction in a mortgage suit to make a party other than the mortgagor personally liable for the costs of the litigation, if in the opinion of the Court, the conduct of such party justifies it. 40

In the ordinary way a puisne mortgagee is not made liable for costs in the mortgage suit; if the puisne mortgagee, by his conduct, makes himself liable for the contest, in certain circumstances it may be legitimate to make him pay the costs apart from the costs given in the mortgage decree, but the utmost that he can be made liable for is the extra cost, caused by his unnecessary contest. 1933 R. 335. See also 17 L. 520=38 P.L.R. 1024=1936 L. 607. COSTS IN PARTITION SUITS.—Costs in a partition suit up to the preliminary decree ought not to be given to plaintiff but to be borne by all the parties. 42 C. 451; 11 L. W. 5. Where in a suit for partition the defendant pleaded prior partition which was eventually proved against, the Court could direct the defendant to pay the costs of the suit. 35 C.W.N. 151. Costs in arbitration proceedings, see I.L.R. COSTS IN MAINTENANCE SUITS.—While awarding costs Courts have to see whether there was any prima facie excessive or exaggerated claim made in the plaint. 1930 M. 479; where exaggeration of claim is due to defendant's conduct full costs can be awarded. 54 M.L.J. 530. SEC. 35 AND O. 7, R. 10.—The Court, when passing an order under O. 7, R. 10, C.P.Code, returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court, has no jurisdiction to impose a condition that the plaintiff whose plaint is returned shall, before presenting it to that Court, pay the costs of the defendant as a condition precedent. Though under section 35, the fact that a Court has no jurisdiction to try a suit is no bar to the exercise of the power to award costs, there is no power to make payment of costs a condition precedent to the filing of the suit in the proper Court. 54 L.W. 817=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 450.

SEC. 35-A.—This section does not apply to revision applications in the High Court. 42 C.W.N. 658. The framing of specific issue as to compensatory costs is not an essential condition under section 35-A, C.P. Code. The non-framing of such an issue is not therefore a material irregularity meriting interference in revision. 1941 R. D. 383. Compensation under section can be awarded only after objection by the opposite party. 94 I.C. 78 (2)=1926 L.472 (2). ## PART II. EXECUTION.

GENERAL.

36. The provisions of this Code relating to the execution of decrees shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to the execution of orders.

37. The expression "Court which passed a decree," or words to that effect, shall, in relation to the execution of decrees, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to include,—

(a) where the decree to be executed has been passed in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction, the Court of first instance, and

(b) where the Court of first instance has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it, the Court which, if the suit wherein the decree was passed was instituted at the time of making the application for the execution of the decree, would have jurisdiction to try such suit.

NOTES.

SEC. 36.—Section 36 is not limited to orders made only under the Code, but applies to all orders which can be included in the definition of the term "order" as defined in section 2 (14). An order made on a notice of motion for contempt is an order within the section. 36 Bom.L.R. 992=1934 B. 452. Order under O. 21, R.11 (2) can be executed as if it were a decree. 2 R. 673. Order under section 34, Guardian and Wards Act, 1890, directing guardian to pay amount for expenses of marriage of a person dependant on the ward, is not within section (2) (14) of the Code; and hence this section will not apply. 41 M.241=6 L.W. 526=41 I.C. 341. As to orders under the Guardian and Wards Act capable of being executed by proceedings under the Act itself, see 23 A.L.J. 428=88 I.C.165=1925 A. 457. Decree passed in favour of and against dead man—Distinction between. 1929 C. 527=120 I.C. 459. Partial decree in favour of plaintiff—Unsuccessful appeal—Application for mesne profits—Appellate decree as the starting point. 1930 C. 308=33 C.W.N. 904.

SEC. 37: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—The section embodies an inclusive definition and cannot be construed against the decree-holder. 137 I.C. 183=34 L.W. 27=1932 M. 260=61 M.L.J. 307. The section is permissive. If after a Court has passed a decree, the local jurisdiction in respect of the suit is transferred to some other Court, the Court which passed the decree may still execute it. 28 C. 238; 35 C. 974; 25 C. 315. See also the Full Bench decision in 42 M. 821=37 M.L.J. 284, overruling 37 M. 462=26 M.L.J. 189; 1928 M. 746=28 L.W. 885; and 61 M.L.J. 307=137 I. C. 183. Section applies to cases where the territorial jurisdiction of the Court is changed, as also to cases where the status of the parties is changed and the ceasing of the jurisdiction is due to either of these causes. 17 B. 162. As to effect of transfer of suit on interim orders, see 1941 A.L.

J. 46. See also 49 M. 746=50 M.L.J. 161; 7 P.L.T. 333=92 I.C. 900=1926 P. 209. On this section, see also 41 C.L.J. 166; 1925 C. 679; 4 P. 688.

SEC. 37 (a).—It is only the original Court and not the High Court that has to execute the appellate decree of even the Privy Council. 38 M. 382=23 I.C. 235=26 M.L.J. 185.

SEC. 37 (b): CEASED TO EXIST.—The power to execute a decree is vested in the Court which passed the decree. But in the event of the Court ceasing to exercise jurisdiction, it would be exercised by the Court which would have power to try the suit at the time when the application was filed. 49 I.C. 958 (P.); 48 I.C. 107=3 P.L.J. 435. A Court does not cease to be Court which passed the decree merely by reason that the headquarters of such Court are removed to another place or merely because the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court are altered. 6 C. 513. Nor because the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction has been altered. 2 P.L.J. 113=39 I.C. 63. Nor by alter of its name. 30 I.C. 205. Nor by change of Judge. 4 P. 688=7 P.L.T.333=92 I.C. 900=1926 P. 209. Change of territorial jurisdiction—Abolition of Court—Original execution petition filed in wrong Court—Subsequent confinement of jurisdiction—Effect. See 57 M. 995=148 I.C. 1088=1934 M. 283=66 M.L.J. 492. A Court can be said to have 'ceased to exist' only when it has been abolished and not revived. 7 P.L.T. 333 (supra); or when any special jurisdiction (e.g., small cause powers) has been withdrawn after passing of decree. 19 M. 445; 49 I.C. 958 (P.) (Land Acquisition).

CEASING TO HAVE JURISDICTION.—A Court which passed a decree does not lose jurisdiction to execute the same merely because subsequent to the decree its pecuniary jurisdiction has been curtailed. Where the Judge passing the decree had jurisdiction to pass a decree for the amount but his successor before whom the execution application was made had only a more limited jurisdiction so that he could not entertain such suit, held, that the succeeding Judge was competent to entertain the application for execution. 37 C.W.N. 679=1933 C. 684. Where subsequent to the passing of a money decree the area is transferred from the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree to that of another Court the latter Court can execute the decree. 45 M.L.J. 210; 61 M.L.J. 307. See also 49 I.C. 958 (P.); 48 I.C. 107=3 P.L.J. 435. L.J. 340. When the Court which passed a mortgage decree is in existence, no other Court has jurisdiction to execute the decree, though the hypotheca may be within its jurisdiction unless and until the decree was transferred to it for execution. 42 M. 461=36 M.L.J. 199. Where the Court passing a decree loses jurisdiction, the new Court cannot execute the decree without transmission of the decree by the first Court. 55 M. 801 (F.B.). Though a defendant did not object to jurisdiction at the time of the final decree he could do so in execution. 50 M. 882=52 M.L.J. 605.

SEC. 38: SCOPE.—Section not exhaustive. 47 A. 57; 20 Pat.L.T. 585=1939 Pat.532. Particular execution application may be transferred. (Ibid.) Court can call back transferred decree. 50 B. 439=28 Bom. L.R. 381; 62 M.L.J. 687 (F.B.). Equitable execution—Calcutta High Court original side—Decree creating charge on moffusil property—Appointment of Receiver with power to sell — Jurisdiction. 34 C. W. N. 238=57 C. 964. 'Court' includes also Court of Dy. Commissioner of the Garo Hills, 41 C.W.N. 1243=1937 C. 557, although it is in a Scheduled District and the whole of the C.P.Code is not in operation there but only a portion. (Ibid.) This section does not control section 63, and the power of the Superior Court to call up proceedings from inferior Court and sell up property attached by the inferior Court. 48 L.W. 664=1938 M.W.N. 1098.

TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.—Territorial jurisdiction though not necessary for the trial of suits is necessary for the executing Court apart from the special and exceptional procedure by precept. 33 M.L.J. 750; 35 C.W.N. 77=58 C. 832. On this section, see 80 I.C. 901=1925 P. 139. Under section 38 a Court which passes the decree is competent to entertain an execution application even though it may be incompetent to execute the same owing to the fact that the property to be attached or the judgment-debtor to be arrested is outside the Court's jurisdiction. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 789=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 915. Territorial jurisdiction is a condition precedent to the execution of a decree. The Court having jurisdiction over the property which is the subject-matter of the suit in which the decree is passed has alone the power to execute the decree. 48 I.C. 107=3 P.L.J. 435; 6 C. 201; 35 I.C. 96; 31 M.L.J. 22. [But see also the cases cited under section 37 as to loss of territorial jurisdiction after the passing of decree.] So the decree must be transferred to the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property sought to be attached is for the time being. 4 P.L.J. 141. See also 50 M. 882=52 M.L.J. 605; 55 M. 801=62 M.L.J. 687 (F.B.). But in cases of decrees for sale of mortgage property, an exception has been recognised and a Court can order sale of properties comprised in the mortgage though some of them are situated in another district. 80 I.C. 901. See also 14 C. 661; 15 C. 667; 19 C. 13; 21 C. 689; 22 C. 871; 107 I.C. 195; 29 I.C. 745 (M.). In the execution of a mortgage decree the executing Court has power to order the sale of the property mortgaged, even though the property may be situated beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction. (14 C. 661; 21 C. 639; 15 C. 667; 49 M. 746; 80 I.C. 901, Foll.) 14 L. 457=143 I.C. 574=1933 L. 687. If two Subordinate Judges have the same local jurisdiction assigned to them, it is certainly competent for the District Judge to distribute the business among the two officers, but that would not empower the District Judge to make any order in contravention of section 38, and direct that the decree passed by one of the officers could be executed by the other. 73 C.L.J. 351. The Court executing the decree must be of a grade competent to entertain the suit itself. The words 'of competent jurisdiction' in section 39, mean, of jurisdiction pecuniarily competent to try the suit in accordance with the provisions relating to the pecuniary jurisdiction of Courts and territorially competent to deal with the execution application in accordance with the rules relating to the execution of the decree. 1940 N.L.J. 244. The transferee Court contemplated by section 39 must be a Court of competent jurisdiction, that is, a Court which has the same pecuniary jurisdiction as the transferee Court. 70 C.L.J. 438=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 161. There is nothing in the C. P. Code which makes it necessary that the Court to which the decree is transferred for execution should be a Court having a limit of pecuniary jurisdiction which would include the original valuation of the suit. When once a decree has been passed the question of execution of one decree is the same as the execution of another of the same amount and no question of the original valuation of the suit has any real bearing on the question of execution of a decree. It is the value of the decretal amount which determines the importance of the case for the limits of pecuniary jurisdiction. I.L.R. (1940) All. 318=1940 A.L.J. 381=A.I.R. 1940 All. 331.

PECUNIARY JURISDICTION.—As to pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court to which a decree is sent for execution, see the cases cited under section 39. Jurisdiction is not lost in execution, because the interest which accrued after decree has raised the amount due. 10 B. 200. Also where the pecuniary limits of the jurisdiction of the Court are exceeded by the amount of rent or mesne profits ascertained for a period subsequent to the institution of the suit. 21 C. 550; 40 C. 56.

CONCURRENT EXECUTION.—There is nothing in law against a decree being simultaneously executed in more places than one against the property of the judgment-debtor. 34 I.C. 302=3 L.W. 336; 4 M.L.A. 529; 8 C. 687; 1929 B. 418. Where a decree is transferred to another Court for execution, concurrent execution of it is permissible in the Court from which the decree has been transferred. 39 I.C. 729=15 A.L.J. 532; 1939 R. 433; 1940 Sind 11; 41 Bom.L.R. 481. But see also 37 M. 231 and 39 M. 640, infra; 1930 L. 199; 55 M.L.J. 545=55 I.A. 227 (P.C.); 1936 A.L.J. 237=162 I.C. 51=1936 A. 655. An application for execution has to be made to the Court to which the decree has been transferred and not the Court which passed the decree, so long as the former Court has the seisin of execution proceedings. An application to the latter Court is not a step-in-aid of execution. 39 M. 640=31 M.L.J. 300 (P.C.) affirming 37 M. 231. But see 58 C. 832=35 C.W.N. 77. See also 2 P. 247.

APPLICATION FOR SUBSTITUTION OF LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES.—Application by legal representatives for substitution must be made to the Court which passed the decree and not to the Court to which it is transferred for execution. 55 I.C. 156; 1926 M. 411. This is a matter of procedure and non-compliance with it may be waived. Where the decree-holder applied to the transferee Court for substitution of legal representative, and if the legal representative added acquiesced, he is deemed to have waived the objection. 55 M.L.J. 545=55 I.A. 227 (P.C.).

EXECUTING COURT, IF CAN REFUSE TO EXECUTE.—An executing Court cannot refuse to execute a decree passed against a minor not properly represented in a suit. (1928 M.W.N. 227; 15 C.W.N. 725, foll.) Decree being a nullity—Single man firm—Suit against firm—Death of person carrying on business—Decree passed after death—Nullity—Power of executing Court not to give effect to it. 34 C.W.N. 36=57 C. 931=126 I.C. 118.

SEC. 39: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—The section is only directory and not mandatory. 19 C. 13; 15 C. 667; 1937 C. 570; I.L.R. (1939) 1 C. 493=184 I.C. 786=1939 C. 403. But the discretion of Court should be exercised in a judicial manner. 1939 C. 651. A Court has no power to take away the decree-holder's legal right to execute his decree in such manner as he chooses, having regard to his facilities and convenience. 1 O.W.N. 409. It is not proper to transfer decree when the decree-holder makes no allegations necessitating the transfer, and the Court does not record any other grounds. 41 P.L.R. 186. Subordinate Court has no right to order transfer of decree suo motu or at bidding of another Subordinate Court. 41 Bom.L.R. 997=1939 B. 468. Section 39 only contemplates that the entire decree and not a part of it is to be sent for execution to another Court or Courts. There is no provision in the Code under which a decree-holder can divide a decree into several parts and execute them piece-meal in different Courts or in the same Court. 1935 C. 118=38 C.W.N. 1053; 43 I.C. 186=3 Pat. L. W. 247. Also a decree cannot be transferred for a limited purpose only. 39 I.C. 737=1 Pat.L.W. 582. To make this section applicable, it is necessary that the provisions of the Code should regulate the procedure of both the Courts. 34 C. 576. Section is not applicable to decrees passed under the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act. 1928 C. 265; 1939 C. 600. Decree in suit exempted from cognizance of Pro. S. C. Court, may nevertheless be transferred to it for execution. I.L.R. (1939) 1 C. 233=1939 C. 600.

JURISDICTION OF TRANSFERRING COURT.—It is only for limited purposes, e.g., for dealing with applications for recording assignment of decrees under O. 21, r. 16 or to deal with applications against the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor under O. 21, r. 22 that the transferring Court retains jurisdiction. 60 I.C. 1176=37 C.W.N. 1167=1933 C. 906. See also 39 C.W.N. 129=1935 C. 99; 37 C.W.N. 679=1933 C. 684; 162 I.C. 777=1936 C. 267. The transferee Court cannot question the power of the transferring Court to order the transfer of a decree for execution. 1934 M. 266=66 M.L.J. 418. Where a decree is transferred for execution without any reservation, the original Court has no longer the power to execute the decree until and unless the decree is returned by the transferee Court with a certificate of non-satisfaction. It is however open to the original Court to re-transfer the proceedings to itself or to some other Court. If the application for execution is made to the original Court when the transferee Court is seized of the execution, it cannot be said to have been made to the proper Court. 152 I.C. 128=35 P.L.R. 751=1934 L. 728. diction" in section 39 (2) refer to territorial and pecuniary jurisdiction to deal with the decree and do not mean competency to try the original suit. 41 P.L.R. 774=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 258. The word 'may' in section 39 does not mean 'must', but implies a discretion in the Court. Sub-section (1) (c) of that section does not, therefore, oust the jurisdiction of the Court which had passed a decree for sale in a mortgage suit to sell any portion of the mortgaged property or any independent item situated outside its territorial jurisdiction, it having had jurisdiction to entertain the suit and to pass the decree by reason of part of the mortgaged property or some other items of mortgaged property being within its territorial limits. I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 493=43 C.W.N. 453=1939 Cal. 403.

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT TO WHICH A DECREE IS SENT.—The Court to which a decree is sent must be one having jurisdiction and competent to execute the decree, having regard to the amount or the value of the subject-matter. 16 C. 457 at 465; 12 B. 155; 1939 Cal. 600. See also section 6. It must be one having pecuniary jurisdiction to try the suit in which the decree was passed. The provision in sub-section (2) does not mean that under sub-section (1) a decree may be transferred for execution to any Court, irrespective of its pecuniary jurisdiction. 1 P. 651. See also 1933 S. 128; 16 C. 457; 37 C. 574. But the Madras High Court has held that the question of competency does not arise where the decree is sent to another Court on the application of the decree-holder. 7 M. 397; 17 M. 309; 1914 M.W.N. 97=22 I.C. 275. See also 12 I.C. 27 (Bur.). As to non-finding nature of sale by executing Court of property outside its territorial jurisdiction, on another attaching creditor, even when the judgment-debtor had not raised any objection to the sale, see 18 Pat. 670=182 I. C. 610=1939 Pat. 532. The execution Court can substitute legal representatives. 1931 A. L.J. 160=1931 A. 320 (2); but cannot entertain any question as to the transferee's right to the execution sought. 11 P. 94; 1931 L. 690. But the Court passing decree has, even after the transfer of the decree for execution, the power to entertain an application for recognition of the assignment of the decree and for concurrent execution. 63 M.L. J. 788=140 I.C. 591. See also 1939 R. 433; 1937 N. 305. Section 39 indicates that the Court which passed the decree must apply its mind to the matter when an application has been made by the decree-holder for transfer of the decree to another jurisdiction for execution, and exercise its discretion vested in it by that section in a judicial manner. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 651.

NATURE OF ORDER AND LIMITATION.—An order transmitting a decree for execution is one of a quasi administrative nature. 78 I.C. 1001. It can be made even without there being a formal application. 157 I.C. 971 (1)=1935 P. 485. It would not be a nullity even when made ex parte and without notice or without appointment of any guardian to a minor judgment-debtor. 42 L.W. 943=159 I.C. 762=69 M.L.J. 862. Application for transfer of a decree for execution is a step-in-aid. 33 I.C. 523=14 A. L.J. 415, but is not an execution application within the meaning of O. 21, r. 10. 94 I.C. 482=1926 A. 473. As to proper form of application for transfer, and effect on limitation where there is clerical error in application, see 1937 A.L.J. 278=169 I.C. 225=1937 A. 397. Application made to the Court which passed the decree for executing it in respect of property outside its jurisdiction saves limitation and transfer of decree to the proper Court for execution may be ordered. 35 C.W.N. 77. An order transferring a decree for execution should not be made so as to evade the provisions of the Limitation Act or to validate an invalid application. 42 M. 461=36 M.L.J. 199. An order for transfer cannot be held to be an order for execution which can give rise to the bar of constructive res judicata against the judgment-debtor in respect of a latter application, on the ground that he did not raise the plea of limitation, though served with notice of application on which transfer order was passed. 157 I.C. 971 (1)=1935 P. 485; 1939 Rang. 433.

SIMULTANEOUS EXECUTION.—A Court has jurisdiction to execute its decree and at the same time send it to another Court for simultaneous execution. The fact that execution is pending before it is no bar to send the decree for execution. 39 C.W.N. 165=156 I.C. 522=1935 C. 268. See also 1940 Sind 11. An order for transfer of decree to another Court for simultaneous execution without giving notice to the judgment-debtor and without hearing him is not proper. 1935 Cal. 268; 41 Bom.L.R. 481=183 I.C. 333=1939 B. 258.

CONCURRENT EXECUTION IN SEVERAL COURTS.—A Court has power to send its decree for execution to several places. 14 M.L.A. 529; 8 C. 687. See also notes under the heading under section 38. Execution case once transferred—Certificate under section 41 not received—Court passing decree cannot transfer it again to different Court. 29 O.C. 84=1925 O. 428.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—A certificate of transfer of decree need not be signed by Judge who passed it. 38 P.L.R. 1101=162 I.C. 489=1936 L. 369. A decree-holder need not make a second application for execution to the Court to which a decree has been transferred, when he has already made one application to the Court transferring the decree. 2 P. 909; 162 I.C. 777=1936 C. 267. When a Court passes a decree and there is a decree in appeal therefrom and thereafter a petition for execution to the first Court, there is only one decree

(b) if such person has not property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree sufficient to satisfy such decree and has property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(c) if the decree directs the sale or delivery of immovable property situate outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it, or

(d) if the Court which passed the decree considers for any other reason, which it shall record in writing, that the decree should be executed by such other Court.

(2) The Court which passed a decree may of its own motion send it for execution to any subordinate Court of competent jurisdiction.

40. Where a decree is sent for execution in another province, it shall be sent to such Court and executed in such manner as to be executed, viz., the original decree as amended by the appellate Court. When in such circumstances a petition for transfer of execution is made and granted it would refer to the decree as amended on appeal, because in the eye of law, there is only one decree, even though the appellate decree is not mentioned in the petition. 38 L.W. 877 = 1933 M. 872 = 147 I.C. 386. Questions regarding who are the legal representatives and plea of limitation, if raised, should be decided before transfer. 91 I.C. 1056 = 23 L.W. 92 = 1926 M. 411. See also 60 C. 1176 = 37 C.W.N. 1167 = 1933 C. 906. An order of transfer of a decree takes effect from the date on which the order is made and the Court to which the decree is so transferred for execution can from that date entertain an application for execution even though a copy of the decree has not been received by the executing Court. (35 M. 588, Appr.; 55 M.L.J. 120, Overr.) 56 M. 692 = 144 I.C. 923 (2) = 1933 M. 627 = 65 M. L.J. 137. Where proceedings in respect of a transferred decree have terminated in transferee Court, an application for execution may be made in Court which passed the decree even though the certificate of the transferee Court has not been received. 39 C.W.N. 129 = 154 I.C. 731 = 1935 C. 99. In applying for transfer the mode of execution in the transferee Court need not be stated. 1929 C. 529. Award under Arbitration Act—Transfer to subordinate Court for execution—Legality. See 151 I.C. 860. A District Munsif receiving by transfer a decree of a Village Court for execution or withdrawing execution of a decree to his own file cannot transfer the decree to another District Munsif's Court. 46 M. 734 = 44 M.L.J. 643.

Transfer of decree to Court in another province. may be prescribed by rules in force in that province.

NOTES.

SEC. 39 (b).—Where the condition justifying transfer is that set out in this clause, the execution should be limited to that judgment-debtor who satisfies that condition. Execution against another judgment-debtor who does not satisfy that condition is not proper. 1936 C. 521.

SEC. 39 (c).—If after a Court passes a decree for the sale of property mortgaged, the District within which the property is situate is transferred to another Court, the Court which passed the decree can still sell it. 15 C. 667; 19 C. 13; 21 C. 639; 22 C. 871.

Transfer under this clause is not mandatory but only discretionary. So Court passing mortgage decree which includes also property outside its territorial jurisdiction can order sale of such property. I.L.R. (1939) 1 C. 493 = 184 I.C. 786 = 1939 C. 403. For the distinction in the case of execution of money decrees, see 1929 C. 818 = 57 C. 67.

SEC. 39 (d).—A Court which passed a decree in its Small Cause jurisdiction may transfer it to the other branch of the same Court. The two branches may be regarded as different Courts. 8 B. 230; 9 B. 237; 6 A. 243 (F.B.); 76 I.C. 548 = 1923 B. 371. This sub-cl. (d) does not enable the Court to proceed in execution in a matter which is not otherwise permitted by law. Thus a S. C. Court by transferring execution to its regular side cannot proceed against immovable property. 178 I.C. 127 = 1938 Pesh. 70. See also 43 P.L.R. 1. In 18 B. 61 the question whether a Sub-Judge can transfer a decree for execution to a Court of Small Causes, when the property attached was situated within the local limits of his jurisdiction was raised, but not decided. The provisions of this clause have not to be considered at all where the decree directing sale is to be executed not only by sale of property but also by removal of obstruction. 30 S.L.R. 290 = 161 I.C. 524 = 1936 S. 11.

SEC. 39 (2).—'Competent jurisdiction' refers to territorial and pecuniary competency to deal with the decree and does not mean competency to try the original suit. Thus award under Arbitration Act may be transferred for execution to a Court to which the Act may not apply. 41 P.L.R. 774 = 183 I. C. 241 = 1939 Lah. 258. See also 1938 A.L. J. 1128 = 1939 A. 57 = I.L.R. (1939) A. 97.

SECS. 39 AND 42.—See 1939 Cal. 600. Where the same Judge holds the office both of the Judge, Small Causes, and as a judge on the regular side, he can, on an application of the decree-holder or otherwise, transfer a Small Cause Court decree to the regular side for the purpose of obtaining attachment and sale of the immovable property. 43 P.L.R. 1 = I.L.R. (1941) L. 670 = 1941 L. 109.

APPEAL.—An appeal lies from an order rejecting an application for transfer. 8 C. W.N. 575.

SEC. 40.—See I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 264 = 177 I.C. 487 = 1938 Lah. 126. Section applies

41. The Court to which a decree is sent for execution shall certify to the Court, which passed it the fact of such execution, or where the former Court fails to execute the same the circumstances attending such failure.
- Result of execution proceedings to be certified.
42. The Court executing a decree sent to it shall have the same powers in executing such decree as if it had been passed by itself.
- Powers of Court in executing transferred decree.
- All persons disobeying or obstructing the execution of the decree shall be punishable by such Court in the same manner as if it had passed the decree. And its order in executing such decree only when both transferor and transferee Courts are regulated by the Code. 34 C. 576; 12 B. 230. The law of limitation applicable for execution of a decree transferred to another Province would be the law in force in the transferring Court. 17 C. 491; 24 C. 473; 36 M. 108.

SEC. 41: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF THE SECTION.—It is only when the Court to which a decree is sent has executed it or has wholly failed to execute it that the Court is bound to send a certificate under section 41. It does not matter if one application fails. 25 Bom.L.R. 453=74 I.C. 149=1923 B. 396. See also 20 A. 129. After the issue of a certificate and return of the copy of the decree, the Court to which the decree is transferred ceases to have jurisdiction. 22 A.L.J. 1039=1925 A. 179; 26 Bom.L.R. 345=1924 B. 359; 5 P. 398; 1930 L. 508; 11 P. 513. See also 28 O.C. 169=1933 L. 149. Even when the certificate of non-satisfaction is sent to the central Court for communication to decretal Court and not directly to the latter Court, and the central Court fails to communicate. 43 C.W.N. 412. When the result of the execution is not certified, execution by Court which passed the decree, if competent. See 39 C.W.N. 129=1935 C. 99=154 I.C. 731. Certificates as to result of each application sent under the executive orders of the High Court cannot put an end to the jurisdiction of the Court to execute the decree. 18 N. L.R. 178=68 I.C. 657=1922 N. 210. As to the applicability of the section to a Court executing its own decree on Small Cause Side, in the Original Side, and entering satisfaction in the Small Cause Register, see 76 I.C. 548=1923 B. 371. On this section, see also 1926 L. 113.

CERTIFICATE OF NON-SATISFACTION.—As to what amounts to a certificate under this section, see 1938 A.L.J. 553=176 I.C. 412=1938 A. 412; 1937 A.L.J. 1168=172 I.C. 753=1937 A. 766. See also 41 C.W.N. 1243=1937 C. 557. As to effect of sending premature and erroneous certificate, see 1937 A.L.J. 393=170 I.C. 228=1937 A. 474. It is only the Court which has passed the decree that is competent to grant a certificate of non-satisfaction to the decree-holder to enable him to execute the decree in another Court but not the Court to which a decree is transferred for execution. The Court can only execute the decree itself and certify the result of execution before it to the original Court. 150 I.C. 905=1934 L. 330.

SEC. 42: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—Section

42 does not override O. 21, r. 16, but is subject to it. 1934 L. 648. Hence, an application by the assignee of a decree for execution can be properly made only to the Court which had transferred the decree, even though the transfer was before the assignment. 1934 L. 648. Where a decree is already transferred for execution by the Court which passed it, an application for further transfer should be made to the Court where execution is pending. 47 B. 56. But see 1927 N. 367. Section not applicable to execution proceedings of a decree of Madras Small Cause Court transferred to a mofussil Court, but applicable to execution proceedings in the Madras Small Cause Court. 49 M.L.J. 104. Award filed in Court may be transferred for execution. 1931 N. 170=27 N.L.R. 386. Where a decree-holder obtains an order for the transfer of a decree but the decree is not actually sent, the Court which passed the decree has jurisdiction to execute it. 1 P. 328.

POWERS OF COURT IN EXECUTING TRANSFERRED DECREE.—The powers given to executing Court under this section are not in any way limited or restricted by anything contained in section 39. 46 L.W. 565=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 602. The same territorial jurisdiction which the transferring Court had is transferred to the transferee Court by the very order of transfer. 1941 O.A. 865=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 949=1941 O.W.N. 1138. Objections to the execution of the decree should be raised before the Court to which it is transmitted for execution. 78 I.C. 1001; 5 R. 775. In executing a decree against a firm, Court can determine whether a person is a partner or not. 98 I.C. 855; 131 I.C. 376. The executing Court has power to consider an objection that the decree-holder's demand must be deemed to have been satisfied under section 18 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act. 46 A. 560. Under Sections 37 and 42 the Court to which a decree is transferred has powers to stay execution of a decree under O. 21, r. 29. 60 C. 1119=37 C.W.N. 846=57 C.L.J. 444. But see contra 162 I.C. 865=1936 R. 184. Transfer for execution—Power of Court to order attachment. 91 I.C. 1043. Transferee Court can order removal of obstruction under O. 21, rr. 95 and 97, even though it had not passed the decree or sold the property. 30 S.L.R. 290=161 I.C. 524=1936 S. 11. The transferee Court is not debarred from taking cognizance of objections as to jurisdiction of which the Court which transferred the decree could take cognizance. 152 I.C. 135 (2)=35 P.L.R. 482 shall be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal as if the decree had been passed by itself.

43. Any decree passed by a Civil Court established in any part of British India to which the provisions relating to execution do not extend, or by any Court established or continued by the authority of <sup>1</sup>[the Central Government or the Crown Representative] in the territories of any foreign Prince or State, may, if it cannot be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed, be executed in manner herein provided within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Substituted for words 'the Governor-General in Council' by the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

NOTES.

=1934 L. 652. An executing Court can refuse to execute a decree when it finds that the decree is against a dead person and therefore a nullity, just as the Court passing a decree can do. 1934 L. 117 (2). Where a Small Cause Court decree is transferred for execution to a Subordinate Judge having small cause powers, and the application for execution is primarily an application to execute the decree against the immovable property of the judgment-debtor, the Subordinate Judge in dealing with it acts in the exercise of ordinary jurisdiction and not in the exercise of his small cause jurisdiction, and his order is, therefore, subject to the ordinary rules in respect of appeals as provided by section 42. 44 C.W.N. 587.

POWERS NOT POSSESSED BY EXECUTING COURT.—The Court to which a decree is sent cannot question the propriety of the order transmitting the decree to such Court. 21 B. 456. See also 7 A. 330; 8 M.L.J. 1; 1930 L. 118. It cannot refuse execution on the ground that questions are raised between the parties that cannot properly be dealt with in execution. 11 B. 528. The executing Court cannot call the legality of a decree in question. 8 C. 687; 31 C. 922; 23 A. 181; 7 Bom.L.R. 659; 4 M. 324; 11 B. 528; 7 B. 481; 10 B. 65. But see 28 B. 378. It can decide whether or not the execution was barred by limitation. 23 C. 39. But it has no such power when the Court which passed the decree makes an order for execution and then transmits the decree for execution to another Court. 15 B. 28. Section 42 deals simply with the manner of execution and leaves the matter of limitation to be governed by Limitation Act. Where a decree passed by one Court is sent for execution to another Court, the period of limitation applicable to the execution of that decree concerned depends upon the character of the Court which passed the decree and not upon the character of the Court executing it. 7 Cut.L.T. 45. As to proper procedure to be adopted when judgment-debtor desires to question the order transferring the decree on the ground of limitation, see 14 R. 550=163 I.C. 403=1936 R. 271; 1937 R. 477. Court cannot vary decree. See 4 I.A. 137; 8 C. 332; 15 B. 644; 7 A. 194; 22 C.L.J. 561; 34 I.C. 362; 39 I.C. 537; 99 I.C. 535=27

Punj.L.R. 750; 123 I.C. 531 (L.). Nor can it pass an order which has the effect of amending, altering or varying the decree itself. An order for payment of a decree by instalments, which is made after the decree has been passed, undoubtedly has the effect of altering or varying the terms of the original decree, and consequently it is not within the competence of the transferee Court to make such an order. 12 R. 320=151 I.C. 937 (2)=1934 R. 165. Transferee Court has no power to entertain and decide application under O. 21, r. 50 for executing decrees against third parties alleged to be liable. 177 I.C. 779=1937 Pesh. 96. Transferee Court can execute decree against surety under section 145, but should first give notice to him before so doing. I.L.R. (1938) L. 624=177 I.C. 879=40 P.L.R. 530. Section 34 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act contemplates as legal, the transfer of an execution application by a Small Cause Court's Judge acting in that capacity to a Court of ordinary civil jurisdiction also presided over by himself. He could also transfer it to a Court of a subordinate judge. Small Cause Courts are no doubt to execute decrees against movable property, but once a decree has been passed by the Small Cause Court judge, it is of the same relative value as any other money decree passed by any other Court of competent jurisdiction. 1940 A.M.L.J. 133.

APPEAL.—Although no appeal lies from the orders of a Small Cause Court, still under section 42 an appeal lies from an order passed in execution of a Small Cause decree transferred to a Court on its Original Side. 33 I.C. 523=14 A.L.J. 415; 27 I.C. 10=20 C.L.J. 129; also 103 I.C. 344=1928 B. 534 (2). Only one appeal lies against such orders. 12 I.C. 959; 25 C. 872. Where a decree of a Small Cause Court is transferred for execution to the regular side of another Court and executed, the orders passed in the execution of the decree by such Court are appealable and no revision under section 20 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is competent. 7 Cut.L.T. 33. See also I.L.R. 1941 L. 670. Transfer of decree—Subsequent affirmation in appeal—Fresh order of transfer not necessary. 9 P. 829.

SEC. 43.—The section is applicable to decrees passed by Courts in the Scheduled Districts. 15 C. 365. The Court of the Political Agent at Sikkim is a Court established by authority of Governor-General. 38 C. 859. See also cases noted under section 1. supra.

Execution of decrees passed by Courts of Indian States.

<sup>2</sup>[44-A. (1) Where a certified copy of a decree of any of the superior Courts of the United Kingdom or any reciprocating territory has been filed in a District Court, the decree may be executed in British India as if it had been passed by the District Court.]

Execution of decrees passed by Courts in the United Kingdom and other reciprocating territory.

(2) Together with the certified copy of the decree shall be filed a certificate from such superior Court stating the extent, if any, to which the decree has been satisfied or adjusted and such certificate shall, for the purposes of proceedings under this section, be conclusive proof of the extent of such satisfaction or adjustment.

(3) The provisions of section 47 shall as from the filing of the certified copy of the decree apply to the proceedings of a District Court executing a decree under this section, and the District Court shall refuse execution of any such decree, if it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the decree falls within any of the exceptions specified in clauses (a) to (f) of section 13.

Explanation I.—‘Superior Courts,’ with reference to the United Kingdom, means the High Court in England, the Court of Session in Scotland, the High Court in Northern Ireland, the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster and the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Durham.

Explanation II.—‘Reciprocating territory’ means any country, or territory, situated in any part of His Majesty’s Dominions <sup>3</sup>[* *] which the Central Government may, from time to time, by notification in the Official Gazette declare to be reciprocating territory for the purposes of this section; and ‘superior Courts,’ with reference to any such territory, means such Courts as may be specified in the said notification.

NOTES.

SEC. 44: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—(See also notes under section 13.) The concluding words of this section ‘as if they had been passed by Courts in British India’ do not in any way control the operation of the provisions of section 13 (a). 37 P.L.R. 240=158 I.C. 232=1935 L. 551. A suit does not lie in British India on decrees of the Courts of Native States; such decrees are made executable by Notification by Governor-General in Council under section 44. 39 M. 24=27 M.L.J. 535 (F.B.); 1931 A. 689=53 A. 747. As to effect of notification see 40 C.W.N.

591. The expression “may be executed” gives a discretion to the Court to refuse execution. This discretion is not limited to sections 13 and 14. 21 L.W. 330=86 I.C. 492=1925 M. 788. These words refer only to the mode of execution. 1925 M. 788. As to powers of Court executing decree of foreign Court, see 41 C.L.J. 508=1925 C. 955. As to the mode of executing foreign decrees, see 2 M. 237. Notice to judgment-debtor is essential. 1925 M. 788. Explanation III.—‘Decree,’ with reference to a superior Court, means any decree or judgment of such Court under which a sum of money is payable, not being a sum payable in respect of taxes or other charges of a like nature or in respect of a fine or other penalty, and

(a) with reference to superior Courts in the United Kingdom, includes judgments given and decrees made in any Court in appeals against such decrees or judgments, but

(b) in no case includes an arbitration award, even if such award is enforceable as a decree or judgment.]

46. (1) Upon the application of the decree-holder the Court which passed the decree may, whenever it thinks fit, issue a precept to any other Court which would be competent to execute such decree to attach any property belonging to the judgment-debtor and specified in the precept.

(2) The Court to which a precept is sent shall proceed to attach the property in the manner prescribed in regard to the attachment of property in execution of a decree :

Provided that no attachment under a precept shall continue for more than two months unless the period of attachment is extended by an order of the Court which passed the decree, or unless before the determination of such attachment

LEG. REF.

“So much of the foregoing sections of this Part as empowers a Court to send a decree for execution to another Court shall be construed as empowering a Court in British India to send a decree for execution to any Court established or continued by the authority of the Governor-General in Council in the territories of any foreign Prince or State to which the Governor-General in Council has, by notification in the Gazette of India, declared this section to apply.”

NOTES.

SEC. 45.—Neither section 44 nor section 45 sanctions the transmission of a decree of British Indian Court to a Court in a Native State. 40 M. 1069=33 M.L.J. 130 (F.B.); 32 M.L.J. 487. See also 12 B. 230; 29 C. 400; 39 M. 648; 1929 S. 45; 39 M. 733 (F.B.); 2 M. 237 (337, 338); foreign decrees. 1933 M. 112; 1934 M. 434=57 M. 824=67 M.L.J. 187.

SEC. 46.—An indefinite order stating that an attachment is made permanently is not one contemplated by this section. 163 I.C. 374=1936 L. 486. Unlike in the case of a regular attachment, an attachment by precept can have force only for 2 months unless extended. Therefore payment of money attached under precept may be validly paid over to a subsequent attaching creditor after the said period of 2 months. 163 I.C. 374=1936 L. 486 (Reversing 161 I.C. 418=1935 L. 914). An application under the section should be made to the Court which passed the decree. The period of two months may be extended after it has expired. See section 148. An order extending the period of attachment relates back to the date of the petition and the attachment would be effective though the order was passed after the expiry of two months if the application for extension was put in within the period. 34 I.C. 302=3 L.W. 336. Court to which decree is transferred cannot issue precept. 1926 S. 157=92 I.C. 621. The Court which passed the decree can issue a precept even after the decree is transferred to another Court for execution. 31 C.W.N. 653=102 I.C. 513=1927 C. 581; 9 R. 561=1931 R. 279. It is not open to the Court issuing the precept to attach such property itself. The Court to which it is issued must attach the property and wait for an application for execution being made by the attaching creditor. 146 I.C. 991=1933 A.L.J. 902=1933 A. 844. Court to which precept is issued has power to accept money or security. See 94 I.C. 119=1926 L. 433=27 Punj.L.R. 757. Application for precept is a step-in-aid of execution under Limitation Act, Art. 182 (5). 146 I.C. 991=1933 A.L.J. 902=1933 A. 844. Application for attachment, if sufficient to entitle applicant to rateable distribution. See 90 I.C. 527.

the decree has been transferred to the Court by which the attachment has been made and the decree-holder has applied for an order for the sale of such property.

QUESTIONS TO BE DETERMINED BY COURT EXECUTING DECREE.

47. (1) All questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, shall be determined by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit.

NOTES.

SEC. 47: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—There are important differences in legal consequences between an application under section 47 and an application under O. 21, r. 58, in respect of further remedies open to the applicant. If the application is only under section 47, the applicant's remedy in the event of an adverse order on that application is to appeal against that order whereas if the application is really one under O. 21, r. 58, the applicant's remedy will be by a regular suit. 158 I.C. 410=1935 M. 923. See also 1935 Lah. 549; 1940 Rang. 161; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 305; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 860. Section should be interpreted liberally. 3 P.L.T. 613; 19 C. 683; 15 P. 545=17 P.L.T. 434=1936 P. 289; 21 Pat.L.T. 227 (Duty of Court to work out rights of parties finally in execution). In considering whether an application is under section 47 of the Code or not, the substance of the application should be examined in order to find out its true nature. The heading given to it by applicant is not conclusive. 140 I.C. 779=1933 M. 130; 161 I.C. 21=1936 L. 725. Section 47 (1) is mandatory and in regard to a matter that properly falls under that section, Court is bound to decide it in execution and has no discretion whether or not to refer parties to a separate suit. 1933 M. 825=66 M.L.J. 263=57 M. 49. (56 M. 447, Foll.) See also 56 C. 462; 1929 C. 247. Section draws no distinction between the functions of a Court executing a simple money decree and one executing a decree under O. 34. 15 L. 772=1934 L. 438; 127 I.C. 12=1929 L. 762. Application for personal decree in mortgage suit, if falls under this section. 62 C. 28=158 I.C. 1074=1935 C. 596. Section applies only to matters arising subsequent to passing of the decree. 67 I.C. 753; 25 Bom.L.R. 440, and not to events subsequent to execution sale—Separate suit lies. 119 I.C. 881=1929 P. 559. Judgment-debtor's objection that he has no saleable interest is matter to be decided before the decree and not in execution of a mortgage-decree for sale. 1929 R. 275 (1). As to whether application for personal decree in mortgage suit may be treated as one under this section. See 62 C. 28=1935 C. 596. An objection by the judgment-debtor that a scheme sanctioned by the Court under section 153 of the Companies Act has superseded the decree which has, therefore, become incapable of execution, relates to the execution or discharge of the decree and consequently comes within section 47, C. P. Code. 41 C.W.N. 406=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 781=1937 Cal. 211. Section applies to ejectment proceedings under Tenancy Acts. 1931 A.L.J. 529. An application under section 173 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act to set aside a sale falls under section 47, C. P. Code, and an appeal therefore lies against the order on such application. 60 C.L.J. 36=1935 C. 89=154 I.C. 347. See also 45 C.W.N. 379; 1940 M. 131=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 853 (application under sections 19 and 20 of Mad. Argi. Relief Act). This section applies to execution proceedings of rent decree. 16 P.L.T. 443=156 I.C. 881=1935 P. 227. See also 193 I.C. 274=1940 Nag. 372=1940 N.L.J. 473. Question of priority as between rival heirs claiming to be entitled to execute decree falls under this section. 59 B. 417=37 Bom.L.R. 150=1935 B. 298. (But see 151 I.C. 473=1934 A. 730.) But not dispute between rival decree-holders regarding attachment or distribution of assets. 1936 O.W.N. 559=163 I.C. 175 (2)=1936 O. 277.

Section does not apply where one of the persons was not party to the decree and the question raised should be decided in separate suit and not in execution. 143 I.C. 843=1933 O. 146. But where the party to the suit is bound by the decree he cannot evade the rule that disputes in execution must be settled under section 47 and not by a separate suit, by joining with a stranger. 147 I.C. 526=37 L.W. 346=1933 M. 340. O. 21, r. 103 is not restricted by the general provisions of section 47. 52 I.C. 928. O. 21, r. 103 only applies to cases where persons concerned are parties to the suit or their representatives. 63 I.C. 730=41 M.L.J. 54. Application to draw out amount deposited by defendant in setting aside an ex parte decree is not an execution application. 54 M.L.J. 452=1928 M. 296. Application under O. 20, r. 12 for enquiry into mesne profits directed by decree is not an execution application and section 47 does not bar a fresh suit in the absence of such application 57 M.L.J. 515=1929 M. 785. Suit for possession on basis of a barred redemption decree is barred by section 47. 119 I.C. 225 (1)=1930 L. 74. Applicability to proceedings under Arbitration Act. See 115 I.C. 536=1929 L. 228; 151 I.C. 881=1934 L. 49. Section 47 does not apply to a decree of a foreign Court. 1913 M.W.N. 605. Nor to a decree which is a nullity, the defendant having been dead at the time of the decree. 148 I.C. 418=11 O.W.N. 416=1934 O. 167. Order allowing decree-holder to withdraw execution proceedings is outside the section. 19 I.C. 904=18 C.L.J. 53. Section does not apply to application made by a mere garnishee who is not party to suit or to execution proceedings.

NOTES.

13 R. 722. Section no bar to setting up by way of defence matters relating to execution. 41 M.L.J. 261; 27 C.W.N. 280; 56 C. 467=1929 C. 247. But see 33 C.W.N. 795=1929 C. 374 (F.B.); 49 M.L.J. 407; 59 C. 1242=1932 C. 825; 9 R. 305; 130 I.C. 154=1931 N. 27 where plea of judgment-debtor that decree was satisfied prior to sale was held to be barred in defence to a suit for possession by decree-holder auction-purchaser.

PRE-DECREE AGREEMENT.—Where a payment made prior to a decree, is pleaded in bar of execution, the executing Court cannot go into that question as it is not one relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree. In putting forward such a claim the judgment-debtor is asking the Court to embark on an enquiry whether the decree to be executed is the decree as passed by the Court or as modified by parties. 1938 N.L.J. 148=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 265. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 344. The executing Court can only go into matters relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree which arise after the decree came into existence and result in its discharge or satisfaction and not into a pre-decree compromise which is not embodied in the decree and which practically nullifies the decree. Such a compromise could not, therefore, be pleaded as a bar in execution proceedings and a separate suit for declaration of rights on the basis of the compromise is maintainable. 18 L. 171=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 507. See also 54 L.W. 159=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 349; I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 223. The C. P. Code contains no general restriction of the parties' liberty of contract with reference to their rights and obligations under the decree and if they do contract upon terms which have reference to and affect the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree the provisions of section 47 involve that questions relating to such terms may fall to be determined by the executing Court. A fair and ordinary bargain for time in consideration of a reasonable rate of interest, cannot be regarded as an attempt to give jurisdiction to a Court to amend or vary the decree. It has its effect on the parties' rights under the decree and the executing Court under section 47, has jurisdiction to ascertain its legal effect and to order accordingly. It is not possible to regard O. 20, r. 10 as excluding any possibility of the parties coming to a valid agreement for time, to which the Court under section 47, will have regard. Such agreements or bargains may take different forms. If it appears to the Court acting under section 47 that the true effect of the agreement was to discharge the decree forthwith in consideration of certain promises by the debtor, then no doubt the Court will not have occasion to enforce it in execution proceedings but will leave the creditor to bring a separate suit on the contract. If, on the other hand, the agreement is intended to govern the liability of the debtor under the decree and to have effect upon the time or manner of its enforcement, it is a matter to be dealt with under section 47. In such a case to say that the creditor may perhaps have a separate suit is to misread the Code, which by requiring all such matters to be dealt with in execution discloses a broader view of the functions of an executing Court. 66 I.A. 84=14 Luck. 192=43 C.W.N. 501. See also 1939 Sind 343; A.I.R. 1939 P.C. 80=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 652=66 I.A. 84=14 Luck. 192 (P.C.).

JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF EXECUTING COURT.—A Court which cannot try original case it not competent to execute decree in the suit. 151 I.C. 860=1934 Pesh. 107. Executing Court is not entitled to go behind decree and say that on the mortgage the Court had no jurisdiction to pass the decree because the mortgage was invalid. 149 I.C. 457 (1)=1934 P. 426. See also I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 79. 15 Pat.L.T. 661 (F.B.); 1934 A. 1027; 151 I.C. 730=35 P.L.R. 400=1934 L. 609; 15 L. 772 (Sons objecting that mortgage by father was void as being without necessity and as being immoral). Where, after the death of a judgment-debtor in a mortgage decree, his sons are brought on record as his legal representatives, it is not open to the latter to attack the validity of the decree itself on the ground that the property was their personal property and was not liable to be sold. Neither section 47, nor O. 21, r. 58, will allow such a question to be gone into execution in such a case. 37 P. L.R. 123=1935 L. 549. See also 1940 Rang. L.R. 402=1940 Rang. 161; I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 403=186 I.C. 168; (1940) Mad. 881=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 305; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 860; (1940) Sind 191; 194 I.C. 45. For the purpose of deciding a claim under O. 21, r. 58, the Court is bound to find who was in possession at the time of the attachment. It is not bound to find who had the title to the land or property attached and can refer parties to a suit for determining title. For the purpose of deciding a claim under section 47, it is necessary to go into all the contentions of the parties including the contention as to title. The scope of the enquiry cannot be restricted merely to the question of possession at the time of the attachment. The difference between the two enquiries is, therefore, not a difference in procedure so much as a difference in the scope of the enquiry. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 881=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 305. Though executing Court is not entitled to go behind decree, it has nevertheless power to see whether decree is capable of execution. 14 L. 230=1933 L. 41. As to whether executing Court can inquire into plea of adjustment of decree, see 37 Bom.L.R. 230=1935 B. 303. As to executability of decree after compromise by parties varying terms of the decree and recorded under O. 21, r. 2, see 144 I.C. 721=1933 Pesh. 53 (Case-law discussed). See also 1939 Sind 343; 143 I.C. 228=1933 Pesh. 63. As to executability of the scheme decree as regards portion not embodying the scheme, see 1933 M.W.N. 183. The decree-holder need not be a party to the decree. 61 M.L.J. 904. E.g., in a scheme decree, the new trustee can enforce the decree. 54 M. 345=60 M.L.J. 173; 61 M.L.J. 904;

The executing Court has no option but to execute the decree as it stands, however erroneous the decree might be. 156 I.C. 145=42 L.W. 254=1935 M. 598. A decree beyond inherent jurisdiction of the Court is a nullity and it cannot be executed and executing Court is competent to decide the question whether decree is or is not a nullity. 1934 L. 623. See also I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 79; 1940 Rang. 27. It is not open to an executing Court to sit in judgment over the Court which passed the decree which has to be executed. It cannot, except in certain limited cases, conduct inquiries as to whether the decree was properly passed. If on the face of the record it is clear that some illegality has been committed the executing Court can refuse to execute the decree. But where there is nothing to show that there has been such illegality, the executing Court has to presume that the decree was properly made, and take the decree as it stands and execute it. 48 L.W. 285=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 186. The fact of the Court having no jurisdiction to pass decree ought to appear on the face of the decree or must be capable of being gathered without necessity of an enquiry into facts. 142 I.C. 487=1933 N. 211; 142 I.C. 643=37 L.W. 358=1933 M. 362. A decree passed by a Court on a compromise and relating to a matter extraneous to the suit is not a nullity and can be executed. 1934 L. 623. The objection that one of the terms of a compromise decree was "outside the scope of the suit" is therefore not one for the executing Court to consider. If the Court had no power to pass the decree the matter should have been raised either by way of review or by way of appeal, but the executing Court cannot go behind it. 13 P. 17. Where certain persons obtain possession of certain properties on relinquishment by a female limited owner, expressly agreeing to pay certain decretal debt due against her, they are, upon the principles of justice, equity and good conscience, bound to pay the decretal debt in execution of the decree. There is no necessity on the part of the decree-holder to take recourse to a separate suit to establish the contractual liability in view of the scope of section 47. They can proceed by way of an application under section 47. 40 C.W.N. 601=63 C.L.J. 25=1936 C. 67. See also 1941 A.L.J. (Supp.) 103=1941 O.W.N. 848 (Set-

It is open to the executing Court to which an award is sent for enforcement, to go into the question whether the award could legally be filed and enforced as a decree under section 15 of the Arbitration Act. 152 I.C. 135 (2)=35 P.L.R. 482=1934 L. 652. A suit for a declaration of right of maintenance and for arrears was filed in forma pauperis, and due to oversight no valuation was put. The suit was beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Munsif but no objection was taken by the defendant; and when the decree was sought to be executed, objection was raised that the Munsif had no jurisdiction to pass the decree. Held, that it was a case of undervaluation, and as no objection was taken in the trial Court, the objection which was taken at the time of execution should fail. 13 P. 290=150 I.C. 373=1934 P. 240. The execution Court has under section 47 power to correct a mistake in the final decree in a partition suit in awarding an excess share to one party. 78 I.C. 1039; 41 M.L.J. 120; but not to correct mistake due to negligence of plaintiff. 33 C.W.N. 739=1929 C. 670. Where the question of splitting up the mortgage debt as among the several properties is refused by the decree the executing Court has no power to decide the question of rateable distribution. 14 Pat.L.T. 371. A puisne mortgagee who was one of the defendants in a suit in which a mortgage decree was passed cannot in execution proceedings be allowed to attack the decree on the ground of paramount title. 144 I.C. 472=38 L.W. 199=1933 M. 569. An executing Court can entertain a claim to set off, even if the case does not fall under O. 21, r. 19; it has inherent power to give effect to such a claim. 39 C.W.N. 106=1936 C. 409. Application under O. 21, r. 22 can be enquired into by executing Court. 178 I.C. 118=1938 Rang.

NOTES.

292. Under the proviso to O. 21, r. 52, when a dispute as to title or priority arises between the decree-holder and a third party as regards the custody of a Court other than the executing Court, then the custody Court shall determine that dispute. When, however, the dispute is between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, the matter has to be decided by the executing Court under section 47, and not by the custody Court. 19 N.L.J. 287. Where a preliminary decree for partition is sought to be sold in execution of a money-decree, an objection based on r. 178, Madras Civil Rules of Practice, to the sale of the decree in execution can be validly raised by a party other than the judgment-debtor. 152 I.C. 789=1934 M. 692 (2)=67 M.L.J. 669. The executing Court must consider the question whether the person sought to be proceeded against in execution is or is not a member of Co-operative Society or a person claiming under him, because if he is a stranger, the award of the Registrar of Co-operative Societies is as against him a nullity. 148 I.C. 730=15 Pat.L.T. 111=1934 P. 145 (2). Where a decree made on an award in arbitration against a minor contains nothing on the face of it to show that the minor was not served or properly represented in the arbitration proceedings, the executing Court has no power to hold an inquiry as to whether the minor was served or represented, and cannot refuse to execute the decree on the ground that he was not served or properly represented or on the ground that the minor cannot be made liable. If the minor is not really liable his remedy lies elsewhere. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 809=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 186. The executing Court cannot ignore the plain provisions of section 16 of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act and order the sale of the property of a member of the agricultural tribe in execution, even though a decree has been obtained against him. 141 I.C. 634=34 P.L.R. 523=1933 L. 397; 151 I.C. 730=35 P.L.R. 400=1934 L. 609. So also the jurisdiction of the Civil Court being excluded in all matters relating to any valuation, assessment, liability to assessment or taxation by a Cantonment Board, a decree granting an injunction against the Board in respect of any such matter, is wholly without jurisdiction and ultra vires and cannot be put into execution. 144 I.C. 1016=1933 A.L.J. 162=1933 A. 163. Where an order of injunction is issued to an executing Court restraining the sale of a certain share of a property claimed by the plaintiff in a suit, there is no objection in principle to the executing Court proceeding with the sale of the remaining part of that property. 61 C. 568=152 I.C. 35=1934 C. 781. Where a decree declares the plaintiff's right to certain hereditary offices in a temple, and grants an injunction restraining the defendants (trustees) from interfering with the exercise of those rights, though the decree does not specifically say what those rights are, the question whether any particular act or acts of the defendants constitute an interference with the rights declared in the decree is one which has to be dealt with and decided by the executing Court alone and not in a separate suit. 156 I.C. 125=1935 M.W.N. 879=1935 M. 576. Where after a decision that a wall is a party wall, and before an appeal is preferred therefrom a party makes alterations thereto without the knowledge or consent of the other side it is an obstruction raised during the pendency of the suit and it should be ordered to be removed on application made, by the executing Court under section 47. 1940 A.M.L.J. 120. A decree awarding future maintenance can be executed for arrears of such future maintenance and no fresh suit is necessary. Where the decree contains an express provision that certain property would be earmarked for future maintenance and that arrears of future maintenance can be realised by sale of that property, it is not a mere money decree, but is itself a decree for sale, and future maintenance when falling due can be recovered in execution without further suit. It can be executed against a purchaser of the property with notice, though he is not a party to the suit itself. 1941 Pat. 95=21 Pat.L.T. 783=1940 P.W.N. 818. As to the powers of Executing Court the following further cases may be referred to:—182 I.C. 208=1939 Pat. 534 (Application to set aside decree on the ground of death of plaintiff before hearing and decision of the suit); 41 P.L.R. 288=1939 Lah. 256 (objection to attachability of property by legal representative of deceased debtor sued as such); 41 P.L.R. 436=1939 Lah. 256 (objection under section 60, C.P.Code after sale and before confirmation); see also 1938 Nag. 558; 41 P.L.R. 175=1939 Lah. 405 (Objection after confirmation of sale not maintainable); 1939 Sind 161 (order under O. 21, r. 50, cl. 2); 1939 Lah. 256 (question whether attached property belongs to deceased debtor or his son, where decree was obtained against the son as representing the estate of the deceased father); 50 L.W. 775=1940 Mad. 296 (plea that suit on mortgage should have been for whole amount and not merely for overdue instalments—should be raised in suit—and not in execution); 1939 Nag. 147 (what constitute questions relating to execution, see also 1939 A.M.L.J. 25; 1939 Nag. 183). 1939 Cal. 651 (objection by judgment-debtor to ex parte order transferring decree to another Court for execution; see also 70 C.L.J. 438=1940 Cal. 161; 179 I.C. 692=1939 Sind 22 (Question whether property held by judgment-debtor is wakf property or one in which he has a beneficial interest); 41 Bom.L.R. 1170=1940 Bom. 10 (Rectifying incorrect description of mortgaged property in the decree) Decree-holder taking possession of property not covered by decree—Application by judgment-debtor for restoration of possession—Is competent. 173 I.C. 563=1938 Nag. 193.

NOTES.

PARTIES TO SUIT, WHO ARE NOT.—Sub-section (1), section 47, should not be restricted to parties ranged against each other on opposite sides. It also applies where the parties are both judgment-debtors and decree-holders. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 592. Questions or disputes between judgment-debtors inter se in which the decree-holder has no interest are not questions between the parties to the suit. 31 M.L.J. 44; 70 I.C. 329=32 M.L.T. (H.C.) 118 (2); 6 A. 12; 1929 A. 292. So also disputes between co-decree-holders. 70 I.C. 329=32 M.L.T. (H.C.) 118 (2); 8 M. 495; 11 C.W.N. 433; 6 P. 386; 113 I.C. 776; 1932 P. 329=140 I.C. 97; 41 C.W.N. 1248=1937 Cal. 730. So also where dispute is as to which of two rival claimants to a decree is entitled to execute. 157 I.C. 73=37 P.L.R. 145=1935 L. 384; or as regards distribution of assets between rival decree-holders. 1936 O.W.N. 559=163 I.C. 175 (2)=1936 O. 277. Also questions between a party to a suit and his own representative. 20 I.C. 329; 25 B. 631. See also 37 C.W.N. 909=1933 Cal. 809. Also questions between persons claiming to be the heirs of the deceased judgment-debtor. 151 I.C. 473=1934 A. 730; see also 43 P.L.R. 435. Or between representatives of deceased decree-holders. 152 I.C. 776=1934 P. 627. Section 47, does not apply where the dispute arises between a party and his own representative or between two persons who both represent the same party. 53 L.W. 27=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 45 (F.B.). In order to determine whether the parties to a proceeding arising in execution are "parties" within the meaning of section 47, the governing factor is not whether the disputants were parties to the decree but whether the disputants were parties to the suit in which the decree was passed. A personal decree arising out of a mortgage suit is a decree passed in the mortgage suit, and though a party has not been given notice of an application for a personal decree, if he was a party to the suit in which such decree is passed. Section 47, would govern the investigation of a claim preferred by him in relation to the execution of such personal decree. The personal decree is not a distinct decree nor the proceeding for a personal decree a separate proceeding from the trial of the suit; and therefore O. 21, R. 58, is not applicable to a claim preferred to property attached in execution of the personal decree by a person who was a party to the mortgage suit but who was not party to the personal decree proceedings. The fact that he drafts his claim as one under O. 21, R. 58, does not make section 47 inapplicable. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 881=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 305. See also 1939 M.W.N. 1229 (Decree against Kar-navan of Malabar tarwad—Power of executing Court to determine whether it can be executed against tarwad property). See also 43 P.L.R. 435=1937 A.M.L.J. 80. A defendant whose name is struck off the record cannot be said to be a party to the suit. 80 I.C. 470; 1933 N. 246. A party to a suit exonerated on the ground of mis-joinder ceases to be a party after such exoneration. 40 M. 964=32 M.L.J. 532 (F.B.); (40 M. 964, Appr.; 49 M. 494, Disappr.); 54 M. 81 (F.B.); 143 I.C. 476=37 L.W. 582=1933 M. 435 following 54 M. 81 (F.B.). But see 37 I.C. 673=5 L.W. 701; 23 M. 361 (F.B.); 45 I.C. 671; 54 M.L.J. 721; 1932 A.L.J. 1036; 1937 M. 268. As between the plaintiff who succeeded in obtaining a decree for rent against the tenant and defendant 1, a co-sharer landlord who is joined as a party defendant in the suit for rent for satisfying the requirements of law as contained in section 148-A, B.T. Act, there can be no question relating to the execution of the rent decree. 38 C.W.N. 43; see also 45 C.W.N. 379 (Order refusing stay of proceedings under section 174, Beng.Ten.Act). A Hindu son who has been impleaded as one of the defendants in a suit for recovery of a sum of money but subsequently excluded from the suit and exempted from the decree is not a party to the suit. 52 I.C. 187. See 1930 C. 586. A party to a mortgage suit, who sets up a paramount title and is discharged from the suit, no decree being passed either in his favour or against him, is not a party within section 47. 52 I.C. 736. The minor sons of a deceased judgment-debtor brought on record but not properly represented, cannot be considered parties to the proceedings. 67 I.C. 547=1922 L. 447. A bidder at an execution sale is not a party to the suit or his representative within section 47. 42 M. 776=37 M.L.J. 274. A garnishee is not a party to the suit. 120 I.C. 565=1929 M. 850.

PARTIES TO SUIT, WHO ARE.—Section 47 is not confined only to cases arising between parties who are opposed to each other in the suit. 45 M.L.J. 478; 151 I.C. 776=1934 P. 627. Persons may be parties opposed to each other without necessarily being arranged as plaintiff and defendant in the suit. 70 I.C. 329; 24 M.L.J. 477; 5 R. 418. Parties unnecessarily impleaded are still parties to the suit within section 47. 67 I.C. 6=34 C.L.J. 477. So also one joined as a pro forma defendant. 148 I.C. 901=1934 L. 105. A person impleaded as a defendant in a suit on a bond on the ground that there had been a partition between him and the plaintiff in which the bond had fallen to the share of the plaintiff and that consequently he had no right to the amount due under the bond, is not a mere pro forma defendant but a party within section 47. 1934 A. 699. 42 C.W.N. 87=1938 Cal. 113; 41 P.L.R. 126=1939 Lah. 207 (Party against whom no relief is claimed or granted). Where party was impleaded in one capacity and objection (claim) is raised by him in execution in another capacity, it will not fall under this section. 1936

Where a suit is dismissed against a defendant, the plaintiff abandoning his case against him, he is still a party to the suit within section 47, Expl. A surety for the judgment-debtor should be deemed to be a party by virtue of S. 145. 9 R. 434; 152 I.C. 693=35 P.L.R. 466=1934 L. 538; 1935 N. 30; 155 I.C. 511=1935 R. 39. Decree-holder-purchaser continues to be party to suit, and his remedy to recover possession of property purchased is only by application under this section and not by separate suit. 1936 Pesh. 85.

REPRESENTATIVES, WHO ARE.—The term 'representatives' occurring in section 47, includes not only legal representatives in the sense of heirs, executors or administrators, but also representatives in interest, that is, any transferee of the decree-holder's or judgment-debtor's interest, who so far as such interest is concerned is bound by the decree. A legal representative is not a mere figure head as the shebait is. He is one to whom the rights and obligations of the deceased are transmitted. He is a real party to the suit, though he represents the rights and liabilities of a deceased person. A shebait on the other hand is a nominal party who is in Court as the representative of an ideal person, namely, the idol. The idol, it is that is the real party in the eye of the law. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 548=1939 Nag. 183. The expression "representative" has been construed in a wider sense than the expression "legal representative" and includes also representative in interest. The two tests to be applied in determining whether a person is a representative within section 47 are (i) whether any portion of the interest of the decree-holder or of the judgment-debtor which was originally vested in one of the parties to the suit has by act of the parties or by operation of law vested in the person who is sought to be treated as representative and (ii) if there has been devolution of interest whether so far as such interest is concerned that person is bound by the decree. The purchaser of the equity of redemption is a 'representative' of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 47. 14 L. 591=142 I.C. 408=1933 L. 352; 1935 S. 214. See also 1940 Sind 251. The word "representatives" in section 47, is not limited to legal representatives of a deceased person but includes persons on whom an interest has devolved by assignment, transfer or otherwise. 186 I.C. 786=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 615. A "representative" is a person in whom the interest of a party to the suit has vested either by an act of the party, i.e., a transferee from the party, or by an operation of law. Operation of law would ordinarily mean and include cases of a testamentary and intestate succession upon the death of the party to the suit or upon his insolvency or cases of forfeiture. 42 Bom.L.R. 1123. Where the mortgagor transfers the mortgaged property pending the suit for foreclosure on the mortgage and the transferee takes actual possession of the same, the mortgagee decree-holder on the making of the final decree can proceed to execute the decree against the transferee for recovery of possession of the property transferred to him inasmuch as the transferee is on account of the transfer pendente lite, a representative in interest of the mortgagor judgment-debtor and is bound by the decree passed (1937) 2 M.L.J. 359 (P.C.). See also 44 C.W.N. 1162=1937 Cal. 565; 1937 Mad. 580. Where a person has been a principal party in a suit brought under O. 21, R. 63 that person too is regarded as representative of the judgment-debtor. 158 I.C. 229=1935 L. 306. The term includes any transferee of the decree-holder's interest or any transferee of the judgment-debtor's interest who, so far as such interest is concerned, is bound by the decree. 24 C. 62; 26 A. 447; 151 I.C. 683=1934 P. 413. A purchaser of a portion of non-transferable holding from a raiyat is a representative of the judgment-debtor within section 47 and can apply to set aside a sale of holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent on the ground of fraud. 42 C. 172 (F.B.). Mortgagee who purchases property of mortgagor at a sale in execution of decree on his mortgage is representative of his judgment-debtor; and when he is impleaded as party to proceedings in execution of rent decrees against mortgagor, the order passed in execution is open to appeal and second appeal. 18 N.L.J. 274. Auction-purchaser in execution of simple money-decree during pendency of mortgage suit is representative of mortgagor. 1936 A.L.J. 541=163 I.C. 926=1936 A. 479. See also 21 Pat.L.T. 783=1940 P.W.N. 818; 42

NOTES.

Insolvency Act, cannot be said to represent the judgment-debtor and the order passed on such an application cannot be treated as falling within section 47, or as amounting to a decree within the meaning of the Code and is therefore not appealable. 56 M. 453 = 141 I.C. 817 = 1933 M. 152 = 64 M.L.J. 119. No hard and fast rule can be laid down regarding the position of the receiver in insolvency in whom the estate of a judgment-debtor has vested. The facts of each case have to be taken into consideration in order to find out whether the Official Receiver is a representative of the judgment-debtor or not. Where the Official Receiver objects to an attachment contending that all the property of the insolvent judgment-debtor had vested in him with effect from the date of the insolvency petition, he is in the position of a third party objecting to attachment under O. 21, r. 58, and when his objection is disallowed, he has no right of appeal but has the right of filing a suit under O. 21, r. 63. 52 L.W. 810 = 1941 Mad. 262 = (1940) 2 M.L.J. 860. Official Receiver in insolvency cannot be regarded merely as the representative of the creditors. He represents the insolvent and the debtor's interest in the properties of his estate devolves on him. Where in execution of a decree against certain insolvent debtors, properties belonging to them are sold without impleading the Official Receiver or serving a notice on him under O. 21, r. 22, an application by the Official Receiver to have the sale set aside on the ground of non-observance of O. 21, r. 22, falls under section 47. The dispute being one between the decree-holder and the representative of the judgment-debtors, section 47 has full application and an appeal therefore lies against an order rejecting the application of the Official Receiver. 53 L.W. 498 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 569. Person appointed by Court under section 37, Provincial Insolvency Act and vested with property on annulment of adjudication is not representative of the insolvent. 40 C.W.N. 1229 = 1936 C. 573. A liquidator is not a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 47. 148 I.C. 714 = 1934 N. 207. See also 1930 N. 199. So also a Receiver of Estate of judgment-debtor. 30 S.L.R. 288. Section 47 should be construed liberally. A decree-holder purchasing the property sold in execution of his decree with the permission of the Court retains his character of a party to the suit and continues to be a party to the suit till the delivery of possession to him of the property purchased by him and if any question is raised by the judgment-debtor at the time of delivery of possession relating to the nature of the rights purchased and resistance to delivery of possession is offered, the question will be one relating to the execution, discharge and satisfaction of the decree, arising between the parties to the suit and falling under section 47 and an appeal would lie from an order passed in relation to the question. The case is not governed by O. 21, r. 103. 177 I.C. 643 = A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 212.

AUCTION PURCHASER, STRANGER, IF REPRESENTATIVE.—See 41 Mad. 403 (P.C.). The rulings on the question whether purchaser is a representative within the meaning of this section and if so whether of the judgment-debtor or of the decree-holder or of both, are conflicting in the different High Courts, and sometimes in the same High Court also. Where property is claimed not under or in execution of a decree, but the claim is for delivery of property on the ground that the decree is not binding on the claimant the question is one that cannot be tried in execution, and therefore section 47 has no application. 1937 Mad. 268. An objection by the judgment-debtor to an attachment of property in his possession on the ground that he is in possession as a shebait of a deity falls under O. 21, rr. 58 and 60 and not under section 47. 39 C. 298 (F.B.); 12 I.C. 411; 42 C. 440. SETTING ASIDE OF EXECUTION SALE, QUESTIONS RELATING TO.—The question of the validity or otherwise of a sale held in execution of a decree is one relating to execution arising between parties to the suit. 13 I.C. 133=1912 M.W.N. 44; 1928 R. 215=144 I.C. 679; I.L.R. Section 47 applies to a case where the question raised concerns the auction-purchaser as well as parties to the suit, e.g., an application to set aside the sale for irregularity. 41 M. 403=34 M.L.J. 463 (P.C.). See also 150 I. C. 611=1934 N. 21. But see 149 I.C. 445=35 P.L.R. 375=1934 L. 508, holding that proceedings for setting aside a sale are not proceedings in execution. See also 151 I.C. 244=1934 A.L.J. 859=1934 A. 314; 43 C.W.N. 419=1939 Cal. 334. An order made under O. 21, r. 97 between the decree-holder-auction-purchaser and another person who had been impleaded as a defendant in the suit is appealable because the dispute comes under section 47. 150 I. C. 313=38 C.W.N. 497=1934 C. 541. A petition objecting to the whole execution procedure in a case and not merely to the actual irregularity in conducting or publishing the sale may be dealt with under section 47 and is not fettered by the 30 days' rule for presentation under O. 21, r. 90. 37 I. Where property claimed by a person in his personal capacity is sold in execution of a decree to which he was a party in a representative capacity, he can apply under section 47 to have the sale set aside and a separate suit will be barred by that section. 46 I.C. 458=

So also an application on the ground of want of notice under O. 21, r. 22. 5 Pat.L.T. 61. See also 142 I.C. 658=1933 M. 224; or suppression of processes. 27 C.L.J. 528. Where an execution sale is challenged on the ground that no notice was issued under O. 21, r. 22, but the Court finds, that no such notice was necessary the order is not one under section 47. 2 P. 916. Where notice under O. 21, r. 22 is held necessary but was not issued, see 7 R. 110. A sale in execution of property which is subsequently found not to belong to the judgment-debtor is not void. The only course open to a decree-holder purchaser in such a case is to apply under O. 21, r. 91 to have the sale set aside. If that remedy is barred by limitation, he loses his remedy altogether. The sale cannot be set aside by any other means, and if the sale stands, the order recording satisfaction of the decree also stands and cannot be set aside by the executing Court. 41 L.W. 422=1935 M. 340. An order on an objection that the properties could not be sold subject to encumbrances as notified in the sale proclamation is one relating to execution within section 47. 72 I.C. 860. An order on an application by a judgment-debtor objecting to the sale of certain property falls under section 47. 31 I.C. 102 (M.). Such an order is appealable. 17 A.L.J. 802. So also an order declining to proceed with execution for the sale of the property, in view of section 63. 26 C.L.J. 42=42 I.C. 466. So also where it is objected that the property sold is not liable to attachment and sale under section 60. 6 A. 448; 8 A. 146; 34 M. 417; 34 B. 546; 148 I.C. 200=1934 N. 28. See also 46 L.W. 544=1937 Mad. 918. The objection may be made even after sale and before confirmation. 158 I.C. 202=1935 A. L.J. 1137=1935 A. 1016; also where it is alleged that before sale the decree was adjusted and that consequently the sale was illegal. 22 A. 86. See also 33 C.W.N. 795=1929 C. 374 (F.B.). So also an objection that certain lands sold in execution are not saleable being inam lands. 1935 N. 30; 31 N.L.R. 217=156 I.C. 99. The section, however, does not bar a suit to set aside a decree and execution sale thereunder as having been obtained by fraud. 42 C. 244=27 M. L.J. 100 (P.C.). See also 24 C. 695; 26 C. 326; 27 C. 197; or as having been a nullity, the legal representative of the deceased defendant not having been brought on record. 21 A. 316. See also 148 I.C. 418=1934 O. 167. The proper remedy for a plaintiff to set aside a sale held in contravention of O. 34, r. 14 is by an application under section 47 and not by a separate suit. 45 B. 174. But an order setting aside confirmation of sale does not fall under the section. 100 I.C. 800=1927 L. 337. Where a mortgage decree is not passed in accordance with law but the properties are purchased by the mortgagee in execution sale, the sale is not void but irregular. The remedy of the aggrieved party is to apply under the section before confirmation of the sale and not by a subsequent suit for redemption treating the execution sale as void. 41 M. 403=34 M.L.J. 463 (P.C.). An application by a receiver of an insolvent's estate to annul a sale on the ground of a prior adjudication of the debtor is one under section 47 to which O. 21, r. 90 is not applicable and hence a second appeal lies to the High Court. 30 M.L.J. 611. See also 1 K. 533. An objection by a Hindu widow who is a party to the suit to the sale of a certain house without reserving rooms for her residence, can be inquired only under section 47 and not by a separate suit. 19 I.C. 926 (2) (Punj.).

DELIVERY OF PROPERTY SOLD IN EXECUTION, QUESTIONS AS TO.—Proceedings as to delivery of possession of property sold in execution where the auction-purchaser is a stranger are not covered by the section. 14 C. 644; 31 M. 177; 53 L.W. 27=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 45 (F.B.). See 177 I. C. 692. See also cases cited under the heading "AUCTION-PURCHASER WHETHER A REPRESENTATIVE OF A PARTY". Where on an application for removal of obstruction to delivery, applicant is referred by the final order to a suit, a subsequent suit is maintainable and S. 47 cannot be pleaded in bar. 69 M.L.J. 139. Where the decree-holder is himself the auction-purchaser, the question is one relating to execution, arising between the parties to the suit, the decree-holder not ceasing to be a party by becoming the auction-purchaser. 35 B. 452; 10 P. 670; 27 C. 34; 31 C. 737; 31 A. 82; 26 M. 740; 13 M. 504; 25 M. 529; 39 M.L.J. 603; 38 P.L.R. 621; 10 I.C. 51=13 C.L.J. 467; 44 I.C. 563; 78 I.C. 930 overruling 35 B. 452; 1935 N. 30. But see 48 B. 550; 5 O.W.N. 108=1928 O. 199 (F.B.) (Contra). Questions relating to the possession of property after sale has taken place are not questions connected with the execution, etc., of a decree within S. 47 and a separate suit for recovery of possession by the decree-holder auction-purchaser is not barred. 33 I.C. 367; 3 Pat. L.J. 571; 48 B. 550; 53 I.C. 460; 10 P. 670; 1929 P. 559; 1931 P. 296 (Partition suit). Even if they are questions relating to execution, the decree-holder cannot be treated as a party to the suit after he has become the purchaser. 31 A. 82; 6 C.L.J. 749. See also 49 I. C. 137=29 C. L. J. 48; 4 Pat.L.J. 716. The question of delivery of possession arising between the decree-holder and defendant against whom no relief is granted is one under S. 47. 29 M.L.J. 629. A suit for possession lies by the decree-holder auction-purchaser who is resisted in obtaining possession of the property by the judgment-debtor as well as by a third person claiming to have an interest in the property. 44 B. 977. But see 28 N.L.R. 250. A suit lies by a decree-holder who purchases his judgment-debtor's rights in joint property, for partition against the judgment-debtor and other co-owners. 28 M.L.J. 642; 1 L. 134; 1927 M. 955. Where the decree was for khas possession of lands jointly owned with the defendants, a separate suit for partition and possession would be barred. 54 C. 524. Where, after sale of the properties in execution of a mortgage decree, a puisne mortgagee who had been impleaded as one of the defendants in the suit applied to the executing Court that he had certain rights in the property by way of easement and as co-sharer and that therefore the possession of the property should not be given, held, the application was one under S. 47 and not under O. 21, R. 100. 144 I.C. 472=38 L.W. 199=1933 M. 569. A plaintiff who was obtained a decree for possession on the basis of a lease and obtained delivery through Court, cannot bring a second suit in respect of the same property praying for demolition of a building which had been built during the period of the lease. S. 47 applies to such a case and bars a separate suit. The fact that another person, the son of the judgment-debtor has been impleaded to the subsequent suit does not remove the bar, unless he has got a separate cause of action against that person. 155 I.C. 268=1935 P. 222.

ADJUSTMENT OUT OF COURT, QUESTIONS RELATING TO.—See 1940 A.L.J. 301=1940 All. 270; 1938 Pat. 41. An application for certifying payments made out of Court falls under S. 47. 1 P. 644. Uncertified payment—Suit for recovery of—After satisfaction of decree—S. 47 no bar. 7 R. 310; but not where such application is barred by time. 25 I.C. 884. Application by judgment-debtor to have sale set aside on ground of satisfaction of decree by uncertified payment by another judgment-debtor is governed by O. 21, R. 2 and Art. 174, Limitation Act. If application is barred, he cannot invoke S. 47. 15 P. 422=17 P.L.T. 195=162 I.C. 849=1936 P. 270. S. 47 bars a suit for a declaration that a decree is satisfied. 3 L. 319; 36 I.C. 988=31 M.L.J. 429; 21 C. 437; 15 M. 302; 31 C. 480; 1933 L. 1051; 157 I.C. 814=1935 R. 225. The question of decree-holder's fraud in not certifying the payment and holding a sale after satisfaction did not fall under O. 21, R. 90 but under S. 47. 10 I.C. 625; 30 C.L.J. 248; 41 A. 443. An application purporting to be under S. 151 and O. 47, R. 1, to set aside an order entering full satisfaction of the decree on the ground of fraud is essentially one under S. 47 relating to the discharge of the decree. 148 I.C. 549=1934 P. 202; 167 I.C. 401=1937 Oudh 298=1937 O.W.N. 231. Though order recording full satisfaction might be reviewed by the Judge who passed it, the question whether the petition of adjustment and the order thereon correctly represented the intention of the parties is not one the determination of which falls under S.

47. So, a suit for rectification of a petition for adjustment of a decree and the order thereon, on the ground that the same did not correctly represent the agreement of the parties and that the decree had been recorded by mistake is not barred by S. 47. 39 C.W.N. 966. See also 40 P.L.R. 569=1938 Lah. 214. CASES WHERE SEPARATE SUIT WILL LIE.—That which in reality forms the basis of an independent suit cannot be introduced as a question to be tried in execution proceedings. 1 P. 581=43 M.L.J. 589 (P.C.); 49 A. 379; 1929 A. 252=115 I.C. 462. See also 1940 N. 336. When a person comes to Court in execution proceedings as the legal representative of a deceased party, he cannot question the decree which has been passed. If the decree concerns property in which he claims an interest, the decree will not be binding upon him unless he was a party to the suit. If he was not a party to the suit or if he had been dismissed from the suit his rights would be entirely unaffected and he would be in a position to enforce them in a suit instituted by him for that purpose. He is not compelled to have his own claims to the property decided in execution proceedings. 54 L.W. 448=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 622 (F.B.). An objection to execution on the ground that the decree is invalid being collusive, can be tried only in a regular suit and not in execution under S. 47. 22 B. 475; 27 M. 118; 28 M. 26; 30 M. 26; 32 C. 265; 21 A. 277 (356); 54 M. 184. barred under S. 47 (1). 18 Lah. 162=39 P. L. R. 904=1937 Lah. 465. Where a decree merely declares the joint liability of the plaintiff and the defendant in respect of a certain debt without any direction for payment of any sum of money by the one to the other, it is incapable of execution. S. 47 is no bar in such a case to a fresh suit between the parties to work out their rights. 64 C.L.J. 55. Cross-suits—Agreement to take decrees for equal amounts and to set-off each against other and to refrain from execution—Decrees passed accordingly—Subsequent execution by one party—Suit by other for damages not barred. A separate suit will lie where the existence of the decree itself is denied [1931 A. 490 (F.B.)]; or where the jurisdiction of the Court passing the decree is questioned. (1932 L. 601). Where the final decree was passed after death of the defendant and without substitution of heirs, the real question at issue is the validity and not the satisfaction of the decree and it can properly be raised in an independent suit by the legal representatives of the deceased defendant who seek to set aside the final decree and the sale in execution. The mere fact that their interests were technically represented by an administrator in execution proceedings cannot prejudice them. 39 C.W.N. 1284. S. 47 does not bar a suit by a person against whom a decree has been passed at a time when he was suffering from unsoundness of mind, to set aside the decree. 50 I.C. 109=17 A.L.J. 257. Where property is claimed not under or in execution of a decree, but the claim is for delivery of property on the ground that the decree is not binding on the claimant the question is one that cannot be tried in execution, and therefore S. 47 has no application. 1937 M. 268. But see 56 M. 909=65 M.L.J. 407=1933 M. 780. Where two decree-holders are proceeding in execution against the same property and the claim for priority made by one is disallowed by the executing Court, the decision does not bar a regular suit by such decree-holder for establishing his priority. 150 I.C. 964=1934 L. 478. The question of priority as between rival heirs claiming to be entitled to execute the decree by right of succession can be decided in execution proceedings under section 47. 59 B. 417=37 Bom.L.R. 150=1935 B. 298. Section 47 is a bar to a regular suit if the object of that suit is to decide a question between a decree-holder-purchaser and the judgment-debtor. But where the object of the suit is to settle dispute between decree-holder-purchaser and persons other than the judgment-debtor, section 47 cannot be a bar, and it is no objection to say that there was no delivery under O. 21, r. 96. 1936 M. 733. Suit by decree-holder auction-purchaser (10 P. 670) or by the purchaser of an undivided interest (1931 M.W.N. 1176) for possession of the properties is not barred. of adjustment, in which a mistake has crept in and upon which an order recording satisfaction of the decree has been passed, is maintainable and not barred by the provisions of section 47. 165 I.C. 756=40 C.W.N. 914=1936 C. 400. A decree-holder-purchaser cannot of course institute a suit for recovery of possession from the judgment-debtor or some one who stands in the shoes of the judgment-debtor, and his remedy is confined to three years. But where the property sold in execution has been held by a tenant under the judgment-debtor from before the date of attachment of the property in execution, and subsequent to the sale the tenant surrenders the property to the judgment-debtor who again leases it to another, the decree-holder purchaser who has not obtained either actual or symbolical possession after the execution sale, or his assignee can maintain a suit for possession against the judgment-debtor and his tenant. Section 47 does not bar such a suit, because the judgment-debtor by the surrender does not obtain possession in the same capacity as he held it at the time of the execution sale. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 456=1939 Mad. 369=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 468 (F.B.). If a person has two capacities, there is no reason why he should be limited to one. If a representative of a judgment-debtor claims the property which the decree-holder seeks to sell in execution as his personal property, there is no reason why he should be limited to the objection under section 47. He is entitled to adopt the procedure laid in O. 21, r. 58, and if he fails in the claim case, to bring a suit under O. 21, r. 63. 179 I.C. 538=1939 Pat. 354. CASES WHERE SEPARATE SUIT WILL NOT LIE.—Section 47 bars both a suit and defence. The section debars a party to the suit or his representative from raising otherwise than in the execution proceedings any question of the class described in the section which arises between himself and the other party to the suit. He cannot raise it either as a plaintiff or as defendant in any separate suit between himself and the other party or his representative. 1939 O.A. 518=1939 O.W.N. 653. A decree obtained by a person for possession of land, which is left unexecuted by leaving the defendants in possession until the execution of the decree is barred by limitation, bars a second suit for possession by reason of section 47. 180 I.C. 76=1939 Pat. 260. Objections by the judgment-debtor to the execution of a decree fall under the section. 46 M.L.J. 240; 22 I.C. 926=12 A.L.J. 12; 151 I.C. 617. If objection to execution is taken by a party to the suit, section 47 applies and not O. 21, r. 63. 16 I.C. 255 (A.). Whether or not execution of a decree is barred. 2 P.L.R. 222

But see 1929 M. 383. An action on a judgment is permissible only where the judgment cannot be enforced in some other way. A simple money decree can be enforced by execution, and a suit based upon such a decree will not lie. The fact that such a decree cannot be executed by reason of section 60-A of the Bengal Court of Wards Act—leave of the Court not having been obtained or accorded—is not an inherent defect in the decree itself which renders it incapable of execution. Absence of leave of the Court is no doubt a bar to execution and nothing more; it is not a ground for holding that a suit will lie upon the judgment. Such a suit will lie only when the decree from its very nature is incapable of execution. A suit to set aside an execution sale on the ground of fraud in respect of an application under O. 21, r. 89, is barred by section 47, C. P. Code. The matter is really within the provisions of section 47 and could only be decided under that section and not by a separate suit. 40 P.L.R. 615=1938 Lah. 690. The question whether a sale in execution of a decree was brought about by fraud, being a question relating to execution, discharged or satisfaction of a decree within the meaning of section 47, can be entertained by an executing Court even though the decree had been transferred to the Collector under section 68, and the sale had been confirmed. 1938 O.W.N. 758=1938 Oudh 188. See also 1937 188.

NO SUIT.—No suit lies to set aside compromise or adjustment of decree effected by next friend of minor without sanction of Court during execution against minor. Minor's remedy is by application under this section or by way of review. 17 P.L.T. 743=165 I.C. 857=1936 P. 506.

APPEAL: ORDERS APPEALABLE UNDER THIS SECTION.—The test to be applied in determining whether an order passed in execution is appealable or not is this—does the order conclusively determine the rights and liabilities of parties in a controversy which has arisen between them and which relates to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree. 1940 A.L.J. 377=1940 All. 326. Interlocutory orders dealing with mere matters of procedure can hardly be said to be determination of any question within S. 47 and are not appealable. There must be determination of the rights or liabilities of the parties as to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. 24 C. 725; 34 A. 530; 27 I.C. 444=20 C.L.J. 512; 5 R. 534=104 I.C. 324=1927 R. 317; 1929 L. 815; 1929 M. 718; 1929 A. 85 (1); 151 I.C. 61=1934 Pesh. 43; 1937 Lah. 263; 1939 Lah. 177; 45 C.W.N. 323. But an appeal lies against an interlocutory order passed in execution proceedings, where the order has the effect of reviving an application for execution dismissed for default. 57 I.C. 905; also against an order on the question of notice under O. 21, R. 22. 8 P.L.T. 28. See also 20 Pat.L.T. 796; 1940 Pat. 75 (order giving directions to commissioner as to taking accounts in execution); 1937 Cal. 259=41 C.W.N. 531 (order dismissing execution application for failure of decree-holder to comply with order to file affidavit for appointment of guardian of minor judgment-debtor). See also 1937 Pat. 380. (order dismissing application for execution by assignee decree-holder). 70 C.L.J. 121.

ASSIGNMENT.—Where a decree is assigned and the assignee assigns it to another but the second assignee's application for permission to execute the decree and to recognize the assignment is opposed by the first assignee and the application is dismissed, an appeal is competent from the order of dismissal as S. 47 applies. 57 M. 457=1934 M. 181 (1)=67 M.L.J. 207. See also 1938 N.L.J. 117=1938 Nag. 267; 1937 All. 63. The objection that the transfer of a decree by the decree-holder is not valid, but collusive and sham, and that the transferee is therefore not a representative of the decree-holder as there has been vesting in him of the decree, must be raised and decided by the Court in the application by the transferee under O. 21, r. 16, for permission to execute the decree. When the objections are determined and execution is ordered on recognition of the transfer, that is a decree within the meaning of S. 47. A separate suit for a declaration that the assignment is a sham and collusive transaction is barred under S. 47. 1937 M.W.N. 1043. A dispute between an assignee and the decree-holder is not a dispute between the parties within the meaning of S. 47, and a separate suit relating to the validity of the assignment of the decree is competent. The assignee is, therefore, not barred under the provisions of that section, from urging in a suit in which his assignment is being challenged that his assignment was valid, even though the executing Court had decided against him. 18 Lah. 162=39 P.L.R. 904=1937 Lah. 465. But an appeal by judgment-debtor would not be competent. 37 P.L.R. 305=155 I.C. 974=1935 L. 609. Also against an order allowing execution by an assignee decree-holder. 1934 L. 328.

ARREST.—An order on a claim for exemption for arrest is appealable under S. 47. 47 M.L.J. 678. An order refusing to arrest the judgment-debtor in execution of a decree is appealable. 4 L.L.J. 266=1922 L. 259. Also an order directing decree to be executed only against the property of the judgment-debtor and not against his person. 1924 L. 604. An order deciding the legality of arrest made in execution of a decree falls under the section. 32 I.C. 731=3 L.W. 35. When objection to the legality of arrest is not made at the time of the committal to jail the order is not appealable. 7 R. 110. Order to send judgment-debtor to jail on failure to give security is appealable. 164 I.C. 459=1936 R. 367. Also an order refusing to make any further effort to apprehend the judgment-debtor. 144 I.C. 255=14 P.L.T. 271=1933 P. 248. An order definitely dismissing execution application is an order under S. 47 and is appealable. 1933 A. 732. So also an order refusing attachment of pay under O. 21, R. 48. 144 I.C. 927=35 Bom.L.R. 360=1933 B. 185. Order disallowing judgment-debtor's plea of limitation is appealable, 44 L.W. 486=1936

NOTES.

AMENDMENT OF DECREE.—Where the order amending a decree for a certain sum is not passed in execution proceedings but on a separate application under Ss. 151 and 152, the application does not fall under S. 47 and no appeal from the order is competent. But the mere fact that the order amending the decree is not itself appealable and the mere fact that an appeal could be presented from the amended decree is no bar to the entertainment of a revision petition of the order in question, if it is passed without jurisdiction. 1938 Lah. 4. Where the description of property directed to be sold by a mortgage decree is incorrect, in the decree itself, the executing Court has no power to amend or rectify it. It is only the Court which passed the decree that can correct the mistake in the exercise of its inherent power under S. 151, C.P. Code. If it corrects the mistake and amends the decree, the amended decree is appealable, but if it refuses to do so, the order of refusal is not a decree and is not appealable. Nor would an appeal lie against the order under O. 43, R. 1, as it is not one of the orders mentioned in that rule. 1940 Bom. 10=41 Bom.L.R. 1170.

ATTACHMENT PROCEEDINGS.—Where a judgment-debtor objects to the attachment on the ground that the attached property is debutter and that he holds it not in his private or personal capacity, but as shebait on behalf of a deity to whom the property has been dedicated in consideration of his performing certain services to that deity, the objection falls under O. 21, r. 58 and not under S. 47. No appeal therefore lies against the order passed on the objection. 17 P.L.T. 810=1936 Pat. 256; see also 1938 R.D. 175=1938 A.W.R. (B.R.). 42. Where a decree is passed against the assets of a certain person in the hands of his legal representative, and the legal representative makes an objection that the assets in question belong to her personally, the objection should be treated as one under S. 47 and not as one under O. 21, r. 58. Accordingly, an appeal lies from the order dismissing the objection, but no regular suit is maintainable. 1937 A.L.J. 13=1937 A. 97; see also I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 211. Where the executing Court finally negatives the right of the decree-holders to proceed against the land of the judgment-debtor, the order is appealable under S. 47. 2 L.L.J. 398. An order on an objection petition to an attachment put in by defendant against whom the suit had been dismissed, is one under S. 47 though ostensibly put in under O. 21, R. 58. 1924 L. 589=115 I.C. 691; 150 I.C. 703=1934 P. 281. See also 44 L.W. 460=1936 M. 812=71 M.L.J. 317. Where an objection under S. 47, questioning legality of issue of second warrant of attachment was rejected and no appeal was filed thereon, the question cannot be raised in appeal in the execution case which had nothing to do with that objection. 1936 O. W.N. 47=161 I.C. 393=1936 O. 240.

SALE PROCEEDINGS.—See 1937 Rang. 157. Where the judgment-debtor himself applies to have an execution sale set aside, a second appeal does lie from the appellate order dismissing an appeal from the lower Court's order dismissing the application as in such a case the provisions of S. 47 apply. 156 I.C. 699=42 L.W. 39=1935 M.W.N. 403=1935 M. 438. See also 41 C.W.N. 890=1937 C. 461; 1937 Cal. 177. S. 47, though very wide in terms and includes in one sense all questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, ought not to be applied in such a way as to render redundant other provisions contained in the Code. An application to set aside an execution sale which in terms and in fact and substance falls under O. 21, R. 90, cannot be regarded as an application under S. 47, though the decree-holder himself is the purchaser. It is only when an application to set aside the sale, as between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, does not fall under O. 21, Rr. 89, 90 and 91, that it will come within the purview of S. 47. 1937 A.L.J. 288=A.I.R. 1937 All. 407. See also 1938 Oudh 188; 1938 Lah. 690. A decision of an executing Court as to the order in which properties were to be sold in execution, even though it is a question between judgment-debtors only, is one relating to execution within S. 47. 45 M.L.J. 478; 53 A. 391 (mortgage suit). But an order passed on an application under O. 21, Rr. 64 and 66 directing that the properties ordered to be sold by a mortgage decree shall be sold in a particular order is not a judicial order and is hence not open to appeal. 156 I.C. 141=42 L.W. 50=1935 M. 714. The order imposing certain conditions on a property being sold last is not appealable. 51 A. 752. An order on objection by the judgment-debtor as to the correctness of the area of the land mentioned in the sale proclamation, is appealable as such decision may be said to determine the rights of the judgment-debtor in certain respects. 145 I.C. 386=34 P.L. R. 851=1933 L. 383. Order passed in a dispute between the decree-holder, who is also the auction-purchaser and the judgment-debtor relating to the grant of a certificate of sale is appealable. 153 I.C. 85=37 P. L.R. 116=1935 L. 144 (2). An application for setting aside an auction-sale on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no notice of the setting of the proclamation under O. 21, R. 66 falls under S. 47 and second appeal is open to the parties. 1930 M. 489. But see 153 I.C. 992=1934 C. 761; I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 199. Order setting aside sale on ground that executing Court had no jurisdiction to sell without attachment. 164 I.C. 140=1936 L. 573. See also 190 I.C. 174 (order confirming sale). Decree-holder purchaser—Order under O.

NOTES

21, R. 90—Second appeal lies. 1930 N. 191. An order rejecting an application by the decree-holder auction-purchaser for possession of the property as being barred by time is appealable. 56 C.L.J. 520=1933 C. 311.

RATEABLE DISTRIBUTION.—An order under S. 73 rejecting an application for rateable distribution is neither an order under S. 47 determining questions between parties nor a decree under S. 2 (2) and hence is not appealable. 57 I.C. 421=5 P.L.J. 415. See also 42 C. 1; 1924 M. 97; 55 B. 473; 1937 Rang. 134; 1931 B. 252. But see 31 M.L.J. 820. Orders under S. 73 are appealable, if they affect parties to the suit under S. 47, especially when the appeal is by the judgment-debtor who cannot avail himself of the right of suit given by S. 73 (2). 39 M. 570=29 M.L.J. 96; 1931 B. 252. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 997=1939 Bom. 468; 1939 Nag. 101; 41 Bom.L.R. 176; 150 I.C. 970=1934 P. 350. But where order under S. 73 only determines the rights of decree-holders inter se, it will not fall under S. 47 and no appeal will lie. 160 I.C. 892=1936 Pesh. 52; 59 M. 399=1936 M. 136=70 M.L.J. 33. See also 1940 Rang.L.R. 718. An order not simply refusing rateable distribution but also dismissing execution application in toto is appealable. 98 I.C. 884=1927 L. 100=1931 P. 359. An order of rateable distribution and of sale of the property attached by two creditors to satisfy claims of the other creditors, after the making of deposit under O. 21, R. 55, of a sum sufficient to discharge the two creditors who made the attachment, relates to a question in execution within S. 47. 36 B. 156. Where order of Court is passed only under S. 73 and not under S. 47, no appeal would lie. 162 I.C. 309=1936 L. 181; 160 I.C. 892=1936 Pesh. 52.

RESTITUTION.—Order for restitution under S. 144 falls under this section and is appealable. 43 L.W. 773=1936 M. 636. And so also order under S. 151 for something analogous to restitution made as between the parties. (ibid.) See also 1938 Cal. 554.

REFUND.—An order on an application by an auction-purchaser under O. 21, R. 93, for refund of the sale price is subject to appeal and second appeal. 46 L.W. 280=1937 M.W.N. 749=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 779.

MAINTENANCE.—Where a decree has been passed declaring the right of a Hindu widow to maintenance and also declaring that the maintenance be a charge on the joint family properties, it is not necessary for the widow to bring a separate suit to enforce the charge by sale of the properties. When the decree for maintenance has the effect of a decree for sale, the decree-holder is entitled to proceed to execution without any further action. If the charge is created by the decree in the action then a separate suit would be necessary to enforce the charge by way of sale of the properties charged. But when the charge has arisen not by reason of the decree made on the maintenance action but under the Hindu Law, bringing the action for the declaration of the right to maintenance and obtaining a decree to that effect would result in the decree having the effect of a decree for sale of the charged property; and it is not at all relevant what language was used by the Court declaring the charge to exist. No separate suit is therefore necessary to enforce the charge. 1937 P. W.N. 830=18 Pat.L.T. 834=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 654.

AWARD.—The proceedings for enforcement of an award under S. 15, Arbitration Act, are governed by S. 47, C.P. Code, and an appeal is competent from an order rejecting such application. 151 I.C. 881=35 P. L.R. 635=1934 L. 49. See also 38 Bom. L.R. 1303. Where there is no judgment according to an award made in arbitration and no decree following thereon, but there is only an order which simply directs that the award should be filed without incorporating the terms of the award in the order, the order is not executable as a decree, though it is styled as a decree. A separate suit for relief in respect of the matters covered by the award is not barred under S. 47, C.P. Code. The fact that the plaintiff treats the order as a decree and files an application to execute it and also obtains some relief by way of execution though not exactly in terms of the decree, does not bring S. 47, into operation. 41 Bom.L.R. 170=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 114. When a decree passed under Sch. II, para. 21 (2), C.P. Code, is executed; if any question relating to its execution, discharge or satisfaction is raised by any of the parties to the decree, the determination of such a question is a decree within the meaning of the Code, and an appeal is therefore competent from the order deciding the question. 44 C.W.N. 231.

STAY OF EXECUTION.—An order staying execution proceeding is appealable. 75 I.C. 419. An order refusing stay of sale falls under S. 47 and is appealable. 75 I.C. 789; 1924 L. 631; 75 I.C. 1001; 44 C.W. N. 587; 44 C.W.N. 364=1940 Cal. 254; 45 C.W.N. 379; 1938 Rang. 317. But see 27 I.C. 444=20 C.L.J. 512; 141 I.C. 841=16 N.L.J. 17=1933 N. 84. See also 39 C. W.N. 313. Whether an order for security to stay execution amounts to a decree or appealable order, see 5 R. 534; 106 I.C. 890 (2). No appeal lies from an order accepting security in execution proceeding. 106 I.C. 866 (2).

SATISFACTION.—See 1938 Nag. 49. An order on an objection that a sum paid in part satisfaction of decree has not been given credit to is appealable. 1934 C. 761. So also an order allowing objection by the judgment-debtor that the mortgagee had been in possession of the land and had realized more than the amount due under the decree. 142 I.C. 313=34 P.L.R. 373=1933 L. 361. Also an order determining objection to sale under S. 60. 1929 L. 778 (2); 1931 L. 141.

NOTES.

Similarly an order dismissing judgment-debtor's application for time to pay the decree amount. 1929 L. 141. See also 1935 R. 500. Also an order deciding whether the whole decree amount has become payable in an instalment decree by reason of default in one instalment. 1929 L. 390.

MISCELLANEOUS.—An order directing execution to issue against a judgment-debtor is one under S. 47, determining the rights and liabilities of parties with reference to the relief granted. 19 C.L.J. 581=26 I.C. 866=19 C.W.N. 1008. See also 1940 Pesh. 24. An order refusing to discharge a receiver appointed in an execution proceeding is within S. 47. 3 P.L.J. 513=46 I.C. 655. Also an order allowing execution of a decree alleged by the defendant to be declaratory in nature. 37 M. 29=21 M.L.J. 1063. An order requiring a Receiver to deposit in Court money part of which was collected by him as a party to the suit (the party being appointed as Receiver) and prior to his appointment as Receiver, is in substance and effect an order directing a party to make a payment and is one in execution. That part of it is appealable under S. 47. It does not fall under O. 40, R. 3 (c). 156 I.C. 886=41 L.W. 763=1935 M. 464=68 M.L.J. 628. Though no appeal lies against an order passed wholly and simply under S. 73, an order which decides a matter covered by S. 47 (1) may although it be passed ostensibly under S. 73 be the subject of appeal. 16 L. 990=156 I.C. 845=1935 L. 302. Decision of executing Court on application under O. 34, R. 5 is appealable. 38 P.L. R. 259=164 I.C. 53=1936 L. 562. An order directing an applicant to file another execution petition while refusing to execute the decree as asked for is appealable. 160 I.C. 812=1936 Pesh. 46. An agent of decree-holder competent to execute decree is also competent to file appeal against order refusing to allow execution. 164 I.C. 463=1936 L. 508; see also 1938 Pesh. 63. Though the dismissal of an appeal from an order in execution, under O. 41, R. 11 (1), is a decree and is open to second appeal, if the suit in execution of whose decree the appeal arises is a suit of small cause nature, of the value not exceeding Rs. 500, a second appeal is barred under section 102, C. P. Code. 18 Pat.L.T. 321=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 349. Where a decree is sought to be executed against a surety for non-appearance of the judgment-debtor and the surety makes an application under O. 21, R. 2, to the executing Court that an adjustment had taken place between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor and therefore he is discharged from the liability, but the application is dismissed without going into merits on the ground of limitation, the surety can bring a suit for declaration that the decree cannot be executed against him in view of the adjustment; such suit is not barred by section 47, C. P. Code, as a surety, unlike a judgment-debtor, is a party to the suit or execution proceedings only for the limited purpose of appeal in view of section 145 of the Code. 39 P.L.R. 872=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 658. Section 145, C. P. Code, puts the surety on the same footing as an original party to the suit; and if section 145 and section 47, C. P. Code, be read together, the inquiry of the Court into a question raised by the surety as to the executability falls under section 47, C. P. Code, and the decision thereon is appealable. Even if section 145 does not in terms apply, as for instance where the surety is not personally liable but the money which he has deposited as security is sought to be made liable, the surety has an equal right of appeal. 1937 M.W.N. 1259=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 215.

APPEAL: ORDERS NOT APPEALABLE UNDER THIS SECTION.—An order disallowing the objection of a judgment-debtor that a fresh attachment is necessary is not appealable. 34 A. 530. An order in execution of a mortgage decree that there ought to be rateable reduction in the decretal amount is only an interlocutory order, as the Court has still to determine the market value and rateable liability of each item. 1930 A. 638. Order directing restitution following on setting aside of sale is not appealable—If appeal wrongly entertained—Second appeal lies. 1930 P. 280. See also 35 C.W.N. 105=1931 C. 779 (2). Order overruling Collector's objections to inalienability of land and directing him to proceed with the execution sale of the properties is not appealable being merely a direction by the Court to its ministerial officer. 1929 L. 391. An order relating solely to jurisdiction does not determine any question relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree. 52 I.C. 461=4 P.L.J. 461. No appeal lies against an order dismissing "as informal" a decree-holder's application to set aside dismissal of a prior execution application. 1928 L. 811 (2). Nor against order allowing amendment of execution petition. 44 L.W. 99=164 I.C. 217=1936 M. 623=71 M.L.J. 256. No appeal lies from an order staying execution. 100 I.C. 23=9 L.L.J. 193; 9 R. 354; 1936 O.W.N. 664=164 I.C. 424=1936 O. 369. See also 1938 Rang. 317; 80 I.C. 39=1924 A. 794 (Order as to costs in granting stay). No appeal lies against an order refusing to stay execution. 100 I.C. 76 (2)=1927 L. 235; nor against an order rejecting security. 102 I.C. 621=1927 L. 527. Also 9 L.L.J. 189; 7 Cut.L.T. 41 (order fixing revaluation of property under section 14, Behar Money-lenders Act). No appeal lies from an order refusing execution of a decree on the ground that it has been attached. The order does not fall under section 47, 154 I.C. 678=1935 O.W.N. 331=1935 O. 272. No appeal lies against an order directing respondent to draw out costs on furnishing security. 5 R. 534. Acceptance of sufficiency of surety by lower Court where order for furnishing security to the satisfaction of lower Court was made by

(2) The Court may, subject to any objection as to limitation or jurisdiction, treat a proceeding under this section as a suit or a suit as a proceeding and may, if necessary, order payment of any additional Court-fees.

NOTES.

High Court is not appealable. 59 M.L.J. 892. See also 32 P.L.R. 806. An order setting sale proclamation is not appealable. 46 M.L.J. 192; 27 M. 59=14 M.L.J. 57 (F.B.); 1929 L. 815; 134 I.C. 833; 1934 C. 761; 7 Cut.L.T. 41. So also an order fixing value of properties to be sold. 99 I.C. 455=1927 A. 208; 6 O.W.N. 1085; 56 M.L.J. 224. Also an order under O. 21, R. 99 on application by the decree-holder auction-purchaser. 1930 L. 363. So also order refusing payment to decree-holder out of monies deposited under O. 21, R. 90; 58 M. 972=1935 M. 842=69 M.L.J. 349 (F.B.); 42 Bom.L.R. 367 (Order under O. 21, r. 93). Also order deciding question of delivery of possession between judgment-debtor and decree-holder auction-purchaser. 8 R. 162=126 I.C. 209=1930 R. 61. But see 53 C. 781 (F.B.); 60 C. 832=37 C.W.N. 671=1933 C. 680; 56 C.L.J. 520=1933 C. 311. Order directing party to pay Receiver's remuneration. 1930 L. 352. Also an order directing execution against a surety to a receiver ordered to pay up monies. 59 I.C. 844=10 L.B.R. 236. An application by the Official Receiver of an insolvent's estate praying that certain property of the insolvent attached and brought to sale by a creditor should be released from attachment and that the sale should be stayed or that the sale proceeds should be deposited in Court pending determination of the question as to who is entitled to them, is really a claim or objection under O. 21, R. 58 and no appeal lies against an order dismissing such application. 41 L.W. 28=1935 M. 151=68 M.L.J. 78. A Receiver of the estate of the judgment-debtor is not a representative of the judgment-debtor under section 47. When the Receiver objects to the attachment of moneys in his hands, the objection falls under O. 21, R. 58, C.P. Code, and not under section 47. No appeal therefore lies from an order allowing the objection and raising the attachment. 30 S.L.R. 288. Where objection filed by a stranger was allowed, no appeal is competent as against the objector but the Court can treat the appeal as an application for revision. 145 I.C. 730=1933 L. 421. An order passed in execution by Civil Court remitting award made under Co-operative Societies Act to arbitrator for rectification of some errors therein is not appealable, but a revision lies. 164 I.C. 802=40 C.W.N. 89. An order interpreting a scheme framed in a suit instituted under section 92, or giving directions for carrying out the provisions of the scheme cannot be regarded as an order passed in execution under section 47. But an order of a District Judge finally adjudicating the rights of the Mohant and the committee under the scheme framed in the suit which is kept pending and to which they may be regarded as parties, amounts to a decree and is appealable as such. 73 C.L.J. 532. Orders made in pursuance of a provision in a scheme are not orders under section 47 and are not appealable. 1930 M. 918=128 I.C. 515, e.g., an order approving the appointment of a trustee in a scheme decree. 1931 A. 765; an order relating to the modification of a scheme, 55 B. 414; an order passed by the Court as persona designata under the scheme, 1931 B. 388=33 Bom.L.R. 546. An order under O. 21, R. 99, 58 C. 808; an order directing the mode of taking out execution, 1931 A. 129 (2); 1940 Pat. 75. But see 1933 B. 185; an order refusing to set aside a sale, 1932 A. 530. An order negating the objections by the judgment-debtor to the execution of a decree and directing execution to proceed. 64 M.L.J. 735=37 L.W. 749=1933 M. 500; 1938 Pat. 465. Where there is an appeal as from an order under section 2, C. P. Code, it would be difficult to bring the matter under section 47 so as to render a second appeal maintainable. 33 C.W.N. 1170. As to appeal against order in delivery proceedings between rival purchasers in execution of a mortgage decree and a decree in suit enforcing a charge created by a security bond, see 56 M. 909=65 M.L.J. 407=1933 M. 780.

SEC. 47 (2).—Power of Court to treat application as suit. See 39 M.L.T. 579; 7 O.W.N. 887. The applicant is not entitled for a conversion as of right. 27 I.C. 570. See also 16 I.C. 543; 1939 O.W.N. 936=184 I.C. 850 (It is open to appellate Court to treat an application for execution as a suit). In a partition proceeding the award declared the rights of the parties without giving them possession. A decree was passed in accordance with the award. In a bona fide application for execution of the decree, the applicant claimed possession of the property and made an alternative prayer that in case possession might not be given, the application should be treated as a suit under section 47 (2) on payment of additional court-fee. Held, that the question of payment of additional Court-fee could arise only when the Court had decided that application for execution did not lie. After this had been done, the applicant could have been called upon to make good the deficiency in the Court-fee. The case was a fit one in which the salutary provisions of section 47 (2) should have been applied. 40 P.L.R. 619=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 177. Where application purporting to be both under section 47 and O. 21, R. 58 was made but was dismissed on merits and thereupon suit was filed by applicant for declaration that attached property was hers and not liable to attachment: Held, that the suit was incompetent

(3) Where a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the representative of a party such question shall, for the purposes of this section, be determined by the Court.

and could not be treated as an application under section 47. 158 I.C. 410=1935 M. 923. See also 159 I.C. 960=1936 P. 268. A suit can be converted into an application only if the application under section 47 would not, at the date of suit, be time-barred. 34 I.C. 774=7 L.W. 400; 45 I.C. 608; 35 B. 452; 53 C. 837; 7 O.W.N. 887; 130 I.C. 117; 60 M.L.J. 219; 60 M.L.J. 471; see also 1935 C. 15; 38 C.W.N. 996; 60 C. 1467=1934 C. 327. Also the Court in which the suit is brought must have jurisdiction to execute the decree. 22 A. 121; 26 A. 101; 29 A. 348; 32 M. 425; 54 C. 419. Thus where a party to a Small Cause suit whose objection to an attachment made in execution of the decree in that suit is dismissed, files a declaratory suit in the Munsif's Court, the suit cannot be treated as a petition under section 47 as such an application can be made only in execution proceedings in a Small Cause Court. 1934 A. 699. Where a suit is brought for restitution in spite of the provision in section 144, it is open to the Court to treat the suit as proceeding in execution in the exercise of its powers under Cl. (2). 67 I.C. 319=1922 N. 198. For a converse case, see 1930 M.W.N. 1245. A prior order in execution which led up to the suit would not operate as res judicata. 4 O.W.N. 1045; 35 L.W. 103. A decree passed in a suit barred under this section would still be upheld as an order passed on an application under the section, if it is otherwise good in law. 14 C. 605; 22 C. 483; 28 M. 64; 32 C. 322; 60 M.L.J. 471. Where the proceedings are treated as a suit in the hearing of any objection to the execution, the objector is in the position of a plaintiff and the burden of paying Court-fee falls upon him and not on the decree-holder. 149 I.C. 1003=1934 P. 9. The bar of section 47 can be pleaded for first time in second appeal and the suit converted into an application at that stage. 1928 M.W.N. 601. As to whether sub-section (2) applies to proceeding on Original Side of High Court, see 40 C.W.N. 428.

SEC. 47 (3).—See 82 I.C. 604. The question whether certain persons are legal representatives of judgment-debtor is one which executing Court is bound to decide. The decision on such a question is open to appeal. 39 C.W.N. 313. See also 1939 N.L.J. 82=1939 Nag. 147. Sub-section (3) of section 47 must be read as ancillary to sub-section (1) and only comes into operation where there is a question arising between the parties to the suit or their representatives relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree and it does not apply to a case where the question is between rival representatives of one party the other party having throughout disclaimed any interest. 57 B. 641=146 I.C. 336=35 Bom.L.R. 609=1933 B. 396. The question of the representative character of a party can be determined only for a limited purpose under section 47. 43 I.C. 165=11 S.L.R. 74; 117 I.C. 122. Where a person applies to be brought on record as the representative of the judgment-debtor so that he may raise a question to be decided under section 47, the proper Court to entertain the application is the Court executing the decree. 55 I.C. 812=11 L.W. 173. Section 47 (3), only relates to a dispute between one of the parties to the decree and a person claiming to be a legal representative on the other side. It does not apply where the dispute is between persons who have rival claims to be accepted as legal representatives on one side only. In such cases, no appeal lies and the decision is merely a summary decision for the purpose of enabling the proceedings to be carried on, without affecting any right which any person may have to the proceeds of the decree. 43 P.L.R. 435. Under section 47 (3), a statutory obligation is laid on the Court seized of execution proceedings to determine the question whether a particular person is or is not the representative of a party to the decree. When such a question arises in the appellate stage of the proceedings under section 47, the question must be decided by the Court of appeal. 150 I.C. 425=11 O.W.N. 917=1934 O. 337.

COURT-FEE FOR APPEALS.—Ad valorem fee not payable. 113 I.C. 270. An order under S. 144, C. P. Code, is essentially different from an order under S. 47. Such an order could not be obtained by proceedings under S. 47. A clear distinction is drawn between the two cases by S. 2. An order under S. 144 is not for Court-fee purposes the same as an order under S. 47. 1941 N.L.J. 459.

LIMITATION.—Application under S. 47 is governed by Art. 181 and not by Art. 166 of the Limitation Act. 1928 C. 865; 1930 C. 586.

PLEA AS TO BAR OF SUIT.—A plea that a suit is barred by S. 47, not raised either in the pleadings or in either of the lower Courts cannot be entertained in second appeal. 9 Luck. 365=11 O.W.N. 193=1934 O. 55.

SEC. 48: SCOPE AND OPERATION OF THE Execution barred in certain cases.

an injunction has been made, no order for the execution of the same decree shall be made upon any fresh application presented after the expiration of twelve years

NOTES.

SECTION.—Saving decrees granted injunctions, S. 48 applies to all decrees. 26 I.C. 244. Section 48 deals with the maximum limit of time prescribed for execution and not period for each application. 46 A. 73. Section 48 does not strictly provide a period of limitation but merely bars the execution after 12 years. 40 A. 198. Section applies only to fresh application not to revival applications. Such application even after 12 years is not barred. 18 Pat.L.T. 90=1937 Pat. 43. Sections 19 and 20 of the Limitation Act cannot be applied to S. 48, C. P. Code, because that would render the provisions of S. 48 nugatory. The question of their applicability to S. 48 must be decided without reference to the provisions of S. 29, Limitation Act, because S. 29 does not include the Code in its scope, as a "special law". So acknowledgments and payment by the judgment-debtor cannot operate to extend the period of 12 years fixed by S. 48. 151 I.C. 541=11 O.W.N. 1103=1934 O. 465. Whether S. 48 controls Ss. 6 and 7, Limitation Act, see 1941 Pat. 45. In proceedings for execution of a decree against a minor, the fact that the minor is not described as a minor in the execution petition, and that the guardian ad litem is not appointed till after the expiry of the period of limitation will not make the application barred by limitation. Execution under the C. P. Code, is intended to be less, rather than more, formal than in a suit. 18 Pat.L.T. 341=16 Pat. 316=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 321. As to the effect of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act, see 1932 O. 220=9 O.W.N. 430; 60 C.L.J. 123. Art. 182 of the Limitation Act leaves the provisions of S. 48, untouched, and there can be no execution of a decree governed by S. 48, when twelve years have passed from the date of the decree, amendment or no amendment. It is true that there is no period of limitation for an amendment of a decree to correct an accidental slip or omission under S. 152, but that does not affect the law of limitation. A correction made in a time-barred decree leaves the decree still time-barred. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 349=51 L.W. 173=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 127=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 235 (F. B.). See also 1940 Mad. 19; 1938 Pat. 40. The section does not apply to decrees passed by Chartered High Courts on account of sub-S. (2), cl. (b). See 6 B. 258; 7 M. 541; nor to orders in Council made on appeal to the Privy Council. 20 C. 551. S. 48 has a retrospective effect and governs an application for the execution of mortgage decree passed before the Code came into force. 45 B. 365; 19 I.C. 899; 40 C. 704; 20 C.W.N. 952; 1 Pat.L.J. 214; 27 I.C. 969=11 N.L.R. 25. But see 32 A. 499 (contra). The period begins to run only from the date on which the decree is in all parts ripe and capable of execution. 36 B. 368. See also 43 A. 405; 48 A. 377; 34 C. 874. Section does not apply until the decree becomes executable. 33 Bom.L.R. 1082. S. 48, deals with decrees and the execution thereof and obviously must relate to a decree which is capable of execution. In the case of a decree which is not executable except on the happening of a particular contingency, the time under S. 48, will not begin to run until that contingency occurs. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 87=40 Bom.L.R. 1278=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 75. Section does not preclude an order for execution being made after 12 years if application is made within that period. 44 L.W. 805=71 M.L.J. 808. Section is governed by S. 78 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act. 8 O.W.N. 1186=1932 O. 69. See also 48 L. W. 881; 54 I.C. 924. S. 48 covers compromise decrees. 39 B. 256. See also 14 P. 816=16 Pat.L.T. 506=1935 P. 380; 191 I.C. 616. The executing Court cannot extend the period prescribed by the section under S. 15, Limitation Act. 45 M. 785=43 M.L.J. 168. See also 54 I.C. 279; 1931 L. 125=131 I.C. 345; 1931 O. 351; 9 O.W.N. 513=1932 O. 246. An agreement to desist from execution does not attract the provisions of S. 15 of the Limitation Act. 52 M.L.J. 137. See also 1939 A.L.J. 522=1939 All. 403; 40 Bom.L.R. 1278=1939 Bom. 75. S. 6 of the Limitation Act does not extend period provided by S. 48 in favour of minors. 27 I.C. 865=13 A.L.J. 166; 1939 N.L.J. 387=1939 Nag. 245; 36 B. 498; 37 M. 186=24 M.L.J. 96; 1929 M. 394=30 L.W. 361. But see 32 Bom.L.R. 1093. The period prescribed in S. 48 begins to run from the date of the appellate decree, even when it is held that no appeal lies. 43 A. 405; 34 C. 874. See contra 48 A. 377. See also 32 A. 136 (Second appeal). It is so even when a portion only of the original decree was appealed against. 21 M.L.J. 1020. See also 26 M. 91. But where an appeal is dismissed for default, the period runs from the date of the original decree. 47 I.C. 125=5 O. L.J. 252. Whether time spent in a new trial application and on a subsequent revision petition to High Court can be deducted, see 53 L.W. 284=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 365. The word "decree" in S. 48, is not limited to the decree of the Court of first instance when there has been an appeal from the decree of the first Court, and the appeal is dismissed for want of prosecution, the date of the decree of the appellate Court dismissing the appeal is the starting point of limitation as provided by Art. 182 (2) of the Limitation Act. S. 48 only provides the maximum period during which an application for execution can be taken out, but the time from which limitation would run is that which is provided by the Limitation Act. 19 Pat.L.T. 424=1938 P.W.N. 449=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 401. a decree is amended, the date of the amendment is date of the decree. 60 I.C. 318. See also 20 Pat.L.T. 932; 1939 Pat. 607. Pendency of appeal by judgment-debtor does not cause suspension of execution where there is no fraud or force. 32 I.C. 931=20 C.W.N. 686. Decree-holder cannot by binding himself not to execute a decree allow himself more time than the law gives him. 13 I.C. 88=15 C.L.J. 678. The time spent in obtaining the Conciliator's certificate under S. 48 of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act can be deducted. 42 B. 367. A mortgage decree-holder will have 12 years to perfect the preliminary decree into an order absolute under S. 89, T. P. Act and another 12 years for executing the order absolute. 39 M. 544. But see 46 B. 761 (a case of decree under the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act). 15 P. 439=1936 P. 615 (Decree under Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act). Where execution of a suit is barred, a fresh suit on the basis of the decree is barred. 43 A. 170. See also 38 A. 509. But see 28 I.C. 85 (11 C. 93, Ref.). Nor can a fresh suit on the same cause of action be instituted. 41 M. 641=34 M.L.J. 167. See also 43 B. 703. As to whether an action can be maintained on a judgment, see 20 C.W.N. 58=20 C.L.J. 272. Mere passing of a preliminary decree in any foreclosure suit does not put an end to relationship of the mortgagor and mortgagee. If the mortgagor fails to redeem within six months and no final decree is passed, he can bring a fresh suit for redemption. 39 B. 41. Plea of twelve years' bar cannot be allowed for first time in appeal. 1929 M. 826=123 I.C. 23. As to whether this section applies to decrees of Presidency Small Cause Courts, see 26 S.L.R. 85 and 91. See also 7 Cut.L.T. 45; 53 L.W. 284=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 365; 48 L.W. 881 (Whether this section is affected by S. 78 (2) of Prov. Insolvency Act). Sentence of fine—Warrant under Cr. P. Code, S. 386—Execution under C. P. Code—Limitation—12 years period prescribed by S. 48, C. P. Code not applicable. 43 Bom.L.R. 122.

plication was made for similar relief. Held that in these circumstances the second application must be regarded as a continuation of the old one. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 62. Where a previous application for execution has been dismissed for default on the part of the decree-holder, a subsequent application cannot be said to be for revival of the old application merely because the relief prayed for is the same. 186 I.C. 860=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 35. See also 1940 Oudh 26. The question of the character of an application for the purposes of ascertaining whether it is a 'fresh application' or not for purposes of section 48, has to be decided upon the circumstances of each case. The substance of the matter must prevail over the form of the application. 66 I.A. 84=14 Luck. 192=A.I.R. 1939 P.C. 80=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 652 (P.C.); 1940 Pat. 432; 1940 All. 270. In order that an application may be treated as one to continue an earlier execution, the first condition necessary is that the earlier execution case must not have been finally disposed of. If it was so disposed of, no question of continuing it can arise. If, on the other hand, there was an interruption in the earlier proceeding by reason of which the Court, being unable to grant the appropriate relief, struck off the case, it cannot be said to have been finally disposed of. It will then be considered to be still pending, and may, if a proper case is otherwise made out, be revived and continued. A second application will not, however, be considered to be a continuation of a former one if it is found to be different in its scope, or if the former execution is found to have been abandoned by the decree-holder or to have been dismissed through his default or laches. 186 I.C. 385=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 432. The question whether an application is a fresh application or is merely one to revive the previous execution proceedings, has always to be decided upon the circumstances of each case and in each case the substance of the matter must prevail over the form of the application. I.L.R. (1940) All. 377=1940 A.L.J. 301=1940 All. 270 (F.B.). Where an application for execution is dismissed in default on account of non-appearance of decree-holder, a second application cannot be said to be in revival of the prior application and would be barred when it is presented more than three years after the date of the last application. 190 I.C. 379=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 75. Section 48, bars only a fresh application for execution and not an application by which a prior execution application is revived. Where certain execution proceedings were compromised and on the failure of the judgment-debtor to pay the instalments as agreed, the decree-holder applies for continuation of his prior execution application, the bar under section 48 does not apply to it. It is clearly an application to revive an execution application which remained suspended for some time. 1939 O.W.N. 947=1939 A.W.R. (C. C.). 240. An application by which it is sought to proceed against properties other than those mentioned in the first execution

(a) the date of the decree sought to be executed, or,

(b) where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money or the delivery of any property to be made at a certain date or at recurring periods, the date of the default in making the payment or delivery in respect of which the applicant seeks to execute the decree.

NOTES.

application or against a person not impleaded or mentioned in the first execution application must be regarded as a fresh application within the meaning of section 48, and no such application can therefore be entertained after 12 years from the date of the decree. There is no difference in principle between an attempt to proceed at a late stage in the execution proceedings against properties which it was not sought to proceed against in the original application and an attempt at a late stage to proceed against a person other than the person against whom it was originally sought to execute the decree. 21 Pat.L.T. 407=1940 Pat. 571. In order that an application may be treated as a continuation of another application with-in time, it is necessary that the two applications must be of same nature. 34 A. 396. See also 52 M.L.J. 137=1927 M. 347. It is also a necessary condition that the previous application should not have been dismissed for default on the part of the decree-holder. 72 I.C. 862. The execution of a decree is not barred merely because the application for restoration of an execution petition made within 12 years but struck off on account of insufficient process-fees, is made after 12 years. 33 A. 57. See also 3 Pat.L.J. 103=44 I.C. 560. If on an application for execution by issue of a precept, the Court issues, instead, prohibitory orders, which are illegal, all these orders must be ignored and it must be assumed that the application for execution is still pending in Court and no proper order has been passed thereon. The Court is, therefore, competent to pass a proper order by issue of a precept on the basis of the original application, even after the expiry of 12 years from the date of decree. 152 I.C. 685=1934 L. 610 (2). See also 161 I.C. 960=1936 L. 843 (Release of property from attachment on objection—Application for re-attachment after dismissal of objection is no fresh application for execution). See also 1937 N. 92; 166 I.C. 950=18 Pat.L.T. 90=1937 P. 43. Section applies only to fresh execution application and not to amendment of pending execution petitions. It does not matter that the application or order for amendment was made after the prescribed 12 years. Amendments which in substance create a new execution application should not be allowed. 1928 M. 1154. See also 59 M.L.J. 579; 134 I.C. 730=1931 B. 425 (2); 1937 Pat. 43=18 Pat.L.T. 90. Applications which are only ancillary to the main application are not barred under this section. 1937 N. 92. The period of 12 years prescribed by section 48, ought to be taken to run from the date of the original decree. The period so fixed is final and cannot be extended by any amendment of the decree; an amendment of the decree does not give a new date for starting a period of limitation. 151 I. C. 541=11 O.W.N. 1103=1934 O. 465. See also 1935 L. 292; 18 Pat. 395=1939 P.W. N. 611=1939 Pat. 607. Ordinarily an execution application which has not been properly made within the 12 years' period prescribed by section 48, should not be allowed to be amended so as to deprive the respondent of right of putting forward the plea of limitation. But the Court is not powerless to order amendment in special circumstances. The Court has a discretion in the matter. 1939 M.W.N. 988. Applications for amendment of an execution application, by which the decree-holder seeks to execute his decree against a person who was not named in the original application as presented to Court within the period of limitation or to execute his decree against property which was not specified in the application as originally presented, must be regarded as "fresh" applications and not as being in continuation of the application already on the file; and if made after the expiry of 12 years from the date of the decree, they must fail as time barred and cannot be allowed. Where the date on which an application to amend an execution petition is presented is a date on which a fresh application to execute the decree would have been barred by section 48, C. P. Code, then the Courts, will apply the same principles as they would in dealing with an application which is in form a fresh application. 21 Pat.L.T. 407=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 571. An application to transfer a decree to another Court for execution is not an application to execute within this section. 20 A. 78; 16 C. 744; 22 C. 921; 35 B. 103; 34 A. 396; 95 I.C. 96 (2)=1926 A. 660. SEC. 48 (1) (b).—Under section 48 (1) (b) the subsequent order must be an order in the suit in which decree is made and an order which directs payment by the debtor or the surety of money in respect of the judgment-debt. debtors was the subject of some suit in the nature of an administration suit in which the receiver was appointed and application for order against the Receiver was made in the absence of judgment-debtor and surety, held, that it did not fall within section 48 (1) (b). 60 I.A. 43=12 P. 195=141 I.C. 760=1933 P.C. 52=64 M.L.J. 599 (P.C.). See also 1939 Sind 93. To render the clause applicable there must be an order of Court directing the payment of money on a certain date. Arrangement made between the parties out of Court is of no avail. 72 I.C. 477. Where Court accepted the compromise that decretal amount should be paid by instalments, it would operate to extend the period. 73 I.C. 671=1923 L. 381. See also 34 I.C. 393 (M.). Where the parties to a decree enter into a compromise by which it is agreed that the decretal amount would be payable by instalments and on default to be realised by execution, and a competent Court passes an order in terms of the compromise, the order is in the nature of a subsequent order under section 48 (1) (b), and the limitation for execution runs against the decree-holder from the date of that order, and not from the date of the original decree. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 373=65 C.L.J. 403. Where the decree amount is payable in yearly instalments by virtue of a compromise entered into between the parties in execution proceedings, the starting point for the period of 12 years fixed by section 48, C.P. Code, is not the date of the decree but the date of default in the payment of the instalments. I. L.R. (1940) All. 536=1940 A.L.J. 439=1940 All. 423. Order under section 48 (1) (b) must be made by the Court which passed the decree. 73 I.C. 794=1923 L. 678; 40 A. 198; 2 P.L.T. 80=58 I.C. 393. But see 95 I.C. 243=1926 L. 463. Order of executing Court granting time to the judgment-debtor is not a subsequent order directing payment of money within the clause, and does not operate to extend the period. 40 A. 198. See 57 C. 789=1929 C. 687. Order of executing Court regarding realization of the decretal amount by instalments does not amount to a "subsequent order" within the meaning of section 48, cl. (1) (b). 162 I.C. 715=1936 O.W.N. 517=1936 O. 266; 54 A. 573 (F.B.); nor a subsequent compromise order made in execution proceedings. 14 P. 816=156 I.C. 297=1935 P. 380. The words "subsequent order" in section 48 (1) (b) show that the order must be subsequent to the decree. Hence the order which the section contemplates must be passed not in the suit but in execution. A mere variation as to the time or mode of paying the decretal debt cannot be considered a substitution of one decree for another or any material alteration in the decree which the Civil Procedure Code forbids. But where the parties, keeping the decretal liability unaltered, enter into a compromise by which the method of satisfying the decree is changed and the executing Court by its order records the compromise and directs the parties to act upon it, the order must be deemed to be a "subsequent order to pay" within the meaning of section 48 (1) (b) and a fresh period of 12 years runs from the date of such order. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 502=1939 Sind 93. If an instalment decree provides for payment of whole sum on default of any instalment, time runs from the date of the first default, in respect of the whole claim. 49 I.C. 497; 24 C. 281. FRAUD.—Fraud or force need not have occurred within 3 years of the application. 53 I.C. 862=10 L.W. 566. Nor is it necessary to show that it extended continuously for 12 years. It is sufficient if it is shown that the judgment-debtor on various occasions prevented the execution by fraud. 12 I.C. 793=14 O.C. 238. See also 22 M. 320; 35 M. 670=22 M.L.J. 35. Section 48 (2) (b) extends the period to 12 years from the time when the decree-holder was prevented by fraud of the judgment-debtor, from executing the decree. 34 A. 20=11 I.C. 672=8 A.L.J. 1020. (7 C. 566, Dist.) To claim exemption under section 48 (2) (a), it is enough if the decree-holder merely proves a fraud having been committed by the judgment-debtor. It is not necessary for him to prove further by evidence that because of that fraud he was actually prevented from executing the decree within 12 years. 40 L. W. 694=67 M.L.J. 751. 'Fraud' should be understood in a large and liberal sense. 44 A. 319; 24 M.L.J. 270. See also 35 M. 670=22 M.L.J. 35; 54 A. 513. The term should be interpreted in a wider sense than that in which it is generally used in English law. 13 I.C. 88=15 C.L.J. 678; 6 M. 365; 80 I.C. 905. It includes, except with reference to contract, circumvention. 25 A.L.J. 842=103 I.C. 277=1927 A. 668. A fraudulent transfer of property by the judgment-debtor amounts to fraud within the meaning of section 48 (2). 42 P. L. R. 10=1940 Lab. 178. Delaying execution by frivolous, futile and dishonest objections on the part of the judgment-debtors amounts to fraud. 44 A. 319; 1930 M.W. N. 729=128 I.C. 455. But see 53 A. 419. But objection which ultimately proves unsuccessful will not amount to fraud. The fraud should be such as to prevent decree-holder from executing the decree. 13 I.C. 88=15 C.L.J. 678; 53 A. 419. The mere raising of objections so as to prolong execution proceedings beyond the period of limitation cannot, in all cases, be regarded as fraud for the purposes of S. 48. If the objections are patently frivolous, they can ordinarily and ought to be disposed of speedily by the Court if the decree-holders are diligent. An objection by a person to the attachment on the ground that the executing Court had no jurisdiction to adjudicate on the question whether he was or was not a partner of the judgment-debtor firm cannot be regarded as dishonest. But where his objection that he was not a partner of the judgment-debtor firm is false and was adopted as a trick by which the decree-holders were forced by no fault of their own to delay execution proceedings until the period of 12 years had expired, his conduct in raising the plea is fraudulent and has the effect of enlarging the period of limitation. 161 I.C. 960=1936 L. 843. "Fraud" is used in S. 48 (2) (a) in the ordinary juridical sense of the word; and what is contemplated is some action on the part of the judgment-debtor preventing the decree-holder from taking out execution proceedings and thus allowing time to run against him, or some action of the judgment-debtor which entices the decree-holder to hold his hand. Where the judgment-debtor only takes advantage of the procedure allowed by the law, he cannot be held to have prevented the decree-holder from executing his decree by "fraud", however obstructive he may be. To so hold would be stretching the language of the section beyond what is legitimate. 14 P. 816=16 Pat.L.T. 506=1935 P. 380. An intentional avoiding by the judgment-debtor of arrest under a warrant by the decree-holder to avoid payment of decretal amount amounts to fraud. 12 L.W. 710=60 I.C. 630; 47 M.L.J. 428; 6 M. 365. Also locking up the house to prevent attachment of movable property. 9 B. 318; 22 M. 320. But keeping doors closed is per se no evidence at all of fraudulent conduct on the part of a pardanashin lady. 40 I.C. 399=4 O.L.J. 345. A fictitious transfer of property made in order to defeat or delay execution amounts to fraud. 4 M. 292; 80 I.C. 905. Also a deliberate evasion of the process of Court to defeat execution. 35 M. 670=22 M.L.J. 35. See also 13 I.C. 929=9 A. L.J. 17. Where execution of decree is prevented by the fraud of one of several judgment-debtors, extension of time will be allowed only against such judgment-debtor. 38 M. 419 [on appeal from 35 M. 670]; 1930 M.W.N. 729; 1930 S. 218. Court's refusal to allow execution to proceed against properties in receiver's hands will not make S. 48 (2) applicable, when decree-holder failed to proceed within the 12 years against judgment-debtor's other available properties or against surety. 1929 P. 597. Where the entire property of a judgment-debtor was under the control of the Collector for some period, commencing from a certain date, in execution of a decree and another decree was obtained against the same judgment-debtor subsequent to that date, and various applications for execution were put in, the period referred to above should be excluded from the period of twelve years prescribed by S. 48. 1937 O.W.N. 1116. Court sale—Auction-purchaser's right subsequently found against—Suit against decree-holder for recovering purchase-money—Payment by decree-holder and fresh application after 12 years of decree—Fraud alleged—Limitation ran from payment by decree-holder—Because of fraud S. 48 does not apply. 107 I.C. 653=1928 M. 152. The fraud proved against judgment-debtor can be availed of by decree-holder against legal representative of judgment-debtor, where decree is sought to be attached against assets of the deceased defendant in hands of legal representative.

TRANSFEREES AND LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES.

49. Every transferee of a decree shall hold the same subject to the equities (if any) which the judgment-debtor might have enforced against the original decree-holder.

Transferee.

50. (1) Where a judgment-debtor dies before the decree has been fully satisfied, the holder of the decree may apply to the Court which passed it to execute the same against the legal representative of the deceased.

Legal representative.

NOTES.

40 L.W. 694=67 M.L.J. 751. As to application to continue execution against legal representatives of judgment-debtor, see 31 Bom.L.R. 858=1931 B. 425 (2).

RES JUDICATA.—The Court has jurisdiction to decide rightly or wrongly. Executing Court can determine whether application for execution is barred under S. 48. It may arrive at a wrong conclusion. The wrong decision is binding on parties unless it is corrected at their instance in appeal or revision. But so long as it stands it cannot be attacked collaterally in another proceeding, on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the executing Court. 61 C. 234=38 C. W.N. 348=1934 C. 282.

SEC. 49.—S. 49 relates only to the stage of execution and has no application to a suit for damages. 42 M. 338=36 M.L.J. 376. Judgment-debtor can attach the money deposited by him in Court towards a decree against him, which is assigned to one against whom he has a decree. 19 N.L.R. 164=1924 N. 46. For purpose of S. 49 the equities have to be enforced even though the assignee might in fact have been one without notice. Otherwise the very object of S. 49 would be in effect frustrated and its provisions rendered nugatory. So a right of set-off available to a judgment-debtor against the assignor decree-holder is also available against the assignee of the decree, though the latter had no notice. 145 I.C. 767=1933 M. 215. See also 1937 R. 316. The principle embodied in S. 49 is the same as that enacted in S. 132, T. P. Act, the right of set-off being an equitable right. If judgment-debtor has right to set up a cross-decree under O. 21, R. 18, he has that right also against the transferee of the decree-holder. The right is not however available where there is no cross-decree on the date when the decree is assigned. 37 C. W. N. 758=1933 C. 865. Code does not contemplate any specific application to bring on record the legal representative of the judgment-debtor though in ordinary practice such a prayer is usually added in an execution petition. Hence an application for execution against the legal representative is valid and saves limitation even though it does not contain an express prayer for adding him. 143 I.C. 844=38 L.W. 224=1933 M. 568.

SEC. 49 AND O. 21, R. 18.—Applicability and scope—Execution by assignee—Claim to set-off—Principles. I.L.R. (1937) A. 553=1937 A.L.J. 258=1937 A. 351. There is no inconsistency between S. 49 and O. 21, R. 18. If there be any, S. 49 will prevail. I.L.R. (1937) A. 563. An equitable set-off can be and has been recognised in India; in fact the right of a judgment-debtor to ask for a stay under O. 21, R. 29, is an equity which binds the assignee of the decree; and when both decrees arose out of one transaction no Court of equity can reject the request of the judgment-debtor. The assignee can only take subject to the judgment-debtor's equitable right to have execution stayed until his suit shall have been decided and therefore to set-off his decree which may be passed in his suit. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 263=40 Bom.L.R. 188=1938 Bom. 253.

SEC. 50.—“Dies”—Civil death is not contemplated. 53 A. 529=1931 A. 306; 159 I.C. 390=1935 C. 713. Execution may be had not only against the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor but also against the transferee who purchased the property pending execution proceedings. 51 B. 37=29 Bom.L.R. 60. See also 14 P. 732. As to whether a mere alienee from a legal representative is so for purposes of execution, see 47 L.W. 782=1938 M. 684=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 867. Legal representative merely means the person who in law represents the estate of the deceased, and it is immaterial whether such a person has actually obtained possession of the estate or even whether the deceased left any estate. The extent of liability has to be decided in execution. 1939 A.M. L.J. 69. The provisions of the Code are to be strictly observed and there is no provision under S. 50, for attachment in execution against a legal representative of either a debt due to him or of movable property that has not yet come into his possession. The security deposit therefore of a deceased judgment-debtor in deposit with his employer cannot be attached by a prohibitory order under O. 21, R. 48 of the Code in execution against the legal representative of the judgment-debtor. 170 I. C. 766=1937 Rang. 274. Where the judgment-debtor dies in the course of the execution proceedings, there is no necessity for having the names of his legal representatives substituted. If the decree-holder executes his decree, it would only be necessary for him to proceed against the legal representatives after due notice had been given to them. 158 I.C. 419=1935 O.W.N. 1087. If a judgment-debtor dies during execution, it is irregular for the Court which has not passed the decree to proceed with the execution against the representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor without fresh orders from the Court which passed the decree; under S. 50, the application for such execution is to be made to the Court which passed the decree. 168 I. C. 346=1937 P. 239. But see 1931 A. 320 (2); 1938 R. 385; 11 Pat. 445. Where a decree is transferred to another Court for execution subsequent to the death of judgment-debtor an application to bring his legal representatives on record must be made to Court which passed decree and not to Court to which decree is transferred for execution. (18 Bom. 224, Foll.; 55 I.A. 227, Dist.) 36 Bom.L.R. 443=1934 B. 215. Under S. 50, it is the Court which passed the decree which has power to substitute heirs of a deceased judgment-debtor and not the Court to which the decree is transferred for execution. But when a Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution makes an order for substitution under S. 50, it is a matter of procedure and not of jurisdiction. An appellate Court should not consequently interfere with an order for substitution made by a Court to which the decree has been transferred execution when the merits of the case are not affected by the irregularity in view of S. 99. 1941 Pat. 139=19 Pat. 838. Where wrong legal representatives were brought on record and real heirs having knowledge of the same did not object, decree is binding on them also or on any subsequent purchaser from them. 51 B. 125. Plaintiff must be diligent and implead all ordinary legal representatives under the law applicable if he wishes to bind them, but where he impleaded a person who was apparently the legal representative and there was no fraud or collusion, the estate would still be bound, if other persons turn out to be the actual legal representatives, provided that the plaintiff was ignorant of, or had no means of knowing the facts or circumstances by reason of which the proper legal representatives were other than those impleaded by him. 141 I.C. 580=34 P.L.R. 511=1933 L. 380. Where, after the attachment of the immovable properties of the judgment-debtor in execution of a decree against him, and after the Court has passed an order for sale, the judgment-debtor dies and the sale is held without impleading the judgment-debtor's legal representatives, the sale is null and void and not merely irregular. 59 M. 461=1936 M. 205=70 M.L.J. 162 (F.B.). Suit against legal representative of deceased debtor should not be dismissed on the finding that defendant is not in possession of any estate of the deceased. It is a matter for determination in execution. 120 I.C. 333. The transferee Court can also substitute legal representatives. 1931 A.L.J. 166=1931 A. 320 (2). But the proper Court for the purpose is that which passed the decree. The getting of an order of substitution is only a matter of procedure and if the application is erroneously made to the transferee Court, the defect may be waived. 11 P. 445; 1938 R. 385.

(2) Where the decree is executed against such legal representative, he shall be liable only to the extent of the property of the deceased which has come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of ; and, for the purpose of ascertaining such liability, the Court executing the decree may, of its own motion or on the application of the decree-holder, compel such legal representative to produce such accounts as it thinks fit.

SEC. 50 (2).—Once it is admitted or proved that the man sought to be made liable under a decree obtained against a deceased person has come into possession of assets belonging to the estate of the deceased judgment-debtor, it is for him to satisfy the Court as to the extent of the assets received by him and to account for them. 1933 R. 309. See also 71 M.L.J. 385; 1941 R.D. 120=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 229. Where the decree-holder has any complaint against the legal representative for not properly administering the estate of deceased although he (decree-holder) might have a remedy against him by filing a separate suit, he can deal with this point in execution of the decree itself. 1933 R. 309. Where step-sons are in enjoyment of income on account of property, though non-transferable (e.g., occupancy fields which belonged to their father), it is equitable that they should be legally bound to devote a due proportion of that income to the maintenance of the step-mother or the dependants of their father. In such circumstances a personal decree should be passed against the step-sons.

PROCEDURE IN EXECUTION.

51. Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may, on the application of the decree-holder, order execution of the decree—

Powers of Court to enforce execution.

- (b) by attachment and sale or by sale without attachment of any property ;

SECS. 50-53.—A creditor is not entitled to bring a suit for the administration of the estate of a deceased Hindu who was joint with his son and died leaving no property apart from his interest in the family estate. There is nothing in Ss. 50, 52 and 53, C. P. Code, which would sustain an administration suit where the Hindu father dies leaving no property of his own. I.L.R. SEC. 51: EXECUTION SALE.—S. 51 lays down the mode in which a Court may execute a decree. It does not give the Court any discretion to choose one particular mode of execution as against another. The Court has therefore no jurisdiction to direct a decree-holder to proceed against the property of the judgment-debtor, when he desires to proceed against the person. (1926 L. 110; 1934 N. 140, Foll.; 48 M. 494 and 11 I.C. 848, Dist.; 29 I.C. 152, Diss.) 160 I.C. 812=1936 Pesh. 46. The power to grant a temporary alienation under S. 51 is derived from the power of sale and if the power of sale is taken away by the legislature all powers derived therefrom are similarly taken away. 161 I.C. 628=1936 Pesh. 90. A sale in execution is not a nullity even if it is not preceded by an attachment. Neither R. 30 nor R. 64 of O. 21, C.P. Code, negatives the power expressly given to the Court by S. 51 of the Code to sell without attachment. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 420=41 Bom. L. R. 463=1939 Bom. 277. Where a defendant against whom a decree for price of plaintiff's car has been passed makes a hypothecation of the plaintiff's car along with other cars, that have been left with him for sale or for custody, to a third party, and he then brings a suit against the third party and abandons it, and the transaction of hypothecation appears to be fictitious, his conduct amounts to making a fraudulent concealment or transfer of his properties and comes within proviso (a) (ii) to S. 51 as amended by S. 2, C. P. Code (Amendment) Act XXI of 1936. 177 I. C. 1008=1938 Cal. 448 (2).

SEC. 51 (b).—Though a decree as being saleable property under S. 60, is liable to be sold in execution, yet, High Court has power to make rule prohibiting the sale of a decree in execution of another decree. That having been done under R. 178, Civil Rules of Practice, the rule being within the powers of the High Court under Ss. 51 and 122, C. P. Code, a preliminary decree for partition cannot be sold in execution of a money decree. 152 I.C. 789=1934 M. 692=67 M.L.J. 669. Under the newly introduced proviso to S. 51, C. P. Code, in determining the question of the capacity of a judgment-debtor who is an agriculturist to pay the amount of a decree, his agricultural lands and his residential houses cannot be taken into account. 41 P. (a) that the judgment-debtor, with the object or effect of obstructing or delaying the execution of the decree,—

(i) is likely to abscond or leave the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(ii) has, after the institution of the suit in which the decree was passed, dishonestly transferred, concealed, or removed any part of his property, or committed any other act of bad faith in relation to his property ; or

(b) that the judgment-debtor has, or has had since the date of the decree, the means to pay the amount of the decree or some substantial part thereof and refuses or neglects or has refused or neglected to pay the same, or

SEC. 51 (c).—Where execution by arrest is asked, the question whether the necessary circumstances exist is one of fact. The burden lies on the judgment-creditor to show that the necessary circumstances exist. If it is found either way by the lower Court, it is not open to the High Court to go behind it in second appeal. 1940 All. 494. Under S. 51 (c), it is not open to the Court, in absence of special circumstances, to say that decree-holder must proceed against the properties of the defendant before applying for his arrest. But there may be circumstances which would not only justify refusal of a warrant of arrest, but would even demand such refusal. Where properties of judgment-debtor are under attachment at instance of the decree-holder or such properties are the subject-matter of a decree on a mortgage at the decree-holder's instance, and the judgment-debtor is precluded from raising money on the properties by reason of the decree-holder's action, a refusal of arrest would be justified. 38 C.W.N. 1085. Receiver appointed in execution of one decree, other decree-holders need not apply for appointment of receiver for the same property—Status and duties of receiver. 1930 M. 4. The High Court can on equitable grounds appoint receiver in execution for property in the mofussil. 57 C. 964=34 C.W.N. 238=1930 C. 502. The Court has no doubt jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of immovable properties in execution of a decree although such properties be situate outside the jurisdiction of the Court. But if the judgment-debtor objects to the appointment of a receiver in execution and if there is a reasonable chance of the decree-holder being able to satisfy his decree by attachment and sale, he should be relegated to that remedy. In a case, however, where the properties of the judgment-debtor prove to be saleable, the Court is entitled to appoint a receiver in execution of properties outside the jurisdiction notwithstanding the judgment-debtor's objection thereto. 40 C.W.N. 1065. Decree—Execution by receiver mortgagee as against decree-holder—Capacity of receiver need not be mentioned in final mortgage decree—Receiver not affected by attachment before judgment or by parties entering into consent decree. 31 Bom.L.R. 320=1929 B. 279. As regards the grounds for appointing receiver, see 8 O.W.N. 677; 35 C.W.N. 1066=1932 C. 189=59 C. 225; 1936 N. 288; 71 M.L.J. 87; 1938 A. 3=I.L.R. 1938 A. 35 (wakf property). A person applying for appointment of receiver in execution of a decree must make out reasonable ground for the appointment. The mere fact that the judgment-debtor presses the applicant to accept a smaller amount than the sum decreed or applies to Manager, Sind Encumbered Estates, for his aid does not constitute a valid ground for appointing a receiver, more especially when there is no danger of waste or destruction of the property. 1933 S. 231=150 I. C. 473. An appointment of receiver by way of execution cannot be obtained where the decree-holders can execute the decree in the ordinary manner. (Ibid.) A Court has no power to appoint a receiver in respect of property which is not the subject of any suit or of any execution application. (Ibid.) Execution by appointment of a receiver under S. 51 is a distinct and different mode of execution from that of attachment and sale. In the case of lands exempt from attachment under S. 24 of Ajmer Courts Regulation, if they were leased to lessees, a receiver could be appointed to recover the rents. But if the lands were being cultivated by the judgment-debtor personally an appointment of a receiver would probably be inappropriate. 1937 A. M.L.J. 89. See also 1938 A.L.J. 444=1.L.R. (1938) All. 528=1938 All. 290. In execution of a decree against a person possessing a share in a firm it is doubtful if a receiver under S. 51 can be appointed because a receiver cannot be appointed for the custody of the property which the judgment-debtor himself cannot take possession of. In order to ascertain the approximate value of the shares of the judgment-debtor, it may be open to the Judge to appoint a Commissioner to make an inventory of the assets of the firm and its liabilities. 1937 Lah. 313. A decree for the payment of arrears of alimony passed under S. 37 of the Divorce Act is a decree of a special character; but it is a decree for the payment of money within the meaning of the proviso to S. 51. Before ordering arrest and detention in prison of the debtor in execution of such a decree, the Court must be satisfied as to the matters covered by the proviso. 1941 Bom. 17=42 Bom.L.R. 945. The explanation applies only to Cl. (b) of the proviso. By virtue of the explanation, property which could not be attached or sold was not to be considered only when deciding as to whether the judgment-debtor had any means to pay the money decreed. Obviously, the explanation has nothing to do with Cl. (a) and therefore it cannot be said that a gift by the judgment-debtor after the institution of the suit, of his land not liable to attachment and sale does not make him forfeit the protection afforded to him by the amendment of S. 51 by Act XXI of 1936 even if the gift was made with a dishonest intention. 189 I.C. 371=1940 Pesh. 33.

SEC. 51 AND O. 40, R. 1: APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER—DISCRETION OF COURT.—No doubt section 51, C. P. Code, prescribes the appointment of a receiver as one of the modes in which a decree can be executed but the appointment of a receiver in all cases is subject to the provisions of O. 40, r. 1 of the Code and no receiver can be appointed in any case unless it appears to the Court that it is just and convenient that a receiver should be appointed. 167 I.C. 302=1937 O.W.N. 243=1937 O. 232. See also 1937 Mad. 864; 14 Luck. 538=1939 O.W.N. 206=1939 Oudh 116. Execution by appointment of a receiver is one of the methods of execution provided by section 51, and so long as in the circumstances of the case it is the best means of securing the rights of the judgment-creditor without causing undue hardship to the judgment-debtor, there is no valid reason for avoiding this method of execution. 45 C.W.N. 1104. There is no reason why the decree-holder should not take out any or all the forms of execution which the Code of Civil Procedure entitles him to pursue against various items of the judgment-debtor's property. Consequently, where by a consent order a receiver is appointed of certain properties, treating the appointment of receiver as a form of equitable execution, there is no reason why the decree-holder should not proceed or be entitled to proceed against properties which are not the subject-matter of the order appointing receiver. 17 Pat. 248=19 Pat.L. T. 359=1938 Pat. 130. Where decree-holder can only exercise the ordinary legal remedies at considerable risk and with doubtful results, there is ample justification for the appointment of a receiver in execution in such circumstances. 1941 Cal. 240. The Court can appoint receiver over property out of its jurisdiction. This power is based upon the doctrine that the Court acts in personam. The Court does not and cannot attempt by its order to put its own officer in possession of property in foreign territory, but it treats as guilty of contempt any party to the action in which the order is made who prevents the necessary steps being taken to enable its officer to take possession according to the laws of the foreign territory. 39 P.L.R. 415.

SEC. 52: SCOPE OF SECTION.—As a general rule a decree must be against a person and not merely against something which is not a person, for example, the estate of a deceased person, though it may operate upon such estate by force of a direction to a person, who has the estate in his hands, to discharge the judgment-debtor out of it. This is what section 52 provides for. A decree which merely states that the money could be recovered from the assets of a deceased person, without adding in whose hands these assets were to be found, is defective and inexecutable; the proper course is to apply to the Court which passed it to amend it. 151 I.C. 617=1934 M. 562 (2). Where the debtor dies before the suit and a defendant is sued as representing the deceased person's estate, the defendant, in order to bind the estate and the rightful owner, must substantially represent the estate, and where he does not substantially represent the estate, the Court has no jurisdiction to sell the estate and the decree would not bind the real heir. But where a debtor himself is a party to a suit and dies either in the course of the suit or in the course of execution proceedings and the Court by a judicial decision brings a person on the record as the legal representative of the deceased debtor, the decision however wrong will bind the estate of the deceased person, and the rightful heir cannot subsequently come and dispute the correctness of the decision or the jurisdiction of the Court to sell the deceased debtor's estate. 150 I.C. 323=1934 A. 474. Section does not provide for reservation of property to satisfy debts. 30 I.C. 256=18 M.L.T. 147. Liability of legal representative under this section and under section 50 are the same. 7 M. 257. See also 89 I.C. 534=1925 O. 515. Where property in the hands of a son is sought to be proceeded for debts of the father, if it is proved that the son has received certain assets from father, onus is on son to give detailed information regarding the property received. 1933 L. 447. See also 148 I.C. 930=1934 L. 101. Section does not contemplate the insolvency of the deceased party. 22 C. 259. Written statement in the suit that no assets are available—Suit if to be dismissed. 49 A. 645=1927 A. 459; 25 A.L.J. 359. Suit on promissory note—Defendant's father and sons of deceased executant admit jointness of family—Proper course is to pass decree against assets and leave the liability of the properties under Hindu Law to be determined in execution. 116 I.C. 86 (1). A person holding a decree against assets of a deceased person can obtain satisfaction by attachment and sale of only such property as is shown to have formed part of the assets of the deceased. The onus is on the decree-holder. When there is a partition in the family and the properties in dispute are not dealt with at the partition, it is for the decree-holder to establish that the property attached formed part of the joint family property. There is no presumption that any particular property is joint family property. 148 I.C. 1113=1934 A. 249. The principle or method of which section 52 is an expression has always been so operated as not to prejudice the rights inter se of beneficiaries or legatees over whom the creditor has priority. 65 I.A. 219=13 Luck. 494=42 C.W.N. 901=1938 P.C. 169=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 210 (P.C.). Section 52 (1) gives a creditor a right to proceed against the property of the deceased in the hands of a legal representative and sub-section (2) of that section gives the creditor the right to proceed personally against the legal representative if the latter cannot satisfy the Court that he has properly accounted for the property in his hands. It does not give the creditor a right to proceed against property which is no longer in the hands of the judgment-debtor. To proceed against such a transferee, the creditor must establish his equitable right to do so in a separate suit. It would not be competent to an executing Court to attach the property of a stranger on purely equitable considerations. But any interest which the legal representative has in such property, such as an equity of redemption can be attached by the creditor. 47 L.W. 782=1938 Mad. 684=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 867.

ASSETS—MEANING OF.—“Assets” include also property acquired after decree. On this point, see also 89 I.C. 477=1925 N. 449. “Assets” include rents and profits. 9 O.W.N. 315; 1932 L. 383. “Property” includes rents from immovable property. 2 Luck. 408. Rents and profits of the property of a deceased person accruing after the property has devolved on his heirs form part of the estate of the deceased. 1937 O.W.N. 1243=1938 Oudh 45. Where property of the deceased is in the hands of his widow as executrix and it is not proved that it belongs to her in her personal capacity, the property may be attached in execution of decree against her as executrix. The decree-holder may not file an administration suit because a decree-holder has rights which he may work out in execution proceedings, and the cumbrous method of filing an administration suit when he desires to attach property prima facie in the hands of the judgment-debtor as such may not appeal to him. 187 I.C. 370=1940 Rang. 78. Whether executing Court has power to inquire into administrator's accounts where a money decree is passed against him. See 5 R. 44. As regards partners, see 1931 S. 84=25 S.L.R. 374. Where the estate in the hands of the heirs of the original debtor against whose estate the decree was passed is liable for the satisfaction of the decree, then even the produce and income of that estate which has accrued after the death of the original debtor is liable to attachment and sale in satisfaction of such decree. 165 I.C. 802=1936 L. 236. Where on the death of a legal representative against whom a decree has been passed to the extent of the assets of the deceased in his hands, his legal representative is added, he cannot escape the liability for the decree so long as the assets are in his hands. 1938 N.L.J. 176.

LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE—MEANING OF.—See 50 I.C. 951 (Executor de son tort is legal representative). See also 38 Bom.L.R. 977.

DECREE AGAINST PARTY AS LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE.—A legal representative can be sued without proving that assets have come into his hands, if there are assets of which he may become possessed. 8 B. 309. See also 13 B. 653; 33 A. 414=8 A.L.J. 199; 56 I.C. 962; 89 I.C. 235; 134 I.C. 862=1931 N. 173.

(2) Where no such property remains in the possession of the judgment-debtor and he fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against the judgment-debtor to the extent of the property in respect of which he has failed so to satisfy the Court in the same manner as if the decree had been against him personally.

NOTES.

If in a suit on a bond instituted after the death of the executant against his personal representatives, the Court is satisfied that at the time when the suit was brought the defendants had received no part of the assets of the deceased, the only course open to it is to dismiss the suit. 1936 A.W.R. 32. A creditor of a deceased coparcener is entitled to a decree against a surviving brother of the deceased without giving any proof that he has got possession over any property belonging to the deceased and held by the deceased separately apart from the joint family estate. When he applies for the execution of his decree then the question will come up for consideration whether the deceased has left any such separate assets. If the decree-holder can prove that the surviving coparcener has got any such assets, then he would be entitled to execute his decree against the surviving coparceners. 157 I.C. 51=1935 A.L.J. 293=1935 A. 390. Section 52 shows that there may be a decree passed against legal representative of a deceased person without showing that the deceased left any property and legal representative got that property. 49 A. 645=1927 A. 459. Per Ashworth.—Section 52 provides for the due application of the assets, i.e., of 'plene administravi' being taken in execution proceedings. Therefore it must be inferred that it cannot be taken at an earlier stage. In English law the plea of 'plene administravi' can certainly be raised by a legal representative sued on a debt due from the deceased. 49 A. 459. The fact that the estate is not in the hands of the legal representative, but in the hands of third parties, is no bar to a decree against him. 22 C. 259. Plaintiff must prove assets had or ought to have come to the hands of the defendant. 3 M.H.C.R. 161. See also 4 C.W.N. 151; 89 I.C. 477=1925 N. 449. A personal decree may be passed against the legal representative if it is proved that he has received sufficient assets. 20 M. 446. As to effect of obtaining decree against a wrong person as legal representative, see 15 Bom.L.R. 41; 34 A. 79; 1928 M. 243. When a wrong person is sued as representative and property is sold, the proper representative can sue. 9 B. 86. See also 11 M. 408; 11 C. 45. A decree against one representative does not bind the other representatives. 4 C. 142. See also 7 A. 822 (F.B.); 8 C. 370; 24 I.C. 280. A decree obtained against a widow as legal representative of the estate of her deceased husband without making the minor sons, who are the proper legal representatives, as parties to the suit, is binding upon such sons, when there is nothing to show that the widow was negligent of the interests of her sons or that she did not defend the case properly.

Also liable for the assets realized by sale of the properties of the deceased. 12 W.R. 177. In case he fails to account for the assets come into his hands, he can be arrested in execution. 12 W.R. 117. Right of creditor to follow the assets in the hands of the legatee should be exercised by suit. It cannot be exercised by levying execution against the assets in the hands of the legatee under a judgment against the legal representative. 34 C.W.N. 761=58 C. 170.

SEC. 52 (2).—Section 52 (2) does not apply so long as there are sufficient assets to meet the decree—Meaning of the words "such property." 1930 L. 354. See also 41 L.W. 350=1935 M. 298. Section 52 (2) simply enacts a rule of procedure in accordance with natural justice. If a debtor dies and his properties are taken by his legal representatives, they are bound to pay his debts to the extent of the assets they have taken. Consequently if a creditor has obtained a decree for the payment of money out of the property of the deceased, and proves in the execution proceedings that the debtor died leaving properties which came into the hands of his representatives, then it is for these representatives to account for those properties, and if they fail to do so, they become personally liable to the extent of the assets not accounted for. 20 Pat.L.T. 685=1939 Pat. 580. Section 52 (2) does not come into operation and there can be no execution against the legal representative personally until it is proved that the property inherited by the legal representative from the deceased judgment-debtor is no longer in his possession. 169 I.C. 445=A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 80. Section 52 merely provides that if the legal representative of a judgment-debtor has improperly disposed of any property of the deceased he would himself become personally liable. That does not mean that if an alienation is made by the legal representative which is void in law, the property in the hands of the alienee could not be pursued by the decree-holder. 41 P.L.R. 362=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 373. Jurisdiction of Registrar of Presidency Small Cause Court to pass order under section 52 (2). The creditors of the ancestor have a general lien upon the assets of the ancestor's estate for the payment of their debts and can follow such assets in hands of the heirs but not in the hands of other persons. posed of ancestor's property to other persons, who took the property without notice of the creditors' claims, then the creditors' right to follow the property is lost. That right cannot be revived to them by the fact that the heir has been adjudicated insolvent, and that his transfer of the property inherited by him has been set aside under the provisions of the bankruptcy law so that it now becomes available for distribution among his creditors. (22 B. 1, Rel. on.) 12 R. 603=152 I.C. 558=1934 R. 162. See also 1940 Mad. 22=50 I.W. 655. Once it is admitted or proved that the legal representative of a deceased person had come into possession of assets belonging to the estate of the deceased, it is for him to satisfy the Court as to the extent of the assets received by him and to account for them. In such cases the onus is, in the first instance, on the decree-holder to prove that some assets had come into the hands of legal representative and when this is done the onus is shifted on to the latter to show the extent of the assets received by him and also to satisfy the Court as to how they had been applied. 148 I.C. 980=1934 L. 106. It is for the decree-holder to satisfactorily establish that any property belonging to the deceased had actually been disposed of by the legal representative before the latter can be held personally responsible for the payment of the decree under section 52 (2). 39 P. L.R. (J. & K.) 48. An heir of the deceased is for the purpose of section 52 a legal representative of the deceased, and the property which he obtains as a result of an administration suit comes into his possession as legal representative. Therefore it is his duty under section 52 (2) to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied this property. But where such heir disposes of the property so obtained before the passing of a decree against the deceased, his personal property is not liable to attachment in execution of the decree under section 52 (2). 148 I.C. 1092=1934 R. 93. Rents and profits of property of a deceased person must be deemed as his assets. 137 I.C. 632.

SECS. 52 AND 53.—If an award is made by the Registrar under the Co-operative Societies Act against a son as representing the estate of his father, the ancestral property in the hands of the son and his sons is liable to be attached and sold in execution of the award. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 500. The principle of the section applies to a decree passed against a company which has taken over the entire assets and liabilities of another company when the latter went into liquidation, and its liability is expressed in the form adopted in decrees against legal representatives of deceased persons. As regards the mode of execution of such a decree, it does not in principle differ from a decree passed against the legal representatives of a person who has died a natural death. 20 P.L. T. 685=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 580. Mortgage executed by two members of joint Hindu family—Death of one of them—Suit by mortgagee decreed against estate of deceased executant in hands of his sons and against other executant personally—Suit dismissed as against grandsons of deceased executant—Decree, cannot be executed against interest of grandsons—Mortgagee's proper remedy is by way of appeal from the decree. 13 Luck. 61=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 41=1938 P.C. (P.C.).

SEC. 53.—This section is new, and gives effect to the rulings under the old Code in 34 C. 642 and 20 B. 385. The law laid down in 31 C. 224; 27 M. 243 and 28 M. 26 are now good law.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 20 Bom.L.R. 660=46 I.C. 745. See also 24 A.L.J. 273=40 A. 245=1926 A. 220. Section 53 is only meant to cover the case of a son or other descendant who under the section is to be deemed the legal representative of his ancestor with respect to property which was liable under Hindu Law for the payment of the debt of the deceased ancestor, in respect of which a decree had been passed. It does not apply where a share of a brother of the father has come to the son and no decree has been passed against the father's brother. Hence such share cannot be attached in execution of decree obtained against father. 159 I.C. 233=1935 L. 650. See also 1937 Oudh 327: (1937) 1 M.L.J. 224. Per Cornish, J.—Apart from section 53 a Hindu son cannot be made liable in execution as his father's legal representative in respect of property which was not property in which the father had any right or title at the time of his death. The language of section 53 is sufficiently wide enough to include a liability incurred by the father which is enforceable against the property in the hands of his son, whether the liability was incurred by the father in his capacity of manager or personally. In both cases it is the Hindu Law which attaches to the property this liability. Section 53 covers a case where there is a decree against the father in respect of a pre-partition debt binding on the share of property allotted to the son in the partition. The word 'debt' as used in the text is wide enough to include a pre-partition debt which will include a liability for mesne profits incurred by the father before partition, although the actual liability is not determined in a suit until after the partition. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 880=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 610=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 251 (F.B.). Section 53 imposes the liability to pay the decree on the son or other descendant of the judgment-debtor and not on any collateral of the judgment-debtor. Accordingly on the death of a member of a joint Hindu family against deemed to be property of the deceased which has come to the hands of the son or other descendant as his legal representative.

whom a personal decree is passed, the decree-holder can proceed only against the assets of the deceased in the hands of his sons and not against the property belonging to the surviving brother. 1937 O.W.N. 516=A. I.R. 1937 Oudh 327. See also 18 Pat.L.T. 341=1937 Pat. 321. Section 53 is creating a fiction for the purpose of section 50 and the purpose of section 52. The fiction created by section 53 is that in certain circumstances property, not the property of the deceased and not therefore in A as the deceased's personal representative, shall be deemed to be property held by A as a legal representative. Section 53 seems to be limited to cases where the decree that is being executed is a decree passed in a suit on a debt. Hence it will not apply to a case where a decree for compensation in lieu of specific performance has been passed, for, the decree may only be regarded as creating a debt of record without its being a decree on a debt. 1940 N.L.J. 275=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 632=1940 Nag. 278. Section 53 deals with the liability of ancestral property in the hands of a son or other descendant for the payment of the debts of a deceased ancestor in respect of which a decree has been passed. Where the ancestor against whom a decree is passed is still alive, there is no question of enforcement of the decree against his legal representatives or against ancestral property in the hands of such legal representatives, and the entire family property is, therefore, not liable to attachment and sale under the section. 158 I.C. 490=1935 O.W.N. 1113. Section 53 was not intended in any way to alter the liability of the property under the Hindu Law; the object of the section was to make it clear that the same remedy which might have been available by a separate suit is equally applicable in the execution department and that although strictly speaking it cannot be said that the joint family property in the hands of a son of a deceased Hindu owner is property which has come into his hands as the legal representative of the deceased, it must be deemed to have so come into his hands within the meaning of sections 51 and 52 of the Code. The word "property" used in section 53 does not mean any tangible property which is necessarily capable of being seized or possessed physically but must include proprietary interest in such property. Nor does the expression "in the hands of a son" necessarily mean property which is exclusively in the hands of a son without any partner or coparcener. 150 I.C. 411=1934 A.L.J. 483=1066; 157 I.C. 945=1935 O.W.N. 1005=1935 1066=157 I.C. 945=1935 O.W.N. 1005=1935 O. 510; 41 L.W. 61=68 M.L.J. 104. The definition of the term "legal representative" does include a son becoming owner of his father's property by virtue of survivorship, for he does represent in law the estate of the deceased and at any rate it is he who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased. 184 I.C. 456=1939 Pesh. 45. Section 53 is as comprehensive as it can be, and it does not limit the liability of ancestral property to property devolving by survivorship. The section would equally apply to ancestral or joint family property which comes into the possession of the son or other descendant on a partition between him and his father or ancestor. It is deemed to be the property of the father or ancestor (judgment-debtor) for the purpose and within the meaning of section 53, C. P. Code. There is nothing in section 53 which limits the scope of the enquiry or the remedy to property devolving by survivorship. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 300=1939 Sind 258. Section 53 provides that a question as to what property would be liable in execution, is to be determined in execution proceedings and not by a separate suit. 16 I.C. 970=16 C.L.J. 85. On this section, see also 23 A.L.J. 467; 28 Bom.L.R. 1322; 41 L.W. 61=68 M.L.J. 104; 14 P. 732=16 Pat. L.T. 393=1935 P. 275 (F.B.). Section 53 was enacted to settle a question, on which there was a conflict of judicial decisions, namely, whether coparcenary property surviving to Hindu sons after the father's death can be proceeded against in execution of a decree against the father. Section makes it clear that such property can be followed by the decree-holder in execution of his decree without obtaining a decree that the property is liable for the debts of the deceased. The section is not intended to allow the representative of a judgment-debtor in a mortgage decree to resist proceedings in the executing Court on the plea that the decree itself ought not to have been passed. 1934 L. 438=15 L. 772. To make this section operative there should be a decree against the son as the legal representative of the deceased. 103 I.C. 338=1927 A. 683. But see 1930 N. 134. Decree against Hindu father—Attachment of joint family property—Insolvency and death of father—Application for execution against sons—If affected by insolvency of father. See 38 Bom.L.R. 977. Watan property cannot be regarded as property inherited by a son from his father so as to expose it to liability in execution under section 53. A son does not inherit watan property from his father at any rate to the extent of making that property liable for the father's debts. To hold that watan property is liable for the father's debts, like other property of a Hindu father would be to go behind the prohibition in section 5 of the Watan Act. 43 Bom.L.R. 232. Decree against member of joint Hindu family—Execution against shares of other members except sons—Rights of creditor—Other members—If legal representatives. See (1937) 1 M.L.J. 224=1937 M. 472.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Grandson's liability as "other descendant". 1932 B. 522=34 Bom.L.R. 1005. See also 144 I.C. 397=1933 O. 309. It is only the son or lineal descendant of a deceased Hindu that comes within the scope of section 53. 45 A. 455. (42 B. 504, R.); 24 I.C. 280=1914 M.W.N. 354. A son is liable for the decree debts of his father to the extent of the ancestral properties unless the debt was for an illegal or immoral purpose. This is so even if the son was a party to the decree against the father. 20 A.L.J. 969=1923 A. 124; 15 L. 772=19 I.C. 252; 9 I.C. 631. The whole of the ancestral property and not merely that part of it in the hands of a Mitakshara son is liable for satisfaction of the judgment-debt. 16 I.C. 970=16 C.L.J. 85; 32 Bom.L.R. 919. Where a Hindu father made himself responsible to produce certain crops entrusted to him or on failure to make good a particular sum and died and the crops disappeared it was held that the father was in the position of a judgment-debtor and he having died the decree or order could be executed against his legal representative who would be liable to the extent of the assets of the deceased in his hands and that under section 53 even ancestral property could be proceeded against, if it is liable under Hindu Law and the debt not being repugnant to good morals, the property in the hands of the sons were liable. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 229. See also 1939 Pesh. 45. A Hindu son can, under section 47, have the question whether the debt had been contracted for immoral purposes, tried. 33 C. 676. See also 20 M. 385; 3 Pat.L.T. 43=1923 P. 142; 1939 M.W.N. 918 (Plea by Hindu son that no debt existed as against his father). Section 53 does not in any way negative the claim of the son to be a legal representative within section 2 (11). 42 Bom.L.R. 1066=1941 Bom. 23 (F.B.). Ancestral property of a deceased judgment-debtor is not an asset in the hands of his heirs. 11 I.C. 376=80 P.W.R. 1911. Watan property owned by a watandar is not after his death liable for his debts in the hands of his heirs under section 53. A money decree obtained against a watandar during his lifetime cannot be executed against the watan property in the hands of his son. 58 B. 218=151 I.C. 151=36 Bom.L.R. 169=1934 B. 116. A gratuity granted to the heirs of a deceased employee by a railway administration is not assets in the hands of his heirs. 26 O.C. 53=1923 O. 21. Where a suit is instituted against the heirs of a deceased member of a joint Hindu family, for loan advanced to the latter, the actual existence of assets of the deceased need not be proved for passing of decree against the heirs. Decree can be passed against them to the extent of the assets of the deceased that may be found in their possession. If no assets can be found, it is clear that nothing can be realised from them, but that is no ground for dismissing the suit. 147 I.C. 138=1933 P. 605. See also 1934 R. 196.

Where the decree is for the partition of an undivided estate assessed to the payment of revenue to the Crown, or for the separate possession of a share of such an estate, the partition of the estate or the separation of the share shall be made by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector deputed by him in this behalf, in accordance with the law (if any) for the time being in force relating to the partition, or the separate possession of shares, of such estates.

SEC. 54: SCOPE OF SECTION.—In case the Collector contravenes the direction in the decree or acts ultra vires, his action is subject to the control and correction of the Court. 19 B. 434; 28 B. 238. The primary object of the section is to prevent the annulment of joint responsibility for the payment of land revenue. See 16 C. at p. 205 and 24 C. at p. 734 (F.B.). Section only applies to case of estates assessed to revenue in lump and not to those assessed at acre rates. 95 I. C. 39 (1)=1926 R. 80. Nor to partition of a particular mouza in undivided estate. 1931 C. 104=34 C.W.N. 895. Section does not apply to a suit for partition of a revenue-paying estate when no separate allotment of revenue is asked for. [24 C. 725 (F.B.), Foll.] 13 P. 637=150 I.C. 608=1934 P. 365. See also 146 I.C. 201=1933 Pesh. 101. Where a Civil Court has passed a decree for partition of a revenue-paying estate, a subsequent partition obtained from the Collector does not supersede the Civil Court decrees. 13 P. 637=150 I.C. 608=1934 P. 365. Section applies only to a case where decree comprehends the partition of the whole of the estate paying revenue to Government. It does not apply where decree is for separate possession of a share of a portion of an undivided estate. 64 M.L.J. 63=56 M. 443. Per Venkatashubba Rao, J.—What section 54 refers to is the partition of the estate assessed to the payment of revenue and not the partition of the estate as well as the revenue. 56 M. 443=141 I.C. 181=1933 M. 259=64 M.L.J. 63. For meaning of the words "for the separate possession of such an estate," see 34 C.W.N. 892=1931 C. 93=58 C. 122; 64 M.L.J. 63=56 M. 443.

POWERS OF THE COLLECTOR.—A Collector cannot refuse to carry out a partition. 14 B. 450. A Civil Court cannot appoint a Commissioner to make a partition under this section. 23 C. 679. Collector's duty is not confined to mere division of the lands but includes the delivery of the shares to the respective allottees. 11 B. 662. Also 103 I. C. 231=1927 N. 300 (along with the crops attached to the land). ## ARREST AND DETENTION.

55. (1) A judgment-debtor may be arrested in execution of a decree at any hour and on any day, and shall, as soon as practicable, be brought before the Court, and his detention may be in the civil prison of the district in which the Court ordering the detention is situate, or, where such civil prison does not afford suitable accommodation, in any other place which the Provincial Government may appoint for the detention of persons ordered by the Courts of such district to be detained :

Provided, firstly, that, for the purpose of making an arrest under this section, no dwelling-house shall be entered after sunset and before sunrise :

Provided, secondly, that no outer door of a dwelling-house shall be broken open unless such dwelling house is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor and he refuses or in any way prevents access thereto, but when the officer authorised to make the arrest has duly gained access to any dwelling-house, he may break open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe the judgment-debtor is to be found :

Provided, thirdly, that if the room is in the actual occupancy of a woman who is not the judgment-debtor and who according to the customs of the country does not appear in public, the officer authorised to make the arrest shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw, and, after allowing a reasonable time for her to withdraw and giving her reasonable facility for withdrawing, may enter the room for the purpose of making the arrest :

Provided, fourthly, that, where the decree in execution of which a judgment-debtor is arrested, is a decree for the payment of money and the judgment-debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him, such officer shall at once release him.

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare that any person or class of persons whose arrest might be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public shall not be liable to arrest in execution of a decree otherwise than in accordance with such procedure as may be prescribed by the Provincial Government in this behalf.

SEC. 55: ARRESTED IN EXECUTION OF A DECREE.—Provision of the section is mandatory. 154 I.C. 782=1928 C. 62. As to what is meant by the word 'arrest', see 11 C. 451 (458). In the execution of a decree payable by instalments the judgment-debtor cannot be arrested for default in the payment of each instalment. 7 B. 106. ENTRY INTO PLAINTIFF'S HOUSE TO ARREST HIS BROTHER—TRESPASS—DAMAGES.—Defendant had a decree against plaintiff's brother and the latter though residing outside usually came and lived with his brother. In execution of the decree, defendant entered the baithak of plaintiff's house with the bailiff and naib sheriff believing that the judgment-debtor was there as usual, with the object of effecting his arrest. The judgment-debtor was not there and on the plaintiff's remonstrating, the defendant apologised. The provisions apply to small cause debtors. 2 M. 9. But see also 22 B. 731. When application of judgment-debtor to be declared an insolvent has been dismissed and he is re-arrested in execution, he cannot claim the benefit of S. 55 (3) and (4) so long as the previous dismissal is not set aside. 9 I.C. 121. Where insolvency petition is filed one day too late, delay cannot be excused, and surety becomes liable. 1926 M. 286=86 I.C. 304. When judgment-debtor furnishes security under S. 55 (4) the security should be directed to continue until final order is made. 46 B. 702=1922 B. 340. Mere filing of insolvency petition by debtor or dismissal of an execution petition does not absolve the surety. 34 I.C. 407=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 273. (14 C. 757, Dist.) See also 22 I.C. 953; 5 P.L.J. 417

=57 I.C. 303. The liability of surety is now clearly laid down in S. 145. Surety is liable to a transferee decree-holder. 26 M. 258. Surety is not liable when judgment-debtor dies. 29 A. 466; 41 C. 50. See also 1924 B. 428 (Judgment-debtor not applying within time, dying subsequently—Liability of surety). Application to set aside order of arrest abates on death of the person against whom the order is made. 22 I.C. 953. Covenants in surety bond as to what is to happen in case the application to be declared an insolvent is refused, do not come within the purview of the section. 16 A. 37. See also 23 A.L.J. 59.

SEC. 55 (4).—A bond executed by a surety under S. 55 (4) cannot be made to contain conditions not covered by the section. 30 S.L.R. 177=1936 S. 244. Under S. 55 all that is necessary is that security 'to the satisfaction of the Court' should be furnished. It is not provided that the surety will become effective only if a bond is formally executed. In such cases the liability of the surety is determined by the undertaking that is given to the Court by means of the agreement or statement made by him and accepted by the Court, and non-compliance with the undertaking renders the surety liable under S. 145, C.P. Code. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 772. A surety is liable under S. 55 (4), if there is a breach of either of the two conditions, that is to say, if the judgment-debtor fails to apply in insolvency or fails to appear before the Insolvency Court or the executing Court. It is not necessary that both the conditions should be broken. 1937 A.M.L.J. 49. An order made under S. 55 (4) rejecting an application for forfeiture of security bond is appealable and therefore no revision lies. 34 I.C. 247. (15 A. 183, Dist.) condition in the surety bond executed by the surety, if that bond provides that he should appear only when ordered by the Court; if the Court has permitted the judgment-debtor to absent himself, and if he then absconds, the bond cannot be enforced against the judgment-debtor. But if there is a disobedience by the judgment-debtor of an order of Court, whether expressed or implied, to appear, prima facie, the surety is liable under the bond. 1 I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 401=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 270. Surety for producing judgment-debtor on a particular date, which turns out to be a holiday—Subsequent production though after some delay is substantial compliance with the bond. 1928 M.W.N. 871. Where a surety for the appearance of the judgment-debtor who was arrested in execution of a decree, produces the judgment-debtor in Court and requests to be absolved from further liability under the surety bond, the Court should not refuse to grant the prayer. It is open to the decree-holder to apply to the Court for the arrest of the judgment-debtor until he furnishes a fresh security. 151 I.C. 154=1934 L. 962 (1). When a surety gives security in the course of execution proceedings for the appearance of a judgment-debtor and for satisfaction of the decree against him in the event of his failure to produce him when required, the security bond in the absence of any indication to the contrary does not enure after the dismissal of the application for execution in default. The surety would naturally consider himself absolved from his liability on the dismissal of the application in the proceedings relating to, which his bond was taken. The Court has no justification for summoning the surety at the stage of restoration application and the mere fact that the surety failed to raise the point as regards the validity of the bond at the time cannot estop him from raising it later. 148 I.C. 570=1934 L. 92. See also 55 A. 548=144 I.C. 731=1933 A. 382; 14 R. 190=162 I.C. 251=1936 R. 168. (Surety bond—Breach—Condition that judgment-debtor would appear on all days fixed for hearing of his insolvency petition—Petition adjourned for mention as to arrangement between him and his creditors—Failure of judgment-debtor to appear on adjourned date—Liability of surety enforceable). Where judgment-debtor fails to apply for insolvency within a month of his release, the option to commit him to prison or to realize the security lies with Court and not with decree-holder. 1927 A. 377=100 I.C. 626. Court cannot proceed both against judgment-debtor and his surety. 117 I.C. 910=1929 L. 479. If the Court at the request of the decree-holder commits the judgment-debtor to the civil prison the surety is discharged automatically. The judgment-debtor once having been committed to prison, the Court cannot concurrently proceed against the surety. 144 I.C. 239=29 N.L.R. 83=1933 N. 38. In enforcing a bond executed by a surety under S. 55 (4), the Court has no power to reduce the amount for which the bond is executed. The security in such a case is not forfeited by way of penalty. It is part of the fruits of the decree obtained by the decree-holder, and the Court is not entitled to deprive the decree-holder of the fruits of his decree. 30 S.L.R. 177=1936 S. 244. Where a surety executes a bond to the Court stipulating that the judgment-debtor will be present in Court on a particular date, and that if he failed to be present the surety will produce him, the liability of the surety is not confined to producing him merely on that date. He is liable to produce the judgment-debtor on some date after that date, and if he fails to produce him on a subsequent date when called upon by Court, he is prima facie liable under the bond. The fact that the Court grants time to the judgment-debtor several times cannot have the effect of exonerating the surety, as the grant of time by the Court cannot impair the decree-holder's security, unless it can be shown that the decree-holder granted time to the judgment-debtor. 1937 M.W.N. 1165. Surety—Bond—Undertaking to produce judgment-debtor on date fixed—Surety failed to appear and failed to produce judgment-debtor on date fixed—Plea of illness of judgment-debtor—Absence of evidence to show physical impossibility to appear. Held, that the surety bond not having provided for such a contingency or for absolving the sureties from liability in such a contingency, they were not absolved from liability and hence were liable to be proceeded against under the bond in execution of the decree. 47 L.W. 408=1938 M.W.N. 321=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 530. A surety bond has to be interpreted according to the conditions expressly mentioned in it, and not independently of them. The fact that it is executed under S. 55, makes no difference. In case the conditions laid down in the section are not fulfilled, the option lies not with the decree-holder but with the executing Court to proceed against the surety under the section or against the judgment-debtor. When once the Court exercises its option and discharges the surety, it cannot afterwards re-open the matter and proceed against him. If it does so, it acts without jurisdiction and the High Court will interfere under S. 115, C.P. Code. 18 Pat.L.T. 357=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 476. (1940) All. 338=1940 A.L.J. 344=A.I.R. 1940 All. 304. A person who becomes a surety under S. 55 (4) cannot claim to be released from his obligation at his pleasure. There is no analogy between a security bond executed under S. 55 (4), C.P. Code and a continuing guarantee under S. 129, Contract Act and S. 130 of the Contract Act (and its principle) cannot apply to a surety under S. 55 (4), C.P. Code. The surety under S. 55 (4) cannot be discharged from his obligation at any stage before he has fully carried out his undertaking to the Court. 1941 M.W.N. 793. A judgment-debtor who was arrested in execution of decree was released on his furnishing security that he would apply within one month to be declared as insolvent. He failed to apply within one month but the decree-holder made no attempt to execute for over three and half years. Held, that the obvious inference was that the decree-holder realized that the judgment-debtor had substantially, if not technically, complied with the order of the Court, and that the purposes for which the security was given was substantially fulfilled. It would therefore be wholly inequitable at such late stage to order that the security should be forfeited. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 122. DEATH OF SURETY PENDING SALE—PROCEDURE.—An execution proceeding cannot be continued against the estate of a dead man without bringing on record his legal representatives. Where in execution proceedings against a surety for a judgment-debtor under S. 55 (4), C.P. Code, the surety dies after the issue of the sale proclamation and before sale, the decree-holder should, in order that he may continue the proceedings, substitute, in the place of the deceased surety, his legal representatives. The Court should issue notice to them under O. 21, R. 22, C.P. Code, whilst substituting them, and their objections should be heard before the execution proceeding can be further continued against them. The circumstance that the legal representatives have already entered appearance in the execution proceeding does not dispense with the issue of notice under O. 21, R. 22 or of hearing their objections, if any. 18 Pat. 761=1940 Pat. 142. Rowland, J.—There can be no short cuts in matters of procedure. The correct procedure for taking proceedings against a surety for the judgment-debtor is first to call on him to produce the judgment-debtor, then, on his failure to do so, to call on him to show cause against forfeiture and execution, and next on his failure to show cause to the satisfaction of the Court, to obtain an order of the Court directing execution to proceed against the person and property of the surety. The correct procedure after the death of the surety is to substitute his heirs in the execution proceeding and to obtain the leave of the Court to continue the execution against them; thereafter to serve them with notices under O. 21, R. 22, C.P. Code, and on their appearance, the Court, after hearing and determining any objections that they may make, would permit or disallow the continuance of the execution. A sale cannot proceed without the legal representatives being brought on the record. 18 Pat. 761=21 Pat.L.T. 369=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 142.

APPEAL—REVISION.—An order passed on an application by the surety for cancellation of the surety bond is not a decree within the meaning of the Code, and is not appealable by the decree-holder. His remedy is only by way of revision. (1928 A. 527 and 43 M. 325 R.) 144 I.C. 731=1933 A. 382.

SEC. 56.—A money decree does not necessarily carry with it a right to execute it by Detention and release.

58. (1) Every person detained in the Civil Prison in execution of a decree shall be so detained,—

(a) where the decree is for the payment of a sum of money exceeding fifty rupees, for a period of six months, and

(b) in any other case for a period of six weeks :

Provided that he shall be released from such detention before the expiration of the said period of six months or six weeks, as the case may be,—

(i) on the amount mentioned in the warrant for his detention being paid to the officer in charge of the civil prison, or

(ii) on the decree against him being otherwise fully satisfied, or

(iii) on the request of the person on whose application he has been so detained,

(iv) on the omission by the person, on whose application he has been so detained, to pay subsistence allowance :

Provided, also, that he shall not be released from such detention under clause (ii) or clause (iii), without the order of the Court.

arrest of the judgment-debtor, e.g., minor or a female, or a legal representative. 18 N. L.R. 145=1922 N. 98.

SEC. 58.—Section does not apply to the case of a person imprisoned for contempt. 4 C. 655. The Court has no power to fix shorter terms of detention than those prescribed. 13 M. 141. Imprisonment on arrest before judgment becomes, after decree, imprisonment in execution of a decree, and the imprisonment suffered must be taken into consideration in calculating the period provided by this section. 7 B. 431. In execution of a decree payable by instalments the debtor cannot be detained separately for default in the payment of each instalment. 7 B. 106. The language of sub-S. (2) indicates that immunity from re-arrest arises only when there has been release after "detention in the civil prison". See 8 M. 21. See also 23 C. 128. When a warrant of committal to jail has been made out, the discharge of the debtor whilst in confinement in the Court-house for non-payment of subsistence allowance must be regarded as discharge from jail. 9 B. 151. But see 8 M. 21; 1929 L. 361=118 I.C. 531. Code contemplates as immaterial the circumstances under which the debtor obtains his release. 20 C. 878. See also 12 C. 652. Code does not forbid retaking of a person who has been released under S. 13 of the Indian Insolvency Act. 26 B. 652 at 659. A debtor who has been discharged for non-payment of subsistence money cannot be re-arrested. 4 M.H.C.R. 76. Cost of clothing, etc., required under S. 33, Prisons Act, is not subsistence allowance under S. 58. 17 I.C. 911. When a debtor who has been committed to a particular jail is detained in another jail, he is entitled to his release. 11 C. 527. While calculating the period of imprisonment under a new warrant, the time of imprisonment suffered by him under the former warrant should be deducted. 17 I.C. 911. A payment is not made to the officer until the officer actually receives the money. 22 I.C. 25.

JOINT DECREE.—The only effect of a release under S. 58, is to protect from re-arrest the judgment-debtor who has been released from prison. The incarceration of one judgment-debtor out of eight judgment-debtors in execution of a joint decree for arrears of rent and his release before the expiry of 6 months cannot discharge his debt; nor can it clear the liabilities of the other seven. Crops raised by all the judgment-debtors are consequently attachable in execution of the decree notwithstanding the imprisonment and release of one of the judgment-debtors. 1937 R.D. 13.

'DETENTION'—MEANING OF—IF INCLUDES DETENTION IN COURT-HOUSE.—Words 'such detention' in proviso (1) and 'detention under this section' in proviso (2), S. 58, refer to and mean 'detention in civil prison'. Civil prison means civil jail and not Court-house. Detention therefore in the Court-house cannot be said to be detention in a civil prison. A judgment-debtor was committed to the civil prison in execution of a decree but was released during the pendency of the appeal by him against the decree. Decree-holder withdrew the balance of the subsistence allowance deposited by him on release of the judgment-debtor. On dismissal of his appeal he was detained by the appellate Court for the whole day but was released as no subsistence allowance was deposited by the decree-holder. He was ordered to appear before the lower Court on a fixed date and on appearance it was contended by the judgment-debtor that he could not be re-arrested in view of proviso

59. (1) At any time after a warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor has been issued the Court may cancel it on the ground of his serious illness.

(2) Where a judgment-debtor has been arrested, the Court may release him if, in its opinion, he is not in a fit state of health to be detained in the civil prison.

(3) Where a judgment debtor has been committed to the civil prison, he may be released therefrom—

(a) by the Provincial Government on the ground of the existence of any infectious or contagious disease, or

(b) by the committing Court, or any Court to which that Court is subordinate on the ground of his suffering from any serious illness.

(4) A judgment-debtor released under this section may be re-arrested, but the period of his detention in the civil prison shall not in the aggregate exceed that prescribed by section 58.

ATTACHMENT.

60. (1) The following property is liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, namely, lands, houses or other buildings, goods, money, bank-notes, cheques, bills of exchange, hundis, promissory notes, Government securities, bonds, or other securities for money, debts, shares in a corpora-

Property liable to attachment and sale in execution of decree.

NOTES.

(2), S. 58. Held, that as at the time of the decree-holder's omission to pay the subsistence allowance the judgment-debtor was not detained in the civil prison but in the Court-house, S. 58 did not apply. The judgment-debtor was not therefore exempt from being committed to the civil prison to undergo the remaining term of imprisonment. 1937 L. 253=39 P.L.R. 471.

SEC. 59.—The provisions of S. 59 are self-contained and are not controlled by the provisions of S. 55 (3) and (4) and are based on purely humanitarian grounds. If a judgment-debtor is suffering from serious illness the Courts of justice would be well advised in ordering his release so as to escape the moral responsibility if anything happens to him in the event of his being sent to jail. 152 I.C. 427=36 P.L.R. 72=1934 L. 807 (2). The adoption of either or both courses specified in Cls. (1) and (2) of S. 59 lies entirely within the discretion of the Court. Asthma and indigestion do not constitute serious illness. And where a Court refused to cancel the warrant of arrest, the appellate Court will not interfere unless the discretion is wrongly exercised. 145 I.C. 709=34 P.L.R. 856=1933 L. 307.

SEC. 60: CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The provisions of S. 60, which restrict the right of the decree-holder to realise the decretal amount from the property of the debtor should be strictly construed. 39 I.C. 375. All the sub-heads running from (a) to (p) under S. 60 (1), proviso, are on the same footing, and the exemptions provided thereunder are cumulative, and any man is entitled to all the benefits and not confined to one only, if he is qualified to do so. 1939 Rang.L.R. 504=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 432.

Distress is not permitted under C. P. Code and provisions of S. 60 cannot be applied by analogy to distraint. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 566=184 I.C. 698=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 276.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—Exemption under S. 60 can only be claimed by the judgment-debtor. If, for some reason or the other, the judgment-debtor chooses to waive that privilege, his son cannot complain of his action. 145 I.C. 169=1933 L. 251; 102 I.C. 616=1927 P. 233; 52 A. 1027; 1940 Lah. 126. S. 60 is a prohibition against forcible attachment or sale. There is nothing in this enactment to prevent an agriculturist voluntarily selling or otherwise alienating his house. Where an agriculturist voluntarily agrees to mortgage his house, S. 60 does not apply. 1935 L. 164; 42 P.L.R. 261. See also 1935 L. 942. Where an agriculturist himself mortgages his house, S. 60 does not apply. (A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 164, Rel. on.). 189 I.C. 782=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 126. But see 1941 Pesh. 53. Section does not apply to sales where there is no attachment, as in mortgage decrees. 23 A.L.J. 841=89 I.C. 364. See also 47 A. 900; 1929 R. 275 (1). A preliminary decree for dissolution of partnership and for accounts is property which is capable of attachment within the meaning of S. 60, though it may not be capable of immediate execution, it nevertheless creates rights which must be regarded as property. Such a decree falls under O. 21, R. 53 (4) and can be attached in the manner provided therein. 18 Pat. 688=1940 Pat. 107=1939 P.W.N. 839. See also 1937 All. 652. A decree-holder can attach all the properties of the judgment-debtor as S. 60 does not limit the extent of properties to be attached. He can also attach property for mesne pro-tion and, save as hereinafter mentioned, all other saleable property, movable or

(h) and (i) of S. 60 (1), as amended by Act IX of 1937 have no application to proceedings arising out of a suit instituted before the first day of June, 1937. 178 I.C. 141 = 19 P.L.T. 761 = 1939 P. 77. See also 1938 S. 144. The word 'suit' in section 3 of the Amending Act IX of 1937 is not necessarily confined to execution proceedings arising out of suits which are initiated by the presentation of a plaint, but is also applicable to execution proceedings resulting on an award in arbitration. The Legislature never intended that the word 'suit' in S. 3 should be used in a restricted sense. 177 I.C. 504 = A.I.R. 1938 Sind 176.

EXEMPTION FROM ATTACHMENT—MODE OF RAISING PLEA.—Where a judgment-debtor is aware of the proclamation of sale and his property has been attached but does not make any objection prior to the sale, he cannot, after the sale, be allowed to raise an objection under section 60 that the property proclaimed to be sold is not liable to attachment and sale under that section. An objection or application by a judgment-debtor that his property is not liable to attachment and sale under section 60 is an objection under section 47 and is governed by Art. 166, Limitation Act. 30 N.L.R. 135 = 148 I.C. 200 = 1934 N. 82. See also 58 B. 564 = 36 Bom.L.R. 681 = 1934 B. 348. A mere right to give a lease is not property which can be transferred. So it is not attachable under section 60. 161 I.C. 628 = 1936 Pesh. 90.

'DEBT.'—It is not necessary that the exact amount due should be ascertained prior to attachment. 16 A. 286. See also 16 I.C. 708. So also the interest of an heir in the hands of the administrator holding as trustee though such interest is not determined and allowed to him. 117 I.C. 76 = 1929 L. 600; 33 C.W.N. 282 = 1929 C. 352. (Accrued debt can be attached—Not one where the debt and its payment rest in the future. 1925 C. 561 = 78 I.C. 881) The word 'debts' in section 60, includes share of debts. A debt due to the judgment-debtor and other persons jointly can, therefore, be attached and sold in execution. 41 C.W.N. 410 = 1937 C. 199. The word 'debt' in section 60, means an actually existing debt, that is, a perfected and absolute debt. A sum of money which might, or might not, become due, or the payment of which depends upon contingencies which may or may not happen, is not a debt. 176 I.C. 634 = 40 P.L.R. 73 = 1938 Lah. 336. immovable, belonging to the judgment-debtor, or over which, or the profits of which, he has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit, whether the same be held in the name of the judgment-debtor or by another person in trust for him or on his behalf :

COMPENSATION MONEY IN HANDS OF COLLECTOR AWARDED UNDER LAND ACQUISITION ACT.—Compensation money awarded under the Land Acquisition Act is not liable to attachment at the instance of the creditors of the persons whose lands have been acquired until the amount is tendered to them under section 31 of Land Acquisition Act. The money in the hands of the Collector is money belonging to the Government until the tender is made and no relationship of creditor and debtor can be said to have been established between the Collector on the one side and the owners of the lands on the other. Section 60, does not therefore apply to such a case and the amount in the hands of the Collector cannot be attached by creditors holding money decrees against the persons to whom the compensation has been awarded. I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 548=40 P.L.R. 817=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 533.

SALEABLE PROPERTY.—What is: 28 M.84; 15 M.L.J. 7; 6 C.W.N. 796; 7 B.L.R. 186 (P.C.) and 30 M. 378. Decision of trial Court as to whether property is saleable or not, cannot be questioned in execution. 23 A.L.J. 841. "Saleable" means saleable by auction at a compulsory sale under the order of the Court and not transferable by act of parties. 19 C.W.N. 1182. A judgment-debtor retains his interest in properties after Court-sale but before confirmation and such interest can be attached. 34 L.W. 531=131 I.C.14=1931 M. 511. A claim which may accrue under a pending award cannot be sold. 7 B.L.R. 186 (P.C.). All decrees, except money decrees, are both attachable and saleable. 16 B. 522. An occupier of state lands possesses the right of cultivating them and of reaping and selling the crops, which gives him a disposing power over the profits. As the right of occupancy of state lands has value and as the Government expressly permits the right to be transferred, the occupier has a saleable interest in the property which can be attached and brought to sale in execution of a decree against him. The fact that the Government may step in and deprive the transferee of the benefit of the purchase does not alter the position. 167 I.C. 920=1937 R. 74=14 R. 619. (See also 149 I.C. 815=1934 R. 263.) The share of a partner in a partnership business is saleable property. 20 C. 693. SEC. 60 (a) PROVISOR.—The words “and such personal ornaments, etc,” give effect to the decision in 9 B. 106. The expression “cooking vessels” ought to receive a liberal interpretation. It does not mean only vessels in which food is actually cooked but includes vessels necessary for cooking operations. 54 A. 399=136 I.C. 280=1932 A. 344.

SEC. 60 (b): TOOLS OF ARTIZANS—Musicians and washermen are not artisans. 5 L.W. 596=38 I.C. 415. A musician is not an artisan and his musical instruments are not “the tools of an artisan” exempt from attachment under section 60 (1) (b). 1941 M.W.N. 783. Sewing machine owned by a tailor is a tool of an artisan and therefore exempt. 65 I.C. 416. A soap-maker is an “artizan”. 54 A. 399. Where a tailor who was using a number of sewing machines sells a couple of them after their attachment and works thereafter in another's shop, that cannot affect the question of exemption of all the machines from attachment. The criterion in such matters is the position of affairs at the time of execution. If on that date he was working in his own shop with all the machines, then all are exempt from attachment; and his subsequent conduct and position does not affect the question of exemption. 1941 O.W.N. 52. A tailor who uses a sewing machine is an artisan, and the sewing machine is an artisan's tool. Section 60 (1) (b) does not say that only such tools shall not be liable to attachment as are necessary for the maintenance of the artisan. Hence if a tailor has a number of sewing machines all of them are exempt from attachment though as a matter of fact a single machine might be sufficient for his livelihood. 1940 O.W.N. 52. A motor tractor is not indispensable for agriculture and therefore it cannot be regarded as being essential to it and hence is not exempt from attachment. 1938 N.L.J. 416. The term ‘implements of husbandry’ in Cl. (b) should be interpreted in a fair and reasonable and even a generous spirit and not in a narrow and mean manner. The clause is not intended to force agriculturists back to primitive ways but to protect them in their livelihood as agriculturists by preventing the attachment even of those mechanical means whereby they plough and irrigate and cultivate the soil and obtain their livelihood as agriculturists. An engine or a water-pump is necessary for the agriculturist to irrigate and cultivate his fields and earn his livelihood as an agriculturist and therefore it comes within the term “implements of husbandry”. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 499=1939 Sind. 96. The word ‘artizan’ implies a handicraftsman, i.e., one who makes certain things as part of his trade or calling. The term does not include the instruments of a professional man, like a surgeon or a doctor. 144 I.C. 848=34 P.L.R. 809=1933 L. 936 (1). An artisan is not merely a person who is engaged in mechanical employment but a person who works in the production of some commodity and whatever he uses for the production of the commodity may be considered as his tools. Hence the utensils used by a sweet-meat vendor for preparation of sweet-meats are tools even though he is employed by another to make

SEC. 60 (c): SCOPE OF SUB-CL. (c).—The term "agriculturist" does not include persons who are agriculturists by virtue of a Government Notification. 106 I.C. 45. For the purpose of exemption from attachment under proviso (c), section 60 (1), the occupation by an agriculturist of a house belonging to him must be in good faith for the purpose of agriculture. 11 R. 372=145 I.C. 326=1933 R. 227 (F.B.). See also 147 I.C. 676=35 P.L.R. 185. In determining whether a person is an agriculturist the following factors should be noted: (1) Whether a person is an agriculturist or not is not a question turning one source of income but on nature of occupation. (2) A person may have many occupations. If one of them is agriculture and for that purpose a house or building is occupied, protection can be claimed. (3) A person who owns and lets it reserving either money or produce is not an agriculturist but a landlord. (4) A person who cultivates the land as a labourer, though neither a landowner nor a tenant, is an agriculturist. (5) If a man cultivates the land with his own hands or by means of labourers whose activities he directs, he is an agriculturist whether he operates on a large or a small scale. If he has no connexion with the land except that he owns it and people work for him, he may or may not be an agriculturist according to circumstances. (Case-law discussed). Hence an owner of land is not an agriculturist, if he lets out on batai (reserving share of produce instead of money rent). I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 461=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 366; see also 1938 R.D. 840; 41 P.L.R. 524=1939 Lah. 556. The term "agriculturist" as used in section 60 must be strictly construed. It denotes a husbandman and a person who carries on and makes his living by tillage and not a mere owner of land. (47 P.R. 1897, Foll.). I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 374=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 72. A judgment-debtor is not an agriculturist under section 60 (1) (c), if agriculture is only a subsidiary occupation of his. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 5. A person who is proved to have cultivated land in one year and who admits not to have cultivated any land in the subsequent year cannot be said to be an "agriculturist" within the meaning of section 60. 42 P.L.R. 261. The protection under section 60 (1) (c), is intended to be given to those who are real tillers of the land; and an "agriculturist" within the meaning of section 60 (1) (c) is a person who is really dependent for his living on tilling the soil and unable to maintain himself otherwise. The test is not whether agriculture is the sole, main, chief or principal source of his income. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 777=45 L.W. 704=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 551=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 11 (F.B.). The occupant of a house in an Istimrari Estate, is entitled on eviction, to remove the materials of the house and hence to that extent, he has an attachable and saleable interest in the house. 1939 A.M.L.J. 102. An "agriculturist" includes a person who gains a substantial portion of his livelihood, not necessarily the whole of it, by agriculture. In order to enable the judgment-debtor to claim the benefit of the exemption in section 60 (1) (c), he must prove the circumstances qualifying for exemption and his bona fides. It is not necessary for him to demonstrate that each square foot of the premises is required for his agriculture. He has to show that the property is occupied by him for purposes of agriculture, i.e., to enable the owner or occupier to cultivate the land. 17 N.L.J. 271. See also 1937 L. 200; 41 P.L.R. 560=1939 Lah. 388 (F.B.). A person relied for his livelihood upon trade and contractor's work. He had no agricultural land except a pleasure garden appurtenant to his house nor was this garden used as a source of livelihood. Held, that neither the house nor the garden was exempt from attachment under section 60. 163 I.C. 621=1936 F. 151. The term "agriculturist" in section 60 (1) (c) refers to an occupation and a man is an agriculturist who engages in the cultivation of land, that is, who ploughs land, sows the crop and attends to it. The cultivation of land by hired labourers by a person who has a different occupation cannot constitute that person an agriculturist. 153 I.C. 511=1935 A.L.J. 306=1935 A. 292. There is no statutory bar to an agriculturist voluntarily alienating his houses. The bar under section 60 is against the compulsory sale of such a house in execution of a money decree. Where therefore an agriculturist waives objection to attachment and agrees to the sale of the houses in execution of the decree, section 60 does not protect the houses from attachment and sale. (A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 164, Foll.) A.I.R. 1939 L. 316=42 P.L.R. 398; see also 1937 L. 939; 1940 Pesh. 53. S. 60 (c) is intended to protect agriculturist who are the owners of the houses and in occupation thereof as such owners. If an agriculturist mortgages his house with possession and is occupying a portion of it on rent from the usufructuary mortgagee, his occupation is merely as a tenant and not as owner and such occupation is not protected by this clause. 156 I.C. 759=1935 O.W.N. 793. The test applicable in deciding whether a person is an "agriculturist" within section 60 (c), is whether his main source of income is derived from cultivation or not. The term "agriculturist" is used in the sense of a person who is an agriculturist by profession, that is, a person whose main source of livelihood is cultivation. 157 I.C. 986=1935 A.L.J. 507=1935 A. 448. Protection given by section 60 is intended to be given to those who are real tillers of the land. An agriculturist, within the meaning of section 60, is a person who is really dependent for his living on tilling of soil and unable to maintain himself otherwise; main, chief or principal sources of income are not the proper tests. Where the person claiming protection under section 60, is a large landlord whose main source of income is rents from tenants and a jagir of Rs. 3,500, he is not an agriculturist within the meaning of section 60. (A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 551 (F.B.) Rel. on. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 737, Not foll). 41 P.L.R. 225=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 40. A man who has been cultivating for many years and who has his cattle tethered beneath his house and a granary at the back of it has all the insignia of a cultivator. Where he occupies the house sought to be attached, and uses it directly for agricultural purposes in housing his cattle, his implements and his seed, paddy and his labourers, he must be regarded as occupying the house as an agriculturist, and is entitled to exemption from attachment. The mere fact that the judgment-debtor owns 150 acres of land makes no difference when there is evidence to the effect that he cultivates only 25 acres, while the rest of the land is cultivated by his son who devotes all the profits to paying off his father's debts; that does not render the judgment-debtor a zamindar or a rent receiving landlord. 162 I.C. 694=1936 R. 215. The judgment-debtor can waive the privilege provided by the section. The judgment-debtor will be estopped from pleading protection under the section, if he mortgages the house. 6 P. 254=102 I.C. 616=1927 P. 233. See also 52 A. 1027=133 I.C. 478=1931 A. 112; 1938 Nag. 544. The house of an agriculturist cannot be sold in execution even of a mortgage decree passed against that property. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 53. S. 60, C. P. Code, does not prohibit a voluntary transfer of a house of an agriculturist for satisfaction of a decree against him. 170 I.C. 896=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 939. See also 1940 Lah. 126; 1933 L. 251. S. 60 is only intended for the benefit of the indigent agriculturists and not when the judgment-debtor suffers no material inconvenience. 25 I.C. 117=1 L.W. 519. The word 'occupation' does not mean residence only. 99 I.C. 376=1927 A. 214. See also 102 I.C. 712 (2). Where agriculturist judgment-debtor agreed under a compromise to have immovable property attached in execution, he cannot at the time of execution be protected by saying that the property is non-transferable. 57 I.C. 249=24 C.W.N. 575. S. 60 (c) exempts all the houses and other buildings which form the premises occupied by an agriculturist even if a portion would enable the judgment-debtor to earn his livelihood as an agriculturist. (51 I. C. 129; 130 I. C. 81, Ref.), 141 I.C. 824=29 N.L.R. 106=1933 N. 80. Where two houses of an agriculturist are attached and it is found that one is quite sufficient for occupation by him bona fide for purposes of agriculture, e.g., tying cattle and stacking fodder the release of that house alone is justified. 1934 L. 168. In the case of an agriculturist insolvent, according to the provisions of S. 60, the house of an agriculturist does not vest in the Official Receiver and therefore he cannot sell it. This is so even with respect to a house wherein the agriculturist insolvent is residing not as an owner but as a lessee; for the word used in S. 60 is "occupied" which seems to be a physical fact and not "possessed". 1933 L. 1010. The words "occupied by" in S. 60 (1) (c), C. P. Code, mean "lived in by" or "used for agricultural purposes by". Therefore, if the agriculturist proves either of those conditions, his case can come within Cl. (c) of sub-S. (1) of S. 60. (65 P.R. 1909, Approved.) 149 I.C. 428=35 P.L.R. 509=1934 L. 680. Where a house has not been occupied by a person as an agriculturist and it is not denied that he has other residential premises, it is not exempt from attachment. 35 P.L.R. 520=1934 L. 614 (2). By the deliberate use of the two words "houses and buildings" in S. 60 (1) (c) the Legislature meant that not only the residential house lived in by the agriculturist but also the other buildings occupied by him should be exempt. On a plain reading of the clause, there are only two conditions governing the exercise of this privilege. Firstly the person claiming it should be an agriculturist and secondly he should occupy the house and the buildings. There is nothing in S. 60 (1) (c) to show that when occupying his residential quarter the agriculturist should also put it to some other agricultural use for enabling him to keep it safe from his creditors. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 68. An objection under S. 60 (c), on the ground that the house of the judgment-debtor could not be attached and sold in execution, as he was an agriculturist, is one which ought to be taken before the sale, and could not be raised after the sale as a ground for setting it aside. S. 60 (c) further relates to a house in the actual occupation of an agriculturist. 58 B. 564=36 Bom.L.R. 681=1934 B. 348. The question whether the judgment-debtor is an "agriculturist" within the meaning of S. 60, has to be decided with reference to his status at the date of the attachment. If he becomes an agriculturist at the date of the attachment, his property cannot be attached although at the time of the decree he was not an agriculturist. Similarly if he ceases to be an agriculturist at the time of the attachment, his property can be attached although he was an agriculturist at the date of the decree. Where, therefore, property is attached while in possession of the legal representative of the debtor, it is the status of the legal representative and not that of the original debtor that determines the attachability or otherwise of the property. 41 P.L.R. 524=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 556. See also 1939 All. 85.

WHO IS AGRICULTURIST.—A judgment-debtor is not an agriculturist under S. 60 (1) (c) of the Code, where his only source of living is not by cultivation. 63 I.C. 681; 35 I.C. 343=20 C.W.N. 834. (2)—Scope of—Person ceasing to be a Zamindar and becoming an "Agriculturist" between dates of attachment and sale can claim exemption under this section. 1939 A.L.J. 1314=1939 A.W.R. 1220=1939 All. 85. See also 1939 Lah. 556.

WHAT IS EXEMPT FROM ATTACHMENT.—A house of an agriculturist is exempt from attachment and sale in execution of a decree. 39 A. 120; 38 I.C. 171; 40 I.C. 544; 35 A. 307=11 A.L.J. 437=19 I.C. 125. House to be attached occupied by sons of deceased debtor as agriculturists—They need not prove that it was so occupied by their deceased father. 116 I.C. 20. See also 138 I.C. 685 (1)=1932 A. 508. The phrase "houses and other buildings" does not include a vacant site used for storing manure and fodder and with no structure over it. 39 I.C. 375. The house must be a building; if in ruins without doors or roof it is not a building. 99 I.C. 376=1927 A. 214. But see also 105 I.C. 129. The clause refers only to a house occupied by an agriculturist, and does not refer to his town residence. 7 Bom.L.R. 685; 45 I.C. 546. But see 1926 L. 230. See also 49 M. 227=92 I.C. 328=50 M.L.J. 90; 1929 L. 181. Where a house has been used by the judgment-debtor for tethering his agricultural cattle, the mere fact that he has another residential house and two open sites where he might build a shed and tether his cattle is no justification for not exempting the house, when it has been used bona fide for purposes of agriculture. 1930 L. 1034; 5 P.R. 1897 and 11 R. 372 (F.B.), Rel.; 1935 L. 894. A house in town occupied by a bania who has ceased to do any shop keeping business, but who owns and cultivates two parcels of land, one about eight miles away and the other about two miles away from his house, the bullocks used for cultivation being tied up in the house of labourers in the neighbourhood of the lands and not in the house occupied by him, cannot be held to be the house of an agriculturist, so as to be exempt from attachment under S. 60 (1) (c). 158 I.C. 59 (1)=1935 P. 496. The words 'occupied by' in S. 60 (1) (c), mean that it is something more than a dwelling-house. It is a building occupied by him when he is following his avocation of an agriculturist. The use of the word 'houses' make it clear that all houses occupied by him, as such, are exempt. 1938 R.D. 840. See also 1941 Pesh. 68. A decree for money was executed against the deceased debtor during his lifetime and his non-ancestral house was attached. The judgment-debtor was not an agriculturist. Subsequently his legal representative inherited it and occupied it as an agriculturist and claimed exemption from attachment. Held, that in deciding the question whether the house is or is not exempt from sale under S. 60, it was not the profession of the legal representative but that of the deceased debtor against whom the decree was and against whom it was being executed, that should be taken into consideration. 1936 L. 895. Where for the debts of a person a decree is passed against his legal representative who is a non-agriculturist his property derived from the original debtor is liable to attachment even if the original debtor was an agriculturist. (A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 556, Affirm.) 190 I.C. 321=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 320. See also 41 P.L.R. 524=1939 Lah. 556. As S. 60 forbids the sale of materials of a dwelling-house occupied by an agriculturist, a decree for the sale of such a house is bad even though it be a mortgage decree. 33 A. 136; 34 A. 25; 41 B. 475; 39 I.C. 639=19 Bom.L.R. 281. In the case of attachment of the cattle of an agriculturist, the Court has to see whether the cattle are necessary to enable an agriculturist to earn his livelihood. 56 I.C. 69; 61 I.C. 777. The right (for improvements) of a mulgeni tenant in South Kanara to compensation cannot be attached nor sold in execution. 48 I.C. 705=36 M.L.J. 92. Property owned jointly by two tarwads—Separate mortgage by each of undivided share to same mortgagee—Suit for redemption by one tarwad alone without claiming partition is maintainable. 47 L.W. 686=1938 Mad. 562.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—The party alleging that he is an agriculturist must prove it. 1923 B. 12; 100 I.C. 104; 98 I.C. 857=1927 L. 66 (2); 1938 R.D. 840; 161 I.C. 16=1936 L. 532. Occupation bona fide for purposes of agriculture must also be proved. 12 L. 367=130 I.C. 419=1931 L. 1034. See also 136 I.C. 335=1932 O. 76 (following 49 M. 227). Where crops are grown on a tenancy by the heir of deceased tenant after his death, such crops cannot be said to be his crops and cannot be as such liable to attachment and sale in the hands of the heir under S. 60, C. P. Code. 69 I. C. 520.

RESJUDICATA.—Where in execution of a decree against a father of a joint family, the father objects to the sale of his house on the ground of its being exempted under S. 60 (1) (c), from such a sale, but it is dismissed for default and the house is sold, it is not open to the sons later on to file a regular suit to restrain the purchasers from interfering with their possession, on the ground that the house could not be sold in execution; the reason being that inasmuch as the father had represented the sons in the execution proceedings, the decisions in those proceedings are as much binding on them as on their father. I.L.R. (1939) All. 602=1939 A.L.J. 450=A.I.R. 1939 All. 399 (F.B.).

OBJECTION UNDER SECTION BELATED.—IF CAN BE ENTERTAINED.—Objections under section 60 even if belated could be entertained, and where, therefore objections under section 60 (1) (c) were raised two days prior to the sale, the Court ought not to dismiss them on that ground. 38 P.L.R. 669. Where an owner of property has failed to raise a plea under section 60 (1) (c), at the time of the execution sale, it is not open to a stranger in possession to raise the plea in a suit by the auction-purchaser for possession of the property purchased by him in auction, 1940 O.W.N. 618. Under cl. (c) of the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 60, exemption attaches to the property itself and not to the person holding the property for the time being. Consequently if a property is exempt from attachment under said clause in the hands of the judgment-debtor, it is also immune from attachment in the hands of his legal representatives, although they are not agriculturists. 40 P.L.R. 409=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 608.

SEC. 60 (1) (c), (AS AMENDED BY SEC. 35 OF PUNJAB RELIEF OF INDEBTEDNESS ACT).—The words “for a period of a year or more” in section 60 (1) (c), C. P. Code, as amended by section 35 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, qualify “left vacant” only and not “let out on rent or lent to others.” I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 441. The amendment to section 60 (1) (c), C. P. Code, introduced by section 35, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (VII of 1934) which came into force in 1935 does not divest the Official Receiver of property which is validly and legally vested in him in 1933. Nor can the legal representatives of the insolvent claim exemption under section 60 (1) (c) when succession to them opened out long after the vesting of the property in the Official Receiver. 40 P. L.R. 793=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 459. Where a house belonging to an agriculturist is exempted from attachment and sale in execution of a decree under section 60 (1) (c), as amended by section 35, Relief of Indebtedness Act, the mere fact that the judgment-debtor has mortgaged the house with possession and taken it on rent from the mortgagees, does not disentitle him to the protection afforded by section 60 (1) (c), as the judgment-debtor never gave up possession of the house and has been using it throughout for purposes subservient to agriculture. (A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 893, Rel.) A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 736. The onus of proving facts necessary for the exemption under section 60, as amended by section 35 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, lies on the judgment-debtor for two reasons: (1) the burden of proving an exception is generally on the person seeking to proving the exception (2) the judgment-debtor has special knowledge of the circumstances. I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 441. If the insolvent was not engaged in the occupation of tilling the land on the date of order of his adjudication and there is nothing to indicate that he maintained himself solely or mainly on agriculture at that time, his house is not exempt from attachment and sale under section 60 (1) (c), C. P. Code, as amended by the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act. 41 P.L.R. 663=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 537. Where the house of the judgment-debtor was not occupied by him but was lent to and occupied by his sons who were independent proprietors and were living at a different place. Held, that the house was not exempt from attachment as the sons came under the word ‘others’ in section 35 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act. 41 P.L.R. 377 (1)=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 50.

SEC. 60 (e).—A right to sue for mesne profits cannot be attached. 9 C. 605. Also the right to appeal. 3 W.R. Mis. 16. The right to claim compensation being a mere right to sue cannot be attached in execution. 31 N.L.R. 235=1935 N. 135. The right of a co-sharer to village profits does not accrue till the end of the agricultural year. The rights are not ascertainable until the year has ended and consequently any attachment of the share of a co-sharer in village profits before the first day of the agricultural year next following that to which the village profits refer, is an attachment of a mere right to sue and of no effect. 1936 N. 218.

SEC. 60 (f).—A “virthi” is a right of personal service. 23 B. 131. See also 12 B. 366 and 10 B. 395. But see contra 29 Bom.L.R. 102=100 I.C. 1008=1927 B. 143 (virthi could be sold). The right to officiate at funeral ceremonies cannot be attached. 16 W. R. 171. Also the right of a shebait of Hindu idol. 5 B.L.R. 617; also the right of managing a temple. Right of a Gangaputra to receive offerings cannot be attached but his right to occupy specific portions of the river can. 1929 O. 444; 4 A. 81. An inam of land granted to do swasthiwachakam service is always burdened with service and is not liable to attachment and sale in execution. 42 M. L.J. 477=45 M. 620. The rights of personal service within the meaning of proviso (f) to section 60, cannot be either heritable or partible or transferable. 160 I.C. 355=17 Pat.L.T. 77=1936 P. 10. The birth of a Mahabrahman is a right to personal service and cannot be sold in execution of a money decree. 41 A. 656. Offerings made at the temple by the worshippers being the personal property of the priest are not liable to be attached. 42 I.C. 390. A future perquisite on account of offering or bhog to the deity will be an uncertain and indefinite income which cannot be attached. 55 I.C. 175=1 Pat.L.T. 75; 29 C. 70; 1 C.W.N. 493; 1 M. 235; 23 M. 274; 44 A. 81. If it is once shown that there is a custom to transfer by private treaty palas for worship of certain deities, there will be no objection to transfer by execution limiting the class of persons entitled to bid and eventually to purchase the property to the class of persons who would be entitled to perform the services. 154 I.C. 944=1935 P. 131. Money due to the firm of managing agents of a company from the company does not constitute a "right of personal service" within the meaning of section 60 (1), Cl. (f). A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 240. As to whether and when a religious office can be sold, see 6 M. 76 and 6 B. 296.

SEC. 60 (g).—The bar to the attachment of gratuities is not limited to such gratuities as are allowed to "pensioners", but applies to a gratuity granted in consideration of past services. 6 A. 173. A political pension is not transferable. 50 M. 711=52 M.L.J. 622. The Code makes all political pensions exempt in whatever form they are granted by the Government, that is to say, an allowance granted by the Government in the form of remission of land revenue or assignment of land revenue would be a pension, and if the grounds for grant of pension are political it would be exempt from attachment. 38 P.L.R. 531. No distinction can be drawn between the right of a jagirdar, who has been granted the income as jagir of certain water mills, to recover a certain sum per year as revenue, jagir or royalty and his right to recover rent from the lessee to whom he has granted lease of the water mills. The only right he has in the water mills is the right to recover rent from the occupants of the water mills and the rent is really the royalty for the use of water. The occupation of the water mills is merely a subsidiary right to the principal right and the principal right is conferred upon him as a jagir by the Government. Consequently his income from the lease cannot be attached. 1937 L. 211. 39 P.L.R. 434. A gratuity granted to the heirs of a deceased employee by a Railway administration is not assets of the employee in the hands of his heirs and cannot be attached in execution of a decree against him. 69 I.C. 893. The word 'pension' means the same thing as in section 11, Pensions Act. 4 B. 432; 31 A. 382, Foll.; 24 I.C. 805; and implies periodical payments of money by Government to the pensioner. 58 I.A. 215=1931 P.C. 160=61 M.L.J. 208 (P.C.). See also 1938 N.L.J. 112=1938 Nag. 269. The word 'pension' as used in section 60 (1) (g), is wide enough to recover all sorts of periodical payments in whatever shape they are made by the Government. A jagir that is realised in the shape of an assignment of land revenue is a pension within that clause, and is, therefore, exempt from attachment in execution of a decree. 39 P.L.R. 80=1937 L. 178=18 Lah. 415. The word 'pension' as used in the C. P. Code "implies periodical payments of money by Government to the pensioner", and it does not apply to a person who draws rents not as a pensioner, but as a limited owner of the properties which yield them. 1937 Nag. 202. A Malikhana allowance is in the nature of a pension and so cannot be attached in execution of a money decree. 13 I.C. 194=8 A.L.J. 126. Grant in consideration of right as Deshmukh, Deshpandia and Sir Mukaddam—not affected by Cl. (g) or (m), see 1938 Nag. 269=1938 N.L.J. 112; 1937 Nag. 202. Grant of land revenue in a jagir is not exempt from attachment. 137 I.C. 799=35 L.W. 395=1932 M. 417. In deciding whether a particular jagir is a political pension within section 60 (1) (g), the test to be applied is whether it is in the nature of a fixed periodical allowance or stipend granted, not in respect of any right, privilege, perquisite, or office, but on account of past services or particular merits, or as compensation to dethroned princes, their families and dependants. A jagir assigned by the British Government to an independent Ruler who was exercising sovereign rights is a clear example of compensation to a dethroned prince for the loss of his sovereign rights. 36 P.L.R. 105=1934 L. 881. See also 1937 Nag. 202; 19 Pat.L.T. 280; 18 Pat 370. A bonus sanctioned by a Railway Company to one of its servants, and which has not been paid over to the payee, cannot be attached. 6 A. 634; 11 P. 584=140 I.C. 561=1932 P. 311. Arrears of pension due to the estate of a deceased cannot be attached. 5 M.H.C.R. 371. Also 47 A. 900. The stipend of a Carnatic stipendiary cannot be attached. 4 M.H.C.R. 277. Also one allowed to a member of the Mysore family. 7 W.R. 169. A zemindari granted revenue free, as a reward for services rendered is not a pension. 1902 A.W.N. 161. An executing Court cannot question the decision of the trial Court regarding saleability of a pension. 47 A. 900=23 A.L.J. 841=

89 I.C. 364. The pay of a soldier of His Majesty's regular forces subject to the Army Act of 1881, is not liable to attachment under a decree of the Civil Court. A. I.R. 1938 Sind 237. The rights of a grantee under a grant of Letters Patent can be attached and sold in execution of a decree. 42 C.W.N. 1086. Where the judgment-debtor is a licensee whose licence under the Electricity Act has been revoked, the Court when it has to consider whether under section 60, his property is or is not liable to attachment and sale in execution of the decree, has to bear in mind section 4, C. P. Code. As the Electricity Act is a special law, the provisions under the C. P. Code are subject to any conditions regulating that procedure by the provisions of the Electricity Act, 1940 All. 24=1939 A.L.J. 983=1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 848.

SEC. 60 (h).—See 6 M. 179. The word "salary" in Cls. (h) and (i) of section 60 (1), before the Amendment Act IX of 1937, cannot be construed as being restricted to an emolument which is payable monthly or to a man who holds a permanent or semi-permanent employment. The remuneration of a temporary employee engaged on daily fee is "salary" within the meaning of Cls. (h) and (i) of section 60 (1). 178 I.C. 141=5 B.R. 61=19 Pat.L.T. 768. On a consideration of the entire section 60, there is no doubt that the latter part of Cl. (h) of sub-section (1) protects from attachment in execution of a decree salary of all persons in receipt thereof other than public officers and servants of a railway company or local authority. 182 I.C. 185=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 134. Cl. (h) of sub-section (1) of section 60 should be interpreted with reference to the entire section, and any interpretation founded upon that clause alone would be unsafe and unwarranted by all canons of interpretation. 182 I.C. 185=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 134.

SEC. 60 (i).—There is no reason to restrict the scope of Cl. (i) of section 60 (1), and to hold that the salary mentioned in Cl. (i) refers to the salary of one who is entitled to get allowances mentioned in Cl. (h). Though Cl. (i) refers to Cl. (h), that is only to avoid the repetition of the description of officers whose salaries have been exempted. It does not follow that their salary for the period for which they are on duty is not covered by Cl. (i), sub-section (1). 178 I.C. 141=19 Pat.L.T. 768. A khot is not a public officer, and percentage received by him for collecting the assessment on dhara lands is not "salary". 13 B. 673. The profits accruing to a ghatwal from his estate are not his salary within the meaning of section 60, and is not on that account exempt from attachment. The surplus profits of the estate after all the necessary outgoings are to be regarded as the personal property of the ghatwal and are therefore liable to attachment in execution of a decree against him. 1939 P.W.N. 86=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 242. An officer of the Indian Staff Corps is a "Public Officer". An officer in the regular forces is not such an officer. 24 C. 102. Conduct of a suit on behalf of the Government by an advocate for the recovery of public money is performing a public duty which the advocate undertakes. An advocate who is appointed by the Government as a lawyer to conduct a suit on its behalf is an officer and a public officer within the meaning of section 60 (1) (i), C. P. Code. 178 I.C. 141=19 Pat.L.T. 768. Civil Courts can attach one moiety of the salary of an officer in the Indian Staff Corps. 25 M. 402. Part of the pay of an officer of the Indian army while serving in this country can be attached. 39 A. 308; 39 I.C. 92; 15 A.L.J. 264. See also 50 I.C. 683; 21 Bom.L.R. 143. An attachment by a Civil Court, of a moiety of the monthly salary of a debtor, subject to Military Law not exceeding Rs. 20, is legal. 9 M. 170. Under section 15 (2), Provincial Insolvency Act, read with section 60, C. P. Code, the insolvent's salary vests in the receiver. 38 I.C. 410. A direction as to payment of a portion of salary into Court in a conditional order of adjudication in insolvency is void as opposed to section 60 (1), C. P. Code. 9 P. 304. It is open to a judgment-debtor to enter into a compromise contracting himself out of any benefit that section 60 confers on him in the matter of the attachment of his salary. 41 P.L.R. 631=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 539.

SEC. 60 (j).—[See also Notes under Cl. (i).] Salary of an officer in Indian army could not be attached. 38 B. 667; 23 I.C. 575; 16 Bom. L.R. 233; 146 I.C. 494=1933 A. 153. The pay of a Staff Sergeant in the Army is not attachable under a decree of the Civil Court. 35 Bom.L.R. 1112. The pay of the First Class Warrant Officer to whom the Army Act applies is not attachable under a decree of a Civil Court even to the extent contained in section 60 (1). 144 I.C. 897=35 Bom.L.R. 360=1933 B. 185. If a soldier, to whom the Army Act applies, is a public officer as defined in section 2 (17), his salary is exempt from attachment to the extent mentioned in Cl. (i) of the proviso to section 60 (1) and if he is not such a public officer, it is not exempt from attachment to any extent. (Case-law referred.) 55 A. 648=1933 A.L.J. 1468=1933 A. 597. The pay of an Assistant Surgeon of the Indian Medical Department is not liable to attachment in execution of an order for maintenance and alimony passed by a Civil Court. 1936 A.L.J. 1291=167 I.C. 179=1937 A. 129 (F.B.).

SEC. 60 (k).—This clause is new. The deposit which a Railway servant makes towards a provident fund is a compulsory deposit, and does not cease to be so when he leaves the service. 6 Bom.L.R. 921. But see 5 Bom.L.R. 454. Compulsory deposits made in a State Railway Provident Fund by an officer of the Railway during his employment are not liable to attachment in execution of money decree even if he has ceased to serve. 50 C. 347=27 C.W.N. 472. Deposit under Provident Funds Act—Not attachable. 21 A.L.J. 454=74 I.C. 746=45 A. 554. See also 92 I.C. 673; 150 I.C. 213=36 P.L.R. 145=1934 L. 153. See also 179 I.C. 296=1939 Sind 15. Although section 60, C. P. Code, prohibits the attachment of provident fund money, it is open to a decree-holder against the estate of the deceased to apply for the appointment of a receiver in execution. 44 C.W.N. 637. The allowances of a Railway guard over and above his salary are not exempt from attachment. Where an advance taken by a guard from his Provident Fund is being recovered from him in monthly instalments, such instalment payments by him are not deposits, though they may be compulsory deductions or recoveries, and there can be no deduction of this amount from the salary available for attachment under section 60 (1) (k), C. P. Code. 52 L.W. 69=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 766=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 936. A Provident Fund maintained by the authorities of an aided college, provided it is constituted by the authority of Government is a Government Provident Fund as defined by the Provident Funds Act, and as long as the money remains in the fund it is immune from attachment under section 60 (1) (k). The fact that a Provident Fund has been in existence before the Government issued a Notification introducing a Provident Fund makes no difference; when the Fund is constituted under the authority of the Government, the entire amount of the Fund,—both the amounts subscribed before and the amounts subscribed after the notification—becomes consolidated into one Fund, and the whole deposit is exempt from attachment. Quære.—Whether the immunity from attachment lasts only as long as the money is in the Fund and whether it comes to an end when it reaches the depositor. 15 P. 779=166 I.C. 499=17 Pat.L.T. 731=1937 P. 22. Under section 60 (k), the amount standing to the credit of an employee of the Imperial Bank of India in the Provident Fund established by that Bank for the benefit of its employees is exempt from attachment. 165 I.C. 767=38 P.L.R. 1155=1936 L. 694. Two parties cannot by a mutual agreement do away with the existing rights of independent third parties. Hence the member and the trustees of a Provident Fund cannot agree between themselves that when a third party obtains an order of the Court to attach the interest of the member in the fund held by the trustees that interest should cease to exist. When the attachment is received it is in existence and no understanding between the member and the trustees can ensure that it shall be deemed to have disappeared. On an attachment being made the only effect of such an agreement or rule is that that portion of the interest of the member which is not covered by the attachment, or which exceeds the amount mentioned in the prohibitory order, is forfeited to the trustees. But an attachment order cannot be rendered ineffective so far as regards the amount referred to therein, and when the money becomes payable to the subscriber it must not be paid otherwise than under the orders of the Court. may not pay in his uncontrolled discretion is not a debt. A sum standing to the credit of the deceased judgment-debtor in the benefit fund of the Irawaddy Flotilla Mills, Limited, is not a debt within section 60, and cannot be attached. 11 R. 116=142 L.C. 360=1933 R. 23 (F.B.).

SEC. 60 (l).—Section 60, C. P. Code, is a prohibition only against forcible attachment or sale, and there is nothing in law to prevent a judgment-debtor from consenting to the attachment of half of his salary although the attachment contravenes the section as amended by Act XI of 1937. 1940 Lah. 65=41 P.L.R. 834. The definition of "Compulsory deposit" in section 2 of the Provident Funds Act applies to "Compulsory deposits" referred to in section 60 (1) (k), C. P. Code, and they mean "subscriptions to or deposits in" a Provident Fund. A judgment-debtor is, therefore, entitled to claim exemption from attachment the amount of subscription payable out of his salary to the Provident Fund. Before the time of payment the money is not his. At the time of payment it becomes a subscription to the Fund and a subscription to the Fund is a compulsory deposit and therefore exempted. There is no intervening moment when it is susceptible of attachment. 1939 Rang.L.R. 504=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 432. The wages of a private servant cannot be attached in whole or in part, before they become due, and a debt exists. 21 M. 293. Persons who agree to spin cotton and to receive a certain amount of money or a certain quantity of cotton spun by them are labourers, and their remuneration is wages. 5 B. 132. An attachment of salary under section 60 before 1st June, 1937, made by a judgment-debtor saved by section 3 of the amending Act, is available by way of rateable distribution to another judgment-creditor who is not covered by aforesaid section 3. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 96. Where there were two decrees against the same judgment-debtor, one obtained in a suit instituted before the 1st June of 1937 to which the amendment of section 60, C. P. Code by Act IX of 1937 would not apply, and another subsequent to that date, to which the amendment would apply, the half salary of the judgment-debtor, has to be attached and distributed rateably between the two decree-holders. 1939 A.M.L.J. 157.

Section (as amended in 1937)—section 60 (1) (i) and (k)—Scope and effect of—The C. P. Code Amending Act (IX of 1937), enlarges the exemption from attachment of a judgment-debtor's salary provided the proceedings relate to suits instituted on or after 1st June, 1937. The new Cl. (i) of section 60 (1) exempts from attachment in execution of a decree the salary of a public officer to the extent of the first hundred rupees and one half the remainder of such salary. Further, Cl. (k) of section 60 (1) exempts all compulsory deposits to a Provident Fund when the judgment-debtor belongs to a recognised Provident Fund. The exemption of deposits in Provident Fund is separate from the exemption in respect of salaries given by Cl. (i) and the result therefore is that that the recurring contributions of the judgment-debtor to the Provident Fund must, in working out the amount attachable, fall on that moiety of the excess of the salary over the first hundred rupees which is not already reserved for the judgment-debtor by Cl. (i). In other words, a decree-holder who is hit by the amendment of 1937, is only entitled to look to the balance after deducting the Provident Fund contribution from the amount that left over after giving effect to the exemption granted by Cl. (i). Quære:—Whether income-tax deductions made from the monthly salary of a public officer have to be deducted for the purpose of Cl. Where in execution of a decree against a Hindu coparcener, the share of that coparcener in a part of the joint family property is put up for sale, the want of specification of the extent of the coparcener's interest in the joint family property cannot invalidate the proclamation or the sale; section 60 (m) has no application to the case. The interest of a coparcener in the joint family property is not a matter of contingency or dependent upon any future happening. So far as it is an interest, it must ex hypothesi be a vested interest. 54 L.W. 365=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 550.

Where a right of maintenance is sought to be attached, the true test to lay down is whether such a right is purely personal, non-heritable and non-assignable, or it is an alienable and heritable right which takes the shape of an annuity or has been granted in lieu of a share in an estate. If it is the former, it will be protected under the provisions of the Code, but if it is the latter, it will not be exempt from attachment. 17 L. 378=163 I.C. 103=1936 L. 55. See also 1937 Nag. 202. The expression "right to future maintenance" means the right of one person to receive from another food lodging, clothing and other necessities of life. A periodical money payment to which a judgment-debtor is entitled under an agreement and with which he has to procure for himself the necessities of life is alienable and subject to attachment. A monthly allowance reserved to a mortgagor towards his maintenance under a deed of usufructuary mortgage of all his properties is not exempt from attachment under section 60 (n). 158 I.C. 170=1935 M.W.N. 776=42 L.W. 345=1935 M. 815=69 M.L.J. 264. Although a Jahagir for maintenance is inalienable and therefore unattachable in execution of the decree, a receiver can be appointed to manage the Jahagir for the benefit of the decree-holders subject to a suitable allowance for the maintenance being made in favour of the judgment-debtor. The executing Court need not fix the suitable allowance when making the order of the appointment of a receiver. It will have to be fixed on the amount of profits which come into the hands of the receiver and not upon any estimated income of the property. 150 I.C. 635=1933 N. 266. did not give him any share in his property under his will, but provided for his food and lodging. The testator further provided that out of the income of his property his son should get Rs. 100 per month as his pocket money. On a construction of the will, held, that the sum of Rs. 100 which was described as pocket money of the son might be treated as his “future maintenance” out of which he was to supply himself with such necessities of life as, having regard to his position in life, would be required for his sustenance and physical well-being, and was, therefore, exempt from attachment under section 60 (1) (n). 38 P.L.R. 702=1936 L. 944. The right of a widow under the Hindu Law to reside in her husband's family house is a “right restricted in its enjoyment to her personally” within the meaning of section 6 (d), T. Although the right of residence enjoyed by a judgment-debtor in certain landed property, is not attachable and saleable, such right is, in a proper case, liable to be dealt with in execution of a decree by adopting the remedy of equitable execution, namely, the appointment of a receiver who would act under the orders and supervision of the Court and realize the income of the property, and after defraying the incidental expenses and his own remuneration would devote the proceeds towards the satisfaction of the decretal amount. 165 I.C. 519=1936 L. 830.

SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY.—In order to bring a case within the purview of S. 63, it is necessary that several decree-holders, who are executing their decrees against the same judgment-debtor, in different Courts, must have attached the same property or certain common properties belonging to the judgment-debtor. In such cases, the sale proceeds of the attached property would have to be distributed amongst all the attaching decree-holders by the superior Court or the Court which has first made the attachment in accordance with the section. Where, therefore, the rival decree-holders have not attached any of the properties belonging to the judgment-debtor, they cannot invoke the provision of S. 63. I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 488. There is no warrant for holding that S. 63 does not give jurisdiction to a Court to sell attached property except in execution of its own decree. The jurisdiction of the Court of the highest grade to sell property attached by an inferior Court in execution of a decree, proceedings in which have been called up to the superior Court under S. 63, is necessarily included in the use of the word "realize." "Realize such property" in S. 63 must obviously refer to bring such property to sale. Nowhere in S. 63 is there any restriction as to how and in what manner and in what petition the Court of highest grade should realize the property; in this respect as in respect of claim petitions S. 63 must be held to override S. 38. S. 38 is after all a general section dealing with execution. It contemplates only one decree-holder and one decree. S. 63 deals with more decree-holders than one and the same property being attached by more Courts than one. Where the facts come within the definition of the situation as given by S. 63, it is obviously S. 63 which must be applied, and S. 63 cannot be controlled or governed by S. 38. 1939 M. 169 = I.L.R. 1939 M. 248 = (1939) 1 M.L.J. 112.

SECTION EXPLAINED.—S. 63 contemplates a case where attachments of the same property have been made by different Courts at the instance of different decree-holders of the common judgment-debtor, and provides for the distribution among them of the proceeds of the attached property by one of such Courts only. The distribution is to be made by the superior Court, but if all the Courts are of the same grade, the distribution is to be made by the Court which first attached the property. In such a case a sale by an inferior Court of the property under attachment by a superior Court or by the Court of the same grade, which attached later in point of time, sale under later attachment pending an earlier attachment is valid; but it is the duty of the Court, which sells the property to send the sale proceeds to the Court of superior grade or the Court which attached the property first, as the case may be. When the assets are not so sent by the Court selling the property, the procedure according to the view of the Calcutta High Court is to move the District Judge for asking the Court holding the sale to send the sale-proceeds to the proper Court for distribution. 40 C.W.N. 1307 = 1936 C. 723.

APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Section applies only as between Civil Courts. 43 A. 612. There must be subsisting attachments of property in execution of decrees of more Courts than one at the same time under execution. 6 A. 255 (258). Where property is under attachment by two Courts of different grades and is sold by the Court of lower grade the sale is not invalid. 38 C.L.J. 266; 32 I.C. 41; 32 I.C. 927; 1924 M. 889. See also 153 I.C. 853 = 11 O.W.N. 1618 = 1935 O. 154; 1936 M. 91 = 59 M. 303 = 69 M. L.J. 908; 42 L.W. 733 = 1935 M.W.N. 1046 = 1935 M. 988; 33 M.L.J. 217; 46 C. 64. The fact that the several decrees under execution by different Courts are passed by the same Court does not make S. 63 inapplicable. S. 63 would still apply to the case; the words "of more Courts than one" in the section must be read as qualifying the word "attachment" and not the word "decrees." The object of the section is to deal with several attachments no matter whether the decrees are passed by the same Court or by different Courts. The phrase 'in the execution of decrees' is explanatory of the word "attachment." 59 M. 1028 = 1936 M. 797 = 71 M.L.J. 328. The word "proceeding" in cl. (2) is wide enough to include an order of the inferior Court allowing a set-off which cannot be recalled or cancelled by the superior Court. 35 B. 473. Where property of the judgment-debtor is attached by more Courts than one, the Court of the superior grade is alone entitled to realise such property and determine all claims thereto. 37 L.W. 366 = 1933 M. 342 (2) = 65 M. L.J. 347. When the same property is sold in an execution by two different Courts the sale by the Court which attached later but sold first is valid unless it was done with the knowledge of the prior attachment. When a property has been sold by a Court having jurisdiction to do so, there is nothing left, which can be sold again by another Court. The second purchaser has therefore absolutely no title to the property. 152 I. C. 902=1934 P. 511. An attachment by the High Court and one by the Small Cause Court stand on the same footing and the fact that the Small Cause Court decrees have not been transferred to the High Court and that the money is lying in the High Court is of no consequence. In other words, S. 73 of the C.P. Code must be read subject to S. 63. (21 C. 200 and 6 R. 131, F.) 61 C. 240=152 I.C. 69=1934 C. 559. See also 37 Bom.L.R. 78; 11 O.W.N. 1618; 69 M. COURT OF HIGHEST GRADE.—The grade of a Court depends upon the pecuniary or other limitations of the jurisdiction of the particular Court. 19 B. 127; 134 I.C. 273=1931 N. 127. In the North-Western Provinces, the Court of a Munsiff is of higher grade than a Court of Small Causes. 16 A. 11 (F.B.). A Small Cause Court which has a higher pecuniary jurisdiction than the Additional Small Cause Court in the same area, is a Court of higher grade within the meaning of S. 63, C.P. Code, and the additional Court has no jurisdiction to deal with an application for a share in the assets realised by the former Court. 1936 N. 270. Assets held by Court of inferior grade transferred to superior Court—Rateable distribution—Inferior Court not agent of superior Court. 29 Bom.L.R. 319. Application for rateable distribution under S. 73 must be made to the superior Court. 53 A. 759=1933 A. 2=133 I.C. 426 (51 M.L.J. 661, F.). See also 55 B. 473=1933 B. 350=133 I.C. 817. An attaching creditor in the inferior Court need not have his decree transferred to the superior Court for execution before he applies for rateable distribution in the latter Court. 132 I.C. 832=1931 R. 111 (2).

MEANING OF WORDS.—The words "of property not in the custody of any Court" seem to be more applicable to movable than to immovable property. 7 C. 410. But see 7 M. 47. "Realise" means "realize" by sale. 3 A. 356 at 359. Rights of attaching decree-holders of different Courts. 29 I.C. 21. See also 26 M.L.J. 406; 6 P.L.J. 332. Money attached before judgment is liable to rateable distribution in execution of decrees against the same defendant. 26 I.C. 941. An attachment of immovable property in execution of a money decree followed by order for sale does not confer on the judgment-creditor any charge on the land. 27 M.L.J. 150 (P.C.) (Reversing 15 I.C. 238). See also 15 C. 202 (210); 37 L.W. 366.

rateable distribution in the Code. The section must be read in conjunction with section 63. While both sections 63 and 73 aim at the fair distribution of the proceeds of sale among the judgment-creditors of the common judgment-debtor, there is a fundamental distinction between the two sections. The fund available for distribution under section 73 is the entire fund realised or received by the executing Court, leaving out of consideration the proviso to the section. On the other hand the funds available for distribution under section 63 are the proceeds of common property attached by the judgment-creditors. It is the fact of attachment, and attachment of the identical properties by the several decree-holders that brings section 63 into operation. Where one of several decree-holders executes his decree against the judgment-debtor in a particular Court and sells his properties, if other persons holding decrees against the same judgment-debtor apply for execution to the same Court before the receipt of the proceeds of sale, the whole sale proceeds will have to be rateably distributed among all the decree-holders under section 73. The latter decree-holders need not take any further steps beyond applying for execution to the Court which sells and realises the assets. 40 C.W.N. 1307=1936 C. 723. See also 1939 A.L.J. 4=1939 All. 159. Section 73 cannot be regarded as a self-contained rule. To so read the section would defeat and render nugatory the provisions of section 63. Section 63 must be treated as constituting an exception to section 73. Where, as stated in section 73 the property is under attachment in execution of decrees of more Courts than one, if the other conditions specified in section 73 are fulfilled, the right to rateable distribution arises. 59 M. 1028=44 L.W. 358=1936 M. 797=71 M.L.J. 328. Section 73 does not require the transfer of a decree to the Court where the process of realization of assets takes place as a condition precedent to an application under section 63, and therefore a fortiori it is not necessary for the decree-holder seeking rateable distribution to apply for execution of his decree to the Court where the realization takes place. If such realization takes place in a Court of inferior grade, it is the duty of that Court to send the sale proceeds to the superior Court. 1937 O.L.R. 534=1937 O.W.N. 1040. Sections 63 and 73 must be read together and since the Court of highest grade has been empowered to determine "any claim" in respect of property, it must include claims for rateable distribution under section 73. Consequently there is no need for second application for execution in the Court of the highest grade by the decree-holder applying for rateable distribution in that Court. 1937 N. 80. Prior attachment of the property is not essential under section 63. Under section 73 also prior attachment is not necessary so far as the creditors seek-

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to invalidate any proceeding taken by a Court executing one of such decrees.

64. Where an attachment has been made, any private transfer or delivery of the property attached or of any interest therein and any payment to the judgment-debtor of any debt, dividend or other monies contrary to such attachment, shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment.

ing rateable distribution are concerned. All that is required is an application for execution before the assets are received by the Court entitled to receive them. 1937 N. 80. Where several decrees, some in favour of one decree-holder and others in favour of another, are passed by the same Court and sent for execution to different Courts, one of which is a superior and the other an inferior Court, and both those executing Courts attach the same properties, each decree-holder acting in ignorance of the proceedings taken by the other, the fact that the inferior Court holds the sale in pursuance of its attachment and allows the decree-holder to set-off the purchase price against the decree amount before the date fixed for sale by the superior Court will not deprive the decree-holder in the superior Court of his right to apply to the superior Court under section 63, on his becoming aware of the sale, to call for the proceeds of the sale from the inferior Court and to distribute them rateably. In such a case the decree-holder purchaser in the inferior Court may properly be given a choice either to elect to have a re-sale, or to pay into Court so much of the price as may become due to the rival decree-holder on rateable distribution. 59 M. 1028 = 1936 M. 797 = 71 M.L.J. 328. Where property is sold in execution of a decree by a superior Court, and decree-holders, who have obtained decrees against same judgment-debtor in an inferior Court and applied for execution to that Court before the date of sale, apply after the sale to the superior Court for rateable distribution, the superior Court which realises the assets is under a duty to distribute the assets which are realised by the sale and thereby to execute not only its own decree but also those of the inferior Court. The applications made to the inferior Court for execution of the decrees passed by it are in order and valid. Where the right to rateable distribution has to be determined by a Court under section 63, an application for execution made to the Court which passed the decree before the realisation of assets is quite sufficient for the purposes of section 73; and it is not necessary that such application should be made to the Court holding the assets. The words "application to the Court for the execution, etc.," mean application to the appropriate Court including an inferior Court which granted the decree sought to be executed. 59 B. 310 = 37 Bom.L.R. 78 = 1935 B. 176.

SECS. 63 AND 73 AND O. 21, R. 72.—The right of set-off under O. 21, rule 72 is subject to the provisions of section 73. The application under section 73 must be made before the sale and it is not enough to say that it should be made before the entire sale proceeds are paid. If there is no application to the Court which holds sale and the Courts allows set-off, the order of the Court is not improper, although in contravention of section 63. 41 C.W.N. 350 = 1937 C. 55.

Sec. 64.—There cannot be a partial raising of attachment by consent of parties out of Court. Section being absolute in its terms a sale by consent or connivance of the decree-holder is not excepted by it. 101 I.C. 591 (1) = 1927 M. 648. But see 1934 R. 313, infra. A 'private transfer' in S. 64 means transfer carried out without the intervention of the attaching Court or of some Court superior to it or again of some Court to which the proceedings have been lawfully transferred. 1941 A.M.L.J. 51. Where the form which the decree takes is entirely dependent on the agreement of the parties and it is by private agreement between them that particular properties are transferred to one of them the transfer is definitely a private transfer although it is embodied in the decree of the Court. 1934 R. 313. The object of section is to prevent fraud on decree-holders. 30 B. 337; 33 I.C. 492; and also to preserve intact the rights of attaching creditors against attached property by prohibiting private alienations pending litigation. 29 C. 154. This section avoids only private transfers and not awards by arbitrators. 35 M.L.J. 441; 63 M.L.J. 664 (P.C.). S. 64 does not invalidate a sale of the attached property in pursuance of an agreement to sell made prior to the attachment. But the attachment holds good in respect of such right as the vendor had in the property at the time of the attachment, and if there is an unpaid balance of the purchase-money the attachment fastens to the judgment-debtor's right to recover that money; that is to say, to the unpaid vendor's charge under S. 55 (4) of the T. P. Act. But the property having passed by sale from the judgment-debtor cannot be sold in execution of the decree in pursuance of the attachment. 1935 M. 872 = 69 M.L.J. 678. See also 1936 N. 163. All that S. 64 provides is that any private transfer by the judgment-debtor of the property attached shall be void as against the attaching creditor and shall not prejudice his rights. The section cannot be read as putting an end to the power of sale altogether. Where a sale is made in pursuance of a contract entered into prior to the attachment, cannot be said to be contrary to the terms of S. 64, C. P. Code. The right of the judgment-debtor in the property which is all that is attached, is on the date of the attachment qualified by his obligation incurred by him under the earlier contract to sell and the attaching creditor cannot claim to ignore that obligation. A sale in pursuance of pre-existing contract is only the fulfilment of the obligation to which the judgment-debtor was already subject, whether the sale is carried out by him or by the Official Receiver in insolvency under the orders of the Insolvency Court on the insolvency of the judgment-debtor. A sale by the Official Receiver in pursuance of an order of Court would be all the more effective, as the order of Court would in effect be a decree for specific performance, though passed by the Insolvency Court. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 853=49 L.W. 460=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 702=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 822. The meaning of "private transfer" in S. 64 is a transfer which is brought about solely by the act of parties and not as a result of a judicial decision. If in reality there has been a transfer by the private act of parties, it does not cease to be private by being given the appearance of a public adjudication, e.g., where the parties intimate the arrangement to the Court in the form of an award and pray for a decree in terms of the same. Such a transfer is essentially a private one and the Court is merely asked to give its permission to it. 183 I.C. 313=41 Bom.L.R. 473=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 212. S. 64 and O. 38, R. 10 must be read together. S. 64 applies to an effective attachment; under O. 38, R. 10, an attachment before judgment is not effective as against rights subsisting at the date of the attachment. A conveyance of property executed after its attachment before judgment by a creditor, in pursuance of a contract made before the attachment, should prevail over the attachment. 41 Bom.L.R. 943=1939 Bom. 492. S. 64, which declares private alienation of property after attachment to be void, does not cover the enforced execution of a conveyance in obedience to a decree of a Court. 1936 N. 163. See also 41 P.L.R. 305=1939 Lah. 380. In the case of attachment before judgment as in the case of attachment in execution of a decree any private alienation of property during the continuance of attachment is void. 26 C. 531. Purchase made during pendency of attachment is void and purchaser does not obtain a lien. 34 I.C. 34. S. 64 avoids an alienation made while an attachment remained subsisting and enforceable. 4 Pat.L.T. 409; 20 S.L.R. 111; 1927 L. 103. A private sale of property pending an attachment by decree-holder which has subsequently been raised is valid as against a non-attaching decree-holder who had applied for rateable distribution during the continuance of the attachment. 49 I.C. 134=5 P.R. 1919 (32 M.L.J. 707, Foll.). See also 39 C.W.N. 1076 (claims enforceable under the attachment). No doubt a person claiming rateable distribution of assets cannot get the benefit of the Explanation to S. 64 unless he has himself got an attachment on the assets from which he seeks to benefit. But such a person would be entitled to the benefit of S. 64 if he had obtained an order directing the attachment of the property of the judgment-debtor before he mortgaged the property in favour of a third person as the effect of the order of attachment under O. 21, R. 54 (3) is that it should be deemed that there had been an attachment of the property from the very date of the order. 152 I.C. 364=1934 A.L.J. 1091=1934 A. 1069. Alienation pending attachment is inoperative only as regards the attaching creditor. 144 I.C. 681=1933 N. 230. Obligations touching the property attached incurred by the debtor prior to the attachment are not affected by the section. 23 C.L.J. 115=34 I.C. 953=21 C.W.N. 158. See also 1 L.W. 977; 36 M. 348. If a mortgage-deed is executed during the continuance of an attachment in execution of a decree, it is no doubt void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment. Where however a portion of the amount advanced under the deed is paid to prior encumbrancers who have a charge on the property at the time of the attachment, the deed is valid to the extent of the amount thus paid. The mortgagor's equity of redemption as it is on the date of attachment should alone be considered to have been attached. The interest in the property vested in the prior mortgagees is not affected by the attachment and so far as that interest passes to the new mortgagee, the mortgage is not contrary to the attachment within S. 64. 154 I.C. 437=1935 A.L.J. 749=1935 A. 391. Sale-deed of property executed prior to attachment but registered after attachment. 1937 N. 143. A judgment-debtor sold his property on the day it was attached but after the attachment. That attachment was irregular as it did not conform with the provisions of O. 21, R. 54 (2) and (3). The transferee obtained the transfer for consideration in good faith and without knowledge of the attachment. Held, that the attachment was ineffective as against the transferee. 146 I.C. 693=1933 R. 198 (2). If a mortgage-deed is executed during the continuance of an attachment in execution of a decree, it is no doubt void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment. Where however a portion of the amount advanced under the deed is paid to prior encumbrancers who have a charge on the property at the time of the attachment, the deed is valid to the extent of the amount thus paid. The mortgagor's equity of redemption as it is on the date of attachment should alone be considered to have been attached. The interest in the property vested in the prior mortgagees is not affected by the attachment and so far as that interest passes to the new mortgagee, the mortgage is not contrary to the attachment within S. 64. 1935 A.W. R. 169. Where an attachment in execution of a decree is made subject to the mortgagee rights of the mortgagee holding a mortgage on the property, a subsequent compromise, whereby the mortgagors agree to transfer a portion of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee in consideration of his reducing the mortgage charge and releasing the rest of the property from the mortgage is not illegal by reason of S. 64, more specially so when the mortgagee had already become entitled to possession even prior to the attachment. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 737. See also 1937 M.W.N. 45. Where a purchaser has entered into possession and paid the price without a registered deed of sale attachment of land in execution of decree against vendor is not effectual against the purchaser. 4 Bur.L.J. 166=1925 R. 382. A private transfer does not avoid transactions which in no way prejudice the execution creditor. 29 C. 154 (166) (P.C.). See also 1931 M. 573. An alienation is not altogether void but only subject to sale that may be effected pursuant to attachment. 24 L.W. 836=99 I.C. 656=1927 M. 190. See also 39 C.W.N. 1076; 1937 N. 1=I.L.R. It must be strictly construed, and before property can be subjected to the restriction imposed, there must be a perfected attachment. 7 C. 702. See also 2 A. 58; 3 A. 698. The mere order to make an attachment does not amount to an actual attachment. The attachment is not complete until it has been effected in the manner prescribed by the rules, i.e., a copy of the order prohibiting the debtor from making payment of the debt until the further order of the Court has been sent to the debtor and duly served upon him. If this requirement has not been fulfilled there is in fact no attachment of the debt and the provisions of S. 64 are not applicable. 152 I.C. 795=1934 P. 619. See also [51 M. 349 (P.C.), Rel.]; 41 Bom.L.R. 1104=1939 Bom. 508; 1933 A.L.J. 1501=1934 A. 165=147 I.C. 509. No property can be declared to be attached unless, first, the order for attachment has been issued, and secondly, in execution of that order the other things prescribed by the rules in the Code have been done. Hence where a copy of the warrant of attachment is not affixed the attachment is invalid and S. 64 can have no application. 145 I.C. 813=1933 R. 267. See also 1939 Bom. 508. The attachment does not affect subsisting equitable rights which could be enforced against the property at the date of the attachment. 8 M.L.J. 266. See also 1937 Mad. 843=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 728. It does not create in favour of the attaching creditor, any interest in, or charge upon the property, as against other creditors. 15 C. 202 at p. 210. See also 144 I.C. 252=37 L.W. 366=1933 M. 342=65 M.L.J. 347; 27 M.L.J. 150 (P.C.). A charge created under a compromise decree is no better than a private transfer for purposes of S. 64, and must be deemed to be void as against a decree-holder who has got the property attached prior to such compromise decree. 1937 M. W. N. 45. See also 1938 Lah. 737. An attachment is not ineffective in relation to that part of the property which does not vest in the judgment-debtor at the time of the attachment but vests in him immediately after the attachment. As soon as it vests in him any defect that existed in the attachment before is ipso facto removed. If, therefore, the judgment-debtor transfers that property thereafter by sale, the transfer can be impugned under S. 64. 42 P.L.R. 356. A private alienation of property after an order for attachment which has not been effected, is valid unless proof is given that all the requirements of O. 21, R. 54, C. P. Code, have been complied with and the proclamations have been made. 26 I.C. 204; 1 O.L.J. 549. See also 36 I.C. 732; 19 N.L.J. 94; 3 O.L.J. 422; 42 M. 565=36 M. L. J. 284. The words "private transfer" mean a voluntary sale, gift or mortgage, in contravention of the attachment order, and not the enforced execution of a conveyance or assignment in obedience to the decree of a Court qualified to pass it. 4 A. at p. 225 (F.B.). Where the alienation is made with the consent of the judgment-creditor and the money is applied towards the discharge of the judgment-debt, it is not void. 7 W.R. 430. An adjustment of the attaching creditor's claim whereby the debt of the garnishee is made over to the creditor is valid. 1931 M. 573. A private transfer of property under attachment is not absolutely void but is void only as against claims enforceable under attachment. 63 I.C. 108. more than one-third of his property, does not amount to an alienation. 26 B. 496. Attachment by British Indian Court is not avoided by the subsequent adjudication of a foreign Court. 60 I.A. 167 (P.C.). Quære: As to the effect a British Indian adjudication order would have had on the prior attachment and whether under the Code an attachment creates a lien or charge or confers title. See 60 I.A. 167=1933 P.C. 134=56 M. 405=64 M.L.J. 562 (P.C.); 39 C.W.N. 1076. An adjudication of a person as insolvent by a foreign Court operates as a private transfer within the meaning of S. 64. On such adjudication, the only property that vests in the receiver is the movable property which the insolvent was free to assign on the date of the adjudication and such property vests by virtue of private international law. But the adjudication does not affect the rights of a creditor who has attached, before adjudication, the movable property of the insolvent. He remains entitled to the benefits of his attachment. But an attachment after adjudication by a foreign Court is entirely a different matter. The receiver of the foreign Court is entitled to all the free assets of the insolvent, assets which were free at the date of the adjudication, and they must be deemed to be the moneys left over after satisfaction of the claims of the creditors who had attached before the adjudication. The provisions of sections 64 and 73 do not override the rule of private international law, and creditors who attach after the foreign adjudication cannot claim anything out of the assets on the ground that they have claims enforceable under the attachment. 50 L. W. 701=1940 Mad. 47=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 859. When the adjudication is made, the insolvent's property, vests in the Receiver and the Receiver's rights are not affected by the prior attachment, whether the attachment is before judgment, or after the decree. The attachment by itself does not give the attaching creditor any charge or lien on the property, nor does it give him any priority in respect of the property attached as against the Official Assignee or Receiver; the only effect of the attachment is to prevent private alienation. The attaching decree-holders therefore are not entitled to execute their decree under the provisions of O. 21, R. 53. 145 I.C. 695=29 N.L. R. 303=1933 N. 229. If there is valid attachment of a debt, the satisfaction of the decree in which the debt might have been merged would be void under section 64 against all claims and objections under the attachment. 152 I.C. 795=1934 P. 619. Under section 64 it was to be shown that the transfer was "contrary to the attachment" which is the same thing as saying that it must be prejudicial to the interests of the attaching creditor or the auction-purchaser. Letting land to statutory tenants on a smaller rent basis, held to be prejudicial to the creditor. 152 I.C. 757=1934 A. 902. Under section 64 when a property has been attached, any subsequent alienation is against all claims enforceable under that particular attachment. The section does not go beyond this. An attachment effected after a private alienation is not assisted by an attachment before the alienation. If the execution proceedings in which the second attachment has been made have been instituted before assets have been brought into Court, the creditor would be entitled to rateable distribution if the property is sold in the earlier execution proceedings, but if the sale takes place as the result of the attachment effected after the private alienation a person who buys the property at the Court auction would not obtain a good title. Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, claims enforceable under an attachment include claims for the rateable distribution of assets.

NOTES.

An order of attachment takes effect only from the date of its actual promulgation under O. 21, R. 54, and not from the date of the Court's order. 32 I.C. 276; 42 M. 365; 41 M. 161; 39 I.C. 857; 39 I.C. 562; 42 M. 844=37 M.L.J. 375; 51 M. 349 (P.C.); but also see 33 I.C. 492. Knowledge of purchaser of the order immaterial. 1929 B. 395. A prohibitory order restraining the payee of a promissory note from receiving the money has not the effect of an attachment. Such attachment is invalid and section 64 does not apply. 46 M. 415=44 M.L.J. 206. Section does not apply to alienations in contravention of ad interim injunction. 1930 L. 858. The Court can make an order striking off an execution proceeding, and at the same time continuing an attachment. 11 C.W.N. 163. For instances which might tend to show that an attachment has expired, see 22 C. 909 (P.C.). Attachment before judgment—Subsequent sale of property in execution of another decree—Application for sale by person who attached before judgment. 38 M.L.J. 441. See also 166 I.C. 873=17 Pat.L.T. 847=1937 P. 50. The rule enacted in section 64 refers only to a private transfer of the attached property by the judgment-debtor. It does not extend to a transfer or sale under an order of Court in execution of a decree, though the decree in execution of which the property is sold is passed subsequent to the attachment under the prior decree. The sale is not void. The mere fact that the previous attachment is not notified in the sale proclamation does not render the sale liable to be set aside. An attachment is not an incumbrance or a charge on the property and the omission to notify a prior attachment in the sale proclamation is not a material irregularity vitiating the sale. 17 Pat.L.T. 847=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 50. When a suit is dismissed an attachment before judgment terminates without any order of Court and if the judgment is reversed on appeal or annulled on review the judgment does not revive it so as to affect alienations made before the date of such reversal. Even where the plaintiff on the reversal of the decree of the first Court dismissing his suit appeals and on appeal gets a decree in his favour and re-attaches the property in suit, his claim is not one enforceable under the original attachment. 1934 A. 165=1933 A.L.J. 1501. Where property is attached before judgment and the order of attachment is set aside but the attachment is restored the parties are restored to the position they occupied when the property was originally attached. A private sale of the property in the interval is void. 42 A. 39. See also 1933 A. 953; 40 C. 598 (P.C.). An interim order of attachment before judgment passed when the minor defendant is not properly represented will operate for the purpose of preventing alienation though the order cannot be made absolute without a proper guardian. A purchaser of the property in the interval can intervene in the proceedings and show that the order should not be made absolute. 106 I.C. 142=1928 M. 1. The holder of a money decree, who has attached immovable property of his judgment-debtor before judgment, cannot bring that property to sale in satisfaction of his decree, when the judgment-debtor has, before the attachment, agreed to sell the property to a third party, and the sale has been completed by a conveyance after the attachment. The attachment before judgment of property subject to a contract of sale merely gives the attaching creditor a right to the balance of the purchase-money, if any. He would also have the benefit of the vendor's lien under section 55 (4) (b), T.P.Act. 43 Bom.L.R. 206. A re-attachment in execution as a matter of greater caution, of certain immovable properties which had been attached before judgment does not amount to an abandonment of the original attachment. 26 I.C. 81=1 L.W. 932. Nor will mention in the sale proclamation of a mortgage executed after the attachment amount to a waiver of plea under section 64. 1928 B. 44. Attachment ceasing under O. 21, R. 57. Re-attachment—Alienation during interval is valid. 97 I.C. 547; 7 R. 20. When an execution application is struck off, the attachment made under it cannot be treated as subsisting. 18 A. 49. See also 6 A. 33; 7 A. 617; 19 A. 482; 23 C. 829. See 20 A. 421; 23 M. 478; 14 M.I.A. 543; 6 A. 33; 2 A.L.J. 265; 167 I.C. 48=1937 N. 1. See also 10 W.R. 99. ## NOTES.

forceable. If an attachment is withdrawn or ceases to exist there is no right to rateable distribution. 66 I.C. 642=8 O.L.J. 358. Section 64, Explanation clearly indicates that applications for rateable distribution go hand in hand with execution application. Consequently, where the Judge orders an execution petition to be filed but mentions in the order that the attachment shall continue but no separate order for the attachment to subsist is made on the application for rateable distribution which is also ordered to be filed as infructuous, the decree-holder can take advantage of the order regarding subsistence of attachment on the execution application. 1941 Pesh. 18. The combined effect of section 64 and the explanation which has been added thereto is to extend the protection of that section to the claimants for rateable distribution against private alienations of property after attachment, just as much as to the decree-holder at whose instance the attachment is made. 164 I.C. 1031=1936 O.W.N. 861. One of the objects of section 64 is to prevent an alienation which might defeat the claim of the attaching creditor. Where, therefore, an alienation has been made after the attachment and the judgment-debtor satisfies the debt of the attaching creditor out of the sale proceeds, then such an alienation cannot be said to be 'contrary to such attachment'. And other creditors who have not applied for attachment but have applied for rateable distribution are not entitled to the benefit under section 64. The explanation to section 64 does not apply unless the claim of the subsequent decree-holders can be said to be a claim for rateable distribution within section 73 and the essential condition of enforcement of such claim is that there should be assets held by the Court. 4 A.W.R. 1236=1934 A. 1057. See also 1933 N. 349. Under section 64, an applicant for rateable distribution is placed on the same footing as the attaching decree-holder. But if the attachment were to cease, the position of the person who merely applied for rateable distribution might become precarious and he would be unable to proceed further to realise his decree debt. But under the amendment of O. 21, R. 55 by the Allahabad High Court, even if the attaching decree-holder is satisfied or withdraws his claim, that would not affect the rights of one who had already applied for rateable distribution. Under the rule, the amount decreed is deemed to include the amount of any decree against the judgment-debtor, notice of which had been given to the sale officer. Consequently a private transferee of the attached property cannot, by satisfying the claim of the attaching decree-holder, claim a paramount right so as to override the claims of a decree-holder who had, prior to such transfer, applied for rateable distribution. 150 I.C. 770=1934 A. 896. SEC. 64 AND O. 21, R. 2.—Where there is an adjustment within the meaning of O. 21, R. 2, the provisions of section 64 have no application to a transfer by way of mortgage effected by the judgment-debtor for satisfaction of the decree under which the property was attached in execution; for a transfer made contrary to the provisions of section 64 is only void as against claims enforceable under the attachment. When there is an adjustment for full satisfaction of the decree out of Court, there is no further claim which could be enforced under the attachment and therefore the transfer cannot be void. 188 I.C. 757=A.I.R. 1940 Pesh. 18.

SEC. 64 AND O. 21, R. 83.—A sale by the Court in pursuance of an attachment cannot be said to be the same thing as a sale by a judgment-debtor independently or in spite of the attachment. Title in the first case is conveyed by operation of law and any alienation by the judgment-debtor, if contrary to the attachment is void against all claims enforceable under the attachment, while title in the other is conveyed by the judgment-debtor himself who cannot derogate from his grant even if made after the attachment. A sale by the judgment-debtor with the permission of the Court and after obtaining a certificate from Court under O. 21, R. 83, C.P. Code, is a private sale and is not a sale either by or under the orders of the Court. 52 L.W. 862=1941 Mad. 208=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 1038.

testing the claims, is barred under S. 66. 67 C.L.J. 320=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 874. Where a person purchases certain property in a Court-auction held in execution of a decree and the sale is subsequently confirmed in his favour, the property vests in him from the date of confirmation of sale, whatever proceedings may be taken in connexion with the confirmation of the sale by the judgment-debtor whose property is sold. The vesting of the property in auction-purchaser is not postponed till the final decision of the proceedings started by the judgment-debtor. 177 I.C. 555=A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 49. Under S. 65, C. P. Code, and S. 8, T. P. Act, a purchaser in a Court sale is entitled to the property from the date of the sale and not from the date of the confirmation thereof. See also 24 A. 475; 1936 R.D. 49. Standing crops go with the sale of land, unless otherwise provided for. 13 M. 15. Failure to obtain sale certificate from court, does not vitiate title of the auction-purchaser. 25 I.C. 8. See also 95 I.C. 965. The words of S. 65, make it clear that confirmation of a sale, is an integral part of the transaction of a sale, as the purchaser can acquire no title without confirmation. An order prohibiting the sale would therefore prohibit confirmation of a sale which has taken place already but which had not been confirmed before the prohibitory order was passed. 188 I.C. 269=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 565. On a sale being held (but not confirmed) the attachment does not ipso facto come to an end. The Judge executing the decree is not therefore divested of his jurisdiction to deal with the application under O. 21, R. 58, in consequence of the sale having been held and his order raising the attachment cannot be challenged for want of jurisdiction. 145 I.C. 142=1933 S. 198.

SEC. 66: SCOPE OF SECTION.—As to whether the section has retrospective operation, see 36 C.L.J. 396=27 C.W.N. 305. See also 43 A. 416; 47 C. 1108; 1925 N. 41; 30 C.W.N. 160; 40 C.W.N. 470. A suit for a declaration of title brought after the present Code of 1908 came into force against the transferee from the heir of the certified purchaser, where the sale took place and was confirmed before its enactment, is governed by S. 317 of the old Code, and not by S. 66 of the present Code, and is, therefore, maintainable. 39 P.L.R. 152=1937 Lah. 471. The consequence of S. 66 is that unless the auction-sale could be impugned on the ground of fraud or of some other grave irregularity which made it a nullity, the plaintiff's suit that the purchase was on plaintiff's behalf cannot be maintainable. Fraud must be strictly pleaded and particulars of any fraud relied upon must be stated in the pleading. It is very important that one who seeks to set aside a purchase completed under sanction of the Court should state the grounds on which he claims to impeach it and should not be allowed after trial of the case to rely on other grounds which had not been the subject of trial or adjudication in the Court which took the evidence. 181 I.C. 94=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 122. Section should be strictly construed. 34 P.L.R. 487=146 I.C. 932=1933 L. 636. See also 1937 M. 362. S. 66 applies only where plaintiff's claim is based on auction-purchase and not where it is prior to and independent of the sale. 36 I.C. 681; 1931 B. 578=33 Bom.L.R. 1296. S. 66 applies only when the plaintiff attempts to enforce his secret title as against the certificated purchaser. It has no application if the heirs of the ostensible purchaser do not appear in the case and deny plaintiff's 'benami' purchase. (75 I.C. 197, Foll.) 165 I.C. 709 (2)=1936 A.L.J. 1169=1936 A. 750. S. 66, excludes any claim based upon an averment that an auction purchase had been made by the defendant on account of the plaintiff as well as on his own account. Where no case independent of this purchase and basing title upon possession is traceable in the pleadings, the plaintiff could not get any relief. 190 I.C. 677=52 L.W. 755=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 202 (P.C.). What brings a case within the purview of S. 66, is that there must be a suit against the certified purchaser or anybody deriving title from him, on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or his predecessor. If relief is sought against the certified purchaser or his representative, and

(2) Nothing in this section shall bar a suit to obtain a declaration that the name of any purchaser certified as aforesaid was inserted in the certificate fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser, or interfere with the right of a

the plaintiff claims title on the ground that the purchaser was his benamidar, the mere fact that the plaintiff once got possession of the property and was subsequently dispossessed by the certified purchaser or his representative, would not enable him to get round the bar of S. 66, unless the possession continued for twelve years and thus gave the plaintiff a title quite independent of the purchase made at the execution sale. 42 C.W.N. 497. S. 66, is a bar to a claim by a person who alleges that the actual purchase was either on behalf of himself exclusively or of himself jointly with the certified purchaser, whether the purchase is alleged to be in execution of an express agreement or otherwise; and the fact that the principal claims only to have provided a part of the purchase-money and to be entitled to only a share in the property purchased does not make any difference in principle. 18 Pat. 181=20 Pat.L.T. 117=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 207. The fact that the certified purchaser was a benamidar for the plaintiff even before the auction-sale is no answer to an objection under S. 66. 42 C.W.N. 1059=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 602. S. 66, applies although the plaintiff is already in possession and is seeking for its confirmation and not for recovery of possession on the strength of the auction-purchase. 42 C.W.N. 1059=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 602. The objection under S. 66, applies to a suit against an assignee of the certified purchaser. 42 C.W.N. 1059=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 602. Where three persons agree to purchase certain property at a Court-auction sale and it is so bought out of funds contributed by each in certain agreed shares, but the certificate was issued in the name of one of them, a suit by the others for possession is not affected by S. 66, for it has no application to such a case. 1940 Nag. 1=1939 N.L.J. 539. It may be that where the auction-purchaser is no party and is indifferent as to which of the two contending parties is held to be entitled to the property purchased by him he being admittedly a mere stake-holder, S. 66 does not apply. Such a proposition does not apply to a case where the defendant is a transferee under a valid title-deed from the auction-purchaser. S. 66 applies not only to cases in which the property is claimed against an auction-purchaser himself but also where it is claimed against his representative in interest. 157 I.C. 615=1935 A. 143. The primary object of S. 66, C. P. Code, is that the certified purchase should be deemed to be conclusive and no one should be allowed to challenge it, unless he comes within the exceptions mentioned in the section itself, and those exceptions are contained in sub-S. (2) under which a wrong insertion of the name of the purchaser in the sale certificate made fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser can be rectified and under which third persons are absolutely protected. It is immaterial whether the plaintiff claims the whole of the property purchased at the auction or only a share in that property. Where, therefore, the plaintiff brings a suit claiming joint possession over one-half of the property on the ground that it was purchased by the auction-purchaser on his own behalf and on behalf of the plaintiff, the suit is not maintainable. 167 I.C. 683=1937 A.L.J. 52=1937 A. 176. As to applicability of section, see 90 I.C. 116 (Section not applicable to sale by receiver with permission of Court which appointed him); 83 I.C. 382=1924 O. 218 (Title of persons beneficially interested in the purchase not affected) (Section not applicable to sales in execution of rent decrees under Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. 18 Pat.L.T. 397=1937 Pat. 324). See also 1941 Nag. 84=1940 N.L.J. 603 (Revenue sales); 84 I.C. 98=1925 O. 20; 8 P. 585. (Section does not exclude evidence as to auction-purchase being benami when such evidence is relevant.) 133 I.C. 551; see also 162 I.C. 553=17 Pat. L. T. 591=1936 P. 429. Claim based on agreement to reconvey made before and after sale is enforceable. 62 C.L.J. 88. A suit based on the ground that the plaintiff was the real purchaser at a Court-sale and that the certified purchaser was not really so, is barred by S. 66. It is immaterial whether the plaintiff is in possession and seeks confirmation of possession or whether he is out of possession and seeks to recover it. But if the real owner is in possession of the property and the certified purchaser wants to take advantage of his name being in the sale certificate and brings the suit on that basis the real owner can successfully defend it on the ground of his being the real purchaser. But if the plaintiff bases his suit on some other title subsequently acquired, e.g., adverse possession, the suit does not come under S. 66. 12 P. 616=14 Pat.L.T. 208=1933 P. 264. S. 66, raises an irrebuttable presumption in favour of the auction-purchasers. But there is nothing to prevent him from creating a trust in favour of, and constituting himself a trustee for, the person who supplies the purchase-money. Even if there be no registered instrument, twelve years' enjoyment by the beneficiary will confer a prescriptive right in him. 4 A.W.R. 676=1934 A. 990. The auction-purchaser's right arising from the sale cannot, by reason of S. 66, be questioned in suit. But a plaintiff can claim title to the property covered by the purchase not on the ground of the purchaser being benamidar for himself, but on the ground that the purchaser subsequently transferred or agreed to transfer his title to himself or that he ac-third person to proceed against that property, though ostensibly sold to the certified purchaser, on the ground that it is liable to satisfy a claim of such third person against the real owner.

quired the same otherwise, for example by prescription. 1934 A. 990; 62 C.L.J. 88; 1937 M. 362. S. 66 (1) has to be strictly applied. Its object is to prohibit on grounds of public policy a suit against the certified purchaser on the ground specified in the section. It does not render benami transactions illegal. If the cause of action is not based on the benami purchase but on a contract or title acquired subsequent thereto, S. 66 is not a bar. 1937 M. 362. In the absence of anything definite to show the contrary, the purchase made by a joint decree-holder, though in his own name, would undoubtedly enure for the benefit of all the persons interested in the joint fund which has been utilized in the acquisition of the property. Other persons would be beneficially interested in the purchase, and would be "entitled to recover a share of the properties purchased at auction," conditional on the payment of a proportionate share of the costs incurred in the litigation. And this right can be relinquished without a written instrument, as such right is short of ownership. 1933 A. 854 (2)=148 I. C. 502=1934 A.L.J. 107. A suit for execution of a sale-deed and for recovery of possession on the ground that defendant's father purchased the properties as benamidar for the plaintiff falls within S. 66, and is barred. 29 I.C. 138; 54 M.L.J. 462 (P.C.). S. 66 applies not only to cases in which the property is claimed against an auction-purchaser himself but also where it is claimed against his representative in interest as, for example, a transferee from him under a valid titled-deed. 4 A.W.R. 974=1935 A. 143. The section provides that no suit shall lie against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was on behalf of the plaintiff. 44 I.A. 201=44 A. 159 (P.C.). Cases of suits by certified purchasers are beyond the letter and scope of this section. 21 A. at p. 40. The section protects the certified purchaser only so long as he retains the possession given by Court. When he parts with it to the true owner he cannot sue for possession. If he ousts the true owner in possession for more than 12 years the true owner's suit for possession is based upon adverse possession under the limitation and is not barred by this section. 56 I.A. 330=51 A. 675=57 M.L.J. 177 (P.C.). A benami certified purchaser can sue in his own name even when the true owner's name is disclosed. See 22 B. at p. 679. An agreement subsequent to a purchase is not affected by the section and is specifically enforceable. 43 M. 643=39 M.L.J. 11 (P.C.); 42 M. 615 (F.B.); 31 Bom.L.R. 1271. But see 54 I.C. 726=24

The section has no application where it is found that the certified purchaser was, at the date of the purchase, managing the plaintiff's family as its agent, and that he bought the lands as such. 17 M. at pp. 286, 287. See also 18 M. 436. But see 22 A. 434. A person is entitled to be regarded as the certified purchaser at any time after the acceptance of his bid at the sale, even though a sale certificate has not issued to him. 25 W.R. 493; 19 I.C. 909=19 C.L.J. 330; 29 I.C. 716; 53 I.C. 961. Section is no bar when the certified purchaser does not contest plaintiff's claim. 82 I.C. 344=1925 A. 47. The section should be construed strictly: 5 Bom.L.R. 329; 2 L.L.J. 358; and literally. 2 I.A. 154; 1923 C. 228.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—A plaintiff purchaser, at a Court-sale, is not entitled to recover the property from the defendant of whom he was found to be the benamidar, and the benami transaction was found to be free from fraud. 36 B. 116. See also 56 I.A. 330; 108 I.C. 130=26 A.L.J. 245. The section applies only to sales in execution of decrees of Civil Courts, held under the Code. 14 C. at p. 585. S. 66 has no application in a case where the benamidar himself does not claim under the sale certificate. 27 C.W.N. 208=1923 C. 302. A cause of action against the benamidar which arose under the old Code, 1882, is not affected by the new Code. 50 I.C. 335=23 C.W. N. 604. See also 18 C.L.J. 616=8 C.W. N. 1331. Section applies to the case of a purchaser at a sale in enforcement and execution of certificate under S. 2 of the Public Demands Recovery Act. 16 C.W.N. 973=16 C.L.J. 412. Where at an auction, a person purchased property in the name of one and it was alleged by another that it was in trust for him, a suit between these two claimants is not within the prohibition contemplated by S. 66. 33 I.C. 1000. Section does not apply to cases where a plaintiff who purchases property in the name of another, has been in adverse possession for over 12 years. 19 C. 199. The section applies whether the ostensible purchaser at an auction-sale purchases the whole or part of the property sold. 57 I.C. 684. Benami purchaser attesting sale by the true owner, effect of—Whether operates as estoppel.

NOTES.

See 36 M. 564=23 M.L.J. 301. A manager guilty of fraud cannot take advantage of the section as against the ward. 30 I.C. 212. As to fraud, see also 36 B. 116. Joint decree-holders — Co-decree-holders purchasing at execution sale—Rights of others. See 37 A. 545 (P.C.) (affirming 32 A. 541=6 I.C. 364). 29 I.C. 447 is not now good law. See also 29 A. 557. Section 66 has no application to cases where the manager of a Hindu family or a tenant-in-common purchases with funds belonging to the joint family or to all the tenants-in-common. 17 I.C. 434=1912 M. W. N. 1071. See also 43 M.L.J. 363=45 M. 856; 37 I.C. 111. S. 66 is intended to discourage benami purchases at execution sales held by the Court by penalising the person who purchases benami in the name of another. The penalty applies equally to any one claiming through him. It does not apply where the name of the benamidar has been inserted in the sale-deed fraudulently or without consent of the real purchaser. The section refers to private agreements or understandings between the benamidar and the person who employs him. It has, therefore, no application to a case where the plaintiff says that he and first defendant, the karta, purchased certain property with joint family funds; that the latter allowed the property to be sold for arrears of rent; that in the auction the property was purchased by second defendant, son of the first defendant; that however was only benami; it was really purchased by the first defendant and that it continued to be the partible property of the joint family. The plaintiff is an innocent person and no party to the fraud; he is not hit by S. 66. 61 C. 440=150 I.C. 1051=38 C.W.N. 494=1934 C. 567. Where properties sold in execution of a decree were purchased with the funds of the manager of a joint Hindu family in the name of his son-in-law, S. 317 of the C. P. Code, 1882, bars the claim of the members of the joint Hindu family to the properties as being really joint family acquisitions. 44 I. A. 201=33 M.L.J. 180=40 A. 159 (P.C.). See also 35 A. 80=40 I.A. 40=24 M.L.J. 345 (P.C.). Purchase at Court-auction by two persons with joint funds—Sale certificate in the name of one—It is a joint transaction constituting the parties co-purchasers and not a benami transaction and this section does not apply to it. 50 B. 660. But see 1934 C. 322. Some persons purchased a property in execution sale in the name of one of them. They had contracted themselves that they shall be the owners of the property in shares proportionate to their contribution. The benamidar sold away more than his share of the property. One of the contributors filed the suit for declaration of his share in the property. Held, that S. 66 was a bar to such a suit. The operation of S. 66 could not be ousted by the existence of any private agreement or undertaking. 61 C. 371=150 I.C. 77=1934 C. 322. Purchase benami for plaintiff—Sale set aside with consent of benamidar on application by judgment-debtor—Plaintiff dispossessed by judgment-debtor—Suit against benamidar and judgment-debtor is maintainable. S. 66 is no bar to such suit. 42 C.W.N. 497.

SUIT FOR REPRESENTATIVES OF REAL PURCHASERS.—S. 66 is intended to bar the institution of a suit against the certified purchaser by the beneficial owner or one standing as successor-in-title of the beneficial owner. 16 I.C. 489=10 A.L.J. 97. Also see 25 I.C. 821=12 A.L.J. 1145; 157 I.C. 615=1935 A. 143. S. 66, C. P. Code, applies to the successor-in-title of the certified purchaser. 55 I.C. 499=16 N.L.R. 87 (31 B. 61; 35 B. 342, Ref.). Also see 19 I.C. 909=19 C.L.J. 330. Third parties—S. 317 of the old Code did not apply to persons claiming through the certified purchaser. 46 I.C. 216. Third parties—Suit by beneficiary against the benami certificated purchaser. See 54 I.C. 127=24 C.W.N. 51. Third parties — Property mortgaged by judgment-debtor—Sale in execution—Suit by mortgage against the judgment-debtor and execution purchaser. 54 I.C. 967=37 M.L.J. 586 [37 A. 545 (P.C.), Ref.].

SUIT FOR POSSESSION.—A plaintiff at a Court-sale is not entitled to recover the property from the defendant of whom he was found to be the benamidar and the benami transaction was found to be free from fraud. 36 B. 116. Also see 35 A. 138; 29 I.C. 787; 40 C. 20; 28 M.L.J. 251 (Auction-purchaser not trustee for real purchaser). S. 66 is no bar to a suit brought by the principal against the agent for the recovery of properties purchased by the agent in his own name but with the principal's money and for the principal's benefit in a Court-auction though without the knowledge of the principal. 49 I.C. 734=9 L. W. 276 [19 W.R. 356 (P.C.); 37 A. 545, Foll.].

SUIT FOR DECLARATION.—A suit by a son, member of a joint Hindu family, for a declaration that a Court auction-purchase in the name of his mother, made out of family funds is benami, is barred under this section. 43 A. 711. But it has, however, been held that the real purchaser in a benami sale who remains in possession is not precluded by S. 66, from suing for declaration that he is the owner. 25 I.C. 810; nor from remaining in possession of the property till the certified purchaser pays him a binding mortgage-debt which he paid off bona fide on the basis of his supposed title. 133 I.C. 536=1932 A. 32=1931 A. L. J. 601.

PLEADINGS.—The plea of bar under the section may be put forward and given effect to at any stage of the suit, even in appeal for the first time if it does not depend upon disputed facts. 37 I.C. 111; 35 C.W.N. 940=54 C.L.J. 147=136 I.C. 538.

NOTES.

SEC. 67.—The rules framed are not retrospective in their operation. 15 B. 322; and may provide for an appeal from the Collector's orders. 12 A. 564. The rule promulgated by the Chief Commissioner of Coorg under S. 67 (2), embodying the restriction upon sales of land in execution of decrees of civil Courts is a rule merely governing the execution of decrees within the province of Coorg and applies only to sales of land within the jurisdiction of the local Government of Coorg. The power to enact such special rules contemplates only the enactment of rules restricting execution of money decrees within the local area and not in British India. 1941 Mad. 45=52 L.W. 851=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 420. Sanction of Commissioner to sale of agricultural land in execution—Unnecessary. 19 I.C. 479=89 P.R. 1913; 66 I.C. 893.

SEC. 68: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Under S. 68, only those decrees can be transferred for execution to the Collector which direct the sale of any immovable property or such decrees in execution of which any property could be attached and sold. It is only when the property attached is capable of being sold and is a revenue-paying estate that the Civil Court can transfer the decree to the Collector with a clear direction to sell the property. If the property is non-transferable, the Civil Court is not competent to transfer the decree to the Collector. If the Civil Court is not competent to order the sale of the property, the Collector can have no jurisdiction over such property. 31 N.L.R. 239=156 I.C. 65=1935 N. 133. See also 162 I.C. 362=1936 O. 280. Under S. 68, a Court is bound to transfer execution proceedings to the Collector if it finds that at the date of the order for sale the judgment-debtor or any one of several judgment-debtors (when there are more than one) is an agriculturist. The date at which the status of the debtor is to be considered is the date on which the order for sale is passed. If on a date prior to the order for sale the judgment-debtor agrees under a compromise to give up his contention regarding his status, he cannot be regarded as having waived his right to claim the transfer of the proceedings to the Collector, after the order for sale is passed, if he could prove that on the date of the order for sale he was an agriculturist. But if the judgment-debtor fails to put forward his contention that he is an agriculturist to claim transfer of proceedings to the Collector when he is given notice under O. 21, R. 66 for settlement of the terms of the proclamation, and the Court makes an order for sale and issue of proclamation, that order becomes binding on the judgment-debtor and conclusive unless he takes steps to appeal from that order and get it set aside. It is not open to him subsequently after the lapse of a long time to claim a transfer to the Collector. 41 Bom.L.R. 1166=A. I. R. 1939 Bom. 526. The Collector is bound to carry out the decree, subject to the discretion given to him by S. 1 of Sch. III and the following sections and subject to the provisions contained in Ss. 4, 5 and 6 of Sch. III. 11-A at p. 95 (F.B.). See also 7 B. 332; 1938 O.W.N. 758. All that the executing Court has to see is whether it is a case in which a decree-holder asks for the sale of the agricultural property and if that is the case, the decree has to be transferred to the Collector for execution as soon as the Court orders that the property should be sold. 147 I.C. 1201=3 A.W.R. 579=1934 A. 253. Under the provisions of S. 68, the Local Government has no power to transfer to the Collector an execution case pending in a Civil Court in which that Court has already sold the property but the sale has not been confirmed. The power of the Local Government is confined only to those cases in which the property has not been sold but only an order for sale has been passed. 148 I.C. 464=1934 O. 138=11 O. W.N. 411. If it is declared by notification that a decree for sale of a particular kind of property should be transferred to the Collector for execution, a sale of the property, if made by a Civil Court, is void as such a notification ousts the jurisdiction of the Court so far as regards the execution of the decree. 151 I.C. 244=1934 A.L.J. 859=1934 A. 314. The functions of the Court under O. 21, R. 2, cannot be delegated to the Collector or his subordinates, though the decree has been transferred to the Collector for execution. 37 Bom.L.R. 93=1935 B. 158. Rules framed under R. 17 as to transfer of decrees for execution. 45 B. 1132. Collector—Power of, to execute decree transferred. 61 I.C. 579=18 N.L.R. 131. The functions of the Court under O. 21, R. 2, C. P. Code, cannot be delegated to the Collector or his subordinates, though the decree has been transferred to the Collector for execution. 59 B. 345=37 Bom.L.R. 93=1935 B. 158. S. 68, C. P. Code, does not state that the Collector shall become the Court executing the decree. The Court executing the decree remains the Court which sends the decree for execution to the Collector and the powers conferred by the C. P. Code on the Court executing the decree remain with that Court and do not pass to the Collector. 1938 O. W.N. 758=1938 Oudh 188. The Collector executing a decree transferred to him, under S. 68, is not a Court, and he has no power to certify an adjustment of the decree under O. 21, R. 2. An adjustment recorded by the Collector during execution cannot consequently be treated as certification under O. 21, R. 2. 19 N.L.J. 175; 60 B. 729=164 I.C. 9=38 Bom.L.R. 505=1936 B. 277. As to powers of Civil Court and Collector, see also 38 Bom.L.R. 221. When execution proceedings are transferred to the Collector under S. 68, for sale of immovable property, and the judgment-debtor is a minor, the Civil Court, and not the Collector has the power to give permission to the decree-holder to bid at the sale, which is required under O. 21, R. 72. 60 B. 688=38

Bom.L.R. 276=1936 B. 189. A Court has authority to re-call its own record transmitted to the Collector for execution. 7 B. at p. 336; and can control the proceedings of the Collector. 8 B. 301; 11 B. at p. 482; 7 A. 407. See 9 A. 43 and 11 A. 94. The Collector does not become the Court executing the decree by the mere fact of the execution of the decree having been transferred to him. 133 I.C. 609=1931 A. 320 (2)=1931 A.L.J. 166. See also 1933 S. 112=142 I.C. 579. After transfer to Collector no new process of attachment can be issued against the same property. 92 I.C. 906=1926 O. 318. As to jurisdiction of Civil Court to interfere with the powers of the Collector, see 2 O.W.N. 73=1925 O. 448. See also 50 A. 827=1928 A. 558=26 A.L.J. 769. A Civil Court can order the temporary alienation of the land of an agricultural tribe in satisfaction of a money decree. 74 I.C. 194=4 Lah.L.J. 476. Alienation of land by judgment-debtor without permission is void. 153 I.C. 612=11 O.W.N. 1626=1935 O. 156; 11 O.W.N. 1571=1935 O. 121. The Collector must decide the best method of satisfying the decree whether by management by the Collector himself or by sale or by letting. But he has not got the discretion to decide whether the decree has been satisfied. 37 B. 32. But see 46 A. 228. All that is delegated to the Collector is to consider the proper mode in which a decree may be satisfied by an agriculturist debtor so as to save, if possible, the sale of his property and the Court passing the decree can enquire into the question whether the decree-amount is satisfied or not and order a further execution when the Collector has returned the papers under an erroneous belief that the whole amount had been liquidated. 142 I.C. 579=26 S.L.R. 506=1933 S. 112. See also 1938 O.W.N. 758. When a decree has been transferred for execution to a Collector, an application to record satisfaction under O. 21, R. 2 should be made to him. 16 A. 228. But see 37 B. 32. Decree transferred to Collector for execution—Decree-holder certifying payment through mistake or fraud of judgment-debtor—Collector entering satisfaction—Jurisdiction of trial Court. 167 I.C. 401=1937 O.W.N. 231. A suit lies in a Civil Court for confirmation of a sale held by a Collector and to set aside an order passed by him cancelling it. 25 A. 355. In view of S. 68 and Allahabad Government Notification No. 1887 1-238, dated 7-10-1911 which authorises the Collector and Collector alone to sell ancestral property a sale of it by the Civil Court Amin is without jurisdiction. 143 I.C. 522=1933 A. 192=1932 A.L.J. 1118. See also 154 I.C. 933=1935 A.W.R. 249=1935 A. 468; 8 Luck. 504=10 O.W.N. 517=145 I.C. 363=1933 O. 274; 1937 All. 550. decree as a whole to the Collector merely because some land falling within the purview of the notification had been ordered to be sold. However, as soon as any land falling within the purview of the notification is ordered to be sold, the execution of the decree so far as that land is concerned must be transferred to the Collector. 191 I.C. 704=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 345. The Notification under S. 68, No. 365-R (Revenue Department), dated 17th January, 1939, applies even to pending execution proceedings in which an order for sale of such land has been passed, provided, of course the sale had not been actually carried out before the notification. 191 I.C. 704=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 345. As to U. P. Notification, see 148 I.C. 464=11 O.W.N. 411=1934 O. 143. See also 1936 R.D. 197. An ancestral grove with a house which has been assessed by Government can be sold in execution by the Collector only. 36 A. 33. Execution sale—Ancestral property sold as non-ancestral property whether can be set aside. 24 A.L.J. 281=44 A. 380. "Ancestral land" as defined in (All.) General Rules, Ch. IV, R. 8 (a) means property owned continuously from 1—1—1860 by the proprietor. Land gifted to the judgment-debtor after that date is not, therefore, "ancestral land" and the sale thereof need not be by the Collector. 1933 A.L.J. 91=1933 A. 138. Where a certain land is saleable under the Bundelkand Land Alienation Act, this section cannot be invoked to transfer the decree to the Collector. 48 A. 392=1926 A. 339=24 A.L.J. 397. Where the mortgaged property is ancestral, the Civil Court is bound under S. 68, to transfer the proceedings in execution of the mortgage decree to the Collector. 162 I.C. 362=1936 O. 280.

APPEAL.—No appeal lies to the High Court from an order passed by the Collector in an execution proceeding transferred to him. 7 Bom.L.R. 682; 5 A. 314 (F.B.). The transfer of the decree to the Collector does not oust the jurisdiction of the civil Court in all matters. A Collector ceases to have jurisdiction to sell or to confirm the sale after the Court passing the decree recalls it. Whether the Collector fails to comply with the Civil Court's order in disregard or in ignorance of it, that order must prevail against anything done by the Collector subsequent to that order. The Collector's power to proceed with the case is suspended by virtue of any order of stay that might be passed by the Court passing the decree. A Civil Court's order comes into effect as soon as it is passed so as to suspend the Collector's power to proceed with the execution; irrespective of its being communicated to the Collector. 1940 N.L.J. 473=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 372.

SECS. 68 TO 72 AND O. 21.—S. 72 must be read as alternative to S. 68 and so read it only indicates the source of the authority of the Collector to exercise powers under Sch. III in local areas where the Local Government has not issued a notification under S. 68. The Civil Court has under S. 72 power to authorise the Collector exactly as the Local Government has it under S. 68. The Civil Court cannot under S. 72 exercise the powers of Collector under Sch. III due to the express provisions of Ss. 72 (2) and 70 (2). 167 I.C. 807=1937 N. 41. The rules in Ch. 40 of the Revenue Manual do not apply to the execution of decrees of Revenue Courts, because Ss. 68 to 72, C.P. Code, have been specifically excluded by the Second Schedule to the Agra Tenancy Act. Decrees of the Revenue Courts passed under the Agra Tenancy Act must be executed in the manner laid down in O. 21, C.P. Code. 1937 R.D. 37. See also 1938 Oudh 62.

SEC. 70.—A Collector acting under the section is a Revenue Court and can pass order under S. 476, Cr.P. Code. 14 A.L.J. 1077=38 I.C. 419. After a sale is confirmed by the Collector and retransmitted to the Civil Court, he has no power left to interfere with the sale. 48 A. 568. The function of the Collector on receipt of a C Form issued by the Civil Court according to the rules prescribed under the C.P. Code and in the C.P. Revenue Book circular, Vol. 2—III 8, is either to execute it by sale of the land attached or to realise the amount due under the decree by a lease or similar arrangement. It is beyond his function, when the sale is closed and the auction confirmed, to entertain a compromise relating to the sale. 26 N.L.J. 93. But see 1935 A. L.J. 919. A Collector, who is empowered by rules framed by the Local Government under S. 70 (1) to set aside the sale of immovable property held in execution of a decree transferred to him by the Civil Court, has jurisdiction to set aside such sale even after the sale has been confirmed by him and the record of the execution case has been retransmitted to the Civil Court, if he is satisfied that the decree-holder, by the exercise of fraud, kept the judgment-debtor ignorant of the execution proceedings culminating in the sale of the property and of the confirmation of sale, and that as a consequence of his fraud the decree-holder

(a) for the transmission of the decree from the Court to the Collector, and for regulating the procedure of the Collector and his subordinates in executing the same, and for re-transmitting the decree from the Collector to the Court ;

(b) conferring upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise in the execution of the decree if the execution thereof had not been transferred to the Collector ;

(c) providing for orders made by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders, being subject to appeal to, and revision by, superior revenue-authorities as nearly as may be as the orders made by the Court, or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders, would be subject to appeal to, and revision by, appellate or revisional Courts under this Code or other law for the time being in force if the decree had not been transferred to the Collector.

succeeded in purchasing the property of the judgment-debtor for much less than its real value. An order passed by a Collector confirming a sale is a judicial order and he has inherent power to recall and cancel his order if he is satisfied that it is necessary to do so for the ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the proceedings held by him. The retransmission of the decree to the Civil Court no doubt puts an end to the jurisdiction of the Collector to take further proceedings in execution of the decree, but it cannot divest him of the inherent jurisdiction possessed by him to correct his judicial orders or to review the same. 158 I.C. 753=1935 A.L.J. 919=1935 A. 868. See also 1937 All. 550. No suit lies to set aside sale by Collector. 3 O.W.N. 739=97 I.C. 1036=1926 O. 612. An order of the Commissioner passed on appeal from the Collector setting aside the objections of the judgment-debtor or auction-purchaser cannot be questioned in a Civil Court. 139 I.C. 498=1932 O. 273 following 6 O.W.N. 1214. Where a decree is transferred to the Collector for execution under S. 68, the jurisdiction of the Collector and the Commissioner to confirm or set aside a sale is restricted by Rr. 998 and 1011 of the Manual of the Revenue Department. If therefore the Commissioner in an appeal from the order of the Collector sets aside the sale on a ground which is not provided for by any of the rules, the order of the Commissioner is without jurisdiction and is subject to adjudication by the Civil Court under the general provisions of S. 9, C.P. Code. The cognizance of the suit by the Civil Court is not barred by Cl. 2 of R. 998. 1938 O.W.N. 40=A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 62. Where a decree for sale under a mortgage has been transferred for execution to the Collector under S. 68, C. P. Code, a mortgage of the property comprised in the decree by the judgment-debtor without the written permission of the Collector is absolutely void under parra. 11, Sch. III, C.P. Code. 153 I.C. 612=11 O.W.N. 1626. See also 11 O.W.N. 1571; 162 I.C. 362=1936 O.W.N. 489=1936 O. 280. A subdivisional officer conducting a sale cannot depute the Nazir to hold the sale, as it is contrary to the imperative provisions of R. 10 (11) of the C. P. Revenue Book Circular framed under S. 70 (1). It is also illegal to continue a sale already commenced for about 9 days without directing the bidders to be present on the days on which it might be recommenced. A bid made by a prospective purchaser on a previous day cannot also be accepted behind his back several days later, so as to make him liable for loss on re-sale on his failure to pay the price. That is neither proper nor equitable. 18 N.L.J. 11. R. 13 of the rules framed under S. 70 (1), only invests a Collector with powers specifically referred to in the notified rules and not with all powers conferred by rules under O. 21 or otherwise by the C. P. Code. The Collector is not a Court within the meaning of the term occurring in O. 21, R. 2. A collector is justified in filing the proceedings, when there is an amicable settlement admitted by both parties. But he cannot legally come to a decision regarding a disputed adjustment. 1941 N. L.J. 300. Where a Collector accepted a bid after receipt of the order of the High Court staying proceedings, the acceptance is in contravention of the order of stay and as such its cancellation is quite legal. 1938 N.L.J. 120. Rule 11, Cl. (ii) of rules framed by the C.P. Government under S. 70 (1), C.P. Code, requires the Tahsildar who conducts the sale to adjourn it to the Collector before the final bill is accepted. It is meant to secure the approval of the Collector. But this does not authorise the Collector, when he does not accept the last bid, to hold an informal sale for the disposal of the property. If he wants to obtain fresh bids, the procedure laid down for holding sales ought to be followed. 1938 N.L.J. 105. See also 1938 Nag. 49. In respect of the execution of decrees transferred to the Collectors, the power to revise is vested in the Financial Commissioner's Court under R. 16 of the rules framed by the Governor in Council under S. 70, C.P. Code. It limits the power of revision to such matters as are provided for in S. 115, C.P. Code. 1938 N.L.J. 262.

(2) A power conferred by rules made under sub-section (1) upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, or upon any appellate or revisional authority, shall not be exercisable by the Court or by any Court in exercise of any appellate or revisional jurisdiction which it has with respect to decrees or orders of the Court.

Jurisdiction of Civil Courts barred.
Collector deemed to be acting judicially.

71. In executing a decree transferred to the Collector under section 68 the Collector and his subordinates shall be deemed to be acting judicially.

72. (1) Where in any local area in which no declaration under section 68 is in force the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him instead of proceeding to a sale of the land or share.

Rules framed by C.P. Government under S. 70—Collector deputed Nazir to conduct sale not legal—Bid on one day—Acceptances several days later not proper. Bidder not liable for loss on resale. 18 N.L.J. 11.

SEC. 70 (2).—Where a decree is transferred to the Collector for execution, a Civil Court cannot entertain an application under O. 21, R. 72 inasmuch as that power has been conferred on the Collector. 42 B. 621=20 Bom.L.R. 708.

SEC. 72:[See also NOTES UNDER S. 68.] SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—On this section, see 103 I.C. 884 (1)=1927 N. 324; 1937 N. 1; 1937 N. 41. Section 72 clearly empowers the Court to authorize the Collector to grant a lease of the property for a term of years in full satisfaction of the decree. 1937 A.L.J. 801=1937 All. 699. The intervention of the Collector contemplated by section 72 is a preliminary requisite to the application of that section. Section 72, however, can only be applied in cases where the land is saleable. Where the land is protected from sale by a special enactment, S. 72 can have no application. 161 I.C. 628=1936 Pesh. 90. Section does not apply to decree directing sale of land, in pursuance of contract affecting the same. 2 A. 856. See also 9 C. 290 at p. 293. Action of Collector under section is administrative. 1 L. 192=58 I.C. 603 (F.B.). The sanction of the Revenue authorities not necessary for sale of revenue-paying land, in execution. 69 P.L.R. 1918=46 I.C. 864. See also 1 P. R. 1919=52 I.C. 356. Under section 72 the Collector is empowered to represent to the Court that the public sale of land is objectionable and that a temporary alienation of land would satisfy the decree. He has however no authority to represent that a temporary alienation is objectionable and even if he represents that a public sale is objectionable, it is for the Court to decide whether his objection should be maintained. 157 I.C. 953=1935 Pesh. 113. The Collector has no authority to suggest satisfaction of the decree in part by transfer of certain debts from the judgment-debtors to the decree-holders, or that mortgagee rights should similarly be transferred to the decree-holder. He has also no right to compel the decree-holder himself to take the lands on lease at a valuation fixed by the Collector. 160 I.C. 571=1936 Pesh. 14. A District Judge executing a decree is not bound to accept the recommendation of a sub-divisional officer to the Collector to arrange to have the decree satisfied by a temporary alienation. 9 P.L. R. 1915=27 I.C. 630. The object of section is to save land by temporary alienation and the Court executing decree cannot vary its terms by authorising satisfaction in instalments. 2 N.W.P. 347. See also 6 N.W.P. 39. A Civil Court is competent in execution proceedings to grant a farm of the land of a judgment-debtor belonging to an agricultural tribe. If the Court in granting such a lease makes the lease money payable by instalments, it might be said that the Court has acted in an unwise or indiscreet manner by not demanding the entire lease money at once but it cannot be said that the Court has passed an order which it had no jurisdiction to pass. Such an order is not illegal or without jurisdiction and the provisions of section 36 apply to the case and the Court can enforce payment of the lease money by applying the provisions of the Code relating to execution of decrees. (1920 L. 456, Foll.) 38 P.L.R. 936=1936 L. 696. See also 1938 A.L.J. 444 (Applicability of section to land prohibited from sale by Bundelkhand Land

(2) In every such case the provisions of sections 69 to 71 and of any rules made in pursuance thereof shall apply so far as they are applicable.

DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS.

73. (1) Where assets are held by a Court and more persons than one have, before the receipt of such assets, made application to the Court for the execution of decrees for the payment of money passed against the same judgment-debtor and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the assets, after deducting the costs of realization, shall be rateably distributed among all such persons :

NOTES.

Alienation Act. Regarding suit to set aside sale by Collector, see 1 Luck. 558; 1926 O. 612=3 O.W.N. 739. Collector reporting inability to execute. Executing Court should not file execution application but should proceed with the execution. 96 I. C. 199 (1)=1926 L. 632.

CONCURRENT APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION OF DECREE—FORM OF EXECUTION TO BE ADOPTED.—When several applications for execution are pending against the same judgment-debtor, and all the applications have been made within the time required to give them a right to share in any realizations, it is obviously inequitable to adopt a form of execution which will favour one of the decree-holders at the expense of the rest. 1935 L. 964. Where more applications than one are pending, and the Collector has represented that the public sale of the property under attachment is objectionable, the correct procedure would seem to be for the Court to give the Collector details of the pending applications and to ask the Collector to suggest a method of temporary alienation which will provide as far as possible for the satisfaction of these decrees. 1935 L. 964.

FORM OF LAND IN FAVOR OF DECREE-HOLDER—NATURE AND EFFECT.—A farm of land in favour of a decree-holder is more in the nature of an adjustment of a decree the decree-holder receiving a tenure of the land in satisfaction of his decree as a whole and it stands on a different footing from a lease which is given out either on payment of an initial lump sum, or of rent at stated intervals. A decree-holder may be prepared to surrender his rights under the decree in return for receiving a limited tenure of the land rather than face a continuation of the execution proceedings. 1935 L. 964. Where a decree-holder took out proceedings in execution of his decree and applied for a temporary alienation of the land of the judgment-debtor and the executing Court granted the application and referred the matter to the Collector for suggesting the period for which temporary alienation could be effected, and before the Collector made his proposal, another decree-holder took out proceedings in his own decree and applied under section 73, for "rateable distribution" in the temporary alienation, the proper course for the Court is to refer that application also to the Collector and to ask him to suggest a method of temporary alienation which will provide as far as possible for the satisfaction of both the decrees. An order sanctioning a temporary alienation of the judgment-debtor's land in favour of the former decree-holder alone in full satisfaction of his decree is erroneous and cannot be sustained. 169 I.C. 511.

SEC. 73: [See also NOTES UNDER S. 63.] SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Conditions as to the applicability of the section, and right to rateable distribution. See 30 I. C. 49=21 C.L.J. 624; 19 I.C. 226=19 C. W.N. 535; 42 M.L.J. 473; 48 M.L.J. 459; 42 I.C. 897=1917 M.W.N. 859; 1929 R. 198. Per Iqbal Ahmad, J.—The object underlying the enactment of section 73, C.P. Code, was to prevent multiplicity of execution proceedings while at the same time ensuring equitable distribution of assets between various decree-holders who had the right to have their decrees satisfied out of those assets. A.I.R. 1941 All. 110 (F.B.). Per Iqbal Ahmad, J.—Section 73 enacts a mere rule of procedure and not a rule of substantive law. It merely enacts a rule by which decree-holders, in specified cases, can resort to a cheap and speedy procedure for the realization of their decrees. It does not, however, clothe a decree-holder with a right which he does not possess. It does not enlarge the rights given to a decree-holder by his decree, nor does it cut down the rights to which a decree-holder may be entitled by the decree in his favour. Hence section 73 cannot be invoked to entitle a decree-holder to satisfy his decree from assets which he could not touch if section 73 was not on the statute book. Conversely the provisions of section 73 cannot be utilized to deprive a decree-holder from satisfying his decree from assets which he would have been otherwise entitled to follow in execution. A.I.R. 1941 All. 110 (F.B.). Court has power to order rateable distribution in suitable cases even apart from section 73. 1936 C. 390. Section 146 cannot enlarge the scope of section 73 as it is expressly made subject to the other provisions of the Code. 159 I.C. 575=40 C.W.N. 26=1935 C. 738. The amendment of S. 60 by S. 3 of Act IX of 1937 does not affect the provisions of section 73. Thus a decree-holder has still a right under section 73 to come in for a share in the rateable distribution of salary attached under a decree, though his suit in which the decree is obtained may have been brought after June, 1937. 176 I.C. 682=A.I.R. 1938 Sind 144. See also 1939 A.M.L.J. 157. Section 73 is to be read together with section 63. Where the property of a judgment-debtor has been attached by two Courts of the same grade but the property has been sold by one of them, the proceeds so received shall be deemed to have been received by it on behalf of all the Courts in which there have been attachments in execution of the decrees, prior to the actual receipt of the assets, and the decree-holders in all such Courts are entitled to rateable distribution under section 73. In such cases no application for execution is necessary to be made to the Court which held the assets, before the receipt of the assets. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 754. See the cases cited on the point under section 63. Section 73 has been so worded as to include cases in which it is possible that the purchase-money may not be actually deposited. 1933 A.L.J. 1102=1933 A. 666. Section 73 is applicable not only where sale is made by the Court, but also to cases in which execution of a decree is transferred to the Collector and sale is made by him, whether the Collector receives the purchase-money in cash or the decree-holder is declared to be the purchaser and the purchase-money is to be set-off against the decretal amount. 1933 A.L.J. 1102=1933 A. 666. O. 21, R. 48 does not override section 73. See 43 C.W.N. 169=1939 Cal. 485. Where an execution sale held by the Collector was set aside and the purchasers having obtained order for refund of their purchase-money applied for rateable distribution of the assets realised by the sale of property in execution of a decree against the decree-holder: Heid, that section 73 did not apply as the applicants had not made applications to the Civil Courts in execution. 151 I.C. 1027=1934 N. 243. The legislature added the word "passed" in the new section in order to make it clear that the words "against the same judgment-debtor" had reference to the decrees themselves, and not to the various applications for execution contemplated by the section. A.I.R. 1941 All. 110 (F.B.). S. 73 does not take into account at all whether payment orders have been passed for the different decree-holders who have decrees against the same judgment-debtor. All that the section considers necessary are that assets should be held by a Court and that more persons than one have made applications to the Court for the execution of decrees. The mere fact that the Court has passed a payment order in favour of one of the decree-holders is no consideration which should bar the right of rival decree-holders to rateable distribution. The principle of S. 73 is that as long as the assets are still held by a Court there should be rateable distribution. 151 I.C. 266=1934 A. 652. Where the assets are not liable to be rateably distributed, S. 73 (2) has no application. 42 M.L.J. 473. See also 1933 P. 277. A decree against the judgment-debtor for assets of his father gives no priority over the decrees against him personally. 42 I.C. 897=1917 M.W.N. 859. See also 60 C. 923, infra. Scope of the section has been purposely broadened under the new Code of 1908. 70 I.C. 541=35 C.L.J. 327. Execution application praying for a relief which the Court could not grant is no ground for rejecting decree-holder's application for rateable distribution. 49 M.L.J. 753=1926 M. 179=91 I.C. 11. An order under this section affects only interests existing at the time. The insolvency of the debtor introduces a new state of things from the date of the insolvency. 27 C. 351. A judgment-creditor has no priority over the Official Assignee in respect of property attached by him previous to the vesting order. 29 C. 428. Applicability to a Solicitor's claim for costs. 29 Bom.L.R. 1196=1927 B. 542=51 B. 855. The section applies to cases where a District Court transfers execution proceedings in a Small Cause Court to the Court of a Sub-Judge. 18 B. 61. See also 15 M. 345. The section applies to cases where property has been attached in execution of a decree of a Presidency Small Cause Court, and the same property has been attached in execution by the High Court. 20 B. 377. See also 1938 Sind 175. Where sale proceeds are held by the Sub-Judge, First class, the Senior Sub-Judge is competent, without intervention of the District Judge, to call for the sale proceeds to his Court to be rateably distributed amongst decree-holders qualified under S. 73. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 801. Nature of proceedings under the section is one of non-judicial character, and the Court cannot enquire into the validity or otherwise of the decrees under which payments are claimed. 19 N.L.R. 172=1924 N. 39; 6 R. 582. Under S. 73, all the judgment-debtors need not be indentical, and if one or more of the judgment-debtors be the same, rateable distribution can be got as regards their share of the property. 156 I.C. 631=41 L.W. 490=1935 M. 399; 4 Pat.L.T. 373=74 I.C. 626; 5 R. 757. See also 9 C. 920; 30 C. 583. But the holders of decrees against one of the brothers in a joint family are not entitled to rateable distribution from out of the sale proceeds of the property pertaining to the share of another brother realised in execution of decrees against both the brothers. 54 M.L.J. 278=1928 M. 362. A decree was obtained by one against party R whilst the decree obtained by the other party was against the sons of R. Held, that the two decrees were not passed against the same judgment-debtor. 159 I.C. 575=40 C. ## NOTES.

trued liberally. A strict literal construction cannot be adopted in the sense that the decree must be against the same person 'eo nomine.' A decree passed against a deceased person during his lifetime and sought to be executed against his legal representatives and a decree passed against the legal representatives of the deceased after his death, in respect of a claim against the deceased, are both decrees against the "same judgment-debtor" for the purposes of S. 73. 59 M. 93=69 M.L.J. 711 (F.B.). A literal interpretation should not be given to the word "judgment-debtor" in S. 73. Where therefore a person is sued as family manager it must be taken that he represents all the members of the family (even if consisting of father and sons) and they are constructively parties to the suit and hence must be deemed to be judgment-debtors for the purpose of the suit. 160 I.C. 559=43 L.W. 624=1936 M. 123; following 59 M. 93. For rateable distribution it makes no difference in law that the parties are two in one case and three in the other so long as the same share of the two parties, who are common in both decrees, is sought to be attached. Hence where there is a decree by a decree-holder against three persons and another decree-holder obtains a decree against two of them and a sale is held in execution of his decree, former decree-holder is entitled to rateable distribution in the sale proceeds. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 801. See also 18 Lah. 637=1937 Lah. 937 (decree against a firm and decree against a partner in his individual capacity). 1937 M.W.N. 465; 1938 Cal. 316; 39 Bom.L.R. 815=1937 Bom. 461 (decree against a person in his lifetime and decree against his legal representative after his death) see also 1938 Cal. 316=42 C.W.N. 310; 1940 Rang.L.R. 492=1940 Rang. 243; 1939 All. 545. The expression "the same judgment-debtor" in S. 73, C.P. Code, denotes identity, not only of individuality but of character or interest. Decrees against the same person cannot always be regarded as decrees against the same judgment-debtor for the purposes of S. 73. A decree against a person individually and a decree against that person as representative of a deceased person cannot be held to be decrees against the same judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 73, so as to entitle the holders of the two decrees to rateable distribution. 43 Bom.L.R. 699. Per Iqbal Ahmad and Verma, JJ.—The expression "passed against the same judgment-debtor" must be liberally construed. The object of S. 73 being to provide for rateable distribution of assets upon which two or more decree-holders have equal claims, the words "passed against the same judgment-debtor" must be interpreted as referring more to the property which a judgment-debtor represents "than to the person against whom execution has been sought." Per Bajpai, J.—The personality, the character and the capacity of the judgment-debtor should not be ignored and undue preference should not be given to the property from which the assets are realized. The decree holders must have obtained their decrees against the same persons and it may become a matter of no importance that by reason of the death of the judgment-debtor in one decree the property that can be seized in execution in both the decrees happens to be the same. If the two decrees were not against the same persons, S. 73 would not be applicable. A.I.R. 1941 All. 110 (F.B.). A decree obtained against a Hindu father and a decree against the father and his sons are decrees against the same judgment-debtor for purposes of S. 73. 44 L.W. 615=1936 M. 948=71 M.L.J. 541. See also 41 L.W. 490=1935 M. 399, where the question was raised but not decided. But see (1937) 1 M.L.J. 180=1937 Mad. 253, 45 L.W. 501=1937 Mad. 504; 52 L.W. 191=1940 Mad. 826=1940 2 M.L.J. 23; 1939 All. 545. The expression, "the same judgment-debtor" in S. 73, must be construed strictly. A decree against a father and son, members of a Hindu joint family, and a decree against the father alone as manager of the joint Hindu family cannot be regarded as decrees against the same judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 73. 43 Bom.L.R. 695. A decree against a Hindu father and a decree against the father and his son, are decrees, against the same judgment-debtor for purposes of section 73. If the son's interest in the family property is sold in execution of the decree against the father and son, the holder of the decree against the father alone is entitled to rateable distribution under section 73. 51 L.W. 357=1940 Mad. 525=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 553. Where a creditor has obtained a decree against a Hindu coparcener and attached his undivided interest in the joint family property during his lifetime, and the undivided interest is sold in execution after the death of the coparcener-judgment-debtor, other creditors who have obtained decrees against the same coparcener but have not obtained attachment of the undivided interest during his life time cannot claim rateable distribution under section 73, from out of the sale proceeds. The assets realised by the sale are liable to rateable distribution only among such creditors as have attached the coparcener's share during his life time in execution of their decrees against him. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 146=42 Bom.L.R. 218=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 190. If a decree is obtained against a man as heir of a deceased person and another decree is obtained against him in his personal capacity, the two decrees are against the same judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 73. Consequently, if one of the two decree-holders takes out execution and assets are realised, the other is entitled to rateable distribution. 63 C. 923=40 C.W.N. 570=1936 C. 210. See also 1937

NOTES.

M.W.N. 465. Claims under this section are claims enforceable by attachment, against which assignments made under section 64 are void. 7 C. 34. Section does not apply to deposits by judgment-debtor for a particular decree. 81 I.C. 7=1925 N. 157. Set-off claimed under O. 21, R. 72 is subject to rights of persons who are entitled to rateable distribution. If no such person is in existence on the date of sale or fifteen days thereafter set-off takes effect. 1931 M. 103=130 I.C. 458=1930 M.W.N. 568. But see 1925 O. 287. In the pendency of an application under this section, set-off under O. 21, R. 72 cannot be ordered. 52 C.L.J. 19. Proviso to section 73 (1) (b) applies also when the decree-holder and mortgagee are the same provided the decree debt and mortgage debt are distinct. Where they are the same, proviso does not apply. Money-decree passed in mortgage suit—Title to mortgaged property held to be in third person—Mortgagor subsequently acquiring title. Decree-holder first applied for execution of money decree and later for sale of the properties. Held, section 73 (1) (b) not applicable—Remedy against property is by suit. 53 M. 670=122 I.C. 366=1930 M. 138. Judgment-debtor's property attached and placed in charge of Superatdar—Failure to produce property—Warrant issued—Payment made to avoid attachment. Held, the amount was liable for rateable distribution among the other creditors. Held also, that the amount realized from the Superatdar was, in the eye of the law, the sale proceeds of the judgment-debtor's property which was admittedly attached in execution of the decree against him. Simply because the Superatdar failed to restore the property which was entrusted to him, the nature of the execution case was not changed; for all practical purposes the Superatdar represented the judgment-debtor. 148 I.C. 944=1934 N. 62.

JURISDICTION.—Under section 73, a Court acts in an administrative capacity. It cannot therefore inquire into the validity of a decree; any order to that purpose is entirely without jurisdiction. 152 I.C. 482=1934 P. 545. An application for rateable distribution can be entertained by the original Court even when the petition for execution is transferred from that Court under O. 21, R. 6. 35 P.L.R. 305=1934 L. 113 (1). A custody Court has no authority to make any rateable distribution unless it be the attaching Court as well. Under O. 21, R. 52 it can only determine the question of priority and thereafter act under the instructions of the attaching Court. 146 I.C. 791 (1)=37 C.W.N. 820=1933 C. 814. In a case where a decree shows on the face of it that the judgment-debtor is an "agriculturist" or it may be, if the decree shows on the face of it that it is time barred, the executing Court can refuse to allow rateable distribution. 39 Bom.L. R. 1212.

RATEABLE DISTRIBUTION—FORMAL APPLICATION, IF NECESSARY.—Per Sulaiman, C.J.—Section 73 does not make it necessary for a decree-holder to make any formal application for a rateable share in the assets. All that is necessary is that he should have made an application to that Court for the execution of his decree for payment of money. 4 A. W.R. 1236=1934 A. 1057. See also 1937 M.W.N. 480. All that section 73 requires is that an applicant for rateable distribution must have applied, before the receipt of assets by the Court, for execution of his decree. A transferee of a decree for money is entitled to claim and get rateable distribution if he applies for execution before the receipt of assets even though the transfer in his decree is not recognised by the Court before such receipt. The section says nothing about the recognition of the transfer by the Court in the case of an application for execution by the transferee. 1941 M.W.N. 699=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 219.

WHO CAN APPLY.—See 20 S.L.R. 111. Only bona fide decree-holders can apply for rateable distribution, and a Court is bound to ascertain this fact. 11 C. at p. 44. See also 13 B. 154. Application for rateable distribution is not an application for execution. 64 I.C. 53=17 N. L. R. 143. Application for execution is necessary to entitle decree-holder to rateable distribution. Mere petition for rateable distribution is not enough. 87 I.C. 1025=1925 N. 382. The application must be to the Court holding the assets. It is not necessary to have the decree transferred for execution to the Court holding the assets. 132 I.C. 832=1931 R. 111 (2) (5 R. 757 held overruled by 6 R. 131.) Attachment, not sufficient. 90 I. C. 527=1926 C. 249. But see 1936 C. 390 holding that the Court has power to allow rateable distribution apart from section 73 in such cases. A person by simply obtaining an order for attachment before judgment is not entitled to rateable distribution. 30 I.C. 38=28 C.L.J. 614; 12 B. 400. Section 73 only permits "application to the Court for the execution of decrees for the payment of money" and not by persons who have obtained orders for payment of money which are capable of being executed. The definition of decree in section 2 (2) does not include an order which is defined in section 2 (14). Therefore a person holding an order for refund of purchase money is not entitled to put in his application for rateable distribution, even though the order in his favour is capable of execution as a decree under section 36, C.P. Code. 17 N.L.J. 146. The holder of a decree for unascertained mesne profits, who has applied to the Court to ascertain the amount thereof comes within the purview of this section. 5 M. 123. On this point, see also 40 L.W. 291=151 I.C. 609=1934 M. 604=67 M.L.J. 303; 23 A. 106; 4 B. 429. Where money due to a judgment-debtor is attached in the hands of this debtor and paid by him into Court, a rival decree-holder attaching it in Court is entitled to rateable distribution. 5 M.L.J. 151. See also 5 L.L.J. 279=1924 L. 132. (Sale postponed to enable judgment-debtor to raise money by private alienation). A mortgagee decree-holder who will be entitled to realize the balance by personal decree can apply for rateable distribution under this section. 152 I.C. 770=38 C.W.N. 850=1934 C. 764.

WHEN SHOULD APPLICATION BE MADE "BEFORE THE RECEIPT OF SUCH ASSETS."—As to cases bearing on this point, see 13 C. 225; 21 C. at p. 817; 6 B. 588; 28 M. 380; 6 Bom. L. R. 376; 87 I.C. 783=1925 C. 966; 37 L.W. 366=65 M.L.J. 347. (44 M. 100, Ref.), "Receipt" means receipt of the whole of the assets realised by one order for sale. 95 I.C. 205=1926 N. 380. The bringing in of the purchase-money realised by execution sale does not constitute "realisation" or "receipt" within section 73 and in cases where the decree-holder purchaser is allowed to set-off the purchase-money towards his decree amount, the assets are realised within the meaning of section 73 on the date of the sale itself and not on the last day of the period of 15 days allowed to a purchaser to deposit the amounts. 159 I.C. 228=42 L.W. 564=1935 M. 893. See also 1937 C. 55. For purposes of rateable distribution of assets under section 73, C.P. Code, in cases of execution by the Collector, the assets must be deemed to have been received by the Court on the date when they were received by the Collector. 1937 N. 16. Before rateable distribution can be ordered to an applicant it must be found as a fact whether the application was made before or after the deposit of sale proceeds. It is not enough if the application is made on the same day as when the sale proceeds are deposited into Court. It cannot be assumed from that that the application was made prior to the deposit. 1937 M.W.N. 239=45 L.W. 501=A. I. R. 1937 Mad. 50. Until the Court has received a decree it has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for execution. Where the decree was received by the executing Court the next day after the application for execution was filed, the application is not sustainable in law so as to be the basis of a claim for rateable distribution. 27 L.W. 423; 101 I.C. 908=1927 P. 252. Attachment by different Courts—Mode of distribution. See 29 Bom.L.R. 689; 37 Bom.L.R. 78; 1938 Lah. 801; 1938 A.W.R. (H.C.) 870. sold by either Court, see the cases cited under section 63. To determine the question of priority the material point of time is not the date of sale of the mortgaged property but the date of receipt of assets by the Court. 62 I.C. 167=33 C.L.J. 7. See also 44 C. 1072; 1932 B. 622. The creditors are not entitled to preferential treatment by reason of priority of attachment. The Court will apply the rules of justice, equity and good conscience in the determination of the relative claims of the creditors. 44 C. 1072; 65 M.L.J. 347=144 I.C. 252=37 L.W. 366. Where assets held by a Court of inferior grade is transferred to a superior Court, rateable distribution is to be made as on the date of receipt of assets by the superior Court. 29 Bom.L.R. 319=101 I.C. 411=1927 B. 247. Where a property was sold in execution by a Collector, during Civil Court vacation, an application by another decree-holder made on the reopening day of the Court cannot be deemed to have been made before the realization of the assets in the vacation, section 10, General Clauses Act, being not applicable to the case. 1937 N. 16. As to effect of private sale to one of the decree-holders, see 1933 N. 349.

NATURE OF APPLICATION MADE—"APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION."—A decree-holder who has obtained attachment before judgment is not entitled to rateable distribution in case he has not applied under O. 21, r. 10 to execute his decree. 33 C. 639; 12 B. 400; 30 I.C. 38=28 C.L.J. 614. See also 159 I.C. 228=42 L.W. 564=1935 M. 893; 1938 Rang.L.R. 565; 1940 Rang.L.R. 421. Fresh attachment is not necessary when attachment already exists. 53 A. 125=1931 A. 92. An order under section 73, is a judicial and not an administrative order. 15 Luck. 332=1940 O. W.N. 132=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 237. Under section 73, the Court can only divide the assets among such persons as may have made application to the Court for the execution of decrees. So where a creditor merely gets an attachment before judgment, he is not entitled to claim rateable distribution of assets realised in execution before he took out execution proceedings. 52 L.W. 807=1940 M.W.N. 1151=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 844=1941 Mad. 125. See also 1938 Rang.L.R. 565. The word 'application' in section 73 cannot be unqualified. It must mean an application made in accordance with law, not barred by limitation, not yet satisfied, and capable of being satisfied and it must also mean an application still subsisting and pending, and not already disposed of, whether on the merits or by default. 13 R. 514=158 I.C. 515=1935 R. 135. An application for execution of a decree presented before the sale-proceeds are deposited in Court will entitle the applicant to rateable distribution under section 73, C. P. Code, though the application, being defective, is returned, and re-presented only after the deposit of sale-proceeds, because on re-presentation, it must be deemed to be a valid presentation on the date of the original presentation. 1936 M. 91=59 M. 303=69

NOTES.

M.L.J. 908. But see 1929 N. 148=25 N.L.R. 94. The application for execution must be on the file and undisposed of, when the assets are received. 4 M. 383; 1937 N. 16. The date on which the application is required to be pending is the date on which the assets are received. The fact that an execution application filed before the receipt of the assets is dismissed for default later, i.e., before the rateable distribution is actually effected is immaterial. 17 Pat.L.T. 855=1937 P. 92. Merely because a Court after dismissing the application, orders the attachment to continue, it cannot be said that the application is pending, for purpose of claiming rateable distribution. 1936 N. 277. Where in pursuance of an execution application the judgment-debtor is arrested and brought to Court, but is released at his request for the grant of time to pay off the decree amount on furnishing security, a formal order dismissing the execution petition cannot be taken to be a judicial order legally or validly disposing of the execution application, but has to be regarded only as an order for administrative or statistical purposes. The execution application must therefore be deemed to be still pending for purposes of section 73, in spite of the grant of time to the judgment-debtor and in spite of the dismissal order. The decree-holder would therefore be entitled to claim rateable distribution on the basis of that application in the case of a sale and realisation of assets at the instance of another decree-holder brought about subsequent to the dismissal. 43 L.W. 703=1936 M. 437=70 M.L.J. 683. Application for attachment of fund in Court though defective in form by not conforming to O. 21, r. 11 is sufficient for entitling creditor to rateable distribution. 52 M. 760=57 M.L.J. 97=1929 M. 703 (F.B.). An informal letter asking the Judge to pay the money, sent by a Collector in respect of a decree for the Government is not an execution application. 8 R. 294. Necessity for execution application. See 95 I.C. 151=1926 L. 538; 90 I.C. 527=1926 C. 249; 20 S.L.R. 111=1926 S. 177. Execution application praying for relief which Court could not grant, if disentitles applicant to rateable distribution. 49 M.L.J. 753=91 I.C. 11=1926 M. 179. Where a decree-holder who has obtained a decree against the same judgment-debtor and attached the same property in a Court of lower grade has the execution proceedings transferred to the Court of superior grade in which the assets are realised, he is entitled to a rateable share in the assets realised by the latter Court without a fresh application for execution or even for grant of a rateable share. 163 I.C. 59=38 P.L.R. 281=1936 L. 519.

"DECREES FOR PAYMENT OF MONEY".—A decree does not lose the character of being a money decree against one judgment-debtor because, under it, a sale of the property of the other judgment-debtor is also decreed. 10 A. 35 at p. 38. It is essential that the decree should have been obtained against the same judgment-debtor. 42 C. 1; 25 B. 494; 47 I.C. 296; 27 C.L.J. 100; 14 C.L.J. 50. It is not necessary that all the judgment-debtors in the several decrees should be identical. 4 P.L.J. 373; 9 C. 920; 30 C. 583; 22 M. 241. A person who holds a decree against a Hindu father, and a person who holds a decree against the father and son holds a decree against the same judgment-debtor in case the property is the ancestral property of the family. 26 M. 179 (181). See also 29 B. 528. Clause (a) and the second proviso have reference only to sales in execution of simple money decrees, and to the mode in which sale proceeds are to be rateably distributed among simple money-decree-holders. 5 A. at p. 568. Neither this section nor O. 34, r. 13 is applicable to a case where the question is whether the surplus amount can be paid to a subsequent encumbrancer. 25 A.L.J. 190=1927 A. 467=49 A. 636. See also 1938 Sind 157 (Right to rateable distribution of person holding award of Registrar under Co-operative Societies Act). An order passed under section 186 of the Companies Act cannot be deemed to be a decree within the meaning of that word in section 73. Any person in whose favour such an order has been passed, cannot claim rateable distribution. 15 Luck. 332=1940 O.W.N. 132=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 237. A holder of a decree is entitled under section 73, to claim rateable distribution against the official Liquidator as the holder of a payment order under section 186 of the Companies Act. Section 199 of the Companies Act puts the payment order on the same footing as a decree so far as the execution goes and rateable distribution under section 73 is clearly a method of enforcement of a decree or of an order in the nature of a decree. 43 P.L.R. 310. A composite mortgage decree, i.e., a decree for sale containing a direction that if the sale proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the decretal amount the decree-holder will be entitled to realise the balance by personal decree, is a "decree for the payment of money" within the meaning of section 73 of C. P. Code, and the holder of such a decree is entitled to claim rateable distribution, when it is found that the mortgaged properties had been sold and exhausted and found insufficient to satisfy the decree. 152 I.C. 770=38 C.W.N. 850=1934 C. 764. The words "an encumbrance" cannot be read as "an incumbrance or incumbrances". 12 A. 546. See also 7 A. 378. When in execution of a mortgage decree a sale proceeds in lots, the sale need not be stopped as soon as the sum due under the decree is realized, if several other decree-holders have applied for rateable distribution. 17 M.L.J. 80. The right to claim a refund of assets arises only after such assets have been actually paid to a person not entitled to receive the same. A suit for a declaration that another decree-holder is not entitled to rateable distribution is not maintainable. 7 M.L.J. 277; 3 C.L.J. 385. See also 15 B. 438. The words "assets liable to be rateably distributed" mean assets reduced to a form in which they are available for immediate application towards the satisfaction of the decree which is being executed. 16 B. at p. 98. A debt due by a third party to the judgment-debtor, when paid into Court, is available for distribution. 19 M. 72. Rents of property under attachment, which have been realized by a Receiver appointed at the instance of one decree-holder, are available for distribution. 26 C. 772. But rent taken in lieu of interest, by a mortgagee, does not fall within the scope of the section. 9 M. 57. The 25 per cent. deposited by the purchaser at the date of sale would not be available for distribution until the balance is paid. 18 C. 242. The fact that under certain circumstances it is possible for the Court to set aside the sale and to return the purchase-money to the purchaser, does not render the purchase-money not available for distribution. 16 B. 16. When property has been ordered to be sold in several lots, and only some of the lots have been sold, the sale proceeds of those lots alone, are available for distribution before the remaining lots are sold. 26 M. 179.

NOTICE.—Notice of an application for rateable distribution need not be given to the other decree-holders. 27 A. 132.

PRESUMPTION.—Where payment of assets into Court and application for rateable distribution are made on the same day, there is no presumption as to the order of events and the officer distributing the assets should ascertain which act was prior in time. 47 I.C. 296=1918 M.W.N. 520.

ASSETS.—This term means all a man's property of whatever kind which may be used to satisfy debts or demands against him. 16 B. at p. 98; 16 I.C. 640=14 Bom.L.R. 633; 26 C.W.N. 169=70 I.C. 539=1922 C. 19. Section 73, does not apply to monies paid into Court in a suit when no question of execution arises. The expression "assets held by a Court" in the section means assets received in execution; and when the assets have been paid in for a specific purpose, they cannot be applied generally in execution so as to defeat the specific purpose. I.L.R. 1939 Bom. 133=41 Bom.L.R. 176=1939 Bom. 112. The expression "assets held by the Court" in section 73, obviously implies the idea of assets realised or converted into cash, for, unless the property has been converted into some form which renders it available for immediate distribution, the Court cannot be said to have received or held such assets. A cheque may, in certain circumstances, amount to an asset within the meaning of the section. Where the money representing the sale proceeds of the attached goods of the judgment-debtor is lying in the Treasury to the credit of the District Judge, a cheque drawn on the treasury by the District Judge for payment to the attaching decree-holder and delivered over to the executing Court and accepted by it will amount to an asset, when the only form of payment which the decree-holder desires is that the cheque should be endorsed over to him. After the receipt of such a cheque, the Court cannot entertain an application for rateable distribution by any other decree-holder. 45 C.W.N. 674. See also 1937 Pat. 651. It also means proceeds of execution sale. 26 M. at p. 181. Assets must be realized in execution under process of Court or in one of the modes prescribed by the Code. 13 I.C. 907=15 A.L.J. 49; 36 B. 156. But see also 70 I.C. 541=35 C.L.J. 327; 14 L.W. 582=70 I.C. 20=1921 M.W.N. 817; 1937 N. 80. It has however been held that the language of the section is wide enough to cover cases where moneys are in the hands of the Courts by whatever process the same has been realised. 41 M. 616=35 M.L.J. 150. But see also 30 C. 262. Even though the Collector to whom the decree is transferred for further execution, by a Civil Court, is not a Court, still in view of the duties of the Collector in this matter, though he is not an agent of such Court, the moneys received by him in execution of such decree are moneys received by him for and on behalf of such Court. The moneys so received, while they are in his hands, are "assets" held by such Civil Court. 173 I.C. 98=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 14. A decree-holder who has attached a property can follow the money realised by sale of it for arrears of revenue over and above the arrears due and is entitled to rateable distribution along with another decree-holder who has attached such money. 1937 N. 80=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 219. All money paid by a judgment-debtor into Court under stress of execution before sale, whether to avoid attachment or whether made at an earlier later stage, should be treated as assets held by the Court liable to rateable distribution under section 73. Money paid into Court under O. 21, r. 89 ought not to be exempted from this category. 12 P. 772=14 Pat.L.T. 357=1933 P. 303. See also 42 C.W.N. 840=1938 Cal. 521. Even where the attaching Court and the custody Court are the same, the assets would not reach the attaching Court under section 73 until it has been actually ordered to be credited to the decree in question. (44 M. 100, Ref.) 144 I.C. 252=37 L.W. 366=1933 M. 342 (2)=65 M.L.J. 347. Any money belonging to a person other than the judgment-debtor or any money paid into Court by a third party under a misapprehension cannot be described as 'assets' under section 73. A fund or sum of money cannot be regarded as "assets" unless it is in some sense the property of the judgment-debtor and can be legitimately applied to the payment of his debt. 13 P. 446=1934 P. 685. Where a judgment-debtor pays an amount into Court for a specific purpose, e.g., for payment to a particular decree-holder for the purpose of postponing an execution sale, that cannot be regarded as assets held by the Court liable to rateable distribution under section 73. 41 Bom.L.R. 997=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 468. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 176=1939 Bom. 112.

Quære.—Whether a payment under O. 21, r. 55, C. P. Code, can be regarded as "assets" held by the Court under section 73; 13 P. 446=1934 P. 685. See also 18 Pat. 404= special right or priority on the party who obtains the order. (Ibid.) See also 32 I.C. 944.

FUND IN COURT.—If a fund in Court has been attached by several creditors, none can claim preferential treatment owing to priority of attachment. 33 C.L.J. 7=62 I.C. 167. No book entry transferring the money to the credit of any execution, is necessary to treat the money as receipts for purpose of section. 156 I.C. 409=1935 P. 201. When a Court in execution of a decree attaches a fund in the Court the latter Court holds the fund subject to the direction of the execution Court and to transfer it to that Court. The fund as soon as it is transferred to the execution Court becomes "assets held by that Court" within section 73. All decree-holders who have applied are entitled to rateable distribution. 44 M. 100=39 M.L.J. 608 (F.B.). See also 42 M. 692; 42 M.L.J. 361; 31 I.C. 616=19 C.W.N. 345. Under section 73, it is the Court which holds the assets that can distribute them rateably. That Court is not bound to transfer the darkhast pending before it to another Court at its bidding. 41 Bom.L.R. 997=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 468. Where the fund in Court was the surplus sale proceeds payable to the defendant mortgagor after sale under a mortgage decree, the fund was not available for rateable distribution and the attaching decree-holders were to be paid fully in the order of their attachment. 26 M.L.J. 364. See also 38 M. 221; 158 I.C. 201=1935 M. 713=69 M.L.J. 121. The proceeds of a sale held in pursuance of an attachment of a company before its liquidation, must be distributed in accordance with the provisions of C. P. Code. 43 C. 586. When certain property belonging to the judgment-debtor was in the hands of the Tahsildar, two creditors obtained decrees against him, one of them in Munsiff's Court and the other in a Sub-Court within the same district. The former obtained an order for attachment earlier in date than the latter but before the money could be received from the Tahsildar, the latter also applied for attachment. Held, that the property could not be deemed to be "assets held by a Court" on the date when the attachment order was issued by the Munsif to the Tahsildar or even when it was received by the Tahsildar, and that therefore the decree-holder in the Munsif's Court was not entitled to priority merely on the ground of his being the first attaching decree-holder. 144 I.C. 252=37 L.W. 366=1933 M. 342 (2)=65 M.L.J. 347. See also 1939 A. 159=I.L.R. (1939) A. 162. The position is made very clear by the addition of Proviso (ii) to r. 52 of O. 21 in Madras according to which the receipt by a Court which has attached first shall be deemed to be on behalf of all the Courts in which there have been attachments of the property prior to the receipt of such assets. (Vide amendment of rule by Madras High Court.) Where goods of a judgment-debtor attached by creditors remain in the possession of the Nazir in premises occupied by the judgment-debtor

as lessee, and the lease is not terminated after the attachment, there is no privity between the Nazir and the landlord. But the landlord is entitled to claim the rent for the period during which the attached goods were kept in the premises as part of the costs of realization to be deducted from the sale proceeds before distribution to the creditors under section 73. 187 I.C. 55=1940 Sind 17.

RIGHT TO RATEABLE DISTRIBUTION.—Execution before Collector. 36 B. 519. Right to rateable distribution—Conditions to be satisfied. 46 M. 506=44 M.L.J. 413 (On appeal from 42 M.L.J. 350); see also 18 I.C. 55; 14 C.L.J. 50=15 C.W.N. 872. When there are two decree-holders of one judgment-debtor and the objection of the judgment-debtor that the property was non-transferable against one is disallowed and against the other it is allowed, the latter is entitled to rateable distribution of the sale proceeds on execution by the former. 30 I. C. 49=21 C.L.J. 624. Where there are several attachments before judgment and the moneys are realised before any of the plaintiffs obtains a decree, the money should be held to the credit of all the suits and distributed between all the attaching creditors who subsequently obtained decrees. 15 L. W. 531=68 I.C. 714=1922 M. 236. If more persons than one holding a decree against the same judgment-debtor attach one and the same decree obtained by the judgment-debtor against another before the money due under the attached decree is deposited in Court by the judgment-debtor of the attached decree, i.e., before the assets are paid into Court, the provisions of section 73, C. P. Code, are attracted, and the assets after the deduction of the costs of realisation are to be rateably distributed among the several decree-holders. The decree-holder who starts the first execution cannot claim the benefit of the entire amount deposited by reason of O. 21, r. 53 (2), which rule contemplates only cases where a decree for money is attached by a sole decree-holder. 40 C.W.N. 1249. If the order for rateable distribution is set aside on appeal, there is no power to order restitution under section 144. 42 M.L.J. 473.

PERMISSION TO SET-OFF granted to the other decree-holder would not affect the right to such distribution. 59 I.C. 80=12 L.W. 328. See also 1937 A.L.J. 1371=1938 All. 130; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 677 (P.C.). The right of the decree-holder to have, and the power of the Code to allow set-off of the purchase money against the decretal amount where the decree-holder himself is the auction purchaser is subject to the right of any other decree-holder who may be entitled to rateable distribution. 1933 A.L.J. 1102=1933 A. 666. See also 1935 M. 904; 1937 C. 55; 1937 All. 422; 1938 All. 130; 17 Pat. L.T. 847. Under O. 21, r. 72 leave to set off can be given before the sale has been held. Thus it can be given at the same time as the permission to bid is granted to the decree-holder. When a decree-holder has been given permission to bid at an auction-sale and to set-off the amount of his bid, if successful, against the amount due to him under his decree and when the successful bid is less than the decree amount, the whole of the set-off must be deemed as made on the date of sale and the whole of the amount must be deemed to have been received or realised eo instanti the sale is made. In such a case, section 73 will give no benefit to other decree-holders who apply for rateable distribution after the conclusion of the sale, however soon after its conclusion their application may be made. 38 L.W. 579=1933 M. 804=65 M.L.J. 569; I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 466=1937 Nag. 383; 1940 Pesh. 36; 42 L.W. 564=159 I.C. 228=1935 M. 893; 1937 C. 55. But see 164 I.C. 568=1936 Pesh. 164 where the date of confirmation of sale was considered the date on which the assets were received. Whenever there is a pending application for execution, the applicant in which would be entitled to rateable distribution, there cannot be any receipt of assets or realisation of assets by the Court unless the decree-holder purchaser's rateable share (when the purchase is by him) is determined and the balance is deposited by him into Court. The rule under which, in an ordinary case, where no question of rateable distribution can arise and a set-off has been allowed to a decree-holder purchaser, the date of sale is to be regarded as the date of realisation of assets, cannot apply to a case where there is a valid claim to rateable distribution. There can be no set-off except subject to the right of rateable distribution and in such cases the assets cannot be deemed to have been realised by the Court till the amount has actually been deposited under orders of the Court. 43 L.W. 703=1936 M. 437=70 M.L.J. 683. RIVAL DECREE-HOLDERS.—Permission to one to bid and to set-off—Right of the other decree-holders to rateable distribution not affected. 59 I.C. 86=12 L. W. 328; 134 I.C. 616=1931 P. 405. Decree against two persons—Assets realised in execution—Right of holder of another decree against one of these persons alone to rateable distribution confined to assets of the common judgment-debtor. 28 Bom.L.R. 78=93 I.C. 222=1926 B. 150; 1938 Pesh. 63.

RIVAL DECREE-HOLDERS.—Application for rateable distribution whether maintainable after realization of assets by executing Court. 62 I.C. 857. The crucial date for determining the right for rateable distribution under section 73, C. P. Code, is the date on which the assets are received. On this date all the decree-holders whose applications were pending for execution in the Court and who had not received satisfaction became entitled to share the assets rateably. Their right to share having accrued to them, it could not be lost by the mere fact that their application was dismissed in default later on. 1940 N.L. J. 340=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 302. See also 1941 A.M.L.J. 19. Right of one decree-holder to impeach decree of rival decree-holder—

(a) where any property is sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the mortgagee or incumbrancer shall not be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale ;

(b) where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court may, with the consent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold ;

(c) where any immovable property is sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon, the proceeds of sale shall be applied—first, in defraying the expenses of the sale ;

secondly, in discharging the amount due under the decree ;

thirdly, in discharging the interest and principal monies due on subsequent incumbrances (if any) ; and Fraud and collusion—Suit for declaration and injunction before distribution of assets. 43 M. 381=38 M.L.J. 108. Rival decree-holders—Assets held by Munsiff—Power to order rateable distribution—Small causes decree. 25 M.L.J. 601. Mortgage decrees which provide for recovery of the deficiency of the decree after sale of hypotheca from the person and other properties of the mortgagor are decrees “for the payment of money” within the meaning of section 73 and entitle the mortgagee to apply for rateable distribution. 39 M. 570=29 M.L.J. 96. See also 74 I.C. 140; 160 I.C. 892=1936 Pesh. 52. As between two attaching decree-holders one executing his own decree and the other executing the attached decree, the one who had applied for execution of the attached decree was entitled to rateable distribution since in effect he was executing his own decree. 1913 M.W.N. 1021=21 I.C. 611.

DISMISSAL OR WITHDRAWAL OF EXECUTION APPLICATION.—A decree-holder is not entitled to rateable distribution if the application for execution is dismissed or time-barred or the decree is satisfied. 30 I.C. 49=21 C.L.J. 624; 24 I.C. 83=18 C.W.N. 1311. Claims enforceable under the attachment cease to have effect on withdrawal of attachment. 66 I.C. 642=8 O.L.J. 358. The section only requires that application for execution should be made before the assets have been received and that the decree-holder at the time the assets are to be distributed has not obtained satisfaction. There is no warrant in the section for the view that the application should be pending. 143 I.C. 87=1933 Pesh. 52.

ENQUIRY INTO RIVAL CLAIMS.—Suit by one decree-holder for refund of moneys awarded to others before actual distribution does not lie. 46 I.C. 101=16 A.L.J. 530. See also 1940 Nag. 267. The inquiry by the Court under this section is non-judicial. A Court under this section cannot inquire into the validity or bona fides of a decree on the strength of which rateable distribution is claimed. 62 C. 715=39 C.W.N. 490=1935 C. 290 (F.B.); 40 M. 431=32 M.L.J. 553. See also 5 P. 445=1926 P. 497. Under section 73, when rival decree-holders apply for rateable distribution of assets the Court can investigate whether any of the decree-holders is a bona fide decree-holder or is a benamidar for the judgment-debtor. 17 C.W.N. 326=16 C.L.J. 582=16 I.C. 795 (11 C. 42; 13 B. 154, Foll.). See also 23 M.L.J. 699. As to whether an executing Court can inquire into the validity of a decree under any circumstances, see 1934 P. 545=152 I.C. 482. Also 40 M. 341=32 M.L.J. 553; 104 I.C. 735=1927 M. 944.

FRAUD AND COLLUSION.—The Court will not grant rateable distribution if collusion or corrupt bargain is proved. A decree-holder can show that a decree obtained by another decree-holder was obtained by collusion with the judgment-debtor. 23 M. L.J. 699. See also 17 C.W.N. 326=16 C. L.J. 582=16 I.C. 795; 43 M. 381=38 M. L.J. 108. But see 1926 P. 497. An executing Court when rateably distributing the proceeds of a sale in execution, cannot go into the question whether the decree has been obtained by fraud. 46 B. 635 (Overruling 13 B. 154). See also 43 M. 381=38 M.L.J. 108.

SEC. 73 (1), PROVISOR (b).—There were three decrees against the same judgment-debtors, one, a simple money decree and the other, two decrees for sale based on mortgage. In the course of execution proceedings, the money decree-holder and one of the mortgage decree-holders agreed as follows:—“Sale proceedings be carried out in the execution case of money decree and in the remaining two executions, at the time when sale takes place, rateable distribution be made”. Held, that the reasonable interpretation to be placed upon the agreement was that when the sale took place in execu-fourthly, rateably among the holders of decrees for the payment of money against the judgment-debtor, who have, prior to the sale of the property, applied to the Court which passed the decree ordering such sale for execution of such decrees, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof.

(2) Where all or any of the assets liable to be rateably distributed under this section are paid to a person not entitled to receive the same, any person so entitled may sue such person to compel him to refund the assets.

NOTES.

tion of the money decree, the mortgage decree-holder would be entitled to the same interest in the proceeds of the sale of the property mortgaged with him as he had in the property sold, in accordance with section 73 (1), proviso (b). 166 I.C. 714=1937 O.W.N. 127=1937 Oudh 270.

SEC. 73 (2).—Section 73 (2) applies only where the assets liable to be rateably distributed are paid to persons not entitled to receive the same. Where the sum in dispute is no part of the assets liable to rateable distribution the section has no application. 145 I.C. 362=14 Pat.L.T. 287=1933 P. 277. See also 42 M.L.J. 473. The terms of sub-section (2) to section 73 are wide enough to cover a case where the plaintiff claims that he is entitled to all the assets in the custody of the Court and that the defendant, who claims and obtains rateable distribution, is not entitled thereto. 184 I.C. 589=A.I.R. 1939 All. 545. Although R. 89 specifically mentions payment to the decree-holder, that is only an injunction to the judgment-debtor as to what amount he has to pay for the purpose of getting the sales set aside. The sale may be held at the instance of one of the execution creditors, but any amount received from the judgment-debtor in Court under pressure of the sale (e.g., under O. 21, R. 89) must enure for the benefit of all the execution creditors who have acquired a claim to rateable distribution under section 73. 1933 N. 347. A suit under section 73 (2) is in substance one in which the plaintiff claims to be placed in the same position in which he would have been placed had the Court which originally dealt with the application for rateable distribution not made a mistake, and it is governed by the principle that it is the duty of the Court "to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors." The Court has therefore power in such a suit to award interest even prior to suit. 1937 M.W.N. 465 (2). A suit to recover money wrongly paid to a defendant under section 73 is a suit for money paid to him for plaintiff's use and must be brought within three years from the date of payment and not within six years under Art. 120 of Limitation Act. 39 M. 62=27 M.L.J. 640 (37 M. 381, Foll.). See also 1937 M.W.N. 480. Application for rateable distribution—Death of applicant—Substitution of legal representatives—Application for rateable distribution by legal representatives —Dismissal—Suit by legal representatives not maintainable. 30 C.W.N. 735=96 I.C. 378=1926 C. 967.

APPEAL.—No appeal lies against an order passed under this section. 14 A. 210; 5 P.L.J. 415=57 I.C. 421; 134 I.C. 195=1932 L. 96 (42 C. 1, Foll.); 162 I.C. 349=1936 A.L.J. 559=1936 A. 626. If an order is made under section 73 it is an order in execution proceedings and not a decree, being between two rival decree-holders and is therefore not appealable, the judgment-debtor being not concerned with the dispute. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 801. See also 1938 Pesh. 63. An order refusing a prayer for rateable distribution is one under section 73 and not under section 47. Sub-section (2) of section 73 gives the aggrieved party a right to bring a regular suit. No appeal is allowed from such order. 176 I.C. 459=40 P.L.R. 49=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 307. An order refusing to execute an order allowing an application for rateable distribution is appealable. 133 I.C. 166=1931 P. 359 (1 Pat.L.T. 296, Dist.). But an order determining a question of rateable distribution as between rival decree-holders in which the judgment-debtor has no interest is not appealable as it does not fall under section 47. 55 B. 473; 1940 Rang.L.R. 718; 1940 N.L.J. 215=1940 Nag. 267; 134 I.C. 195 (12 C. 1, Foll.). But see 133 I.C. 737=1931 B. 252=33 Bom. L. R. 503, where the question arises between the judgment-debtor on the one hand and the decree-holders on the other in which case the order would fall under section 47. An order of the execution Judge treating an execution application as ultra vires holding that the agent who filed it has no locus standi is appealable under section 47. 177 I.C. 872=A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 63. See also 1935 L. 302 cited under section 47, supra.

REVISION.—Neither can the High Court revise the order. 4 M.L.J. 87. But see 4 M. 383. See also 5 P.L.J. 415=57 I.C. 421; except in very exceptional circumstances, see 60 I.C. 371; 48 L.W. 807= (1938) 2 M.L.J. 1001; 17 I.C. 254=176 P.L.R. 1912; 33 P.L.R. 975. Taking a wrong view of section 73 in an application for rateable distribution is not declining to exercise jurisdiction. Hence no revision is competent from the order. 156 I.C. 409=1935 P. 201 (2). An order under section 73 is not merely a ministerial order; it is a judicial order. But the order cannot be interfered with in revision as the party has another remedy by way of suit. 27 S. L.R. 190=1933 S. 329. Revision is not proper remedy, but a regular suit. See 25 I.C. 592=1914 M.W.N. 738; 1926 M.179; 1928 M. 362; 14 L. 243. Also 41 L.W. 490=1935 M. 399, cited under section 115. Where a decree-holder by attachment in execution of his decree brings into Court a sum of money, and another decree-holder who had already put in his execution application, seeks to obtain rateable distribution, a refusal to so rateably distribute the sum is a failure to exercise a jurisdiction, for the sum is an asset in the hands of the Court and the other requisite is also present, and hence should be set aside. 177 I.C. 269. See also 1934 M.W.N. 738. Where an insolvent after adjudication and before discharge presented an application for rateable distribution in execution of a decree obtained by him prior to the insolvency, on the question as to the maintainability of the application by him. Held, that the application was competent. (68 M.L.J. 392, Foll.) and that a revision lay to the High Court. 48 L.W. 807=1938 M.W.N. 1247=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 1001.

(3) Nothing in this section affects any right of the Crown.

RIGHT OF SUIT.—Revision lies in the case of obvious mistake. 104 I.C. 735=1927 M. 944. A suit lies to recover money paid to a wrong person under a valid judgment or equitable distribution under section 73. 39 A. 322. A rival decree-holder need not wait for the distribution of the assets before bringing a suit for a declaration that the decree of one of the decree-holders was obtained by fraud and collusion and that he was not entitled to share in the rateable distribution. 43 M. 381=38 M.L.J. 108. When a decree-holder desires to execute his decree by attaching in execution a decree obtained by his judgment-debtor against another person, and that other person has a cross-decree against the holder of the attached decree, the provisions of O. 21, R. 18, come into play and a set-off has to be allowed. Section 73 does not come into play in such a case. 174 I.C. 53=1937 A.L.J. 1371=A.I.R. 1938 All. 130. Petition under section 115 is not the best way to settle questions coming under section 73 where money is paid to third parties after the application and they are not parties to the application. Regular suit is proper remedy. 25 I.C. 592=1914 M.W.N. 738. See also 65 I.C. 230; 106 I.C. 258=1927 M.W.N. 795; 104 I.C. 735=1927 M. 944. The omission by the person claiming rateable distribution to invite the attention of the Collector to his own right of rateable distribution does not deprive him of his right to claim rateable distribution in a regular suit. The fact that the decree which is noted to be satisfied will have to be reopened does not affect the question. 1933 A.L.J. 1102

=1933 A. 666. Unless it is ascertained, or definitely alleged on substantial grounds, that the assets realised—or to be realised in execution of decrees of rival decree-holders would be insufficient to discharge in full the claims of all the decree-holders under section 73. No decree-holder has a right to maintain a suit to have the decree of his rival declared void on the ground that it was fraudulently obtained and to ask the Court to grant an injunction restraining the defendant from executing his decree against the common judgment-debtor or his property. (43 M. 381, Dist.); 145 I.C. 206=1933 N. 214.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—In the case of decrees against several persons money realised from judgment-debtors who are common to both decrees is alone liable for distribution among the decree-holders; but section 73 does not permit rateable distribution of money paid by one judgment-debtor to a decree-holder who has no claim against him. 145 I.C. 362=14 Pat. L.T. 287=1933 P. 277. See also 1938 Sind 175. Where money due to the judgment-debtor is already under attachment by an order obtained by the decree-holder, there is no necessity for him to have it again attached when the application for execution and rateable distribution is transferred to another Court and the money is received by such Court. 147 I.C. 1071=11 O.W.N. 161=1934 O. 110. Rateable distribution can be allowed in favour of a decree-holder who has obtained a decree against the same judgment-debtor and attached the same property in a Court of lower grade although the decree is transferred to the Court in which the assets are realized and there is no application for execution of the decree in that Court. 55 A. 622=1933 A.L.J. 921=1933 A. 563. Decree against two sets of defendants—Satisfaction of decree—Subsequent decree-holder against one judgment-debtor—Adjustment of rights. 151 I.C. 170=1934 M. 426=66 M.L.J. 699.

SEC. 73 (3): PRIORITY OF CROWN DEBTS.—The enactment of section 73 (3) gives a statutory recognition to the doctrine of priority of Crown debts which has been laid down so long ago as (1866) 5 B.H.C.R. 23. See also 1937 Rang.L.R. 344=1937 Rang. 380; I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 124=42 P.L.R. 96=1939 Lah. 488 (Priority in respect of court-fees due to Crown in pauper suit). In the context, it can refer only to cases in which the Government is in the same position as any other decree-holder, and not to cases where it has a first charge, and its intention obviously is to say that in such circumstances the Secretary of State will not really be governed by the provisions of Cls. (1) and (2) but will be entitled to the benefit of the doctrine of priority. 59 M. 872=1936 M. 802=70 M.L.J. 601 (33 C.

RESISTANCE TO EXECUTION.

74. Where the Court is satisfied that the holder of a decree for the possession of immovable property or that the purchaser of immovable property sold in execution of a decree has been resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession of the property by the judgment-debtor or some person on his behalf and that such resistance or obstruction was without any just cause, the Court may, at the instance of the decree-holder or purchaser, order the judgment-debtor or such other person to be detained in the civil prison for a term which may extend to thirty days and may further direct that the decree-holder or purchaser be put into possession of the property.

PART III.

INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

Commissions.

75. Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may issue a commission—

- (a) to examine any person ;
- (b) to make a local investigation ;
- (c) to examine or adjust accounts ; or
- (d) to make a partition.

76. (1) A commission for the examination of any person may be issued to any Court (not being a High Court) situate in a province other than the province in which the Court of issue is situate and having jurisdiction in the place in which the person to be examined resides.

(2) Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of any person under sub-section (1) shall examine him or cause him to be examined pursuant thereto, and the commission, when it has been duly executed, shall be returned 1040 and 69 M.L.J. 832, Rel. on). See also 147 I.C. 863=1933 S. 368. Section 73 (3) does not confer any jurisdiction on the executing Court to entertain a claim on behalf of the Government in the absence of any decree in support of it. The sub-section only saves the rights of the Government, independent of the section, such as they might be, and merely appears to have reference to the right of priority which can be ordinarily claimed in respect of debts due to the Crown. 156 I.C. 826=1935 L. 319 (2).

SEC. 74.—A decree for partition is a decree for the possession of property. 16 M. 127. Possession is not limited to actual possession. 25 B. 478. Detention in civil prison can be ordered only at the instance of the decree-holder or purchaser and the Court cannot order it of its own motion. 26 M. 494. The "resistance" or "obstruction" is the resistance to or obstruction of the officer charged with the execution of the warrant. 14 A. 417 (419).

SEC. 75.—Order 26 does not in any way amplify the scope of section 75. 3 L. 209. Section 75 does not authorize a Court to delegate to a Commissioner the trial of any material issue which the Judge is bound to try. 3 L. 209 (16 M. 350, Foll.). See also 89 I.C. 343=7 P.L.T. 161=1925 P. 576; 129 I.C. 416=1930 C. 764=53 C.L. J. 229. The judicial functions of a Court cannot be delegated to a Commissioner and the powers of Court to issue a commission is strictly defined in section 75. 15 C.L. J. 17=13 I.C. 440=17 C.W.N. 369. See also 30 Bom.L.R. 131; 31 Bom.L.R. 108. Section does not contemplate a succession of commissions all covering the same ground. Issue of commission to two persons to render proper account of improvements is irregular and of doubtful legality. 1929 M. 681. An appellate Court has power to issue a commission for a local investigation without recording its reasons. 135 I.C. 243=1932 A. 270. Purposes for which a Court could issue a commission are confined to those specified in the section. 139 I.C. 804=1932 A. 264. The issue of commission is a matter in the discretion of the Court; and if the discretion is wrongly exercised the question ought to be raised before the Court of first appeal. It cannot be agitated for the first time in second appeal. 1933 P. 542. See also 44 C.W.N. 304 (Power of Court to issue commission to ascertain value of specific movable properties sued for).

SEO. 79.—FORM OF SUIT against the "Secretary of State" must be under the designation "The Secretary of State for India in Council." I.C. 14; 40 I.A. 48 (51 and 52). For applicability to land acquisition proceedings, see 1929 L. 10. Suit lies when the Secretary of State acts under colour of legal title and not as a sovereign authority. When property comes to him under a decree of Court, it is not taken by an act of sovereignty but under colour of legal title. 5 P. 539=1926 P. 321. In all suits against Government, the Court should see that the defendant is properly described. 7 M. 478. The section gives no cause of action but only declares the mode of procedure when a cause of action has arisen. 6 Bom.L.R. 131; 27 B. 189. The head of a Government department is not liable for wrongful acts of officials in that department unless it can be shown that the act complained of was substantially the act of the head of the department himself. 51 B. 749. The Government while filing a suit through the Secretary of State against a private person should not regard itself as standing in the same position as a private litigant. In the public interests, it should insist that its officers should take upon themselves a due share of responsibility in satisfying themselves that the allegations on which the suit is sought to be founded are reasonably true and not be led away by emphatic assertions made by private parties or even by their offer of indemnity as to costs. 46 L.W. 748=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 523=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 178. A suit against a state-administered or a state-owned Railway should be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council. 10 P. 466; 1931 P. 393; 52 B. 548; 1932 A.L.J. 1033. In a suit against a State Railway Company unless the Secretary of State is made a party, the Railway Company is not liable. 1933 P. 630.

NOTES.

SEC. 80.—The object of the section in providing for notice is to afford the Secretary of State or the Public Officer concerned an opportunity to reconsider his legal position, and to make amends, if so advised, without litigation. 40 B. 392; 24 M. 279; 7 C. 499; 6 C. 8 (F.B.); 54 C. 969 (1023); 23 L.W. 464=91 I.C. 368=1926 M. 408; 58 C. 850. See also 156 I.C. 591=37 Bom. L.R. 341=1935 B. 229. Section 80 is clear and peremptory that notice must be served on the Secretary of State as a condition precedent to the institution of a suit against him, although he is impleaded only as a pro forma defendant and although no relief is claimed as against him. The section applies to all suits in which the Secretary of State is made a party defendant, whether or not any relief is claimed against him. 15 P. 353=17 Pat.L.T. 152=1936 P. 339. See also 177 I.C. 709=1939 P. 32. The provisions of S. 80, C.P.Code, are mandatory and contain a clear and unqualified prohibition upon the institution of suit without the statutory notice. It is not in the public interest that the provisions as to notice can be waived at the whim of the officer concerned. Where there is an averment in plaint that a notice under section 80 is 'sent' to the officer concerned, the averment is not in compliance with section 80 as the words 'delivered' or 'left' are not used as provided by section 80. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 291. The requirement as to notice under section 80 applies to all cases in which the Secretary of State is a defendant. Absence of such a notice entails a failure of the whole suit, irrespective of the existence of other defendants. In such a case the plaint is defective and should be rejected as a whole under O. 7, R. 11 (d). Such a course is preferable to dismissal of the suit. 1938 Pat. 127=18 Pat.L.T. 921. See also 22 Pat. L.T. 392. A suit filed within two months, i.e., before the expiry of the full two months, is premature and ought to be dismissed. It is not open to the Collector representing the Crown to waive the plea as to the want of a proper notice under section 80. 53 L.W. 233=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 328. Section 80 was intended to afford protection to officials against personal responsibility for official acts. If it is sought to make an officer personally liable for certain acts done or purporting to be done by him in his official capacity it is essential before a suit is commenced that there should be a notice served upon him under section 80. The object of the notice is to give him an opportunity to reconsider his position with regard to the claim and to make amends or settle the claim if he is so advised. 44 C.W.N. 74=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 1. See also 1938 Nag. 415. Section 80 imposes a statutory and unqualified obligation upon the Court. The Code, though a Procedure Code, must be read in accordance with the natural meaning of its words. Section 80 is express, explicit and mandatory, and it admits of no implications or exceptions. If a suit is instituted before the expiry of two months prescribed by section 80, the suit is clearly unsustainable in limine and must be dismissed. But a plea that a suit has been instituted during the currency of the notice may be waived. Where the applicability of S. 80 depends upon proof of certain facts, and the Secretary of State does not deny the facts alleged in the plaint then he would be held to have waived his objection to the proof of those facts. When, for instance, a plaintiff states in his plaint that the notice has been served on a certain date which beyond two months of the date of the institution of the suit and the Secretary of State does not raise any objection, the latter would be debarred from challenging these facts at the trial. So also when it has been alleged in the plaint that notice was sent with all the requisites beyond two months and the Secretary of State does not deny that the notice was received by him, he cannot during the trial be heard to say that he has not received the notice. But where the facts are admitted by the plaintiff himself and he fails under the express provisions of the statute no question of waiver can arise at all. The Secretary of State cannot be held to have waived the objection where the provisions of section 80 have not been complied with on the admitted facts. 20 Pat. 394. Section 80 is express, explicit, mandatory and admits of no implications or exceptions. Where there are two plaintiffs, notice by one is not sufficient notice within the meaning of section 80; it is not sufficient compliance with its provisions and the suit as a whole is bad. (1935 B. 229 and 1935 M. 389, Foll.) 159 I.C. 33=1935 S. 206; 14 L. 330=1933 L. 203. See also 37 Bom.L.R. 341=1935 B. 229; 41 L.W. 591=1935 M. 389. Section 80, applies to all forms of suit and whatever the relief sought. The section is express, explicit and mandatory and admits of no implications or exceptions. Where a suit is filed for sale in enforcement of a mortgage to which the Secretary of State for India in Council is a party as being a mortgagee of some of the properties under the Land Improvement Loans Act, notice under section 80, C.P. Code, is necessary; and in the absence of such notice the suit must be dismissed as against him. 1938 M.W.N. 280=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 583. See also 20 Pat. 394.

CONSTRUCTION — ENGLISH DECISIONS.—VALUE OF.—In interpreting section 80 cases in the English Courts decided under statutes passed in England for the protection of public authorities (e.g., the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893) are not, as a rule, a safe guide, inasmuch as the English Statutes are not in pari materia with section 80 of the Indian Code. 61 I.A. 171=61 C. 470=1934 P.C. 96=66 M.L.J. 506 (P.C.). A notice served under the old section 80, prior to Part III of the present Government of India Act and with it the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937, coming into force, is valid although the suit is lodged subsequently. The suit is saved by paragraphs 9 and 11 of the Preamble to the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws), Order, 42 P.L.R. 596=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 455.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—A Public Officer who is sued in respect of an act of bad faith is not entitled to notice under section 80. 16 C.W.N. 145; 26 A. 220; 32 C. 1130; 8 B. 421. A Public Officer is entitled to notice under section 80 before suit, though he acts mala fide in the discharge of his duties. 41 M. 792=34 M.L.J. 494 (F.B.); 35 B. 421. Section applies also to acts purporting to be done in public capacity though not strictly according to law. Seizure of goods by Official Assignee—Suit to recover damages—Notice is necessary. 1930 M. 458. See also 1937 Lah. 386. The section is not limited to cases of what might be called torts or wrongs. 34 C. 257 (282). A Public Officer against whom a suit is filed, in respect of an act done by him in his official capacity is entitled to notice under section 80, even though he has acted mala fide. 1934 P. 14. Defendants' interest devolving on Government during suit—No notice necessary. 24 A.L.J. 726=96 I.C. 351 (1)=1926 A. 585. Notice under section 80, is necessary in every case instituted against the Secretary of State including one arising on a contract. 37 M. 113; 27 I.C. 232=18 C.W.N. 1340. But see 20 B. 697; 27 B. 450, as also a suit for an injunction. 105 I.C. 756 (2)=29 Bom.L.R. 1427. See also 105 I.C. 729; 51 B. 725 (P.C.). Suit against a State Railway must be brought against the Secretary of State—Notice under section 80 essential—Notice under section 77 and section 140 of the Railways Act not enough. 52 B. 548. See also 156 I.C. 541=1935 A. 900. For a suit even for temporary injunction against the Agent, N.W.Ry., notice under section 80 is necessary as section 80 is express, explicit and mandatory and it admits of no implications or exceptions. 14 L. 330=1933 L. 203. Section applies to declaratory suits against Government. 1930 L. 708. Application under para. 17 of the Second Schedule is not a suit for purposes of this section. 13 L. 672. A suit brought pursuant to an undertaking given under section 14, Bombay Land Revenue Act, within 30 days from the Collector's decision is not a suit which falls within section 80; it is a suit on account of land revenue brought under the special provisions of the special Act, and the general provisions of section 80 do not apply to such a suit. 36 Bom.L.R. 297=1934 B. 162.

ANY ACT PURPORTING TO BE DONE IN HIS OFFICIAL CAPACITY.—The notice contemplated is notice for an act which has been done, and does not relate to some act which is only threatened and which may or may not be done in the future. 28 A. 603; 51 M. L.J. 671. When in a suit to set aside a sale under Bengal Act I of 1895, on the ground of fraud, the Secretary of State is made a party, and no relief is claimed against him, no notice is needed. 32 C. 1130. There must be a distinct act of the "Public Officer" which is complained of to entitle him to notice. 13 B. 347; 30 C. 36. Where the plaintiffs instituted a suit for declaration that the sale carried out by the Official Receiver was invalid and ineffective as against them impleaded him as a defendant. Held, that the Official Receiver was a necessary party to a suit of that nature and that the suit was not maintainable against him without notice under section 80. A. I. R. 1937 Lah. 386. Where plaintiff does not allege any act or omission by Official Receiver but he is made a party because he is in possession of property, no notice is necessary. 48 A. 821. See also 50 M. 239; 31 Bom.L.R. 1199. No notice under section 80, is necessary for the institution of a suit against a receiver for recovery of arrears of rent. The omission of the Receiver to pay rent is not an Act purporting to have been done by him in his official capacity. 65 C.L.J. 561. Section 80 applies to all forms of action and to all kinds of relief as against a public officer, and a suit against an Official Receiver is, therefore, liable to be dismissed if no notice was served on him under the section. 44 C.W.N. 586=71 C.L.J. 594=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 578. Where on the refusal of a District Registrar to register a document executed by a receiver in insolvency acting under the orders of the District Court and a suit is filed against him under section 77 of Registration Act, the receiver cannot plead that he is entitled to notice under section 80. The cause of action is no doubt the action of a public officer in refusing to register the document, but the public officer is the District registrar and the suit is not brought against him but against the receiver and as such no notice under section 80, is necessary. Further the Registration Act is a 'special law' and section 80, will not apply in view of the provision of 30 days limitation under section 77 of the Registration Act, as the period of 30 days is less than the 2 months provided by section 80. 1939 A.L.J. 1151=A.I.R. 1940 All. 108. Notice given by two out of three joint plaintiffs is enough. 24 M. 279. When a person who has given notice dies before suit, his representative must give a fresh notice before suing. 25 A. 187. In case of an amendment necessitated by the alleged discovery of facts previously unknown to the plaintiff, no further notice need be given. 30 C. 36. But when one notice has been given specifying a particular cause of action, no amendment should be allowed so as to introduce a new cause of action not specified in the notice given. 34 C. 257 (281); 38 C. 797. There is nothing to prevent defendant from waiving notice or from being estopped by his conduct from pleading want of notice at the trial. 130 I.C. 894=1934 C. 175 (34 C. 257 and 40 C. 503, Ref.); 34 C. 257 (282). A notice though invalid may be waived by the Secretary of State and would be deemed to have been waived if no issue is joined at the time of settlement of issues. 40 C. 503. No other defendant than the Government and persons mentioned in this section can raise the question of validity of notice under section 80. 40 C. 503; 136 I.C. 445. Notice—When dispensed with. 15 I.C. 539=14 Bom.L.R. 353. Plea as to want of notice can be raised at the final hearing. 47 A. 291. The person who gives the notice and he who brings the suit must be identical. 59 M.L.J. 923.

NOTICE—ADEQUACY OF.—A notice which says that the cause of action and reliefs are described in the annexed copy of plaint which forms part of the notice, though defective in form, is substantial compliance of S. 80. 151 I.C. 1076=38 C.W.N. 409=1934 C. 187.

NOTICE—REQUIREMENTS OF.—S. 80 is imperative and imposes a statutory and unqualified obligation upon the Court to see that its terms are strictly complied with. The object of the section is to give the Secretary of State an opportunity of settling the claim without litigation, or to enable him to have an opportunity to investigate the alleged cause of complaint and to make amends, if he thought fit, before he was impleaded in the suit. A notice which gives only the names, descriptions and places of residence of some only of the plaintiffs is not a sufficient notice under the section. 156 I.C. 591=37 Bom.L.R. 341=1935 B. 229. See also 1938 Pat. 556. But see also 41 C.W.N. 92. S. 80, which extends the period of limitation by two months applies whether an officer acts in good faith or bad faith. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 281. An alternative and a lesser claim which is not mentioned in the notice under S. 80 cannot derogate from the plaintiff's right to have the suit tried on the issue which is claimed in the notice. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 415. All that a notice under S. 80, C. P. Code, should contain is a statement of the cause of action, meaning thereby the bundle of facts on which the claim of the plaintiff or plaintiffs is founded. Where a claim is made in the notice for a larger amount of money as due from the defendant, the fact that in the suit the claim is reduced to a smaller amount does not change the cause of action for the suit or render the notice invalid, especially when the notice recites the circumstances under which the claim is made and when the reduction does not operate to the prejudice of the defendant but operates to his benefit. Though the notice should in every case state with precision the cause of action, the mere reduction of the claim does not make the notice defective. 41 C.W.N. 92. What S. 80 requires is that the notice should contain the cause of action, etc., and the relief claimed. The notice need not be practically a copy of the plaint. The notice should be such as to give substantial information to the Government of the basis of the claim and the relief which the plaintiffs seek. Where it is obvious from the notice taken as a whole that the assessment of cess on their zemindari on the income of the hat was ultra vires and that the relief which they wanted to seek was that they should be relieved of that assessment it is not incumbent upon the plaintiffs to give in detail all the forms in which they would seek the relief. 1934 P. 701. The words 'cause of action' in S. 80, should not be construed in a narrow sense as the object of the section is merely to inform the defendant substantially of the ground of complaint. A notice of suit to recover amounts realized from plaintiff is not bad merely on the ground that on the date of the notice the amounts had not been paid by the plaintiff but they were paid only later on. It is enough if the cause of action is stated with precision. 1941 O.W.N. 63. To state a cause of action it may be sufficient to give a legal description by which a particular cause of action is known, such as, damages for breach of contract, and damages for negligence. 17 Pat. 345=1938 Pat. 556.

(d) in the case of a suit against the Secretary of State, a Secretary to the Central Government, the Political Secretary and a Secretary to the Provincial Government of the Province where the suit is instituted,] and, in the case of a public officer, delivered to him or left at his office, stating the cause of action, the name, description and place of residence of the plaintiff and

JOINT NOTICE FOR SEVERAL SUITS.—A joint notice given by all the plaintiffs of the different suits mentioning the total amount payable by the Secretary of State is proper when the sum-total demanded in the separate suit does not exceed the amount mentioned in the notice. There is no particular form of notice prescribed anywhere and so long as the notice served satisfies the condition provided in S. 80, the mere splitting up of the notified claim into different suits, does not render the suits non-maintainable for want of notice. (27 B. 189; 1926 M. 408 and 54 C. 969, Rel. on.) 150 I.C. 1131=1934 P. 346. A suit brought after the expiry of two months from the date of service of the first notice but before the expiry of two months from the date of service of the second notice would not be premature, if the second notice does not cancel or annul the first one, but merely amplifies it. 70 C.L.J. 126=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 758.

SUIT BY TWO PLAINTIFFS—NOTICE BY ONE ONLY NOT SUFFICIENT.—A suit brought by two plaintiffs is not maintainable when the notice required by S. 80, C. P. Code, is given only by one of them. Such a notice is not a sufficient compliance with the section. The whole suit is bad and even the plaintiff who has given the notice cannot proceed with it. 156 I.C. 333=41 L. W. 591=1935 M. 389; 159 I.C. 33=1935 S. 206.

WANT OF NOTICE—PLEA OF—WAIVER OF.—The plea of want of notice under S. 80 taken by the defendant was a plea which had never been raised before in the history of the case and further having regard to the fact that at the time of the hearing before the Judge more than two years had elapsed since the arising of the cause of action, it was impossible for the plaintiff to bring another suit; further no issue had been raised at any time in the case as to whether or not notice had been served and the defendant had not at any time taken any point on the subject of notice to him. Held, that the want of notice had been waived. (1931 C. 175, Rel. on and 1927 P.C. 176, Dist.) 150 I.C. 590=1934 P. 354. See also 1933 M. 917.

INCLUSION OF ADDITIONAL RELIEF IN PLAINT.—The addition in the plaint of a relief which was not covered by the notice does not entail the dismissal of entire suit of the plaintiffs. It is open to the plaintiffs to amend their plaint at any stage and proceed with the suit without that relief. 1934 P.

SUIT BEFORE EXPIRY OF NOTICE—WITHDRAWAL—FRESH NOTICE—FRESH SUIT.—A plaintiff who gives a notice of suit under S. 80, and institutes a suit against the Secretary of State for India before the expiry of two months prescribed in the section, but withdraws the same with liberty to institute a fresh suit, is entitled to so institute a fresh suit without a fresh notice. When a suit is withdrawn, the legal position is the same as if no suit had been instituted, and the original notice is sufficient for the fresh suit under S. 80. 36 Bom.L.R. 1106.

SUITS FOR INJUNCTION.—Notice is necessary in all suits against the Secretary of State including suits for injunction. 37 M. 113=23 M.L.J. 181 (25 C. 239 R.); 25 A. 187; 35 B. 362; 14 Bom.L.R. 353; 39 M. L.J. 151; 105 I.C. 756=29 Bom.L.R. 1427. Injunction suits against public officers also require previous notice. 58 C. 1288; 12 L. 260; 1933 L. 203=14 Lah. 330. But see 59 C. 961. Also 51 B. 725=53 M. L. J. 81 (P.C.). Bombay rulings expressing contra opinion disapproved. 40 B. 392; 34 I. C. 535; 37 B. 243; 35 B. 362 are not now good law.

SUIT FOR DECLARATION OF TITLE.—Where plaintiff sues for a declaration of title to land which he claims as part of permanently settled estate from defendant on ground of dispossession, but the defendant claims settlement under Secretary of State, there is a cause of action for the plaintiff against the Secretary of State for impleading him in the suit. 38 C.W.N. 409=59 C.L.J. 295=1934 C. 187.

ON WHOM NOTICE IS TO BE SERVED.—The term "District" in S. 80 means the district in which the suit is instituted and the notice must be served on the Collector or one of the Collectors of that district and not on the Collector of another district where the cause of action partly arises. 27 I.C. 232=18 C.W. Costello, J., doubting in 130 I.C. 894=1934 C. 175. Where a certain amount due under a promissory note is claimed by the Official Receiver and by certain assignees of the note, and the debtor filed an inter-pleader suit and where the Official Receiver raised a plea that he ought to have been given notice under S. 80, it was held that the mere setting up of a claim to property on behalf of the estate which a Receiver represents could not be considered to be an act purporting to be done by a public officer in his official capacity so as to attract the application of S. 80. 1938 N.L.J. 264=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 449. In a suit against an Official Receiver of an estate for recovery of arrears of rent notice under S. 80 is not necessary as omission of receiver to pay rent is not an act purporting to have been done by him in his official capacity. 174 I.C. 576=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 191. See also 65 C.L.J. 561; 44 C.W.N. 586; 1937 Lah. 386. Suit against Official Assignee—Notice not necessary. 25 Bom.L.R. 378=1923 B. 392. See also 47 L.W. 46=1938 Mad. 221=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 92. Although a receiver is a public officer, in the case of a suit against him it is only where the plaintiff complains of some act purporting to have been done by him in his official capacity that notice to him under S. 80, C.P. Code, is enjoined. Where the plaintiff makes no such complaint but simply impleads him in the suit in his capacity as a receiver in possession of some of the properties in suit, no notice need be given to him under S. 80. 41 C.W.N. 322=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 322. Chatterji, J.—Though a receiver appointed in a suit is a public officer within the meaning of S. 80, non-payment of royalty by the receiver in respect of the lands in his possession is not an official act done by him. S. 80, therefore does not apply to a suit against the receiver for royalty arising out of an individual or a private contract between him and the plaintiff. 19 Pat. 433=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 516. It is the duty of a receiver to take charge of the properties in suit on behalf of the Court. He exercises his functions under the supervision and control of the Court and is remunerated under its orders. He can thus be deemed to be an officer of a Court of justice whose duty it is to take charge or dispose of any property within the meaning of S. 2 (17) (d). Even if he is not an "officer" he is clearly a person especially authorised by a Court of Justice to perform such duties and therefore a public officer. 44 C.W.N. 74=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 1. No estate vests in the receiver by virtue of his appointment. He collects rents or profits, income or capital on the title of the persons who are parties to the suit and he defends the suit because of the powers given to him by the Court under O. 40, R. 1

(d). In cases when no relief is claimed against the receiver personally and the suit is really against the estate which does not vest in the receiver, but which is held by him under orders of the Court who made the appointment, the suit cannot be said to be one against the receiver within the meaning of S. 80. In other words, S. 80 contemplates a suit against the receiver which seeks to make him personally liable for acts, done or purporting to be done by him in his official capacity and it does not contemplate a case where a suit for possession is brought against the owners of the estate in respect of which he has been appointed a receiver and which suit he has got to defend under powers conferred on him by the Court. In such cases it is undoubtedly necessary to take the leave of the Court which appointed the receiver before the latter can be made a party to the proceedings and that is on the principle that interference with the possession of the receiver without leave would amount to a contempt of the Court whose officer the receiver is. But there is no necessity to serve upon him a notice under S. 80. 186 I.C. 584=44 C.W.N. 74=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 1. No notice to the Official Trustee is necessary, when the question to be decided relates to the rights of the cestui que trust in the trust fund. 7 C. 499. The Official Liquidator, like the Official Receiver appointed in insolvency cases, is an official of the Court and has got definite powers conferred upon him under Act VII of 1913 and as such he is a public servant within the meaning of the term and to such a public officer notice under S. 80 is necessary. 148 I.C. 448=11 O.W.N. 398=1934 O. 158 (2). A liquidator is a public officer within the meaning of S. 2 (17) and S. 80 would apply to him. Where, however, the liquidator has acted through the Deputy Commissioner, notice to the Deputy Commissioner would be sufficient and no separate notice to the liquidator is necessary. 30 N.L.R. 240=17 N.L.J. 47=1934 N. 201. So also notice is necessary before a suit is instituted against Registrar of co-operative society. 177 I.C. 709. S. 80, bars the institution of a suit unless notice has been given, only when the suit is against a public officer and is in respect of any act done or purporting to be done by the public officer in his official capacity. The mere fact that the public officer concerned is a defendant in the suit is not sufficient to determine whether a notice is required under the section. Where, therefore, a Liquidator appointed under the Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act attaches a house belonging to a member of the Cooperative Society in liquidation in execution of an award issued by the Registrar and the member institutes a suit against the Liquidator to obtain a decision as to whether his house is liable to be attached, he being an agriculturist, the suit does not require the service of notice under the section assuming that the Liquidator is a public servant within the meaning of the section. 193 I.C. 142. A liquidator who is appointed by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies to liquidate a private Co-operative Society is not an officer in the service of the Government and is not a "public officer" within the meaning of S. 3 (17) and S. 80, and a suit against him cannot be defeated on the plea that no notice was given as required by S. 80. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 929=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 831=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 241. The liquidator appointed under S. 42 (1) of the Co-operative Societies Act is appointed by Government and performs public duties and hence he is an officer in the service of Government, when acting as liquidator and is therefore a "public officer" as defined in S. 2 (17) (h), C.P. Code. In a suit under O. 21, R. 63 against such liquidator, notice should be given as required by S. 80, C.P. Code. 1939 N.L.J. 215=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 232. A Deputy Magistrate who has been appointed as the returning officer by the District Magistrate for the purposes of an election and who is doing the election work of the municipality at the time cannot be said to be a public officer who is acting in that connection in his official capacity as such public officer, and therefore S. 80, C.P. Code, is inapplicable to him. 152 I.C. 817=1935 A.L.J. 139=1935 A. 106. Village sanitation board—Not a public officer. 1929 N. 70; nor a municipal council. 1930 M.W.N. 821; 61 M.L.J. 642. A Sub-Inspector of Police who is sued for the recovery of account-books seized at a search, is entitled to notice. 29 A. 567. A notice is necessary, before suing a police officer for damages when he acts under the powers conferred by Cr.P. Code and S. 42 of the Police Act will not apply. 30 I.C. 173=13 A.L.J. 788. See also 1930 A. 742. No action for damages can lie against a village headman for an act done in his official capacity unless the requirements of S. 80 are fulfilled. A report to the Sub-Divisional Officer or Deputy Commissioner is not notice. 2 Bur.L.J. 29=1923 R. 250. See also 142 I.C. 501=1933 S. 1 (Manager of encumbered estates taking charge of estate). No suit can be brought against a Bench Clerk for damages resulting from the loss of a record in Court through his negligence without giving notice. 40 I.C. 677=11 Bur.L.T. 95. A manager of an estate appointed under the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, is not a public officer within the meaning of S. 2 (17) (g), C.P. Code, but is a public officer within the meaning of S. 2 (17) (h), being an officer in the service of the Government. He is, therefore, entitled to the benefit of a notice under S. 80. 43 C.W.N. 1212=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 720=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 73. A suit against the Deputy Commissioner as the person appointed by the District Judge to perform the duties of mutwalli under a waqf deed, is not a suit instituted against a public officer in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity and as such no notice under S. 80, is necessary for such a suit. 1941 O.W.N. 906=1941 O.A. 621. The notice contemplated by S. 80, for a suit against a "public officer" is unnecessary in the case of a suit against a person who on the date of the suit has ceased to be such officer. The section cannot be read as including a suit against a person who is not a public officer but was a public officer at the time of the cause of action. To do so would be to extend the section beyond its apparent purport. 54 L.W. 172=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 242. Notice under S. 80 of the Code is necessary for suits under S. 104-H of the Bengal Tenancy Act. 22 I.C. 36=18 C.L.J. 566. See also 46 I.C. 899.

PUBLIC OFFICER—IF SHOULD HAVE ACTED BOA FIDE—MOTIVE OF OFFICER IN DOING ACT.—S. 80, cannot be read as being limited in its application to cases in which an officer has acted bona fide in the exercise of his powers; the duty of the Court is to give effect to the natural meaning of the language used in the section. The question of good faith or bad faith of the public officer either as regards his belief in the legality or propriety of his act or the limit of his powers or the existence of facts justifying the exercise of such powers is irrelevant in the consideration of the question whether the officer is entitled to notice under S. 80. The section does not require that the act should have been done in good faith; it merely requires that it should purport to be done by the officer in his official capacity. The motives with which the act was done do not enter into the question at all. The Court has simply to see what act was done by the defendant and whether it purported to be an official act. Where a police officer arrested the plaintiff and led him to the police station as a person accused of theft, that is an act which every police officer has a statutory power to do under S. 54, Cr.P. Code, and it is as a police officer that he must have taken the plaintiff to the police-station.

81. In a suit instituted against a public officer in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity—Exemption from arrest and in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in personal appearance.

(a) the defendant shall not be liable to arrest nor his property to attachment otherwise than in execution of a decree, and

(b) where the Court is satisfied that the defendant cannot absent himself from his duty without detriment to the public service, it shall exempt him from appearing in person.

82. (1) Where the decree is against the <sup>1</sup>[Crown] or against a public officer in respect of any such act as aforesaid, a time shall be specified in the decree within which it shall be satisfied; Execution of decree. and, if the decree is not satisfied within the time so specified, the Court shall report the case for the orders of the Provincial Government.

NOTES.

Where it is known to all parties concerned that he was a police officer and it is clear that he purported to act as such, whether in good faith or bad faith, S. 80 applies and notice of suit has to be served under the section. 194 I.C. 263=22 Pat.L.T. 392. See also 1937 Sind 281. The requirements of S. 80, cannot be evaded or explained away and a suit instituted in contravention of the section is unsustainable in limine. Where one or some of the defendants are public officers to whom notice of suit is necessary, the bar of S. 80 applies to the suit as a whole and not merely to the claim for relief against these particular defendants. If no notice is served on those defendants, the consequence of instituting the suit in face of the statutory prohibition is that under O. 7, R. 11, C.P. Code, the plaint should be rejected. The proper course is to reject the plaint. 194 I.C. 263=22 Pat.L.T. 392. See also 1937 P.W.N. 694.

COMMON MANAGER UNDER BENGAL TENANCY ACT—Under S. 80, in the case of a suit against a public officer, it is only where the plaintiff complains of some act purporting to have been done by such public officer in his official capacity that notice is enjoined. A claim based upon a breach of a contract by a public officer, may, in appropriate cases, entitle him to notice of suit under S. 80, but the mere omission by the common manager of an estate (appointed under the Bengal Tenancy Act) to pay off a mortgage debt is not such a breach. His failure to pay either interest or principal is not an "act" purporting to be done by him in his official capacity. Held, accordingly (assuming that the common manager is a public "officer" within the meaning of S. 80), that notice under the section is not required when, in a suit to enforce a mortgage by sale of the property mortgaged, the manager is impleaded as a co-defendant merely as representing the estate of which the sale is sought and no personal relief is sought against him. 61 I.A. 171=61 C. 470=1934 P.C. 96=66 M.L.J. 506

CONTENTS AND CONSTRUCTION OF NOTICES.—The notice should state the relief which the plaintiff claims; it should be absolute in terms and not conditional. 6 Bom.L.R. 132. The notice must mention the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff. 14 M. 386. See also 27 P. 206; 57 C. 1127. A notice which does not contain all the names, descriptions and places of residence of the plaintiffs in a suit is an invalid notice. 40 C. 503. A notice under section 80 is not a proper notice if the case set up in the plaint is different from the case stated in the notice. A suit instituted upon such a notice cannot be maintained. 32 I.C. 235. Notice by a plaintiff under the section cannot constitute a cause of action. The right to sue can accrue when the order of the Collector interfering with the plaintiff's right is passed. 19 I.C. 565. The term "cause of action" in the section should not be too narrowly construed, the object of the section being merely to inform the defendant of the grounds of the complaint. 8 C.W.N. 913. See also 24 M. 279; 54 C. 969 (1023). Where plots mentioned in the notice comprised all the plots mentioned in the plaint, the variance between the notice and the plaint does not justify dismissal of the suit. 32 I.C. 752=20 C.W.N. 636. It is quite true that if two or more causes of action are united in one suit and with regard to one of them the suit fails for want of notice under section 80 there is no reason why the entire suit should be dismissed. But where in a suit against a person for declaration of title to certain property the receiver of that property is added as party and there are definite allegations against him of collusion with that person in granting rent receipts and setting up a claim to possession in the disputed property and the defence of both the defendants in answer to the plaintiff's claim is identically the same, it is not possible to sever one part of the case from the other. 44 C. LIMITATION.—Where notice to Government is necessary under section 80, the period of two months is excluded from the prescribed limitation. 52 P.R. 1917=38 I.C. 600=42 P.W.R. 1917. Where a special law of limitation applies, a party is not entitled to deduct the period of two months for service of notice under section 80. 66 I.C. 287=34 C. L.J. 205. The dismissal of a suit filed within two months from the date of notice under section 80, on the ground of the insufficiency of the notice is no bar to the maintainability of a fresh suit brought after the expiry of two months from the date of the notice. The second suit would be maintainable on the same notice. 41 C.W.N. 92. Where a suit for damages is brought against joint tortfeasors and one of them requires a notice under section 80, which extends the period of limitation by two months as against him, time must be calculated in the same manner as against both even though notice under section 80 is not necessary to the other tortfeasor. suits filed in a Revenue Court. 25 A. 635. The provisions of section 85, are specially enacted for a privileged class of persons, such as a Sovereign Prince or a Ruling Chief, who are parties to suits or legal proceedings, and are subject to the rule of strict construction and must be rigidly followed. A suit instituted on behalf of a Ruling Prince or an Indian State by a person who is not an authorised agent under O. 3, R. 2, C.P. Code, and without the authority required by section 85, C.P. Code, is a defective suit and has to be dismissed. A subsequent authority obtained under section 85 for the first time after the presentation of an appeal upon the dismissal of the suit cannot cure the defect so as to make the suit a properly instituted suit. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 225=42 Bom.L.R. 262=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 172. An order dated 20th June, 1935 and signed by the Chief Secretary of the Punjab Government appointing a person to prosecute or defend all suits on behalf of or against the Jammu and Kashmir State unless it is revoked is valid even after the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937. 42 P.L.R. 228=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 279.

SEC. 86:SCOPE OF SECTION.—Section 86 is exhaustive and lays down the cases where a prince or chief can be brought on record whether he is suing or sued as such or in any other capacity. 38 M. 635=25 M.L.J. 621. See also 39 M. 661=29 M.L.J. 667.

A suit against a foreign prince or chief without the sanction of the Governor-General is not maintainable as it contravenes section 86, when permission has been applied for and refused by the Governor-General, it is not open to the Court to question the propriety of the order refusing consent. Once the plaintiff fails to obtain the requisite consent, the Court has no authority to proceed with the suit. 11 O.W.N. 1426=153 I.C. 856=1935 O. 1426. Section 86, in terms applies only to suits, and cannot be made applicable to insolvency proceedings initiated by a petitioning debtor merely by reason of the fact that a Sovereign Prince or Ruling Chief is one of the creditors. An insolvency petition filed by a debtor of a Sovereign Prince or Ruling Chief is, therefore, maintainable without the certificate mentioned in that section. I.L.R. APPLICABILITY—SUIT AGAINST BUSINESS CONCERN RUN BY STATE OF RULING PRINCE.—The provisions of section 86 do not apply to a suit instituted not against the Prince himself, but against a business concern run by the State of a Ruling Prince. 1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740. Applicability of section —Proceedings under sections 184, 186 and 187 of Companies Act. Section 86, C. P. Code, does not apply to the proceedings under section 184 but applies to all the proceedings under sections 186 and 187 of the Companies Act. #### NOTES.

jurisdiction against that Native Prince or against the Regent or President of the independent State. The proceedings under sections 186 and 187, however, stand on a different footing. An order under section 186 for payment of money due from a person can be made by the Court only in cases where a suit to recover the amount would be maintainable and the Court cannot override the provisions of section 86, by making an order under section 186 of the Companies Act. No order under section 187 can be made against the Sovereign Prince or the Ruling Chief at all, and no question of any consent of the Governor-General in Council can arise, because such a case does not fall in any of the three classes mentioned in subsection (2) of section 86. 1936 A. L. J. 1134=1936 A. 826 (F.B.).

PRIVILEGE UNDER—IF CAN BE WAIVED.—It is open to a Ruling Prince to plead want of jurisdiction because of the provisions of section 86, or to waive the privilege by defending the suit on merits and producing evidence and taking the chance of getting a judgment in his favour. 1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740.

SUIT AGAINST RULING PRINCE—EXTENT OF PRIVILEGE.—In India a Ruling Prince can be sued in British Court. The rule of international Law which is based on the principle of "absolute independence of the Sovereign to recognise any superior authority" cannot be applied to Princes in India for the simple reason that they are subordinate to the authority of the British Crown. The rule of International Law has been modified by the provisions of section 86, under which alone the Princes can claim exemption and not on the ground of their absolute sovereignty. Under section 86, a Ruling Prince cannot be sued without the sanction of the Governor-General in Council and no execution can be issued against him without such sanction. Beyond these two points, no other privilege can be claimed by him under C.P. Code. There is nothing in the Code which prevents a plaintiff from making an indirect attempt to reach the property of a Ruling Prince. 1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740.

SECS. 86 AND 87.—A suit will not lie against a sovereign Prince without the consent of the Governor-General in Council. A State cannot be sued apart from its Ruling Chief. 23 M.L.J. 605. (9 C. 535, Foll.) Time spent in getting Government of India's consent cannot be deducted in computing limitation. 53 B. 12.

APPLICATION OF SECTION.—The section does not apply to a defence put forth (as set-off). Such a defence can be put forward in answer to a claim by a Ruling Chief without the consent of the Governor-General. 62 I.C. 778.

RULING CHIEFS.—The Khurndward Jagirdars are Ruling Chiefs who cannot be sued without the consent of the Governor-General under section 86 of the C.P. Code. 51 I.C. 228=21 Bom.L.R. 376.

CONSENT OF GOVERNOR-GENERAL.—A suit against a Ruling Chief cannot be maintained without the consent of the Governor-General in Council. 25 I.C. 271. The consent must be given before the commencement of the suit. 21 B. 351. Even when leave is granted by the Governor-General in Council, the Court in which the suit is filed can question the leave in case the conditions mentioned in the section are not fulfilled. 29 A. 379.

SUBMISSION TO JURISDICTION.—Where a Ruling Prince having sovereign powers submits to the jurisdiction of a British Court, no objection can be raised by him, in the Appellate Court on the ground that the consent of the Governor-General had not been obtained prior to the institution of the suit. 46 I.C. 558. No suit can be maintained against a Ruling Chief without the consent of a Governor-General in Council. The mere fact that the defendant after claiming the privilege pleaded also on the merits, does not amount to a waiver of privilege and submission to jurisdiction. 39 M. 661=29 M.L.J. 667. The recognition of cases of waiver as excepted from the ordinary provision of International Law as understood in England cannot be imported into the clear language of the C.P. Code. 39 M. 661=

(3) No such Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy shall be arrested under this Code, and, except with <sup>1</sup>[such consent as is mentioned in sub-section (1)] certified as aforesaid, no decree shall be executed against the property of any such Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy.

<sup>2</sup>[(4) The Central Government or the Crown Representative, as the case may be, may by notification in the Gazette of India authorise a Provincial Government and any Secretary to that Government to exercise with respect to any Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy named in the notification the functions assigned by the foregoing sub-sections to the consenting authority and a certifying officer, respectively.]

(5) A person may, as a tenant of immovable property, sue, without such consent as is mentioned in this section, a Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy from whom he holds or claims to hold the property.

Style of Princes and Chiefs
as parties to suits.

87. A Sovereign Prince or Ruling Chief may sue, and shall be sued, in the name of his State :

Provided that in giving the consent referred to in the foregoing section <sup>3</sup>[the Central Government, the Crown Representative or the Provincial Government], as the case may be, may direct that any such Prince or Chief shall be sued in the name of an agent or in any other name.

SEC. 86 (3) AND (5) : RELATIVE SCOPE OF.—Sub-section (5), section 86, is entirely distinct from sub-section (3). The two sub-sections are really dealing with two quite distinct matters. 159 I.C. 637=39 C.W.N. 1206=1935 C. 664.

SECS. 86 AND 87.—Sections 86 and 87 relate to an important matter of public policy in India and the express provisions contained therein are imperative and must be observed. Where a suit was brought against the Gaekwar Baroda State Railway through the Manager and Engineer in Chief—and the plaintiff admitted that it was owned and managed by His Highness the Gaekwar and where no certificate under section 86, C.P. Code, was obtained and the suit was decreed on the ground that the Railway was a corporation capable of being sued, it was held that there was no evidence on record to support the contention that the Railway was a corporation and that it was directly contrary to the admission of the plaintiff. It was further held that the suit was in reality though not in form, a suit against His Highness the Gaekwar and if the judgment of the High Court was allowed to stand it might have far reaching results and might have the effect of nullifying the provisions of sections 86 and 87. The fact that the Railway was allowed to defend the suit on the merits could not amount to a waiver of privilege as the provisions of sections 86 and 87, are imperative, and having regard to the purpose which they serve, they could not be waived in such a manner. 65 I.A. 182=I. SEC. 87.—See notes under sections 84 and 86.

SEC. 88.—The law of interpleaders as set out in C.P. Code is the same as that of England. The applicant should satisfy the Court that he has no interest in the subject-matter of the suit except for charges and costs, otherwise he is disentitled to sue. 4 R. 465. An interpleader suit is not improperly constituted merely because one of the defendants does not claim the whole of the subject-matter. 1 M.H.C.R. 361. See also 14 B. 489. In an interpleader suit all contesting defendants are in the position of plaintiffs. 48 M. 1. Where the defendants do not claim adversely to one another, nor is the plaintiff admitting the title of one of the defendants or is willing to pay or deliver the property to him, the suit is not an interpleader suit. 1922 C. 138. When in a suit for rent the defendant pays the money into Court with the request that it be paid over to the party entitled to it, such suit may be treated as in the nature of an interpleader proceeding. 17 M. 85. In an interpleader suit the matter in dispute is the title to the property which is claimed by two or more persons, and its valuation is the value of that property. 1940 A.L.J. 578=A.I.R. 1940 All. 452.

debt, sum of money or other property, movable or immovable, from another person who claims no interest therein other than for charges or costs and who is ready to pay or deliver it to the rightful claimant, such other person may institute a suit of interpleader against all the claimants for the purpose of obtaining a decision as to the person to whom the payment or delivery shall be made and of obtaining indemnity for himself:

Provided that where any suit is pending in which the rights of all parties can properly be decided no such suit of interpleader shall be instituted.

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

Arbitration.

89. Arbitration. (Repealed by the Arbitration Act X of 1940).

NOTES.

SEC. 89.—Section 89 excepts the procedure of the Code from being applicable to arbitrations under the Arbitration Act and section 4 does the same generally. 5 Bur.L.T. 155=17 I.C. 902. Section 89 covers all references to arbitration whether the reference is or is not made without the intervention of the Court, and whether an award does or does not follow. 160 I.C. 287=38 P.L.R. 102=1936 L. 374. The object of the section is to give effect to the provisions of Sch. II as if they had been enacted in the body of the Code. 47 A. 637. Arbitration without Court's order. 40 B. 386. Award without intervention during pendency of suit cannot be recorded as adjustment. 67 I.C. 123; 55 C. 533; contra 51 M. 800 (F.B.); where "any other law" is held to include the provisions of C.P. Code. 131 I.C. 443=1931 O. 127; 9 R. 39. Per Courtney-Terrell, C.J.—S. 89 is clear and specific. The words "any other law for the time being in force", in that section must clearly be read ejusdem generis with reference to a specific enactment, the Arbitration Act of 1899; the section contemplated that further legislation may take place or that there may be already in existence a specific piece of legislation dealing with arbitration. The legislature did not intend to override either the Arbitration Act or any other specific enactments; the intention was that all references to arbitration of whatsoever kind, if they are to have a binding effect, must be instituted and conducted according to the provisions of Sch. II of the Code. S. 89 does not also take into contemplation O. 23, R. 3, at all as being one of the proceedings by way of arbitration to which the section and the schedule are not to apply. The proceeding under O. 23, R. 3 for the recording of a compromise is not an exception to S. 89. Per Agarwala, J.—S. 89, is mandatory, and when a suit is pending, the matter in dispute may be referred to arbitration only in accordance with Sch. II. The words "any other law" in S. 89 do not include O. 23, R. 3. To take "other laws" as referring to the Code itself would be contrary to all canons of construction of statutes. It is not open to the Court to substitute for the words "any other law" in S. 89, the words "except as provided in this Act or by any other law." 14 P. 799=156 I. C. 1050=16 Pat.L.T. 280=1935 P. 243. See also 1939 Rang.L.R. 280=1939 Rang. 300 (F.B.). The words "by any other law for the time being in force" in S. 89, refer to some law extraneous to the Code and cannot be legitimately held to cover O. 23, R. 3. In other words, once S. 89 is held to apply, no reliance can be placed for any purpose on O. 23, r. 3. The only remedy left is either to proceed with the arbitration, or if the Court supersedes the arbitration, to proceed with the hearing of the suit or the appeal, as the case may be, on the merits, as required by para. 8 of the Second Schedule read with para. 19. 160 I.C. 287=38 P.L.R. 102=1936 L. 374. See also I. L.R. (1939) Nag. 250=1939 N.L.J. 228=1939 Nag. 186 (F.B.). A Court is competent on an application under Sch. II, C. P. Code, to pass a decree on an award as modified by a lawful compromise filed by the parties. 25 O.C. 213=1922 O. 189. The words 'save in ...in force' in S. 89 do not let in O. 23, r. 3 of the Code and the words "any other law for the time being in force" refer to amendments of, or substitutions for, the Arbitration Act or other pieces of legislation on that subject-matter. 47 C. 6. Whether an award in a pending suit without intervention of Court is an adjustment under O. 23, r. 3, C.P. Code. 53 M.L.J. 444.

AGREEMENT TO ABIDE BY STATEMENT OF WITNESS—LEGALITY OF.—The parties to a suit can validly agree, even apart from the Indian Oaths Act, that they will abide by the statement of a witness, including one who is a party to the suit; and they can leave the decision of all points including costs arising in the case to be made according to the statement. Such an agreement does not amount to a reference to an arbitrator and does not contravene the provisions of the Arbitration Act or the C.P. Code relating to arbitration. 146 I.C. 84=1933 A.L.J. 1127=1933 A. 861 (F.B.).

SEC. 89 AND SCH. II, PARA. 22.—S. 89 (1), C.P. Code, read with Sch. II, para.

Special Case.

Power to state case for opinion of Court.

90. Where any persons agree in writing to state a case for the opinion of the Court, then the Court shall try and determine the same in the manner prescribed.

Suits relating to Public Matters.

91. (1) In the case of a public nuisance the Advocate-General, or two or more persons having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate-General, may institute a suit, though no special damage has been caused, for a declaration and injunction or for such other relief as may be appropriate to the circumstances of the case.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any right of suit which may exist independently of its provisions.

NOTES.

22, makes the concluding provision of S. 21 of the Specific Relief Act inapplicable to all arbitration agreements and awards governed by Sch. II. 46 C. 1041.

SEC. 90: SCOPE.—Not applicable where more efficacious remedy is open under special Act. 1930 B. 232.

SEC. 91: SCOPE OF SECTION.—S. 91 (1), C.P. Code, authorises two or more persons to sue with the previous consent of the Advocate-General in respect of a public nuisance, but it does not compel them to do so nor is there anything in S. 91, which confers a new right. If right exists independently of that section, that right is not taken away. Therefore, a representative suit brought not on behalf of the public of a place but of one particular community forming part of it, for a declaration of its right to take out their processions, along a particular route and for removal of certain obstructions, is not defective because a previous consent of the Advocate-General had not been taken. 151 I.C. 263=1934 A. 941. See also 1938 Mad. 338. S. 91, though it provides a remedy by getting the sanction of the Advocate-General—a remedy which in many of these cases will be financially out of reach of the parties expressly safeguards any other remedies which may exist. The English rule requiring proof of special damage in cases in which a member of the public prays for the removal of an obstruction to a public way does not apply to India. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 870=49 L.W. 334=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 691=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 392. But see 1940 Pat. 449. S. 91 deals with the case of a public nuisance. Therefore, a suit relating to an encroachment on a private easement is not barred by that section. 153 I.C. 704=1935 A.W.R. 92=1935 A. 789. Relief not claimed in respect of public nuisance cannot be granted. 73 I.C. 616=1923 L. 546. See also 85 I.C. 304=1924 A. 599. Village pathway—Obstruction not public nuisance. 46 I.C. 970. See also 85 I.C. 304=1925 A. 399; 1929 A. 790. In view of S. 3, Cl. (44) of the General Clauses Act, the definition of "public nuisance" given in S. 268, I.P. Code, must be held to apply to the Code of Civil Procedure. 157 I.C. 638=1935 O.W.N.

899. In the case of a public highway sanction under the section is necessary for establishing the right of the public. 53 B. 187. S. 33 of Calcutta Municipal Act, if controls S. 91, see 40 I.C. 74=21 C.W.N. 595. See also 1938 Mad. 338=1938 M.W.N. 262; 19 Pat. 208=1940 Pat. 449. A suit for establishing a public right of way and removal of obstruction which constitutes a public nuisance can be maintained by a plaintiff without the sanction of the Advocate-General under S. 91, and without proof of special damage. (1939) 1 M.L.J. 392. S. 91 does not control the provisions of O. 1, R. 8. 88 I.C. 505=1925 C. 1233. Nuisance—Public and private—Difference between—Right of suit—Obstruction to procession of Hindu idol by Mahomedans—Individual's right of suit. 36 I.C. 634=12 N.L.R. 130. See also 27 Bom.L.R. 421=1925 Bom. 367; 1935 Pesh. 190; 157 I.C. 638=1935 O.W.N. 899.

PROOF OF SPECIAL DAMAGE.—While it is necessary to prove special damage in cases where the plaintiff sues merely as a member of the public in respect of a public right in the full sense, it is not necessary to prove it in the case of quasi public rights, where the plaintiff sues as a member of the limited class whose special rights have been infringed. The doctrine of special damage is based upon the principle of English Common law that there can be no private action for a public wrong. To give a right of suit the wrong must be in some way special or peculiar to the person who sues, and it is based on the sound rule that no man should be harassed by a multiplicity of suits in respect of a single wrong. The principle has been adopted by the Courts in India as a matter of equity and good conscience. The wording of S. 91, C.P. Code, also makes it clear that the Legislature contemplated that this doctrine of special damage should apply in India. The doctrine has, however, two very definite limitations: firstly, it applies only to cases regarding public rights in the full sense; secondly an invasion of special rights will provide a cause of action without special proof of damage, for in such a case the law will presume damage. It is by reason of these limitations that it has been held not to apply to cases of quasi public rights, such as village roads. 19 Pat. 208 = 1940 P.W.N. 829 = 1940 Pat. 449. But see also 1939 Mad. 691 = (1939) 1 M.L.J. 392. Obstruction of way without any special damage can afford no cause of action to a member of the public. 23 M.L.J. 539. See also 27 Bom.L.R. 421 = 1925 B. 367. In a suit by a private person for the removal of a public nuisance he must prove special damage to himself. Special degree of inconvenience suffered by him cannot be said to cause him damages. 48 I.C. 88 (Nag.). See also 91 I.C. 728 = 1926 C. 549. Per Sundara Aiyar, J.—Special damage need not always be only pecuniary. 23 M.L.J. 539. Special damage should be something substantial and not pecuniary damage to the extent of four annas or eight annas. 23 M.L.J. 539. See also 1940 Pat. 449 = 186 I.C. 208; (1939) 1 M.L.J. 392 = 1939 Mad. 691. When objection on the score of want of sanction is not taken in the trial Court or in the first appellate Court and a decree has been passed in favour of the plaintiffs, it would not be equitable to allow the defendants to raise the objection in second appeal. A mere failure to obtain permission under S. 91, would not render the suit not maintainable if no objection is taken by the other side. 1938 M.W.N. 262 = 177 I.C. 633 = A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 338. Under S. 91, the consent of the Advocate-General is necessary for a suit with regard to a public right, but an action brought by a particular section or class of the public, claiming a right of way over certain land alleged to be a village pathway, is an exception to that general rule. Such an action is maintainable without proof of special damages. 20 Pat.L.T. 414 = 1940 Pat. 160. Where a particular passage or way is not a public highway and where certain persons bring a suit in their personal right to the use of the passage or way, it is not barred by S. 91, for the plaintiffs have a personal cause of action to bring the suit. 1939 A.L.J. 821 = I.L.R. (1939) All. 754 = A.I.R. 1939 All. 586.

SEC. 91 AND O. 1, R. 8.—A village pathway, or lane is of the class of a public highway and has its origin in dedication. It is not a private way or way of a class over which only certain classes of persons or certain portions of the public have rights which have their origin in custom. An osara built on such a village path or lane is a public nuisance within the meaning of S. 91. A suit in respect of such an osara can only be brought by observing the conditions laid down in the section—consent in some form as required by the section is necessary. Even if the pathway or lane be treated as a private pathway or one over which only limited persons have a right, notice and leave of Court under O. 1, r. 8, is necessary. A suit by a private person without sanction under

S. 91, or without leave under O. 1, r. 8, or without allegation or proof of special damage is not maintainable. 166 I.C. 538 = 17 Pat.L.T. 842 = 1937 P. 54. Obstruction to a village pathway is a public nuisance under S. 91, C.P. Code, though it may not be a public highway in the full sense. S. 91, however, does not take away any independent right of suit which may exist and it does not override the provisions of O. 1, r. 8, and it does not take away any right of suit under O. 1, R. 8, even when it is a case of public nuisance. The special restrictions of S. 91 can be overcome by proof of special damage and by proof of the invasion of the special rights of a limited class which will give an independent right of action. This latter right of suit is independent of both S. 91 and O. 1, r. 8. Therefore, in the case of suits relating to obstructions to village ways, if the plaintiff does not utilise the special provisions of S. 91, or prove special damage, but purports to sue under O. 1, r. 8, he must plead and show, (1) that he sues not on behalf of the public generally, but on behalf of a limited and clearly defined class with which he has a common interest and a common right, and (2) that the pathway in question is not a public highway in the full sense in which all the members of the public who happen to go to the place have equal interest; he must show that it is a way or path of a quasi public type, in which the class he represents has got special rights as distinct from those of the public generally. 19 Pat. 208 = 1940 P.W.N. 829 = 22 Pat.L.T. 46 = A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 449. See also (1939) 1 M.L.J. 392.

SEC. 92: SCOPE OF SECTION.—S. 92 is intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law applicable to suits based upon any alleged breach of any express or constructive trust, created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature. 44 A. 622; 135 I.C. 806 = 1932 B. 65 = 33 Bom.L.R. 1575. See also 30 S.L.R. 104 = 165 I.C. 158 = 1936 S. 179. The argument that in the absence of an allegation of breach of trust in the plaint the suit is not maintainable, is untenable. A suit under that section lies not only in the case of any alleged breach of trust, but also where the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of a trust, if it be a trust for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature. 1938 Rang.L.R. 276 = 1938 Rang. 339. The requirement of the section as to sanction cannot be evaded by asking for a bare declaration under the Specific Relief Act. 24 L.W. 286 = 97 I.C. 630 = 1926 M. 1029. Section not confined to what may be called in the English law sense of "express or constructive trust"—at all events as regards "constructive trust." 60 M. 567 = 52 M.L.J. 415. the Legal Remembrancer as the case may be, has to be secured as a pre-requisite and sine qua non before the plaintiff can file a suit under the section. 152 I.C. 861=11 O. W.N. 1435=1935 O. 96. Section 92 is mandatory and a suit claiming any of the reliefs therein mentioned must be brought in conformity with its provisions or not at all. 41 A. 1; 49 I.C. 530. The question whether section 92 of the C.P. Code has to be applied to suit must depend upon the prayers in the plaint at the date when the suit is instituted, and the section cannot be evaded by an amendment of the plaint at a later date. A suit which, as originally instituted, is obnoxious to section 92 cannot, by amendments in the plaint, be altered and rendered not obnoxious to the section. 165 I.C. 1001=38 Bom.L.R. 808=1936 B. 412. A suit to which a claim is made to property as the plaintiff's private property is not a suit to which section 92, applies. The nature of a suit is determined by the plaint and not by the written statement. A suit for declaration, injunction and possession of certain property as the plaintiff's own property is not a suit under section 92. The fact that the defendant in his written statement pleads that the property is a public charitable and religious trust cannot make the suit one under the section. 30 S.L.R. 478=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 174. Though the section has to be construed strictly, it should not be construed in such a way that a fraud is perpetrated on the section itself. 30 S.L.R. 104=1936 Sind 179. A suit for removal of a trustee and for settling a scheme is governed by section 92, C.P. Code, and not by the Religious Endowments Act. 24 M.L.J. 658. The plaintiffs are entitled to proceed either under section 18, Religious Endowments Act or under section 92, C.P. Code. See also 37 I.C. 688=4 L. W. 444=1934 P. 443. Court has very wide powers under section 92 and the circumstances under which those powers should be exercised are clearly stated by the Privy Council in 43 C. 1085 (1101) (P.C.). A Court should not frame a scheme when there is no mismanagement or misappropriation. 106 I.C. 375 (M.). Section 92 deals with completed trusts and is inapplicable where that stage has not yet been reached. 70 I.C. 903=16 L.W. 922. A suit for the administration of the trusts of a will which contained disposition for charitable purposes is maintainable though it is not brought under section 92. 70 I.C. 903=16 L.W. 922. A suit by an idol in his juristic capacity against persons who are interfering unlawfully with his property or with his income is not governed by section 92. 45 A. 215. A dispute between rival claimants to the office of trustee does not fall within the section. 44 A. 721. See also

In order to bring a case within section 92 the suit must be a representative one, brought for the benefit of the public and to enforce a public right in respect of an express or constructive trust, (Ibid.) The section does not bar a suit for declaration that the plaintiff is a duly constituted mohant. 34 I.C. 502; 62 C.L.J. 153. A suit for declaration that defendants are not properly appointed trustees of a temple and for an injunction appropriate to that declaration does not fall within the purview of section 92. 46 B. 101; 9 R. 459. But a decree cannot be passed against him to deliver possession of the properties in his possession. Section 92 need not be resorted to where a suit for a declaration of public right of way is filed with the permission of Court obtained under O. 1, R. 8. 69 I.C. 910=26 C. W.N. 587. Suit for declaration that certain property is wakf and not the private property of the defendant does not fall under the section. 8 L. 111; 160 I.C. 289=1936 L. 283. In a suit under section 92, when the defendants deny that the property is a public trust and claim it as their private property, it is open to the Court to decide the question whether the trust in respect of which the suit is brought is a public charitable trust or not so as to attract the application of section 92. A separate suit for declaration that the property is trust property is not necessary. An issue may be raised in the suit as to whether the trust is a public trust contemplated by section 92. 39 C.W.N. 1103=1935 C. 805; 152 I.C. 50=36 Bom.L.R. 526=1934 B. 257. The real intention and meaning of section 92, is that by virtue of the specific categories of relief mentioned in paras. (a) to (g) and the general relief mentioned in para. (h), it intends and is effective to catch all those cases in which any declaration, order or other relief is asked for

by way of carrying into execution and administering a trust for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature as opposed to relief claimed adversely to the trust altogether, as for example, a claim that no valid wakf exists or that certain property does not form part of the trust property. 14 R. 575. A scheme, particularly one relating to a Muslim wakf, can be modified by an application under section 151. 1940 O.W.N. 639=15 Luck. 730 A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 421. Where the defendant denies the trust, he cannot be held to be a trustee and must therefore be a trespasser or third party. Against such a trespasser or third party a suit can be brought without sanction. Under section 92 it is presupposed that an express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature exist, but where the nature or existence of such trust is in dispute, section 92 will not apply and a suit for a declaration without a further relief for possession with regard to the trust may be brought and that too without any sanction. 1934 N. 277. SCOPE OF SCHEME BY COURT.—Scheme can be made only under this section. 7 Pat.L.T. 4=1925 P. 544. In settling a scheme of management the Court has a wide discretion. The wishes of the founder with regard to management, if conformable to the changed conditions and circumstances of the present day, as well as the past might be taken into consideration; but the primary duty of the Court is to consider the general interests of the body of the public for whose benefit the trust is created and the Court might vary any rule of management which it finds to be impracticable or unsuited to the best interests of the institution. 43 C. 1085=31 M.L.J. 290 (P.C.). See also 38 C.W.N. 452=1934 P.C. 53=66 M.L.J. 333 (P.C.); 51 M.L.J. 454. In settling a scheme due consideration should be paid to the established practice of the institution and to the position of the persons connected with it. 8 Bom.L.R. 756. As also the interest of the beneficiaries. 114 I.C. 10=1929 P.C. 27 (P.C.). The Court can uphold a scheme settled by the co-trustees of an institution under which each of them was to manage the trust in rotation. 13 M.L.J. 341. The High Court has a large discretion in the matter of sanctioning a scheme for the management of a temple and of its funds. 24 M.L.J. 199 (P.C.). Even when a will directs that members of the testator's family are to be appointed members of the committee if suitable persons are not available, the Court has power to appoint strangers. 58 I.C. 566=17 A.L.J. 957. Where a Court has sanctioned a scheme for the administration of a religious or charitable trust the Court can vary the scheme from time to time according to the exigencies of the case. 43 C. 467. Successive scheme suits—Maintainability of. See 1922 M.W.N. 477=70 I.C. 579. Trustee appointed under a tentative scheme can only be removed by regular suit. 94 I.C. 610=1926 M. 799; 58 A. 538. Whether Courts have inherent powers to alter schemes without a fresh suit being brought for the purpose when there is no provision for alteration in the scheme, see 1922 M. 413=70 I.C. 579; 91 I.C. 794=1926 M. 659; 36 M. 464; 37 C. 871; 59 M. 751. for enforcing scheme so as to disqualify particular person holding office as trustee is ultra vires—Independent suit the remedy. 1929 M.W.N. 744. A scheme decree may be in general declaratory but in particular circumstances provision may be made for execution of parts of the scheme. 107 I.C. 136=1928 M. 61. A provision in a scheme decree to the effect that "the trustees of the respective kattalais shall hand over all the cash proceeds of their property to the treasurer", is inexecutable. Neither section 51 nor O. 21, R. 32, C.P. Code, can be applied to such a clause in the decree. No receiver can be appointed to execute it by way of equitable execution. Per Cornish, J.—There is no short cut of a remedy by application to the Court where a trustee refuses to carry out his duties under the scheme. The only remedy available is a suit to remove him or to have the scheme modified. 59 M. 751=1936 M. 581=71 M.L.J. 87. See also 157 I.C. 486=41 L.W. 597=1935 M. 474. But see 38 Bom.L.R. 1137. Provision in the decree for its alteration in execution is ultra vires; changes can be made only in a fresh suit. 49 M. 580. But see 58 A. 538. where it was held that such a provision is within the power of Court to frame a scheme and apart from such a provision, a scheme may be modified under the inherent power of Court where it is necessary to prevent abuse of the process of the Court or where the ends of justice demand it. A provision in a scheme giving the Court authority to appoint a successor in place of a deceased trustee, is not a provision which can be regarded as constituting a modification of the original scheme and is not, therefore, ultra vires. 166 I.C. 215=1937 O.W.N. 39. Rules framed by temple committee under scheme decree can be altered by Court. 28 Bom.L.R. 309=94 I.C. 47; 1926 B. 179. Where a suit is brought by plaintiffs not in assertion of their individual rights but on behalf of the general public who are interested in the institution for the settlement of a proper scheme of management of the charities and for other relief there is no bar of limitation. 43 M. L.J. 448. Scheme giving liberty to Board of Trustees to apply to Court for directions—Individual member of the board cannot apply. 1929 M. 625. See also 1929 M. W. N. 744. Application for direction is maintainable only as regards matters left open by the Court for future determination—Consideration of the powers of a Temple Committee after the passing of Act II of 1927 is not one of them. 1929 M. 625.

SUIT UNDER SEC. 92—FRAME AND RELIEFS OF,—Suit primarily for settlement of scheme and appointing trustees—Prayer for possession of properties from strangers—Not proper—Order striking off such strangers is proper. 1937 Rang. 483.

REVISION OF SCHEME.—District Judge has jurisdiction to revise scheme once framed under proper circumstances. 153 I.C. 294=1935 P. 88. See also 1940 Oudh 421=1940 O.W.N. 639. 58 A. 538. Tyabji, J.—It is open to the Court to include in schemes for the administration of charitable institutions clauses providing that the schemes may, from time to time and as occasion arises, be altered by the Court according to the practice of the Bombay High Court. Such a clause is a valid provision. Where a decree includes a scheme for the administration of a charitable institution, the decree is in its substance very different from the generality of decrees. Whereas ordinary decrees require a particular act to be done by the defendant for the benefit of the plaintiff, a scheme, on the other hand, provides for continued action in regard to the administration of the charity, it being intended to lay down a plan of lasting character for the working of the institution. It contemplates a series of acts extending over many years during which its terms are to be put into operation. 38 Bom.L.R. 1137=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 124.

SELECTION OF TRUSTEES.—Appointment from plaintiff's community on the ground that the trust had largely benefited by its endowment. 54 I.C. 263=10 L.W. 494. It is competent to the Court in framing a scheme for a Hindu religious or charitable endowment to sanction a cypres application of the funds of the endowment if the objects of the trust are not suited to modern conditions and if there is a general charitable intention in the terms of the endowment. The trustee himself cannot apply the income cypres without the sanction of the Court. 37 M.L.J. 489. Court's jurisdiction to frame a scheme under section 92 is not excluded by the fact that the temple is one subject to a Temple Committee, but in framing the scheme the Court should not unduly interfere with the power entrusted by the statute to the Committee, e.g., by appointing a Board of Control between the trustees and the Temple Committee. 39 Mad. 700=30 M.L.J. 29. When a decree directs a trustee of a Hindu temple to perform festival, a Court has no jurisdiction to give certain directions for the same, 30 I.C. 771=2 L.W. 607. Hereditary trustee—Appointment of treasurer—Necessity for, 28 I.C. 479. A Court in framing a scheme regarding a temple is bound to have regard to the existing rights of individuals to the trusteeship of the temple. 23 M.L.J. 134; 28 M. 319; 21 M.L.J. 784. When deciding a case under section 92, if it is decided to appoint a committee, it is best to state so clearly in the judgment and to add that the personnel of the committee will be decided later on an application by the parties. The personnel can then be determined. 1940 not, in the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction or in any other Court

NOTES.

A.M.L.J. 112. Where it is decided to appoint a committee, it is, most inadvisable that parties' counsel should be appointed as members. It is not right to ask counsel to act on behalf of their clients as committee members in a trust for which they appeared on opposite sides in a Court. 1940 A.M.L.J. 112. Where a trustee is removed, it is desirable that the Judge should issue notice to the parties interested and also give public notice in such a way as to enable claimants to the office to come forward and put in their respective claims. But when this procedure is not observed and a new trustee is appointed by consent of parties without any enquiry, the order will not operate as res judicata barring the claim of any claimant in future. 41 C.W.N. 298. Indian Courts have the same powers as the Courts of Chancery in England to appoint additional trustees even where there are hereditary trustees. 23 M. L. J. 134. See also 51 M. L. J. 457. Scheme—Effect of—Private rights lost—Alteration of scheme. 36 Mad. 364=21 M. L.J. 952. Even apart from any question of mismanagement and misappropriation, a Court can settle a scheme if it can conduce to the better management of the trust property. 45 I.C. 213. Appointment of trustee—Founder not providing for—Officer reverts to heirs—Court's duty. 1929 B. 193=31 Bom.L.R. 349. In making an appointment of a trustee in a suit under section 92, C.P. Code, although regard must be had to the line of devolution that may have been prescribed in the deed of endowment, it is permissible to the Court, in peculiar circumstances having regard to the exigency of the case, to make an appointment which may involve a departure from the arrangement contemplated by the deed of trust itself. 41 C.W.N. 298.

OBJECT OF SECTION.—The object of section 92 is to make it clear that the provisions of section are mandatory and object of the saving clause is to make it clear that Rel. End. Act is still in force. 24 M.L.J. 658. The object of section is not to encourage abuse of the process of the Court by vexatious or improper suits. 37 I.C. 897.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Test of applicability. 97 I.C. 480. The question whether a suit falls within section 92, C.P. Code, depends not upon the character in which the plaintiff sues but upon the nature of the reliefs sought. A suit by an idol of a temple represented by its manager against the trustee of a fund established for meeting the expenses of a public worship and other duties including repairs connected with that temple alleging breach of trust and claiming an account from the defendant trustee is a suit falling under section 92 (1), C.P. Code, and is not maintainable without the previous sanction of the Advocate-General. 58 M. 988=

1935 M. 825=69 M.L.J. 291 (F.B.). See also 72 C.L.J. 362. The section does not apply to the case of an endowment for purposes religious as well as charitable. 5 M. 383; 11 A. 18 (22) (F.B.); 25 A. 631. In the case of a trust for public purposes of a charitable and religious nature, the Court is not fettered by the wishes of the founder. The primary duty of the Civil Court is to consider the interest of the public, or that part of the public, for whose benefit the trust is created and the Court is justified having regard to the previous management, in deciding, in the exercise of its discretion, that the defendant mutawallis should be removed on account of their insolvency and mismanagement and keeping the charity in a deplorable condition. 43 C. 1085 (P.C.), Rel. on. 147 I.C. 882=1934 P.C. 53=66 M.L.J. 333 (P.C.). The allegation that a person is entitled to the office of a trustee of a fund brings the reliefs to that declaration sought within the purview of section 92 (1) and the proper remedy is a suit properly instituted under that section and not an application under section 34 or section 74. Trusts Act. 150 I.C. 193=11 O.W.N. 323=1934 O. 118. The mere fact that the plaintiffs in a suit are in a sense trustees will not necessarily preclude the application of section 92, if the reliefs sought relate not to the vindication of the personal rights of the trustees, but to the advancement of the interests of the institution itself by securing more efficient management. A suit whose avowed object is the furtherance of the interests of the institution itself is a suit falling under section 92 and its provisions must therefore be complied with. 42 L.W. 264=1935 M. 855=69 M.L.J. 300. The section does not apply to a case where the suit is by the whole body of persons who are legally authorised to administer the trust to which it relates. 29 A. 27. Section 92 applies to an action for removal of a person appointed a trustee under a trust deed. Section 92 applies as much to the removal of a trustee de son tort as to the removal of an ordinary trustee. 151 I.C. 138=1934 P. 321. A suit for the recovery of trust property improperly alienated by a trustee does not lie under this section. 8 B. 365; 28 A. 112; 55 M. 549=62 M.L.J. 180. But see 24 C. 418. Nor a suit by a trustee to recover possession of property from a trespasser. 25 A.L.J. 902; 129 I.C. 741=1931 B. 170=32 Bom.L.R. 1687. A suit to compel trustees to make good the loss sustained by the charity in consequence of their default falls, within the scope of the section. 21 B. 48. The section was intended to apply to persons who, before its enactment, had or were believed to have no right to take proceedings for purposes mentioned in it. 21 M. 406. The section does not apply to application for modification provided for in a scheme. 133

Where certain persons apply for being appointed as trustees of a certain wakf without specifically praying for the removal of the trustees actually working there, the purpose of the application is virtually the removal of such persons therefrom and the relief sought for falls within the purview of S. 92 (1); the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain such application; the remedy is by way of suit under S. 92. 1937 O.W.N. 730=1937 Oudh 381.

RELIEFS UNDER THE SECTION.—A court has inherent power to pass a decree in a suit relating to trust, under section 92 (h) appointing new trustees and directing old ones to deliver the properties to them. 58 I.C. 566=17 A.L.J. 957. The discretion which is conferred upon a Court by the terms of section 92, is very wide and the law does not make it obligatory upon a Court in a suit under that section to make all the orders that are contemplated by the different clauses of that sub-section. It is quite open to the Court not to frame a detailed scheme, if it thinks that certain directions given by it to the newly appointed trustee for the proper carrying out of the endowment would be quite enough. 41 C.W.N. 298. In framing schemes the superintendence over temples should not be vested in Courts but in temple Committees. 1927 M.W.N. 759=26 L.W. 581=1927 M. 1033. In section 92 the words "such further relief as the nature of the case may require" cover every subsidiary order or direction on any matter of detail necessary for carrying out the main purposes of the section. 40 I.C. 182; 24 C. 418; 11 P. 288. The expression must be taken to mean relief of the same nature as clauses (a) to (g) and so the section does not apply to a suit by certain worshippers for a declaration that a prior scheme suit had been fraudulently compromised and for a declaration that the properties belonged to a wakf and no sanction is necessary. 55 C. 519=55 I.A. 96=54 M.L.J. 669 (P.C.). It would be of no avail to pass a decree removing the trustee and appointing a new trustee if the old trustee is allowed to remain in possession of the property. To render the decree operative, possession must be delivered to the newly appointed trustee. A relief for the delivery of possession would fall under Cl. (h) of section 92 and be within the competence of the Court to grant. But no order can be made for such amounts as may be due from the old trustees after accounts are taken. 144 I.C. 506=1934 N. 48. A prayer asking that the trustees be restrained from alienating the trust property is one which may well be included under section 92 (h). 30 S.L.R. 104=165 I.C. 158=1936 Sind 179. A decree cannot be passed against the defendant who sets up title adverse to a trust, to deliver possession of properties in his possession, in a suit under this section. 53 M.L.J. 183. There is much which is common between section 14 of the Religious Endowments Act and section 92 but the latter is substantially the wider and provides for settling a scheme which is a jurisdiction of a very wide and beneficial nature. 42 B. 742. See also 1925 P. 544. Where none of the reliefs specified in section 92 is claimed and the plaintiff does not ask the Court to appoint him a mutawalli, the suit is competent under section 92. 29 I.C. 423=20 C.W.N. 604. A suit for declaration that the property in the suit is a public charitable property and that neither the defendant nor any one else is entitled to alienate the same and for an injunction restraining the defendant from alienating the same or any portion of it to any person, is a suit to which section 92 applies, because the relief prayed for falls within Cl. (h) of the section; consequently sanction under the section is necessary. 30 S.L.R. 104=165 I.C. 158=1936 Sind 179. Mere declarations are outside the scope of section 92. But where reliefs contemplated by the section are claimed and such reliefs cannot be granted without the determination of the question whether a public trust exists or whether a particular property appertains to a public trust the Court in a suit under section 92 can determine the question whether a public trust exists or a particular property appertains to such public trust. A suit for a mere declaration that a trustee has not been validly appointed may be outside the scope of section 92. But in a suit under that section the Court has to determine whether a trustee has been validly appointed or not if determination of such a question is necessary for giving reliefs claimed in the suit which properly come under that section. 72 C.L.J. 362. A.I.R. 1941 C. 68. Though in a suit properly framed under S. 92 a relief amounting ultimately to an injunction may be granted to the plaintiff, the relief for a permanent injunction to restrain the defendant from obstructing general public in going to the place for puja is not contemplated by S. 92 and there is no bar to grant of such relief on account of absence of consent of Advocate-General. 145 I.C. 294=14 Pat.L.T. 768=

1933 P. 246. A prayer for ejectment cannot be entertained by the Court in a suit instituted under section 92. 144 I.C. 168=1933 L. 395. It is not beyond the power of the Court which frames a scheme in a suit under section 92, to provide for the modification of the scheme by an application in the very suit itself in which the scheme is framed. 73 C.L.J. 532=A.I.R. 1941 C. 618.

ACCOUNTS, DIRECTION AS TO.—S. 22, C. P. Code, is quite wide enough to entitle the Court to direct an account against a trustee and to order him to pay the amount found due upon taking those accounts. 28 I.C. 886. A decree directing trustee to pay amount due on taking accounts is executable and not merely declaratory. 52 M.L.J. 182; 54 M. 345=60 M.L.J. 173 (178). See also 1928 M. 61=107 I.C. 136. Such an order is appealable as a decree. 54 M. 337=60 M.L.J. 167. It is not obligatory on the Court to pass a decree directing accounts on the removal of trustee in a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code. If upon a consideration of the facts and circumstances of the case, when the income of the endowment is quite small and the expenditure does not leave much in the shape of balance, the Court comes to the conclusion that it would not be profitable to make an order for accounts, it is very difficult for the appellate Court to say that that order is not justifiable or that it would be interfered with. 41 C.W.N. 298. When the Court removes a trustee for mismanagement and breach of trust under S. 92, it will not pass an order against him for rendition of accounts, if it is found that the usufruct of the properties has all along been held by in the hands of the trustee for the time being to be applied at his discretion, and also when such an order would be infructuous in the sense that it would lead merely to an expensive and laborious inquiry leading to no tangible result. 14 P. 379=16 Pat.L.T. 35=1935 P. 111. See also I.L.R. (1937) Cal. 673=1937 Cal. 150. Suits merely to recover money found due by the defendant on the taking of accounts and to recover property belonging to the trust but in the possession of the defendant and to recover damages for a tort committed by the defendant would always be maintainable under the general law and may not fall under S. 92. 1934 M. 126=57 M. 362=66 M.L.J. 98. Directory clauses outside the scheme portion in a decree are executable; but those within it are prima facie inexecutable. 1933 M. W.N. 183.

SANCTION.—Sanction obtained from Advocate-General without disclosing rejection by the Collector of a prior application for sanction, is not invalid. But the bona fides of the applicant will be taken into consideration. 1928 M. 401. Notice to trustee desirable before sanction. 53 M. 223. Sanction by Collector without notice to defendants is valid. Court can direct suit to stand over for obtaining sanction against other defendants, where sanction had been obtained only as against one defendant. 1930 M.W.N. 456. A sanction granted for a suit under S. 92 means any suit which may be laid under that section and it is not confined to one of the species of suits that could be raised on the application. 48 C. 493 (P.C.); 21 B. 257. The limitation requiring previous sanction is necessary to prevent an abuse of the powers conferred by the section. 21 M. 406. The suit must be limited to matters included in the consent and it is not competent to the Court to enlarge the scope of the suit. 21 B. 257. But see 48 C. 493 (P.C.). Variance between sanction and plaint is not fatal to the suit unless there is any material omission. 107 I.C. 130=1928 M. 205. The duties imposed upon a Collector by Government Resolution under S. 93 of the C. P. Code are of a very special nature, and cannot be discharged by his subordinates. 35 B. 243. But there is no harm in an order being signed by the sheristadar for the Collector. 107 I.C. 130=1928 M. 205. Consent obtained as against persons not real trustees is invalid as against the real trustees. 24 L.W. 419=97 I.C. 462=1926 M. 970. Such an objection cannot be waived by real trustee. (Ibid.) The "consent in writing" must be a specific permission given to two or more persons by name. A permission given to one applicant by name "and another" is not sufficient. 26 A. 162. But see 10 M. 185; 9 I.C. 358. Sanction is necessary for a suit, by individual worshippers against trustees for infringement of right common to them and other worshippers. 52 M.L.J. 541. Where sanction under S. 92 is obtained by several persons and one of them dies before the institution of suit, the suit instituted by the rest is valid. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 356. The use of the word "instituted" in S. 92, makes it incumbent on the Court to see what the prayers were in the plaint at the date the suit was instituted in order to satisfy itself whether S. 92 (2), had been complied with, and for that purpose the Court must pay no regard to what may happen by way of amendment or abandonment at some later stage in the suit. If the suit as instituted falls under S. 92, it cannot lie if brought without the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector, the fact that by subsequent amendment the relief or reliefs falling under S. 92 are struck would not make the suit maintainable. Broomfield, J.—If a suit claims the reliefs specified in S. 92 and should therefore have been brought under that section, the difficulty cannot be got rid of by amending the plaint or abandoning those reliefs. It would make no difference in principle whether a particular relief is given up after a formal amendment of the plaint or whether it is abandoned without it. 42 Bom.L.R. 443=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 242.

(b) appointing a new trustee ;

NOTES.

FORM OF SANCTION.—The plaintiffs who are seeking to obtain the Court's assistance to enforce the management of the trust property are not to be defeated because the Collector elected to name only one of the petitioners and to refer to the others merely as the other applicants. 9 I.C. 358=13 Bom. L.R. 49. But see 26 A. 162 (contra). Where the consent in writing of the Advocate-General, or Collector has been obtained to a suit by three persons, the suit as instituted must conform to that consent. If after the institution by three persons as plaintiffs, two die, the suit does not become defective or incompetent. There is no provision at all in the Code for recourse being had to the Advocate-General or Collector during the course of a suit or proceedings in appeal. The consent is a condition of the valid institution of a suit and has no reference to any other stage. The persons who filed the suit within the leave of the Advocate-General or Collector are not to be deemed to be one plaintiff and as such there is no reason why one of the plaintiffs in the case should not appeal alone on the same terms and conditions as are applicable to suits in general. 65 I.A. 198=A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 184=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). The suit for declaration and injunction as to pathway is one to which O. 1, R. 8 is appropriate if the Court's permission is taken, the recourse to the Advocate-General being unnecessary. 69 I.C. 910=26 C. W. N. 587. Where the object of suit is to secure certain advantages to a trust, any two persons can sue in that behalf with the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector of the District concerned. 35 I.C. 88=3 L. W. 512. See also 60 I.C. 570. No sanction is required for a plaintiff suing as a trustee for obtaining a decree for an account against his co-trustee. 41 M.L.J. 608=45 M. 113. But see 66 I.C. 837=16 L. W. 155; also for a suit by a co-trustee for joint right of management. 105 I.C. 194=1927 M. 948. Where a sanction under S. 92 is granted to more than two persons interested in the trust, all must join in the suit, and not any two of them. 29 M.L.J. 231. A suit for appointment of new trustee requires a sanction. 21 M.L.J. 450. No relief can be prayed for, to which no sanction has been obtained. 26 L.W. 581=1927 M. 1033. But see 9 O.W.N. 966=1933 O. 22=8 Luck. 266.

"TWO OR MORE PERSONS."—The phrase "two or more persons" in S. 92, means two or more individuals who are named or so described in the consent that they can be identified. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 88. When a suit is instituted by one plaintiff only with the consent of the Advocate-General, and the plaint is subsequently amended by the addition of a second plaintiff, and the Advocate-General consents to it, the suit is bad in its inception and should be dismissed. 30 B. 603. But see 1929 M. 63. Reservation by a Court to a person or persons to apply for a relief is ultra vires. 51 M. 31=53 M.L.J. 792 (F.B.). The power to file suit granted by the sanction must be exercised by all the grantees joining as plaintiffs. Where some of them were plaintiffs and the others were joined as defendants defect is not cured by transposition of the defendants to plaintiff's side. 53 M. 223. Where consent has been given to two or more persons, some only of those persons, even if they are more than two cannot institute the suit. A condition precedent to the valid institution of the suit is the fulfilment of the conditions of the consent which has been given. The section does not contemplate that some of those persons should institute a suit as plaintiffs while others who, after consent is given, have changed their minds should be joined as defendants. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 88.

"INTERESTED."—The interest must be an existing one; and not a mere contingency; the mere possibility of an interest is not sufficient. 20 C. 810 (816)=1930 L. 1. See also 1938 Rang. 339. The interest need not be a direct interest. 24 I.C. 712. The interest need not be personal. A worshipper has such an interest in the temple management to see not only that he himself is in the voters' list but also to see that the list is properly revised and the election is held as per rules. 50 M. 726=53 M.L.J. 545. Where the evidence shows that the temple is a public temple, the right to worship in the temple gives the plaintiff a right to sue under S. 92. 1933 S. 213. Residents of the locality in which a religious institution such as a mosque is situated and for which it was originally founded and the persons authorized by law to use it and the worshippers of the mosque are persons interested under the section. 152 I.C. 323=1934 Pesh. 57. The descendants of the founder of a trust have an interest in the trust over and above that which the public generally have or might have in a public trust and any one of them has a locus standi to sue the trustees and beneficiaries colluding to misappropriate trust property if according to him provisions of the trust have not been carried out or have been rendered impossible of being carried out. The provisions of S. 92 do not cover a suit of this nature. 47 M. 884 (P.C.), Rel. 1933 L. 670. "Interest" what is, see 91 I.C. 924=1926 M. 267; 23 L.W. 240=92 I.C. 950=1926 M. 466; 40 M. 16; 1932 A. 708. Persons in whom right of control is vested by founder—Not the only persons competent to bring the suit—Collaterals of founder have right of suit as persons interested. 1929 L. 428=116 I.C. 451. See also cases cited under the heading "right of suit" infra.

PRIVATE TRUST.—S. 92 is not applicable to private trust. 43 M.L.J. 116=49 C. 459 (P.C.); 25 I.C. 661; 56 I.C. 707; 101 I. C. 54. The Court should pause before interfering under S. 92 with a matter which is more a family matter than of a public nature. 28 I.C. 116. The essential ingredient which constitutes a gift of movable or immovable property in the Hindu Law is the Sankalp and the Samarpan whereby the property is completely given away and the owner completely divests himself of the ownership of the property. The fact that a dharmshala was built by a person in pursuance with the will of his predecessor and proof of public user is not sufficient proof of dedication; where on the other hand, the evidence was to the effect that the owner kept the keys of the building and permission to use it was obtained from him, it must be held to be a private institution. 141 I.C. 523=34 P.L.R. 105=1933 L. 189. See also 148 I. C. 882=1934 A. 315. A trust for the benefit of the poor members of a particular testator's family is not a trust "for a public purpose of a charitable nature" within the meaning of S. 92. Accordingly a suit relating to such a trust does not require for its commencement the sanction of the Government Advocate, even though the suit is for relief of one of the kinds mentioned in that section. 14 R. 575. See also 1935 S. 235.

PUBLIC TRUST.—A suit to remove a duly appointed muttawalli of a trust created for a public purpose of a religious or charitable nature cannot be instituted save in conformity with S. 92, C. P. Code. 35 A. 98. Public trust—Test of. 38 I.C. 800; 45 I. C. 213; 11 I.C. 166; 1928 M. 879. S. 92 is not limited to trusts in the sense defined by the Trusts Act but must certainly include them. 40 Bom.L.R. 1041=A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 471. Unless a trust is expressly created for a public purpose of a charitable nature, the mere fact that the income of certain property has been for long spent in feeding an idol and in maintaining and taking care of pilgrims will not by itself constitute a trust of such a nature. 11 I.C. 308=8 A.L.J. 1120. A public trust must be proved by strong evidence; the mere fact that the income of certain property has for a long time been spent to support fakirs and visitors is not sufficient evidence of such a public trust. 11 I.C. 166. See also 1937 Cal. 67; Tope nam is a public charitable trust. See 1937 M. 862=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 505. A trust created by a private person formulating a scheme to help Anglo-Indian youths of the Madras Presidency in their studies, providing for the grant of loans at a low rate of interest to the youths of that community who wished to qualify for professions or obtain higher education generally is not a private trust, but a public trust governed by the provisions of S. 92. A scheme of loans for educational purposes at low interest must be regarded as a scheme of a charitable nature. The fact that the founder has placed certain restrictions as regards the age and other qualifications of the recipients of the benefit does not make the trust any the less a public trust. An order of Court permitting a deviation from the trust can only be made in proceedings taken with the sanction of the Advocate-General under S. 92, and not by way of an originating summons under O. 45 of the Original Side Rules of the High Court. 50 L. W. 534=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 920=(1939) 2 M. L.J. 714. Allotting property for the benefit of poor members of a particular community is a purpose of public or charitable nature within the meaning of S. 92. Where a suit relates to such property sanction of the Advocate-General under S. 92 prior to the institution of the suit is essential, although such property forms a small part and is divisible from the rest of the trust property in respect of which the suit is brought. Sanction under S. 92 is all the more necessary when the suit is not divisible and it is not possible for the plaintiff to omit the relief which he claims relating to charitable part of the trust and in such a case the whole suit is governed by S. 92. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 325=A. I. R. 1939 Sind 13. Matter pertaining to administration of religious trust—Temple trustee removing namams in temple and on temple articles and putting different namams—Suit in respect of—Suit to compel trustee to take out deity in procession on certain occasions—Sanction is necessary. 1939 M.W. But the question of onus is immaterial when evidence on both sides is adduced. 64 C.L. J. 341=1937 C. 67. The section should be applied to Mutts and the public, the Advocate-General and the Courts of Justice should have the power to stop the wholesale misuse of the income of a charitable and religious institution like a matam. 38 M. 256=25 M.L.J. 393. The head of mutt, how far trustee of mutt property. He will be trustee of temple property vested in him as head of Mutt—In respect of such property, suit lies for his removal under S. 92, C. P. purposes, some portion for religious purposes which cannot be regarded as wholly public in Mahomedan Law like Mohurram and Ramzan expenses, and the surplus, if any, is to go to haj expenses of the mutawalli, the wakf is not a trust created for public purposes within the meaning of S. 92, C. P. Code. 44 C.W.N. 969. There is no hard and fast rule that, merely because there are certain provisions in favour of private individuals and certain others in favour of the public, therefore, the case falls within or without the class of public trusts to which S. 92, C. P. Code applies. The Court must look to the real substance of the trust and the primary intention of the creator of the trust in every case. 42 C.W.N. 345=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 278. S. 92—Applicability—Wakf partly private and partly public—Suit for removal of trustee alleging breach of private trust—Consent of Advocate-General not necessary—'Breach of trust'—Meaning of. 1939 Rang.L.R. 140=1939 Rang. 254. S. 92—Applicability—Hindu leaving widow and large properties—Wills left by deceased giving considerable properties to trusts and charities and maintenance to widow—Suit by latter claiming higher maintenance according to Hindu Law and challenging wills—No sanction—Necessary. 41 Bom.L.R. 787=1939 Bom. 354.

RELIGIOUS TRUST.—The head of a mutt may be answerable as a trustee for maladministration. 50 M. 297=52 M. L. J. 405. Where a person was put in charge as pujari of an idol in a Dharmasala, he is a servant and not a trustee and a suit under S. 92 is not maintainable against him. 21 A.L.J. 310=1923 A. 247. Although a District Judge has the powers of a Khazi under the Mahomedan Law to deal with an application for appointment of a mutwalli, he may relegate the petitioner to a suit under S. 92. 49 I.C. 799=23 C.W.N. 138. A suit by a temple trustee to recover the amount due by a defendant under the terms of the trust cannot be maintained without leave as the suit is not exempt from S. 92 or S. 18, Religious Endowments Act. 62 I.C. 911=14 L.W. 238. Public user for a long period without objection can be relied upon as strong evidence of a public trust. Where properties have been acquired by a Sadhu, mahant of a temple and have descended from chela to chela there is a presumption that they have been dedicated to religious uses. 40 Bom.L.R. 1041=A. I. R. 1938 Bom. 471. Where the origin and founder of a temple are unknown, the facts that members of public are freely admitted, festivals are celebrated in a certain manner, and the like lead to the inference that the temple is a public one, and the inference is not rebutted by the fact that a particular mode of worship is followed, that management follows a particular line of descent in the pujari family. 40 M.L.J. 289. See also 1938 Bom. 471. S. 92, C. P. Code, is not confined to cases where there is definite evidence as to the creation of the trust and of dedication to purposes of charitable and religious nature. The section will apply even in the absence of such evidence. The matter has to be decided not merely on the terms of the grants in respect of the particular institution but also on the usage and custom of the institution. The fact that the income of the properties has all along been applied to religious and charitable purposes is strong reason for holding that those purposes are the purposes for which the institution exists. 14 P. 379=16 Pat.L.T. 35=1935 P. 111.

CHARITABLE TRUST—WHAT CONSTITUTES.—Where the words used in a trust are "charitable and benevolent" purposes, any object to be benefited must possess both characteristics. Accordingly these words will constitute a good charitable trust, that is to say a charitable trust of a public character. But where the words are "public, benevolent or charitable purposes" the gift is expressed in another form admitting non-charitable objects, for example objects of private benevolence only, or public non-charitable purposes and the trust will fail. A bequest to charitable purposes may by its very terms show that those purposes are of a private nature. In such a case the bequest would not fall under S. 92. Where a gift is to purposes which are charitable, whatever else they may be in addition, then unless the charitable purposes expressed are clearly stated to be of a private nature, the Courts will administer the trust as one for public purposes of the charitable nature. Where the testator's intention is to benefit only the members of his own family who are poor, this is not "a public purpose of a charitable nature" within the meaning of S. 92. But, where charity, prima facie for public purposes, is the expressed object of the settlor, these purposes are not in any way defeated by the reminder that members of his own family are eligible to benefit with other members of the public at large. 1939 Rang.L.R. 520=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 203.

CO-TRUSTEES.—S. 92 has no application to a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff and the defendant are co-mutwallis of wakf property and are entitled to manage it jointly. 52 I.C. 628 (A.). See also 97 I.C. 480. A trustee of a public charity can sue his co-trustee for an account without the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector. 41 M.L.J. 608=45 M. 113. See also 25 Bom.L.R. 747=1924 B. 198. S. 92 does not cover suits relating to disputes between parties as to who is to be a mutawalli on the ground of family relationship. 37 A. 86. See also 40 B. 439. Where a suit is instituted by a person claiming to be a trustee of property dedicated for religious purposes, for a declaration that he is a trustee and is entitled to manage the institution as such but the relief he claimed is in his individual capacity and not in a representative capacity and the suit is against a rival trustee or one who claims to be a trustee, such a suit does not fall under S. 92 (1). No injury to public right or interest is involved; whoever happens to succeed will hold the property as trustee and not in his own right. The dispute between the rival trustees inter se is neither a suit for removal of any trustee nor one for appointing a new trustee nor for vesting any property in a trustee and does not fall under any heads from (d) to (g) or under head (h) of S. 92. A suit in respect of properties forming the subject-matter of a public charitable trust, seeking relief on the ground of a breach of trust by the defendant trustee falls under S. 92, and is not maintainable unless instituted in conformity with the provisions of S. 92. The fact that the trustee-defendant is a woman and that the plaintiff is a reversioner who has a chance of becoming a trustee in the future makes no difference. There is no difference between a male holder and female holder of the office as regards trusteeship in respect of the status of or the remedies open to the next successor to the office. 48 L.W. 543=A.I.R. 1939 M. 65=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 1013. Trust funds deposited with banker by trustee—Misapplication to private account of trustee—Suit by co-trustee against banker and trustee—Sanction of Advocate-General not necessary. See 1938 M.W.N. 1017=48 L.W. 577=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 999.

CO-SHARER.—Suit by co-sharer pujari for declaration of his right to share of income and for injunction from obstruction—Section applicable. 148 I.C. 1153=35 Bom.L.R. 1119=1934 B. 26.

DE FACTO TRUSTEE.—A de facto trustee or a trustee de son tort is subject to the same liabilities as a de jure trustee and suit under S. 92 is maintainable against the former. 27 I.C. 389. See also 33 C. 789; 22 B. 759; 15 C. 329; 26 M. 450; 1931 M.W.N. 898.

TRUSTEE DE SON TORT.—In order to invoke the application of S. 92, C. P. Code, four conditions are necessary: (1) the trust in suit must be for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, (2) the plaint must allege a breach of trust or that the direction of the Court is necessary for the administration of the trust; (3) the suit must be not only in the interest of the plaintiff individually, but in the interest of the public, or in the interest of the trust itself (for where the trust is a public one the interest of the trust will be the interest of the public); and (4) the relief claimed in the suit must be one of the reliefs mentioned in the section. A prayer for removal of a trustee is a relief contemplated by the section and falls under it. The fact that the defendant sought to be removed on the ground of misconduct and misappropriation is a self-constituted trustee, that is to say, a trustee de son tort is immaterial, because if the defendant is a person who is not a trustee and purports to act as a trustee, he is a trustee de son tort, and a suit to remove such a person, is a suit for the removal of a trustee within the meaning of S. 92, C. P. Code. 1940 P.W.N. 123=21 Pat. L. T. 155=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 425. A sanyasi appointed by the people to look after a temple died and after his death his son took possession of the property as chela of his father. He was however appointed neither by the bhik nor by the representatives of the people: Held, that the person who had succeeded to the temple as son and chela of father could not be described as trustee de son tort. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 356. The consent of the Advocate-General under S. 92, C. P. Code, is not necessary in order that a trustee may recover trust property in the hands of a stranger to the trust. 45 C.W.N. 385=I.L.R. 1941 M. 175=A. I. R. 1941 P.C. 1=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 393 (P.C.).

CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTEES.—Different from the English Law sense. See 50 M. 567=52 M.L.J. 415. A constructive trustee within the meaning of S. 92 would include a person who holds a particular fiduciary position and whose obligation as such can be enforced in a Court of law. 25 Bom.L.R. 747 (22 Bom.L.R. 457; 11 M.I.A. 405; 20 Bom.L.R. 1088; 54 Bom.L.R. 629, Rel.) (Archaka of temple). A stranger to a trust who receives money or property from the trustee, which he knows to be part of the trust estate, and to be paid or handed to him in breach of the trust is a constructive trustee; and the cases of a constructive trustee, or de jure trustee, or trustee de son tort are covered by S. 92. They are not strangers to the trust and a suit against them is maintainable under S. 92. In such a suit it is not necessary for the plaintiff to pay ad valorem Court-fee on a prayer for declaration of trust. 39 C. W. N. 1103=1935 C. 805=63 C. 74.

NEW TRUSTEES.—A suit lies for the appointment of new trustees on the ground that the defendants are not the lawful trustees and that the trusteeships are therefore vacant. The new trustees so appointed can demand possession from the defendants. 26 M. 450 (453). A fresh suit under the section is necessary to appoint additional trustees. 1927 S. 1=97 I.C. 398. A provision in a scheme settled under S. 92, C. P. Code, giving the Court authority to appoint a successor in place of a deceased trustee, is not a provision which can be regarded as constituting a modification of the original scheme and is not, therefore, ultra vires. 1937 O.W.N. 39=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 193.

REMOVAL OF TRUSTEE.—See 67 I.A. 32=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 371 (P.C.) (Removal of trustee de son tort). No general rule can be laid down befitting the different kinds of religious heads of varying sanctity and eminence. It must depend upon the facts of each case. It may be that mere mismanagement or incapacity is, in the case of certain high dignitaries, not ordinarily sufficient for their removal from the performance of their religious duties, as distinct from their duties as managers of the properties of the institution. It may also be that a Court, in certain cases, exercises a wise discretion in not directing their total exclusion from their religious office, where (e.g.) the lapses are due to causes like a misconception of their position or obligations. The Court may sometimes not order their total removal, but may associate with them a committee of management. But these are all matters for the consideration of the Civil Court, which must necessarily enjoy a wide discretion to decide what form of punitive or ameliorative order will suit the requirements of the case. The true rule in such matters can be stated to be that if it be found by the Court that the functionary, in the exercise of his duties, has put himself in a position in which the Court thinks that the obligations of his office in connection with the endowment can no longer be faithfully discharged without danger to the endowment, that is a sufficient ground for his removal, if need be, from both his offices. 67 I.A. 32=44 C.W.N. 177=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 24=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 371 (P.C.). In a suit under S. 92, for the removal of a mahant from his office, the Court can consider the moral character of the mahant as directly relevant to the issues arising in the suit, (e.g.) his fitness to remain in office and his liability to be removed therefrom. 67 I.A. 32=1940 P.C. 24=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 371 (P.C.). Mere assertion in a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, by a trustee that trust properties are private properties is not by itself a sufficient ground for his removal. If he committed any breach of trust before the suit, his conduct in the course of the suit is an important element to be taken into consideration in deciding whether the breach should be condoned and he should be allowed to retain the office. 72 C.L.J. 362. The Dharmakarta holds the position of trustee and as such on assertion of private ownership in trust property and falsification of accounts, he is liable to be removed. 45 M. 565=43 M.L.J. 536; 47 I.C. 850; 47 C. 866. Where a mutawalli had shown by his conduct to be entirely unfit to administer wakf he should be removed. The discretion of lower Court not being influenced by sound reasoning or exercised judicially, could be interfered with by the High Court. 177 I.C. 234=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 166. It is a serious delinquency on the part of the person for the time being administering the trust to set up a case that it was his private property, generally in such cases, Court should not continue such a person in the post of chief trustee. 1940 A.M.L.J. 112. S. 92—"Two or more persons"—Meaning of. Proof of breach of trust or mismanagement is not essential for the removal of a trustee from management. The Court has a wide discretion under S. 92, C.P. Code, to take such action as it thinks necessary or desirable for the good of the charity. The fact that a trustee puts forth an unwarranted claim to the right of exclusive management does not necessarily call for the penalty of exclusion from management. 43 Bom.L.R. 706. A suit to dismiss a Pujari for misconduct is not one coming within the provisions of S. 92. He is not a trustee in any sense of the term. He is only responsible for the services in the temple. 1940 A.M.L.J. 66. Where the secular and religious duties of a mahant of a public endowment are inter-dependent and inseparably blended, as it must be the case in any well-organised institution, a Civil Court has jurisdiction under S. 92, C.P. Code, in fit cases to remove the mahant not only from the trusteeship and management of the temporal affairs of the endowment but also from his spiritual duties. But even if the two capacities of the office can be separated, and the mahantship on its spiritual side regarded as purely an office or dignity, there is no doubt that the office is of such a nature that a suit relating to it must fall within the purview of the explanation to S. 9, C.P. Code—the spiritual portion of the office being intimately connected with the exercise of rights to property. There may, however, be cases where the duties of an office are purely spiritual and moral, entirely unconnected with any particular temple or place. The office may be such that no pecuniary benefit is attached to it or its emoluments are purely voluntary contributions, or the duties attendant to it are the exercise of spiritual and moral supervision over the voluntary actions of the worshippers. In such cases, it may be futile for a Civil Court to interfere with the exercise of the duties of the office. No rights of property are connected with it and there is no machinery by which the Court can control the voluntary action of the worshippers or the mahant. 67 I.A. 32=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 266=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 24=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 371 (P.C.). S. 92, C.P. Code, does not say that a trustee guilty of a breach of trust can be removed only by a suit. A suit may be brought to remove him in the manner prescribed by the section. But if a suit has once been brought under the section, and a scheme has been framed, which provides for the removal of trustees for unfitness, the exercise of that power in the course of proceedings arising out of the scheme, is not contrary to S. 92, even though the trustee be found unfit by reason of a breach of trust. 38 Bom.L.R. 147=1937 Bom. 124. If any relief is to be granted in a suit under S. 92, ordering the removal or interfering with the rights of the shebais and trustees as founders, something

(f) authorizing the whole or any part of the trust-property to be let, sold, mortgaged or exchanged ;

(g) settling a scheme ; or

(h) granting such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require.

(2) Save as provided by the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, no suit claiming any of the reliefs specified in sub-section (1) shall be instituted in respect of any such trust as is therein referred to except in conformity with the provisions of that sub-section.

substantial must be shown justifying their removal or interference. 64 C.L.J. 341=1937 C. 67. Where a clear case is made out for the Court's interference under S. 92, by proving that the mahant or trustee has frustrated the whole purpose of the trust, has alienated the properties of the trust unlawfully, and has been guilty of wasteful and extravagant management, the final order of the Court should be governed by what appears to be in the interest of the institution. It is necessary in such cases that the Court should remove the mahant or trustee and appoint a new trustee and make arrangements which will prevent mismanagement in future and provide for future succession. 14 P. 379=156 I.C. 1099=16 Pat.L.T. 35=1935 P. 111. See also 1938 Rang. 166. In framing a scheme the Court need not remove trustees already holding office when no misconduct is proved against them. 34 I.C. 551=4 L.W. 228. In a suit to remove the Sajjadanashin and for settlement of scheme, the death of the Sajjadanashin renders his removal unnecessary but the cause of action which necessitated the settlement of a scheme survives. 1934 P. 443. There is nothing in S. 92 to prevent the inclusion in a scheme framed under that section of a provision empowering the Court in specified contingencies to reduce the powers of the "managing trustee or Sajjadanashin mutwalli," temporarily or otherwise or even to remove him altogether. 1934 P. 443. See also 37 P.L.R. 85. In a suit under S. 92 the Court has power to appoint a receiver and take the management of the Temple out of the hands of the trustees appointed by the Temple Committee pending the disposal of the suit even though there is no prayer for his removal and though he cannot be removed except on a proper enquiry. 41 M.L.J. 545. C. C. M.—74

The Court cannot remove a trustee from his office for alleged misconduct on a mere application made to it for his removal, when it is impossible for it to entertain the application conformably with the provisions of the scheme. The remedy of the persons interested in the trust is to institute a suit under S. 92, with the permission of the Legal Remembrancer, for his removal. No action can be taken by the Court on a miscellaneous application for tracing the funds misappropriated by him, nor can it give any directions in respect of the proper management of the affairs of the trust. 58 A. 538; 157 I.C. 202=1935 A.L.J. 311=1935 A. 273. See also 59 M. 751=71 M.L.J. 87=1936 M. 589; 159 I.C. 296=1935 S. 210. It is not competent to the framers of a scheme to provide that where the ordinary law requires a suit to be brought, an application may be substituted for it. Where the allegations amount to charges of breaches of trust such an application would run counter to the terms of S. 92, C.P.Code, and a provision to that effect is therefore ultra vires. Merely because the scheme is incorporated in a decree, it does not require any greater validity so far as binding the Court is concerned. 157 I.C. 486=41 L.W. 597=1935 M. 474. But see also 1937 Bom. 124=38 Bom.L.R. 1137 cited below. S. 92 does not say that a trustee guilty of a breach of trust can only be removed only by a suit. A suit may be brought to remove him in the manner prescribed by the section. But if a suit has once been brought under the section and a scheme has been framed, which provides for the removal of trustees for unfitness, the exercise of that power in the course of proceedings arising out of the scheme, is not contrary to S. 92, even though the trustee be found unfit by reason of a breach of trust. 38 Bom.L.R. 1137. A clause in a scheme providing for removal of a trustee on an application is invalid. 131 I.C. 423=1931 N. 82 (1). See also 1935 A. 273=1935 A.L.J. 311; 16 Pat. L.T. 35; 37 P.L.R. 85. Judge should issue notice to parties interested and also give public notice in such a way as to enable claimants to the office to come forward and put in their respective claims. The law, however, does not make any provision of this nature; and, therefore, it cannot be laid down as a hard and fast rule that in all suits under S. 92 of the Code that is the procedure necessarily to be resorted to. 41 C.W.N. 298.

ALIENATION OF TRUST PROPERTY.—A declaration regarding the validity of an alienation by a trustee comes within S. 92 (h). 44 A. 622. See also 26 L.W. 274=1927 M. 886; 1937 Lah. 660. The transferee of a wakf property who is made a party to a suit under S. 92 is bound by decision in the suit and is barred from going behind it in a subsequent suit. 33 A. 752; 23 C.W.N. 115. Suits against strangers to a trust whether alienees from trustee or trespassers are not governed by S. 92. 40 M. 212=31 M.L.J. 777; 50 M.L.J. 42. The expression "granting further or more relief" must be read along with the specified reliefs and those that should be granted under this clause should be of the character as those expressly mentioned. 40 M. 212=31 M.L.J. 777.

ABATEMENT OF SCHEME SUIT.—A suit under this section is prosecuted by individuals not for their own interest but as representing general public and so it does not abate on the death of the original plaintiffs. 48 C. 493 (P.C.). See also 16 L. 782; 17 P.L.T. 926. A suit under S. 92 does not abate on the death (or withdrawal) of one of the plaintiffs who obtained sanction for instituting the suit. (47 M.L.J. 745 Foll.) 146 I.C. 628 (2)=1933 M. 854=65 M.L.J. 690. See also 1940 Lah. 356; 55 A. 687=1933 A.L.J. 1393. Where in a suit under S. 92 the question is whether the property is private or public and the defendant contends it to be a private one, the cause of action survives on his death against his sons and the suit does not abate. 148 I.C. 882=1934 A.L.J. 531=1934 A. 315. S. 92 is mandatory but is permissive and directory. It is necessary for the continuance of the suit that there should be at least two plaintiffs. 37 A. 296. Scheme suit—Death of defendant if suit abates. 1926 M. 162=48 M. 688=49 M.L.J. 324.

AMENDMENT OF PLAINT.—It is incumbent upon the Court to see what were the prayers in the plaint at the date the suit was instituted in order to satisfy itself whether S. 92 has been complied with and for this purpose the Court must pay no regard to what may happen by way of amendment or abandonment at some later stage in the suit. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 325=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 13. It cannot be held that no amendment of the plaint is ever possible in suits under S. 92, C. P. Code. Amendments may be made with the consent of the Advocate-General or of the Collector. Although the Code does not provide for recourse to the Advocate-General or the Collector after the suit has been instituted, it does not follow that the Advocate-General or the Collector may not take any further part in the suit. The true position is that it is for the Court to decide in suits under S. 92 whether an amendment is permissible and the consent of the Advocate-General or the Collector as the case may be is really evidence which has to be taken into consideration before deciding whether the amendment should be allowed. There is no reason why amendments which do not substantially change the character of the suit or enlarge the scope of it should not be made by the Court itself without sanction. Amendments which enlarge the scope of the suit, for instance by allowing further reliefs without substantially changing its character, may be made with the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector. Amendments substantially changing the character of the suit would not be permissible even with sanction, for in such a case it can hardly be said that the suit in its amended form was ever validly instituted. 43 Bom.L.R. 706. The sanction of the Advocate-General is equally a condition precedent to the amendment of the plaint especially where such amendment relates to a cause of action arising after the institution of the suit and fresh parties are added in consequence, with a claim for fresh reliefs against them. 36 B. 168. It is not the law that an application for amendment of a scheme of management framed in a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, can only be made by parties to the suit in which the scheme was originally framed. The scheme cannot be regarded as a continuation of the suit, at any rate in the sense that applications under the scheme can only be made by parties to the scheme. Where the scheme provides for modification of the scheme by the Court on the application of parties interested in the institution, any person who may have an interest in the institution from time to time, whether or not he was a party or a representative of a party to the original litigation, is entitled to make an application for amendment or modification of the scheme. 38 Bom.L.R. 1137=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 124. The phrase "Any other Court empowered in that behalf by the Local Government" in S. 92, probably refers to Courts such as the Subordinate Judge's Courts. 48 C. 53. But see 22 I.C. 95=18 C.W.N. 612. A notification by a Local Government empowering a Sub-Judge to try a particular suit pending before the District Judge is not one contemplated by S. 92. 39 C. 146. See also 31 I.C. 397. Amendment of suit by adding strangers to the trust as defendants and prayers for reliefs beyond S. 92, takes the case out of the section and compromise therein does not bind the public under S. 11, Expl. VI. 55 C. 519 (P.C.). See also 42 Bom.L.R. 443=1940 Bom. 242.

PARTIES TO SUIT.—The alienee of the trust property for the breach of which a mutawalli is sued under S. 92 may be made a party. 42 C. 1135. See also 47 I.C. 111 = 28 C.L.J. 4; 35 B. 470; 164 I.C. 615 = 43 L.W. 409 = 1936 M. 449; 42 C.W.N. 345 = 1938 Cal. 278. But see 38 M. 1064; 28 M.L.J. 326, and also see 27 M.L.J. 266; 11 P. 288. Strangers to the trust are neither necessary nor proper parties. 10 R. 342; 11 P. 288. Beneficiaries can sue trustees for encroachments made by them. 101 I.C. 744 = 1927 A. 518. A relief against strangers for recovery of possession of properties in their hands cannot be granted under S. 92 and hence they must be struck off the record. 27 M.L.J. 266; 39 C.W.N. 1103 = 1935 C. 805. But see 53 M.L.J. 183. In a suit for framing a scheme for a public charity, the persons who bona fide allege to be trustee thereto should be made parties, otherwise their right would be lost if a scheme were framed. 50 I.C. 58. (36 M. 364, Ref.)

ADDITION OF PARTIES.—In a suit for the protection of a trust under S. 92 the Court has power under O. 1, R. 10 to add parties for the effectual adjudication of questions relating to administration of the trusts. 43 M. 707 = 38 M.L.J. 201. Court can add other worshippers if the suit is not properly prosecuted. 13 I.C. 232. Under S. 92 a suit may be brought by the Advocate-General himself or two worshippers to whom he has given his consent in writing to sue or by the Advocate-General in conjunction with those persons. The right of each to sue in his own name is not inclusive of the right of the other. 43 M. 707 = 38 M.L.J. 201. No consent from Advocate-General is necessary to be added as defendants. Plaintiffs no doubt do. 5 R. 263 = 103 I.C. 261 = 1927 R. 182. Suit by body in charge of endowment—Statute modifying management of institution—New body cannot apply to continue the suit where the application would amount to an evasion of S. 92. 52 C.L.J. 78 = 1931 C. 281. In the case of a representative suit relating to a trust instituted with the consent of the Advocate-General or the Collector under S. 92, C.P. Code, no fresh consent is necessary in the case of each fresh addition of a party. Any member of the public who is interested in the trust may come in and carry on the suit or appeal, as the case may be, without obtaining a fresh sanction. An appeal is only a continuation of the suit. 62 C. 1132 = 61 C.L.J. 469 = 39 C.W.N. 951. Right to sue—Trust for maintenance of choultry for feeding the poor, and building of temple—Suit by two members of public for framing scheme for management of trust. Held, that though the plaintiffs are not directly interested in the choultry for the poor, they are interested in the building of the temple, and in the suit so brought, the trust should be considered as a whole. 165 I.C. 63 = 1936

RIGHT OF SUIT—"INTEREST."—Interest in S. 92, C.P. Code, denotes an interest which must be a present and substantial and not a remote and fictitious or purely illusory interest. 1938 Rang.L.R. 276 = A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 339. A decree obtained in a suit under S. 5 of the Religious Endowments Act does not bar a suit under S. 92, of the Code. 63 I.C. 418. A suit relating to a public trust is not maintainable without the Advocate-General's permission unless the plaintiff has special claim or interest. 35 I.C. 846. The fact that the plaintiffs belong to the family of the founder and are entitled to succeed to the properties thereof under certain contingencies would naturally give them an "interest" so as to enable them to bring a suit under S. 92. 41 M.L.J. 20 (42 M. 360, Dist.). Residents of the locality in which a choultry is situated and members of the community for whose benefit the choultry was founded have a sufficient "interest" therein within S. 92 to institute a suit. 35 M.L.J. 661. A member of a church need not sue by virtue of an office. 39 M. 1056 = 30 M.L.J. 423. The section protects the right of the public and does not take away private rights; it should not be used to deprive individuals, whose rights have been infringed, of their remedy. 25 M.L.J. 373. A suit by parties to a scheme suit to establish a private right which may interfere with the scheme settled is not maintainable. 9 N.L.J. 45 = 94 I.C. 326 = 1926 N. 326. A Hindu entitled to worship in a temple has an "interest" in it; the section does not require a "direct" interest. 24 I.C. 712. Right to sue—Bad for want of requisite interest on the part of one of the plaintiffs—Subsequent addition of other persons having requisite interest—Effect of. 43 M. 720 = 38 M.L.J. 504.

SUIT UNDER—SUIT FOR REMOVAL FOR SHEBAITS OR TRUSTEES AS FOUNDERS—RIGHT TO RELIEF—GROUNDS—PROOF OF BREACH OF TRUST—NECESSITY.—If any relief is to be granted in a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, ordering the removal or interfering with the rights of the shebait and trustees as founders, something substantial must be shown justifying their removal or interference. Where therefore members of the old managing committee of an ashram brought a suit against the founders of the institution on their forming a new managing committee on the expiry of the old one without even attributing breach of trust on the part of latter, held, that the founders were justified in taking proper steps for the management of the institution and in forming a new committee and there being no breach of trust attributed to them, the suit was not proper. I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 515 = A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 67. Cl. (h) of sub-S. (1) of S. 92, C.P. Code, does not so widen the provisions of S. 92 as to make S. 92 not otherwise applicable to suits against strangers, applicable to such suits.

Where the directions given by a Court in the previous suit for settling a scheme have entirely failed to secure the due administration of the trusts for want of effective machinery, a new scheme must be framed to make the administration effective. 1934 P. 443. Suit under S. 92: District Judge has no power to direct transfer of suit to Subordinate Judge. 37 Bom.L.R. 120. A suit instituted with the sanction in writing of the Legal Remembrancer of the U. P. appointed by the Government to exercise the powers of the Advocate-General, but without the sanction of the Local Government to the specific suit is incompetent. 59 I.A. 121=53 A. 990=62 M.L.J. 249 (P.C.); following 58 I.A. 460=61 M.L.J. 402=53 A. 910 (P.C.). See also 1935 N. 28.

REVIEW.—A Court or a Judge carrying out the provisions of a scheme decree passed under S. 92, C.P. Code, acts as a Court and not as a persona designata. The Court or Judge has power in such cases to appoint trustees to vacancies in the office of trustees which have arisen, but there is no power to cancel an order of appointment or to review the same on the ground that some party alleges that he was misled by reason of wrong information given to him that the case was adjourned and therefore was not present at the time the order was made, when it is not proved that either the Court established or the Judge was at fault. The inherent powers of a Court cannot be extended to such a case. 50 L.W. 460=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 969= (1939) 2 M.L.J. 475.

COMPROMISE OF SUIT.—A suit under S. 92 cannot be compromised if it is proved that the endowment is a public one and where the question whether the endowment is public or not is still in dispute, there cannot be a lawful agreement and it cannot be said to be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the suit had been adjusted by a lawful agreement so long as such a controversy exists. 26 I.C. 360=18 C.W.N. 1264. A Court should not sanction a compromise of a suit under section 92 under which any portion of the trust properties is given to any of the parties. 37 M.L.J. 489. See also 41 C.W.N. 298. See 22 Pat.L.J. 799. Where a compromise decree is made in a suit under section 92, C.P. Code, and a subsequent suit before the District Judge for a declaration that the terms of the decree and of the compromise petition in the former suit on which the decree was based did not represent the true agreement between the parties and are vitiated by fraud, is transferred for trial to a Munsif, the latter, if he finds the allegation to be true can only declare that the facts are what he finds them to be and that in consequence the decree of the District Judge in the prior suit must be and should stand as vacated. It would then be for the parties to go to the District Judge and to ask him to revive the prior suit and dispose of it according to law giving them the necessary and proper reliefs. The Munsif has no jurisdiction to make a new decree under section 92 as that is a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the District Judge. 22 Pat.L.T. 799. Quære.—Whether in a representative suit affecting a public trust under section 92, a compromise can be entered into without leave of Court. 22 Pat.L.T. 799.

ARBITRATION.—Where an arbitrator is required to investigate the nature of the management of various charitable trusts by the parties in management thereof and is also asked to lay down a scheme for the future management of the institutions, that cannot be regarded as a matter arising out of the private rights of any particular individual. The fact that the disputing parties belong to the family or families in which the management of the institutions is vested will not of itself take the case out of the purview of section 92, if the object of the proceeding is to safeguard the interests of the institutions or obtain directions for their proper management. A suit to have such an award made a decree of Court cannot lie when the procedure prescribed by section 92 has not been complied with. 48 L.W. 742=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 972.

JURISDICTION.—See 22 Pat. L. T. 799. A suit under section 92 should be brought in the place where the subject-matter of the trust, i.e., the trust property or trust money, or any part of it is situate. A suit under the section for the usual reliefs against the functioning trustees, in a case where the trust fund is in the hands of the trustees or where the claim against them is in the nature of a debt, must be instituted either in the Court having jurisdiction over the place where the trustees reside or where the debt can be enforced on the ground that a part of the cause of action has arisen. The suit can be properly instituted in the District Court of the place where the trust is situate, though under section 92, both the sub-Court and the District Court to which the former is subordinate have concurrent jurisdiction. 42 L.W. 505=1935 M. 983=69 M.L.J. 274. Where money settled on trust is deposited at Madras with a firm carrying on business at Calcutta a suit relating thereto can be maintained in Calcutta. 59 C. 357. Section 92 must be taken as overriding Cl. (12) of Letters Patent (Calcutta). (Ibid). As to legality of transfer of a suit under section 92 by District Judge to sub-Judge, see 1935 B. 172, cited under section 24. Where a Local Government, purporting to act under section 92 (1), C.P. Code, issues a notification which empowers the presiding Judge of a particular Court, specifically meaning the Judge, to hear suits which may be instituted under section 92, it is only reasonable to assume that the Government intends to comply with the section and to confer the necessary powers to the Court over which the named Judge presided and presides. The Court presided over by that Judge is a Court duly "empowered in that behalf" within the meaning of section 92 (1). The jurisdiction may, however, be limited in time, i.e., only so long as that Court is presided over by the particular named Judge. The notification cannot be taken as merely empowering the particular named Judge as a persona designata, so as to make it not in conformity with section 92 (1) and invalid on that account. The fact that the limits of the jurisdiction of the Judge are not mentioned in the notification will not also invalidate the notification. The notification in question would also empower the Court presided over by that Judge to entertain plaints, as the power to entertain plaints is included in the general grant of jurisdiction. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 655=39 Bom.L.R. 548=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 275 (F.B.).

RES JUDICATA.—Suit under S. 92—Collector's permission alone obtained—Subsequent Privy Council decision saying sanction from Local Government compulsory—Held, that the trial of the suit was not without jurisdiction as admittedly the permission of the Collector to the appeal was obtained before the suit was brought and that procedure was according to the procedure laid down in Civil Circular No. 1-48, and hence the judgment was res judicata. 1935 N. 28. Where the Judge appoints a new trustee by consent of the parties to the suit without making any enquiry or resorting to any elaborate proceeding, the appointment is not an appointment which is the result of a judicial proceeding and can only be justified as an appointment made with the consent of the parties and on no other footing. That being the position, there can be no question that the order which the Judge has made in respect of the appointment will not operate as res judicata barring the claim of any claimant in future. 41 C.W.N. 298.

COSTS.—In a suit under S. 92, which was instituted bona fide and in which the plaintiff's allegation are found to be substantiated, it is only proper that the plaintiff should get all their costs out of the estate. 63 C.L.J. 573.

SEC. 92 (2).—Clause is mandatory. 7 P.L.T. 4=1925 P. 544.

SEC. 92 AND S. 73 OF MADRAS HINDU RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT.—The respective spheres of S. 92, C. P. Code, and S. 73 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act must not be forgotten. The latter Act removes from the ambit of S. 92, C. P. Code, only those religious trusts which amount to "religious endowments" under that Act. Where an endowment or fund is set apart for two purposes, namely, for the renovation of a temple and for the maintenance of a vedapatasala not connected with any temple, the entire amount of the fund being devoted to both purposes together without any apportionment or severance, the endowment is not a "religious endowment"

93. The powers conferred by sections 91 and 92 on the Advocate-General may, outside the Presidency-towns, be, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government, exercised also by the Collector or by such officer as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf.

Exercise of powers of Advocate-General outside Presidency-towns.

PART VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

- Supplemental proceedings. 94. In order to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated the Court may, if it is so prescribed,—

(a) issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance, and if he fails to comply with any order for security commit him to the civil prison ;

(b) direct the defendant to furnish security to produce any property belonging to him and to place the same at the disposal of the Court or order the attachment of any property ;

(c) grant a temporary injunction and in case of disobedience commit the person guilty thereof to the civil prison and order that his property be attached and sold ;

(d) appoint a receiver of any property and enforce the performance of his duties by attaching and selling his property ;

(e) make such other interlocutory orders as may appear to the Court to be just and convenient.

NOTES.

falling under the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act, because one of the purposes, though religious, is outside the scope of the Act. 42 L.W. 505=1935 M. 983=69 M. L.J. 274.

SEC. 92 AND O. 1, R. 10 (2).—In a suit under S. 92 for settling a scheme for a trust, it is necessary to implead as a defendant a person who is not merely a beneficiary but is a near relation of the founder of the trust and has got the necessary qualification which, under the terms of the trust-deed, entitles him to be made a trustee, in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all questions involved in the suit. If he is not so impleaded, he will have no right of appeal against the decree of the trial judge affecting the trust properties. 167 I.C. 828=1937 O.W.N. 271=1937 Oudh 229.

SECS. 92 AND 93.—Suit under S. 92—Collector's permission alone obtained—Subsequent by Privy Council deciding sanction from Local Government compulsory—Decision in suit, not without jurisdiction. 157 I.C. 90=1935 N. 28.

SEC. 93.—In a case where the defect of want of previous sanction by the Local Government is cured by the provisions of the Public Suits Validation Act (XI of 1932) it is not necessary for the plaintiffs to obtain any sanction of the Local Government during the pendency of the suit. (1932 P. C. 51 Ref.) 8 Luck. 266; 1933 Oudh 22. See also 63 C.L.J. 70=1936 C. 815. A suit which has been dismissed under S. 93, C. P. Code, on the ground that the consent required by the section is not in order may be restored under S. 3 of the Public Suits

Validation Act of 1932, if an appeal from the decree dismissing the suit is competent and open at the time of the latter Act. Once the order of restoration is made, the suit has to be proceeded with and tried in accordance with law. The suit cannot again be dismissed on the ground that there has been no valid consent given by the Collector. 63 C.L.J. 70=1936 C. 815. The Collector exercising under S. 93, C. P. Code, the powers conferred on the Advocate-General under S. 92, C. P. Code, has no jurisdiction to impose by his order granting sanction for a suit any time limit for the institution of the suit. The only restrictions which can be imposed are in respect of the persons who can institute the suit and in respect of the reliefs which are sought and are obtainable in such suit; any other restrictions either in the matter of the institution or in the conduct of the suit would be ultra vires. A condition imposed by the Collector that the suit should be instituted within two months is illegal and may be ignored, although if the suit is filed long after the grant of sanction, the Court has a discretion to refuse to pass a decree in the suit on the ground of unnecessary delay. In any case, assuming that the Collector can impose such time limit the period would not commence to run until the order of sanction is made known to the parties. 1937 M.W.N. 1319.

SEC. 94.—Court has not got wider powers under this section in the matter of granting temporary injunctions than those conferred by O. 39, R. 1. 23 L.W. 85=92 I.C. 615=1926 M. 258. A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to issue an injunction to a party to a proceeding under S. 40 of the B. T. Act restraining him from proceeding further Compensation for obtaining arrest, attachment or injunction on insufficient grounds.

95. (1) Where, in any suit in which an arrest or attachment has been effected or a temporary injunction granted under the last preceding section,—

(a) it appears to the Court that such arrest, attachment or injunction was applied for on insufficient grounds, or

(b) the suit of the plaintiff fails and it appears to the Court that there was no reasonable or probable ground for instituting the same, the defendant may apply to the Court, and the Court may, upon such application, award against the plaintiff by its order such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury caused to him :

Provided that a Court shall not award, under this section, an amount exceeding the limits of its pecuniary jurisdiction.

(2) An order determining any such application shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such arrest, attachment or injunction.

NOTES.

with an application made by him under that section to a Revenue Court. 5 Pat.L.J. 76=53 I.C. 37=1919 Pat.H.C.C. 461. An order directing the furnishing of securities and submission of accounts passed on an application for the issue of temporary injunction is one under S. 94 (c). 17 I.C. 361=17 C.W.N. 318. As to jurisdiction of Court to issue injunction to another Court, see 1935 Pesh. 182.

SEC. 94 (c) AND O. 39.—When a Court accepts an undertaking given by the defendant in a suit and dismisses an application for attachment before judgment, the order of the Court amounts in substance to an injunction restraining him from acting in breach thereof. The form only implies that the Court is prepared to deal with him honourably in the expectation that he will treat his undertaking as equivalent to an order of Court. It is not open to the defendant to afterwards say that because the Court did not pass an order of its own after accepting his undertaking he is not in the position of a person bound by an order of Court. If the defendant commits a breach of his undertaking, the Court has jurisdiction to commit him to jail for contempt of Court and for violating the undertaking. 165 I.C. 747=44 L.W. 714=1936 M. 651. See also (1937) 2 M.L.J. 888=1938 M. 190.

SEC. 95: RIGHT TO APPLY FOR COMPENSATION.—A defendant can apply for compensation whether process is served on him or not. 15 B. 160; 26 I.C. 369. The application can be made only to the Court which disposes of the case. 3 W.R. Mis. 28; and a Court of Small Causes can award compensation. 26 M. 504. The Court cannot of its own motion grant compensation. 26 M. 494. Compensation can be given even when the suit is withdrawn. 15 B. 160. The section applies also to conditional attachments of the class contemplated by O. 38, R. 5 (3). 35 C.W.N. 546. The only ground put forward in an application for attachment before judgment was that unless the attachment was made the plaintiff in the event of success would have difficulty in realising the decretal amount, the application did not mention any of the grounds which justify an application for attachment before judgment under O. 38, R. 5, and on the face of it the application was made on altogether insufficient grounds and was entirely unjustified. If such application is granted, the case is clearly one in which the defendant is entitled to reasonable compensation against the plaintiff under S. 95. 151 I.C. 283=11 O.W.N. 1135=1934 Oudh 429 (2). The question to be decided under S. 95 is whether there are no sufficient grounds for applying for attachment and not whether there are no reasonable grounds stated in the creditor's application for attachment. Though not stated in the application, if there are really sufficient grounds, the defendant would not be entitled to compensation under S. 95. 1937 N. 126. An application for compensation for wrongful attachment of property cannot be entertained by the Court before the order of attachment is set aside by the Court. 151 I.C. 994=1934 M. 638=67 M.L.J. 448. S. 95 is not inapplicable to cases in which the plaintiff happens to be a minor. 42 L.W. 542=1935 M. 886.

ORDER FOR COMPENSATION.—It is doubtful if an award of compensation can be made in a case where the order of injunction was passed after hearing both the parties and it was found there was sufficient grounds for making it. 17 L.W. 150=1923 M. 352. The fact that an interim order of attachment before judgment is made absolute is no bar to the Court entertaining an application for compensation under this section. 1931 M.W.N. 956 (1923 M. 352, Expl.). The proper stage for making such an application would be only when the suit is heard and until then, it would be premature. (Ibid.) An order for compensation is one independent of decree, although it sets off the compensation as against the decreed amount. 21 I.C. 756. A compensation may be given for improperly obtaining temporary attachment though the same is set aside on notice. 49 I.C. 86=9 L.W. 69. Compensation will be granted only where damages has resulted. Where only an order of attachment before judgment has been passed but the property has not been actually attached in pursuance of the order, it cannot be said that the mere order of attachment has resulted in damages and hence the person whose property has been ordered to be so attached cannot claim compensation under S. 95. 183 I.C. 174=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 260. The setting aside of an order of attachment is not an essential preliminary to the grant of compensation for wrongful attachment under S. 95, C. P. Code. Nor would the passing of an absolute order of attachment be a bar to an application under S. 95 for compensation for wrongful attachment. No such preliminary step has been prescribed in S. 95 which alone governs the procedure in a summary application for compensation for wrongful attachment and a Court would not be justified in hedging this remedy round with restrictions which the section itself does not import. 1940 Mad. 77=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 782=50 L.W. 640. The word plaintiff in S. 95, C. P. Code, cannot be read as including the next friend of a minor plaintiff. The Court has no jurisdiction to order a next friend to pay compensation under S. 95, C. P. Code. The injured party is not, however, prevented from instituting a suit to recover from the next friend compensation, should he wish to do so. 53 L.W. 675=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 765.

PRESUMPTION.—It must be presumed that the Court granted the application for arrest or attachment upon sufficient grounds, unless the contrary is proved. 18 W.R. 450.

PROOF.—Damages can be awarded only when it appears to the Court deciding the suit that there was no probable ground for instituting it. 13 M.L.J. 70. Plaintiff must prove want of reasonable and probable cause in a suit for damages for attachment before judgment and malice. Malice is any improper or indirect motive, i.e., no hatred or enmity is necessary. 35 M. 598=21 M.L.J. 1052. See also 9 I.C. 60=13 O. C. 357. It is incumbent on an applicant under S. 95, C. P. Code, for compensation for wrongful attachment, to prove affirmatively that the attachment was applied for on insufficient grounds. It is not sufficient for this purpose to show that he has properties which are greater in value than the amount at stake in the suit. He must show that the plaintiff was unjustified in suggesting to the Court that he the defendant was about to defeat the object of the suit by making alienations. (1940) 1 M.L.J. 782=50 L.W. 640. The decree-holder who wrongfully moves the court, is a trespasser responsible for all damages though he may have acted innocently and mistakenly. 12 I.C. 26=4 Bur.L.T. 220. To justify an attachment before judgment it is not enough that the defendant is in straightened circumstances but it must be proved that he was actually about to dispose of his property. 49 I.C. 86=9 L.W. 69. In an application for compensation for wrongful attachment under S. 95, C. P. Code, it is not necessary to prove special damage. The words "expense or injury" indicate that either the particular damage upon which a monetary value can obviously be placed or the more general damage which the Court endeavours to assess in terms of money, is contemplated by the section. It is not necessary to prove more than general damage, e.g., mental pain, general loss of reputation, etc. 1940 Mad. 77=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 782=50 L.W. 640.

DAMAGES, EXTENT OF.—The litigation and delay, and also every depreciation of the goods, by any immediate fall in the market, are the natural and necessary consequences of the creditor's unlawful act. 17 C. 436. For wrongful attachment the decree-holder moving the Court is responsible for any loss suffered by a person whose goods are wrongfully attached. 12 I.C. 26=4 Bur. L. T. 220. Expense or injury in S. 95 for wrongful arrest includes also general damages such as damages for injury to reputation or humiliation. No special procedure is necessary for wrongful arrest. 3 I.W. 30=32 I.C. 592. See also 1940 Mad. 77=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 782. A Court is not justified in awarding compensation to a defendant in a suit under S. 95, on the basis that his prestige suffered or that he felt humiliated by reason of an attachment before judgment obtained by the plaintiff. Damage to prestige and humiliation do not amount to "injury" for which compensation can be awarded under S. 95. The claim to damages must be in respect of some damage caused to the defendant as the proximate result of the attachment which had been applied for on insufficient grounds. 39 C. W. N. 915.

RIGHT OF SUIT.—A claim for compensation for wrongful attachment of property before judgment made in a counter-affidavit disputing the propriety of the interim order, is no bar to a suit for damages. 38 M.L.J. 324. Suit for damages, if can be maintained against a defendant for obtaining maliciously and without reasonable cause a perpetual injunction which was dissolved on appeal. 42 C. 550. (13 W.R. 305, doubted.) See contra 30 C.W.N. 465=94 I.C. 444=1926 C. 757. The suit barred under S. 95 (2) and the application under section 95 must be ejusdem generis with the same cause of action. An application under S. 95 does not bar a subsequent suit for damages caused by reaping and removal of the crop on land which the plaintiff was, by the Court's injunction, forbidden to enter. 1932 M.W.N. 536. Maintainability of suit for damages for malicious attachment apart from S. 95. 59 C. 1073=1932 C. 821.

PART VII.

APPEALS.

Appeals from Original Decrees.

96. (1) Save where otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from every decree passed by any Court exercising original jurisdiction to the Court authorized to hear appeals from the decisions of such Court.

(2) An appeal may lie from an original decree passed ex parte.

NOTES.

APPEAL.—An appeal will now lie from an order granting compensation. 28 A. 81; 24 M. 62, or refusing compensation. 25 M. L.J. 46. An order of a Divisional Court under S. 95, refusing an order of the Court of first instance is an appellate order under S. 104 (9) and is not appealable. 11 I.C. 917=4 Bur.L.T. 204. An order under S. 95, C. P. Code, passed by a Small Cause Court dismissing an interim attachment issued by itself is valid and such an order cannot be questioned on appeal. 26 I. C. 359.

REVISION.—The grant of compensation under S. 95 is no doubt a matter of discretion, but the discretion has to be exercised in a judicial manner. Where the Court has given no reasons for refusing the application for compensation, the order clearly ignores the terms of S. 95 and is not one according to law. 151 I.C. 283=11 O.W.N. 1135=1934 Oudh 429. Court-fee in appeal against order under S. 95. See 1940 A. M. L. J. 70.

SEC. 96: APPEAL, WHAT IS.—An application by a party to an appellate Court asking it to set aside or revise a decision of a subordinate Court is an appeal within the ordinary acceptation of the term. An irregular or incompetent appeal is none the less an appeal for purposes of limitation. 63 M.L.J. 329=59 I.A. 283=60 C. 1 (P.C.). S. 96, C. P. Code, does not apply to appeals from decrees passed by a High Court in exercise of its original jurisdiction, but provides for appeals from other Courts exercising original jurisdiction. The original side of a High Court is just as much the High Court as the appellate side, and rights of appeal are given not by the Code but by the Letters Patent. 1937 Rang.L.R. 97=A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 268. Under S. 96, an appeal can lie only against a decree and not against any findings or observations made in the body of the judgment, if the final decree is not against the party concerned. 1940 R.D. 355=1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 170.

RIGHT OF APPEAL.—There is no right of appeal unless it is conferred by statute. 11 M. 26=14 I.A. 160 (P.C.); 40 C. 21=39 I.A. 197, 203 (P.C.); 28 A. 549; in express words 20 B. 803; 43 C. 857; 1929 R. 198; 1929 A. 577; 39 C.W.N. 567. It cannot be assumed that there is a right of appeal in every case decided by a Court.

C. C. M.—75

Such a right must be given by statute or some authority equivalent to a statute. [11 M. 26 (P.C.), Ref.]. 57 M. 271=66 M.L.J. 438; 57 M. 670=66 M.L.J. 532. An agreement not to appeal if for consideration and is otherwise good is valid and enforceable. 14 M.I.A. 204; 8 C. 455; 1 A. 267 (F.B.); 134 I.C. 262=1931 N. 126. Application under section 34, Trust Act, order on, if open to appeal. See 11 O.W.N. 1533=1935 O. 72. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 1198 (Appeal from order under O. 41, R. 5 refusing stay of execution).

RIGHT OF APPEAL—EXTENT OF.—Section 96 gives right of appeal from every decree passed by a Court of original jurisdiction. The right of appeal vests in every party adversely affected by the decree and against only that part of the decree which adversely affects him. 151 I.C. 25=1934 A. 677. See also A.I.R. 1937 Sind 94; I.L.R. 1937 Nag. 519=1937 Nag. 268.

SEC. 96 (2).—Scope—Defendant not filing written statement on date fixed and failing to appear—Pleader's request to make oral statement refused—Ex parte decree—If justified—Appeal after dismissal of application to set aside ex parte decree—Appellate Court can set aside ex parte decree and remand suit—C.P.Code, O. 10, R. 2—Right of pleader to make oral statement. Where a decree in favour of the plaintiff allows his claim in its entirety provided a certain condition is fulfilled and dismisses it in its entirety if that condition is not carried out within a specified time, in either event the rights of the parties are conclusively determined by the decree. The plaintiff is entitled to appeal from the order imposing the condition of which he complains. A party in whose favour a decree has been passed may nevertheless have a right to appeal against a finding adverse to him—the test to be applied in each particular case being whether the finding sought to be appealed against is one to which the rule of res judicata may be held to be applicable so as to dissentitle the aggrieved party to agitate the question covered by the finding in any other proceeding. 42 C.W.N. 492.

alia that A had admitted B as owner of the house and that as such he had rebuilt the house incurring a cost of Rs. 15,000, which A must pay in addition to mortgage-money. The Subordinate Judge passed a preliminary decree for possession by redemption of the mortgage on payment of Rs. 9,050. B filed an appeal for enhancement of the amount. Held that the appeal lay to the High Court and not to the District Court as the value of the subject-matter in a redemption suit was the amount adjudicated by the trial Court, Rs. 9,050, and not the valuation given by the plaintiff, Rs. 1,000. [1926 L. 376 (F.B.), Foll.; 106 P.R. 1895, (F.B.), held overruled.] 148 I.C. 234=1933 L. 155.

SEC. 96 (3).—Consent decrees are not appealable. 43 C. 85. But they can be set aside for proper grounds by a separate suit, 15 B. 594. No appeal lies against a decree passed upon a compromise even if the compromise be disputed. For a consent decree to come within the prohibition of section 96 (3) it is not necessary that the consent should continue till the passing of the decree. 12 P. 359=14 P.L.T. (Supp.) 1=1933 Pat. 306. Where a compromise has been recorded and it has not been challenged in any way in the lower Court the recording of the compromise must be held to have been done by consent and section 96 (3) read with section 108 would bar an appeal against the order. 57 B. 206=35 Bom.L.R. 127=1933 B. 205. See also 156 I.C. 1035. Consent decree—Parties inviting Court to adopt special procedure—Court adopting and deciding suit—Appeal from decision—Maintainability. 71 M.L.J. 281. See also 172 I.C. 421 (decree passed on oath taken by a party in pursuance of an offer by the other party—Effect of). In construing a particular provision of the Code the Courts should, as far as possible, give to the other provisions of the Code their proper and effective meaning to attain their proper and effective purpose. There is a distinction between a decree passed by consent of parties to which section 96 applies, and a compromise of suit under O. 23, R. 3. Section 96 does not in all cases bar an appeal which involves a consent decree. Where an order recording a compromise is passed under O. 23, R. 3, an appeal lies from it under O. 43, R. 1, Cl. (m) and section 96 (3) is not a bar to such appeal. [1933 B. 205, not foll.] 29 S.L.R. 437=163 I.C. 240=1936 Sind 59. Section 96 (3) is not applicable to mutation proceedings. 35 P.L.R. 395.

AN AGREEMENT TO ACCEPT THE DECISION OF A COURT AS THAT OF AN ARBITRATOR without any objection implies that the decision was to be accepted as final and there is to be no right of appeal to another forum. 15 L. 726=1934 L. 176 (2). Where the parties to a suit agree and say that the determination of their disputes by a third person is to be final between them, it is to be regarded as an undertaking not to appeal. A decree passed is still a decree passed by consent, when the Court finds there was a compromise, whether the compromise is admitted by both the parties or disputed by one of them; and the parties are estopped from impugning the decree made in accordance with the finding of third person by whose decision they have agreed to be bound. 60 C.L.J. 173. When a party offers to be bound by the statement of a certain person, that statement becomes conclusive evidence under the Indian Oaths Act and it is on the basis of that evidence that the Court decides the case. It cannot therefore be said that the decree in such a case is passed with the consent of the parties. 15 L. 305=149 I.C. 1102=1934 L. 67 (1). Decree in accordance with award not appealable—When objections against award have been heard and decided. 119 I.C. 694. Section 96, Cl. (3) pre-supposes that the party appealing has consented to the decree being passed—Person denying to be party to compromise can appeal. 114 I.C. 101=1929 S. 32.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—The new Code does not deprive the litigant of the right of appeal which he had under the old Code even though such right could not be exercised immediately on the introduction of the new Code. 21 M.L.J. 631. See also 151 I.C. 25=1934 A. 677. Finding of fact of Original Side Judges of High Court are generally accepted. 20 S.L.R. 295. See also 97 I.C. 505=1926 Sind 216; 1934 A. 531. A decree to be appealable must be a final disposal. 1929 M. 404=122 I.C. 519.

APPLICATION OF SECTION, SUB-CL. (3).—Section 96 (3) applies only to suits and not to proceedings in execution. 4 Pat.L.T. 735=1924 P. 346. An order passed by the judge of the City Civil Court, Madras, under section 7 of the Madras City Tenants' Protection Act fixing a reasonable rent is not appealable. Such an order is not a decree under section 96, C.P.Code, the scheme of the Act is to make such orders not appealable. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 213=49 L.W. 118=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 430.=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 80. appeal will be governed by section 96, C. P. Code. 181 I.C. 282=A.I.R. 1939 All. 233.

WHO CAN APPEAL.—A party cannot appeal against a decision in his favour on the ground that one of the findings is against him. 24 I.C. 36. See also 2 L.W. 101=27 I.C. 861; 3 A. 152 (F.B.). If a decree is upon the face of it, entirely in favour of a party to the suit, he cannot appeal. 7 A. 606 (F.B.); 8 P. 617. An adverse finding against any single issue or issues is not appealable unless such finding is incorporated in the decree. 6 M.L.J. 87. See also 44 I.C. 723. An appeal is not maintainable against opinions in a judgment when the decree is in favour of a party. 51 I.C. 622. When a suit is dismissed for want of cause of action there cannot be an appeal by defendant on a finding. 20 C. W.N. 1354. Notwithstanding a suit is dismissed, a defendant has a right of appeal and for that purpose it is open to the parties to go behind the decree and see really what the adjudication is. 25 M.L.J. 379. Also see 36 M.L.J. 641. If a person who ought not to have been made a defendant is impleaded as such, he cannot appeal. An order directing the removal of a party's name from the array of parties is in substance though not in form a decree and an appeal lies therefrom. 53 A. 466. No person has a right of appeal from a decision unless his interest is prejudicially affected by it. 41 I.C. 468. A defendant has a right of appeal even if the suit has been dismissed against him, if he is aggrieved by the decree. 30 M. 447; 9 C.W.N. 584. Any plaintiff or a defendant has a right to appeal without the concurrence of the other parties to the suit. 22 B. 718. The representative of a deceased person can appeal from the decree although he may not have been brought on the record. 12 M.L.J. 435.

WHO CAN APPEAL—THIRD PARTY CLAIMING UNDER PARTY TO SUIT—RIGHT TO PREFER APPEAL.—The right of appeal is a creature of statute and it can be exercised only by those in whom the power is vested expressly or impliedly by the statute. In a suit under O. 21, R. 103, against the Official Receiver representing the estate of an insolvent, a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. The Official Receiver did not prefer an appeal. The appellant, who was one of the creditors of the insolvent represented by the Official Receiver in the trial Court, presented an appeal against the decree in so far as it related to the Official Receiver and an application for leave to appeal against that decree on behalf of itself and the general body of creditors of the insolvent. Held, that the appellant, not having been a party to the suit, was incompetent to prefer the appeal. Held, further, that even if leave to appeal may be granted to a person not a party to the suit, this was not a proper case in which leave should be granted. 57 M. 670=1934 M. 360=66 M.L.J. 532. Order on application under section 34, Trust Act—Appeal. See 11 O.W.N. 1533=1935 O. 72.

“EX PARTE” DECREE.—A defendant against whom a decree has been passed ex parte, and who has not adopted the procedure provided by O. 9, R. 13 can appeal from such decree under the general provisions of this section. 9 M. 445. Appealability of order under O. 17, R. 3. 5 R. 838=1927 R. 148. See also 1937 Nag. 268.

RES JUDICATA.—A finding upon a point necessarily arising in the case operates as res judicata between the parties, and the aggrieved party can prefer an appeal against the finding although the decree is in his favour. 7 A. 606; 11 C. 301 (P.C.); 40 I.C. 771.

CONSENT DECREE.—Serious and substantial injustice to the party must be shown to result from letting the order stand which was made by the consent of the pleader under a mistake of fact. 46 M.L.J. 160=1923 P.C. 184 (P.C.). Decree on basis of compromise—Person verifying compromise having no authority—Party can appeal. 1929 Oudh 385 (F.B.). No appeal lies from an order made by consent of parties especially if the appellant has derived some benefit under it. 57 I.C. 70=30 C.L.J. 231; 34 I.C. 186=20 C.W.N. 752. See also 91 I.C. 294=1926 B. 39; 172 I.C. 421 (decree passed on taking of oath). What is a consent decree—Right of appeal in case decided by Court on procedure not warranted by C.P. Code. See 18 Pat. 261=1939 P.W. N. 151=1939 Pat. 514. No appeal lies against an order of dismissal of a suit under O. 23, R. 3 of the C.P. Code. 34 I.C. 186=20 C.W.N. 752. A decree under O. 23, R. 3 can be passed only after there has been an order that the compromise be recorded. 43 C. 85. An order recording a compromise which has not been challenged in the lower Court must be held to have been done by consent and no appeal lies against the order. 35 Bom.L.R. 127. A person who is not a party to the compromise though a party to suit can appeal against the compromise decree which binds only those who are parties to the compromise. 22 C.L.J. 333=20 C.W.N. 178. But see 91 I.C. 620=1926 C. 512. A consent decree in a partition suit as between some of the parties is not binding on any of the parties. 27 I. C. 242. An appeal lies against a decree passed on compromise entered into by a vakil without reference to his client. 41 M. 233 (23 M.L.J. 381, Dist.; 21 M. 274, Foll.) An order directing the appointment of a Commissioner with the consent of parties does not come under Cl. (3) of the section. 29 M.L.J. 219; 27 M.L.J. 173. The fact that defendant does not raise any objection to a particular relief cannot make the decree a consent decree when the relief is eventually decreed. 49 I.C. 840=15 N. L.R. 39.

WAIVER.—Where the plea of limitation is waived though the suit is time-barred, the decree following is a consent decree and thus not appealable. 39 M.L.J. 68=24 C.W.N. 1055 (P.C.). Agreement to abide by decision of Court—Appeal, if lies. 1926 A. 90=89 I.C. 586.

DECREE ON APPEAL.—A appeal being a continuation of the original proceeding, the Appellate Court's decree is the decree in the suit. 30 M.L.J. 379.

PRELIMINARY DECREE.—Where in a suit for contribution the lower Court decided that the defendants were liable to contribute and also the extent of the liability and it only remained to work out the amount of the decree, held, that the findings amounted to a preliminary decree from which an appeal was competent. 9 Luck. 701=11 O.W.N. 606=1934 O. 307. See also 50 L. W. 541=1939 M. 897. No appeal lies from an order passed in a partition suit after the preliminary decree and before the passing of the final decree. Such an order cannot amount to a decree so as to be appealable. In a suit for partition there are only two decrees, viz., the preliminary decree and the final decree and no third or further decree can be passed by the Court between these two. 1937 A.L.J. 809=A.I.R. 1937 All. 694.

SEC. 97: PRELIMINARY AND FINAL DECREES.—Where a final decree is passed no appeal will lie against a preliminary decree. But the Court may allow the appeal to be amended so as to convert it into one against the final decree. 48 C. 1036; see also 1928 L. 73=107 I.C. 610. An appeal filed from a preliminary decree is competent, although during its pendency a final decree is passed but it is not appealed against. 40 P.L. R. 123. Where the preliminary decree for sale on a mortgage provides that if the net proceeds of the sale are insufficient to pay the amount of the decree, etc., the plaintiff shall be at liberty to apply for a personal decree for the amount of the balance, such a provision constitutes an adjudication adverse to the defendant and an award to the plaintiff of a personal decree; and if the defendant does not appeal from it, he is precluded under section 97, C.P. Code, from afterwards disputing its correctness. It is not therefore open to the defendant in such a case to object to the plaintiffs' application for a personal decree after the mortgaged properties are exhausted. 151 I.C. 1055=11 O.W.N. 1196=10 Luck. 233.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—It is a salutary rule that where the issue is simple and straightforward and the only question is which set of witnesses is to be believed the findings of fact of the trial judge should not be lightly disregarded. 40 C. 132. If the competency of an appeal is in question the appellant must establish that he has a right of appeal, for a right of appeal is not a natural right but must be given by express rules of statute. 43 C. 857. Small cause suit tried on the original side—Appeal from decree. 51 I.C. 967. An appeal lies from a decree in a suit transferred from the Small Cause Court to the Original Side under section 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and the Appellate Court can remand the suit. 45 I.C. 645.

FORUM OF APPEAL.—Transfer of venue. 37 M. 477. Where on withdrawal of a claim against some defendants a decree is passed which makes the defendants liable for their own costs, an appeal does lie. 18 M.L.T. 460=31 I.C. 312. The value of the subject-matter in a redemption suit is the amount adjudicated by the trial Court and not the valuation given by the plaintiff. It is the former that determines the appellate forum. 1933 L. 155.

PRELIMINARY DECREE, WHAT IS.—The C. P. Code makes no provision for something which is neither a decree nor an order, nor anything which is both; nor does it provide that one adjudication by the Court can be resolved into diverse elements, some of which are decrees and some orders. The question is one of substance, whether an adjudication is a decree or an order. 42 C. 914 (P.C.). See also 9 Luck. 701=1934 O. 307. Though no appeal against the final decree is preferred it is no reason for not hearing the appeal against the preliminary decree in a suit for partition. 36 A. 532. If an appeal from preliminary decree succeeds, the final decree passed later on falls to the ground. 34 A. 493; 36 A. 532; 35 M.L.J. 361. The passing of a final decree, whether precludes a party from preferring an appeal against the preliminary decree; 37 M. 455=22 M. L.J. 317; 24 M.L.J. 190. The right to appeal lies only from a preliminary decree and not from a preliminary finding in a suit directing accounts to be taken. 38 B. 331; 39 B. 339 (F.B.). Where there is only a preliminary finding and no decree is drawn up, there is no preliminary decree and no appeal under section 97. 37 B. 480; 37 B. 60. The legislature in enacting section

SEC. 98: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—With the addition of sub-section (3), section 98, C.P.Code, made by the Repealing and Amending Act, XVIII of 1928, that section has no application to cases heard by Division Bench of a Chartered High Court, whether on appeals from decrees of Subordinate Courts or from decrees passed by a Judge of the High Court on the Original Side. All cases of difference of opinion among the Judges composing the Division Bench are governed by Cl. 26, Letters Patent, and the Division Bench should state expressly the points of difference.* 15 L. 425=149 I.C. 575=1934 L. 371 (F.B.). See also I.L.R. 1938 A. 972=1938 All. 641 (F.B.). DECREE CONTAINING ADJUDICATIONS REGARDING SEVERAL ITEMS—ONE ITEM CONFIRMED AND ANOTHER VARIED—DECREE—FORM OF.—Where the "decree" contains adjudications regarding several items, each adjudication is a decree as defined in section 2 (2) and the provisions of section 98 should be applied with reference to the adjudication of each item. Where the Judges composing a Bench do not agree in confirming the adjudication made by the lower Court in respect of one item, but they agree in reversing the decree or adjudication by the lower Court as regards another item in dispute, the decree appealed from should be varied so far as the Bench agree that it should be varied and confirmed so far as they agree that it should be confirmed. DIFFERENCE ON QUESTIONS OF LAW—PROCEDURE—REFERENCE OF WHOLE CASE NOT PROPER.—When a Bench differ in opinion on certain points of law, under section 98, they may state those points and the hearing by the other Judges is confined to the specific points stated and cannot cover the whole case again. Section 98 is confined to points of law only but the newly added sub-section (3) makes it subject to the provisions of the Letters Patent, Cl. 27 of which states that the points of difference may be referred to the other Bench. This clause is wider than section 98 of the C.P.Code, because it covers points of fact as well as points of law. But in both cases, only the points of difference should be stated and not the whole case. 146 I.C. 84=1933 A.L.J. 1127=1933 A. 861 (F.B.).

SEC. 99: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—The section applies only to errors or defects or irregularities in the suit or proceedings out of which the appeal then being heard arises, and not to previous suits or proceedings which have come to an end. 23 A. 499 (500). See also 1938 N.L.J. 392. Applicability to appeal under section 142, Calcutta Municipal Act. 31 C.W.N. 1040. Section 99, C.P.Code, refers only to Courts of appeal and not to a Court of revision. The section also does not condone every irregularity. The presentation of a plaint by a person who is a stranger to the suit is no valid presentation; and the defect cannot be cured under section 99, C.P.Code. 1937 A.M.L.J. 41. Section 99 has no application to proceedings under the United Provinces Land Revenue Act. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 168=1940 R.D. 445=1940 O.A. 1000. Where the appellate Court did not apply its mind to the case fully and proceeded on an entire misapprehension of the trial Court's decision a remand for a fresh disposal of the appeal would be justified. 130 I.C. 573=1931 C. 164=52 C.L.J. 566. walli. No order or decree in his favour could be passed till then. But if a decree were to be passed prior to such bringing on record, the irregularity affects the merits of the case fundamentally and is not covered by section 99. 1940 R.D. 402=1940 A.W. R. (B.R.) 214.

JURISDICTION.—The term “jurisdiction” is used in the sense of pecuniary or local jurisdiction or jurisdictions relating to the subject-matter of the suit. 28 C. 324; 5 C.L.J. 71; 5 C.L.J. 329. The word “jurisdiction” in section 99, judged from the point of view of locality, pecuniary value or the subject-matter of a suit, means competency to try. 10 I.C. 731=7 N.L.R. 33. See also 158 I.C. 971=1935 Pesh. 151. Whether non-compliance with section 147-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act amounts to want of jurisdiction, see 45 C.L.J. 24. Jurisdiction is that of the trial Court. 93 I.C. 938=1926 L. 402. When there is a want of jurisdiction appellate Court will interfere even if there is no miscarriage of justice. 95 I.C. 406=1926 A. 650. See also 1937 P. 147.

MISJOINDER.—See 43 Bom.L.R. 293. The words “any misjoinder of parties or causes of action” have been inserted to supersede the rulings in 27 M. 80; 24 C. 540; 15 A. 380. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 293; 22 Pat. L.T. 196. Misjoinder—Joinder of different tenants in suit for enhancement of rent. 23 C.W.N. 945=30 C.L.J. 140. An objection as to misjoinder cannot be taken for the first time on appeal, especially when the suit is decided on the merits in the first Court. 17 I.C. 97. Even though the High Court has erred in overruling an objection to the amendment of plaint on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action, their Lordships of the Privy Council would not, on that ground, reverse the decree granted by the High Court, when the alleged misjoinder has affected neither the merits of the case nor the jurisdiction of the Court. The provisions contained in Civil Procedure Code, do not regulate the procedure of their Lordships in hearing appeals from India but there can be no doubt that the rule embodied in section 99 proceeds upon a sound principle and is calculated to promote justice, and their Lordships would not be prepared to adopt a course which would merely prolong litigation. Suit by Hindu sons impeaching a large number of alienations by their father in favour of various persons—Allegation of vice, extravagance and immorality—Impleading all alienees 78 in number as defendants—Plea of misjoinder raised in written statement but not pressed or proceeded with further—Court dealing with all transactions and coming to correct conclusion—Decree confirmed by High Court—

ORDER OF HONORARY ASSISTANT COLLECTOR ON A PUBLIC HOLIDAY—ULTRA VIRES.—There are standing orders of the Government of India that no work of a civil nature can be done on a public holiday and if it is done, then it amounts to a nullity. Accordingly an order passed by an Honorary Assistant Collector on a public holiday dismissing an application for execution of a decree is clearly ultra vires, and is liable to be set aside in revision. 167 I.C. 280=1937 O.W.N. 247=1937 O. 272.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Decree passed cannot be reversed simply because it was passed without hearing arguments. 93 I.C. 291. An order adding parties to a case is not one affecting the merits. 3 B.L.R. (O.C.) 113. As to decree passed without hearing arguments, see 13 O.L.J. 473. The joinder of an unnecessary party in a mortgage suit does not involve its dismissal but is a mere irregularity. 52 I.C. 105. But where a person who is a necessary party is not impleaded as defendant in spite of such objection being taken at the very start, the suit should be dismissed. 146 I.C. 72=1933 M. 664=65 M.L.J. 290. Striking out names from the plaint and amending issues are not errors affecting the merits of the case. 4 Beng.L.R. (O.C.) 97. See 9 A. 508 and 14 C. 159. Suit wrongly brought in firm's name—Amendment of plaint—Power of appellate Court. 1935 R. 240. See also 19 Pat. 838 (Court to which decree is transferred ordering substitution of heirs of judgment-debtor, deceased). The defendant could not object to the frame of the plaint in appeal, where it stated all the facts fully and did not in fact mislead the defendant. 34 I.C. 704=12 N.L.R. 90. Absence of Court's permission under O. 1, R. 8, C.P. Code, cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. 1931 O. 375. An objection that there cannot be a decision in a partition suit of rights subordinate to that of the co-sharers cannot be gone into for the first time in appeal. 63 I.C. 161=33 C.L.J. 317. An error in the valuation of the claim is not one which affects the merits of the case. 1 B.H.C.R. 163. Set-off—Court-fee not paid—Objection in appeal—Interference. 19 I.C. 918=17 C.L.J. 305 (F.B.). Form of an issue throwing onus on the wrong party, is not a ground in appeal for setting aside the decree provided the parties were not misled and the evidence fully gone into. 17 C.L.J. 38=17 C.W.

NOTES.

N. 280. Where the plaintiff in disregard of the provisions of the Code has united in the same suit not merely several causes of action, but several suits against separate defendants with the result that litigation was conducted as though the defendants were a community with common interests, the procedure though highly irregular, nevertheless prevents the landlord from objecting to the use of evidence given in the case of some tenants as evidence in favour of all the parties. 43 M. 567=47 I.A. 76=38 M.L.J. 476 (P.C.) (on appeal from 24 M.L.J. 571). The deposition of a handwriting expert signed by him and admitted in evidence does not vitiate the trial though it is not signed by the Judge. 68 I.C. 664=1923 N. 7 (1). The exclusion of evidence in the lower Court is not sufficient ground for reversing that Court's decision, unless the appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the evidence referred, if it had been received, ought to have varied the decision. 8 B. 408. Error in rejecting documents already admitted by the predecessor of the Judge is not one affecting the merits. 13 B. 449. The second appellate Court cannot set aside the decree of the first appellate Court on the ground of improper admission of additional evidence unless it is satisfied that the decision on the merits is wrong, and that the additional evidence might have resulted in the wrong decision. 26 I.C. 50=1914 M.W.N. 864 (36 M. 477, Foll.). When an unstamped promissory note is treated as a bond and received in evidence on payment of stamp duty and penalty, the receipt of such document is not an irregularity affecting the merits of the case. 1 A. 725. Appeal from decree—Court allowing unreasonable extension of time for payment of court-fee—Wrong exercise of discretion not ground of attack in appeal—Proper remedy is by way of revision to High Court. See 18 Pat.L.T. 665=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 550 (S.B.). The omission to explain the non-production of a document before tendering secondary evidence is only a mere irregularity. 59 I.C. 461. Omission to record reasons for admission of additional evidence by the appellate Officer is an irregularity not affecting the merits of the case and is curable under section 99. 14 L.R. 366 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 507. See also 1938 N. L.J. 392. Recording evidence in a language which is not the language of the Court is a mere irregularity which can be cured by this section. 34 C. 396. Also the disposal of a suit on a Sunday. 29 A. 562. If the power-of-attorney, on the strength of which a suit is instituted is defective as when it is a special and not a general power, there is merely an irregularity in proceedings not affecting merits of the case.

47 B. 227. Where the plaintiff filed the plaint through an agent and did not even sign the plaint, and there was no power-of-attorney on the record and no explanation was apparently obtained for her failure to sign the plaint and no objection however appeared to have been taken. Held, section 99 of the C.P. Code applies to the case. 1 R. 42; 134 I.C. 36=1931 A. 507. See also 1938 R.D. 745=1938 A.W.R. (B.R.) 372 (Both parties absent—Appeal allowed on the statement of a person not duly authorised—Defect cannot be condoned under this section). A plaint was presented on behalf of a person by an agent who had no valid power-of-attorney and the suit proceeded without the plaint being signed by that person and a decree was passed. Held, section 99, C.P. Code, applied and cured the defect of this kind. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 482. Defect of signature does not justify reversal of the decree. 59 I.C. 282=1 Pat.L.T. 647. Defect in signing of plaint can be remedied in appellate Court. 104 I. C. 747. Irregularity in signing vakalat-nama is only formal. 74 I.C. 1033. Where the mother of a minor refuses to act as guardian the Court ought to appoint one of its officers as guardian ad litem. An omission to appoint one is a serious defect not curable by section 99. 62 I.C. 464=25 C.W.N. 525. Absence of a formal order appointing a guardian may sometimes be a mere irregularity. 30 I.A. 182; 1935 O.W.N. 333; but not when the minor's interests had been entirely disregarded. 29 A. 679. See also 1935 O.W.N. 333=1935 O. 287. Decree on compromise—Omission to record the compromise not fatal. 1935 A.W.R. 765=1935 All. 738. Where the order amounts impliedly to a redemption decree, it may be treated as such under section 99 of the Code notwithstanding an irregularity in form. 26 I.C. 701=10 N. L.R. 150. Withdrawal of suit with permission on condition as to costs—No date mentioned for payment—Fresh suit filed before payment—Irregularity. 1935 N. 56. Award—Order filing award and judgment combined into one—No separate judgment and order as required by Sch. II, para. 21—If illegal—Irregularity—If cured. 1936 N. 246. A remand under O. 41, R. 23, when the first Court decided the suit on the merits, is an irregularity within section 99 not affecting the merits of the case. 41 C. 108 (28 C. 324, Foll.). Where order passed under O. 39, Rr. 5 and 6 should have been passed under O. 21, R. 42, the High Court refused to set aside as in substance the order was right. 41 I.C. 89. See also 1941 A.W.R. Refusal of summons under O. 16, r. 1—Party producing copy of document sought to be produced in Court but neither proving that it was original nor that it was true copy—There was no miscarriage of justice due to refusal. 49 C.L.J. 546=1929 C. 459. Subsequent mistakes and irregularities may be condoned under this section, provided the suit has been instituted in such a way as to give the Court authority to try it. 26 B. 259. On an application for grant of a certificate for money said to be due to the wife, a certificate had been granted for collecting the money due to the husband. Held, that the defect was purely a formal one; hence the order of grant of certificate could not be interfered with on that ground. 1935 P. 478.

SEC. 100: SECOND APPEAL.—Appeal under section 142, Calcutta Municipal Act is in the nature of first appeal not second appeal. 32 C.W.N. 378=1928 C. 450=109 I.C. 618. Section 100 must be read with O. 41, r. 23. 1940 P.W.N. 566=1940 Pat. 300. Where no appeal lies to the District Judge from the judgment of a sub-judge but one is filed, the appeal is a nullity, for the first appellate Court acts without jurisdiction, and second appeal lies. 1935 L. 319 (1). No second appeal against order under O. 21, r. 90, C. P. Code, even if decree-holder himself was purchaser. 1936 A.L.J. 959=165 I.C. 654=1936 A. 763. Nor against owner under O. 21, r. 92 allowing deposit and setting aside sale. 161 I.C. 26=1936 P. 119. Suit to recover rent of agricultural land in Burma is not of a nature cognizable by Small Cause Court and no second appeal lies even if amount is less than Rs. 500. 1935 R. 386=13 R. 633 (F. B.) (Overruling 3 R. 390).

QUESTION OF FACT—ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Interference with findings of fact by the High Court is subject to limits prescribed by section 100. 46 C. 189 (P.C.); 1933 O. 259=145 I.C. 233; 1933 M. 565; 146 I.C. 445=1933 R. 174; 144 I.C. 315=1933 R. 91; 142 I.C. 696=1933 O. 115; 145 I.C. 122=1933 L. 141; 145 I.C. 155=1933 L. 172; 152 I.C. 180=11 O.W.N. 1165=1934 O. 449. See for a full discussion, 3 O.W.N. 645=97 I.C. 853=1926 O. 578. See also 47 C. 107=37 M.L.J. 36=46 I.A. 140 (P.C.). The High Court in second appeal is entitled to come to a finding of fact where the lower appellate Court has omitted to arrive at such a finding. 1940 A.L.J. 366=A.I.R. 1940 All. 349. Conclusions of fact arrived at by the lower appellate Court, however erroneous or unsatisfactory, are conclusive in second appeal and cannot be challenged before the High Court in second appeal. 22 Pat.L.T. 196; 1937 Sind 263. Extremely strong grounds are necessary for interfering with the finding of the trial Judge who heard the witnesses, that they were unworthy of belief. 116 I.C. 432=1929 N. 117. No second appeal has any chance of success where the only ground is that the lower Appellate Court has omitted to mention this or that piece of evidence. The Legislature rightly or wrongly has decided that the first Appellate Court is to be trusted and it behoves first Appellate Judges to bear in mind the fact that their findings of fact are conclusive and that they therefore have a great responsibility and should be especially careful in such cases. If they are not, it may be a matter for administrative discipline but a second Appellate Court cannot put the matter right in second appeal. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 510=1939 Nag. 221. On second appeal it is not the concurrent finding of fact which cannot be interfered with; it is the finding of fact of the first appellate Court, and there is no question of its being within the discretion of the second Appellate Court to interfere; the second Appellate Court cannot interfere, however erroneous it may think this finding of fact to be. 1940 Rang.L.R. 180=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 126. See also 39 P. L. R. 361. A finding of fact is binding on a second appellate Court, if the lower appellate Court committed no error of law in arriving at the finding. 21 I.C. 251; 30 I.C. 503; 57 I.C. 739; 35 I.C. 392; 1926 A. 130; 1926 N. 192; 158 I.C. 51=1935 P. 152; 1935 P. 42 (apportionment of award in land acquisition case between various types of people interested in the land, by lower appellate Court). A finding of fact based upon admissible evidence is binding upon the High Court in second appeal. 148 I.C. 1079=11 O.W.N. 674=1934 O. 97 (2); 1935 L. 641; 1935 A. L.J. 664=155 I.C. 634=1935 A. 662. Per Lort Williams, J.—The High Court cannot interfere with the findings of fact unless those findings have been based upon a misconception of the evidence or upon some mistake which has arisen in the consideration of that evidence in the lower Court. Per Buckland, J.—The rule regarding the finality of the findings of the lower Court on questions of fact should be strictly enforced. 152 I.C. 597=61 C. 365=1934 C. 633. See also 17 Pat. 430=19 Pat.L.T. 281=1938 Pat. 278; 1937 Sind 263; 1934 O. 261=147 I.C. 871; 147 I.C. 1224=10 O.W.N. 911; 147 I.C. 1175=1934 L. 163 (Fact of compromise being entered into). A decision on facts by the lower appellate Court is binding on the High Court, however unsatisfactory the reasoning may be. 1933 P. 708; 152 I.C. 419=11 O.W.N. 1359; 35 P.L.R. 608; 15 L.R. 40 (Rev.)=18 R.D. 12; 13 P. 254=1934 P.C. 5=66 M.L.J. 298 (P.C.); 1935 L. 172. Inconsistent findings by lower Court one before and the other afterwards—The later one prevails—No interference with the later finding in second appeal. 53 M.L.J. 700 (P.C.). But when there is (i) no evidence (12 C. 972), or (ii) no sufficient legal evidence (16 I.C. 887), or (iii) important evidence is ignored (32 P.L.R. 714; 103 P.L.R. 1915; 54 M.L.J. 600), or (iv) only a colourable pretence of considering the evidence is made (38 I.C. 561), or (v) there is no honest and complete consideration, a finding of fact can be contested in second appeal. See also 21 Pat.L.T. 873. Otherwise it is final 18 C. 23 (P.C.); 3 L. 389; 1935 L. 389; 35 I.C. 392 (wrong application of law); 1939 Lah. 301 (Misapprehension of real point at issue). A finding of fact based on an obviously erroneous approach to the case cannot be accepted as binding in second appeal. (1937) 2 M.L.J. 511. An assumption of a fact which is not established by evidence is not a finding of fact binding in second appeal. 1937 A. M.L.J. 7. Inferences of fact which are not unreasonable and are justified by evidence cannot be interfered with in second appeal. 62 I.C. 1002; 20 I.C. 523. See also 8 L.R. 314 (Rev.); 96 I.C. 14=1926 O. 522; 95 I.C. 463 (1)=13 O.L.J. 146; 39 C.W.N. 303. Where more than one inference is legally open from the evidence, the High Court cannot in second appeal refuse to be bound by that inference drawn in the Court below. 1913 L. 239 (1); 73 I.C. 232; 1939 Pat. 218; 1938 Pat. 386; 1937 Sind 312; 1937 Cal. 8; 1937 Nag. 139; 1938 All. 100; 1938 Lah. 10; 46 I.C. 794; 21 B. 91; 74 I.C. 843. The plaintiffs sued the defendants for a permanent injunction for the closing of a drain from their latrine. The lower appellate Court based its finding on a sweeping statement that water discharged from latrines in Indian homes should as a rule be treated as nuisance and granted the injunction. It was held, that the finding of the lower appellate Court about the drain in question constituting a nuisance was given without reference to the evidence bearing on the point and its order for the closing of the drain must be set aside. 161 I.C. 411=1936 O.W.N. 310=1936 O. 211. A finding of fact is not binding in second appeal if it is marked by errors of law as that of ignoring the presumption of correctness attaching to the record-of-rights. 161 I.C. 709=17 Pat.L.T. 405=1936 P. 185. If the first appellate Court has evidence proper for its findings notwithstanding the statutory presumptions then its findings of fact are final and conclusive. 18 C. 23 (P.C.) and 14 C. 740 (P.C.), Relied on; 34 C.W.N. 1=1929 P.C. 286 (P.C.). The High Court is not entitled to go behind the findings of fact of the District Judge which did not result from the misconstruction of a document or the misapplication of law or procedure but upon the oral evidence in the case. 37 M.L.J. 199 (P.C.); 42 I.C. 68=11 Bur.L.T. 229; 54 C. 586=53 M.L.J. 117 (P.C.). See also 1928 M. 377; 10 Pat.L.T. 630. The finding of fact of a lower appellate Court which proceeds on an erroneous view of the law, and which is inconsistent with the facts recited can be interfered with by the High Court. 44 A. 602; 95 I.C. 636=1926 N. 416; 11 L.L.J. 82=1929 L. 314; 21 Pat.L.T. 873; 1941 Pat. 118=191 I.C. 275; 1938 Lah. 180. A finding of fact which has been arrived at in complete disregard of legal propositions involved in the consideration of the question in issue, cannot be regarded as conclusive. 155 I.C. 824=1935 A.L.J. 828=1935 A. 774; or in disregard of the presumption provided by any Statute. 157 I.C. 561=1935 L. 912. Question of fact—Evidence when open to examination. 1 L.L.J. 72. A finding of fact arrived at on a consideration of evidence which is inadmissible and which proceeds partly on such evidence can be assailed in second appeal. 2 L. 271 following 57 I.C. 567; 138 I.C. 399; 39 C.W.N. 277. See also 18 N.L.J. 333. But when the finding is based really on other evidence, and the inadmissible evidence is only used for the purpose of further support, that does not vitiate the finding or necessitate a remand. 39 C.W.N. 311; 41 P.L.R. 826=1939 Lah. 548; 1939 Lah. 504=185 I.C. 652. Finding of fact by lower Appellate Court based partly on conjectures and partly on a misunderstanding of the evidence is liable to be set aside in second appeal. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 510. See also 1941 N.L.J. 230. A finding of fact can be reversed in second appeal when it is vitiated by some error of law. A mistake of law is not confined to a decision based on inadmissible evidence. A finding of fact in order to be binding and conclusive on a Court of second appeal must be one based on evidence legally sufficient to support it. The decision of the lower appellate Court on a point of fact must be proper and judicial. 1939 O.W.N. 1114=15 Luck. 191=1940 Oudh 35. Where a decision is based purely on surmises when there is evidence on the record which should have been considered, it entails a question of law. It is a first principle of law that a decision must be based on evidence and not on surmises. 1939 A.M.L.J. 116. There is nothing in the language of sections 100 and 101 which gives countenance to the view that a respondent in appeal under section 100, is debarred from challenging the correctness of the findings of fact of the first appellate Court which in spite of such findings, dismissed the appeal. 179 I.C. 946=A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 59. An erroneous finding of fact is different from an error in procedure. Where there is no error or defect in the procedure the finding of fact by the Court of First Appeal is final. 63 I.C. 575; 59 I.C. 885; 40 I.C. 772; 139 I.C. 365=1932 O. 264; 138 I.C. 465=1932 A. 293 (F.B.). Erroneous findings of fact however gross or inexcusable cannot be questioned in second appeal. 98 I.C. 1035; 99 I.C. 199=1927 O. 89; 98 I.C. 1072; 99 I.C. 183; 103 I.C. 215=1927 L. 574; 98 I.C. 869=1927 M. 217; 52 M.L.J. 674; 99 I.C. 769=1927 N. 158; 100 I.C. 792; 52 M. 538=57 M.L.J. 64 (P.C.); 57 M.L.J. 205 (P.C.); 1935 L. 172; 157 I.C. 470=16 Pat. L.T. 666=1935 P. 351; 161 I.C. 516=1936 P. 140. See also 92 I.C. 327; 131 I.C. 395=1931 O. 142; 132 I.C. 791; 134 I.C. 1023; 9 O.W.N. 1015, 1063; 136 I.C. 783=1932 M. 173; 1933 O. 115. Vague finding of fact may be subject to question in second appeal. 37 I.C. 27; 40 I.C. 496; 1929 L. 653. A finding of fact arrived at by the lower appellate Court without applying its mind to the facts and circumstances on which the trial Court has based its decision cannot be binding in second appeal. 40 C.W.N. 769. A finding of fact of the lower appellate Court is conclusive in second appeal and the mere fact that the judgment of the lower appellate Court consists only of a few lines does not make the finding of fact any the less binding. There is nothing in the Code of Civil Procedure to take out of this rule a case in which the lower appellate Court records a finding of fact while dismissing an appeal under O. 41, r. 11, C. P. Code. The High Court will not interfere in the absence of any error of law or of defect in procedure. 179 I.C. 803=1939 Pat. 267; 1938 Pat. 608; 1938 Pat. 330. Where the judgment of the lower Court dealing with points of facts is confused and contains mistakes of fact and material evidence bearing on the disputed matters has not been considered, the findings of fact are not conclusive and binding on second appeal and the second appellate Court is justified in re-opening those matters and examining the evidence itself. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 10. Finding of fact becoming irrelevant by change in law—High Court can consider in second appeal, the altered aspect of the finding on the evidence. 96 I.C. 775=1926 A. 725. Finding of fact—Trial Court's finding reversed in appeal—Cannot be interfered with in second appeal. 6 R. 586. Still more so in the case of concurrent findings by the lower Courts. 57 M. L.J. 594 (P.C.); 115 I.C. 99. Perverse findings though of fact are good grounds for remand in second appeal. 1931 M.W.N. 102. A finding of fact can only be questioned in second appeal if it is without any basis of evidence. It is not enough to show in a second appeal that if the Court were hearing the case either as a Court of first instance of first appeal it might have come to a different conclusion on the evidence on record. To justify interference with a finding of fact, it must be shown that the findings of the lower appellate Court are such that they have no basis whatsoever in the evidence on record. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 356=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 270. Where a lower appellate Court without giving very cogent reasons differs from the finding of the trial Court which had the best means of judging the weight to be attached to the evidence tendered before it, it can be set aside in second appeal by the Board. 1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 277.

FOLLOWING ARE QUESTIONS OF FACT.—
Question as to existence of custom. 141 I. C. 668=1933 A. 306. Where a custom is alleged to exist, the existence or non-existence of such a custom is a question of fact; but it is a question of law whether there is proof to support the custom or whether the evidence is legally sufficient to support such a custom. 158 I.C. 109=1935 A. 720; 157 I.C. 654=1935 O. 459. See also 18 N.L. QUESTION OF LAW—ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Points involving questions of law can be raised for the first time in second appeal. 144 I.C. 452=27 S.L.R. 41=1933 S. 176. See also 1935 P. 132. It is certainly open to a second appellate Court to ignore a point even of law if it is raised for the first time in that Court. At the same time, the power of that Court to give effect to a plain provision of law even though not raised in the Courts below cannot be questioned. Where the equities of a case require such a course to be adopted there is no legal bar to the point being taken cognizance of by the Court itself. 4 A.W.R. 974=157 I.C. 615=1935 A. 143. The question whether a point is one of fact or of law is itself a question of law. 109 I.C. 253=1928 N. 277; 1941 Pat. 228. Where the lower Court Judge states the law correctly and does not misdirect himself and comes to a particular conclusion, he decides the point as a question of law and not as a question of fact. 161 I.C. 331 (2)=17 Pat.L.T. 366=1936 P. 136. Questions of law and of fact are sometimes difficult to separate. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law. 10 L. 360; 1928 A. 381; 1941 Lah. 62; 17 Pat. 507=19 Pat.L.T. 309=1938 Pat. 413; 36 Bom.L.R. 1055; 134 I.C. 294=1931 L. 489; 134 I.C. 1037=32 P.L.R. 727; 132 I.C. 772=1931 O. 381; 1932 O. 51=8 O. W.N. 1281; 138 I.C. 282; 129 I.C. 335=1931 O. 19 following 45 I.A. 183 and 57 I.A. 86; 1931 L. 395 following 35 C.W.N. 1047; 54 I. A. 178. So also is the question of admissibility of evidence and the question whether any evidence has been offered on one side or the other; but the question whether the fact has been proved when evidence for and against has been properly admitted, is necessarily a pure question of fact. The High Court has no jurisdiction in second appeal to revise the evidence and set aside the decree of the lower appellate Court on the ground that it had applied the wrong standard of measurement to land of which the rent was in question. 46 C. 189=51 I.C. 760. Questions as to the proper legal effect of proved facts are questions of law for purposes of second appeal. 63 I.A. 140=40 C.W.N. 417=1936 P.C. 77=70 M.L.J. 190 (P.C.). Or 20 I.C. 951=11 A.L.J. 713; 96 I.C. 356= certain legal rights the correct tests have been 1926 N. 494; 25 A.L.J. 1014; 1929 A. 767; 135 I.C. 221=1932 L. 183; 1935 A. 143=157 I.C. 615. A provisional finding upsetting a very closely reasoned and elaborate judgment of the trial Court without any discussion of evidence whatever or without giving any reason except the general reason that the evidence is not satisfactory is contrary to law and will be set aside in second appeal. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 282. Gross negligence of guardian is a question of law. 1926 M. 905=1926 M.W.N. 350. See also (1937) 1 M.L.J. 224; also question of amount of dower to be paid. 1926 O. 128. The question whether in determining the infringement of certain legal rights the correct tests have been applied is a pure question of law. 42 C. 46=27 M.L.J. 117 (P.C.). The meaning of words is a question of fact in all cases; the effect of the words is a question of law. 75 I.C. 686=1923 A. 337; 46 I.C. 794; also 4 O.W.N. 1229; 1926 L. 21; 1926 O. 260; 1926 A. 465. So also interpretation of a land deed is a question of law. 1941 Cal. 446. The question whether there is evidence of an agreement is a question of fact. But if the Court comes to the conclusion that there is no evidence or that the evidence in no circumstances could be held to be evidence of an agreement, a question of law might arise. 160 I.C. 1079=17 Pat.L.T. 360=1936 P. 96. Legal effect of an agreement is a question of law. 27 A.L.J. 1083. A Court of second appeal is not bound to entertain a question of law raised for the first time before it. It can however take the point of itself or if some good cause is shown it may permit that point to be argued. 43 A. 193 (F.B.). As to certain questions in relation to partnership, see 164 I.C. 1100=1936 R. 383. It is a question of law whether the alleged expulsion of a member effected by means of a communication operates by itself as a dissolution of the partnership which is not for fixed term. 1935 L. 132. The question whether the inference about the dissolution or non-dissolution of a particular partnership drawn by the lower appellate Court from the facts found by it is or is not correct, is a question of law. 159 I.C. 433=1935 A.L.J. 1251=1935 A. 1008. The appellant cannot in second appeal take a point of law which involves the taking of additional

A finding of fact based on oral evidence cannot be gone into in second appeal; but the legal inference to be drawn from proved or admitted facts is a matter of law. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 505=42 Bom.L.R. 511=1940 Bom. 263. The statement that "the proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law" does not mean that it is a question of law whether a certain inference should be drawn from proved facts. It only means that the legal effect of a finding of fact is a question of law. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 778=1941 O.W.N. 1027; 190 I.C. 271=1940 Sind 138; 18 Pat. 571=1939 Pat. 448; 1939 Sind 97; 1940 Sind 43; 1941 Pat. 228; 1941 A.W.R. In second appeal, the High Court can make deductions from facts found without disturbing the findings of the lower appellate Court. 32 I.C. 119=19 C.W.N. 1330. The conclusion that a certain process was not scientific involves a question of law. 95 I.C. 614=1926 N. 435; so also question of abandonment of tenancy. 32 C.W.N. 1111=1928 C. 891; 1930 L. 215=125 I.C. 188. A decision by the lower appellate Court as to whether a particular legal relationship, that of landlord and tenant, was created or existed between the parties by reason of certain transactions is one on a point of law, and is not therefore binding in second appeal. 40 L.W. 810=1935 M. 268=154 I.C. 753. The question as to whether the character of the building in suit has undergone a change from that of payin to that of lettelpwa is not purely a question of fact and the High Court is not debarred from considering it on second appeal. 158 I.C. 1092=1935 R. 129. The question whether reverisener's consent to an alienation can be inferred from the established

NOTES.

The question whether a party acted in good faith within the meaning of section 14, Limitation Act, is a mixed question of law and fact and can be questioned in second appeal, provided that the lower Court's findings of fact are not interfered with. (36 I.C. 702, Foll.) 40 P.L.R. 631=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 704. Appeal decided ex parte wrongly by lower appellate Court—Second appeal is allowed. 117 I.C. 229 (1). Whether the facts found attract the operation of provision of law is a mixed question of law and fact. 101 I.C. 674=1927 P. 256. Also whether reasonable care has been taken. 99 I.C. 1=1927 A. 158. Also the question whether a power-of-attorney was effective on the date of transaction by agent. 6 R. 113=54 M.L.J. 517 (P.C.). Whether a gift offends against the doctrine of musha. 101 I.C. 126. Question as to what passed in a sale of family properties. 23 L.W. 349=94 I.C. 68=1926 M. 851. The question whether an application in question is a fresh application within the language of section 48 is a mixed question of fact and law and a second appeal is competent. 186 I.C. 860=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 35. An issue regarding limitation is a mixed question of facts and law and it is liable to reconsideration by the second appellate Court, especially where the trial Court who had an opportunity of hearing the witnesses in person, came to a conclusion different from that of the lower appellate Court. 1940 R.D. 388=1940 A.W.R. (B. R.) 229. Bill of exchange—Presentment for payment—Reasonable time—Mixed question of law and fact. 116 I.C. 887=1929 L. 577. Constructive notice is a mixed question of law and fact. 1931 B. 430=33 Bom.L.R. 499. Question whether a piece of land is communal. 1930 M.W. N. 515. Whether a new tenancy has been created is a question of mixed fact and law. 163 I.C. 538=1936 P. 411. The question whether a Hindu can inherit to a Mahomedan father. 134 I.C. 1171=1931 S. 170. Under the Hindu Law a natural guardian can alienate the property of the minor for necessity or for benefit of the estate. The question is one of mixed law and fact. 147 I.C. 1144 (1)=1934 L. 329. The question whether an information given to the police is directed against a particular person. 1934 P. 14. Question as to the vicarious liability of master originally sued as principal. 1933 N. 299. Whether the interpretation of a particular order is a question of fact, or a question of law, or a question of mixed fact and law depends on the circumstances of each particular case. The general rule is quite clear. Where intention is to be inferred from the terms of a document, in this case the order, the question is one of law, or mixed question of fact and law; where the intention is to be inferred from the other facts and circumstances tending to show what was the real intention of the Judge in passing that particular order, then the question may be either a question of pure fact or, again, may be a question of mixed fact and law. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 62.

JURISDICTION.—Where a decree has been made by the appellate Court without jurisdiction an appeal lies against it precisely in the same way as if it had been made with jurisdiction. 45 C. 926; 1925 C. 1032; 1925 A. 737; 131 I.C. 141 (1)=1931 L. 96; 1933 A.L.J. 103. See also 94 I.C. 1=1926 A. 401. The question of jurisdiction can be for the first time agitated in second appeal. 1923 L. 551. See also 1933 A.L.J. 103=1933 A. 403; 49 I.C. 137=29 C.L.J. 48; 75 I.C. 1053; 1931 A. 556. Where a District Judge assumes a jurisdiction which he does not possess, any order which he passes on such assumption can be set aside by the High Court in second appeal. 1938 A.L.J. 988. Decision of District Court on appeal from forest officer—Madras Forest Act (V of 1882), sections 10 and 16—Second appeal to High Court is competent. 39 M. 617=31 M.L.J. 324. A decree of a Deputy Collector in a suit under section 213 of the Madras Estates Land Act—If second appeal lies. 38 M. 655. See also 37 M. 443=27 M.L.J. 451 (P.C.). Where the amendment was allowed after the expiration of the limitation period, the High Court can take notice of it in second appeal though the point was not pressed in lower appellate Court. 36 A. 370. A second appeal is not maintainable against an order rejecting cross-objections but the Courts might interfere in revision. 44 I.C. 812. In a suit of a small cause nature, order in execution proceedings is not appealable. 45 M.L.J. 651. Where the lower appellate Court hears an appeal which it has no jurisdiction to hear, it is doubtful whether a second appeal lies; but revision is competent. 150 I.C. 15=1934 L. 79.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—A Court before whom a second appeal is filed is entitled to reject it, if in its opinion the case is not covered by the provisions of section 100. 1940 O.W.N. 550. Where an obvious point of law arises, the practice of some lower Courts of attempting to shut out a second appeal by the use of language designed to clothe a decision on a point of law with the appearance of a finding of fact ought to be deprecated. 18 Pat. 204=1939 P.W.N. 37=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 402. Where proper issues have not been framed and the lower Court has not discussed the real question in controversy it is open to the High Court hearing the second appeal to remand the case for proper disposal. 152 I.C. 220=35 P.L.R. 156. Refusal by the appellate Court in the exercise of its discretion to admit additional evidence given under O. 41, r. 27, is not a substantial defect or error in procedure. 33 A. 379. The refusal of the lower appellate Court to act under O. 41, r. 33, C.P. Code, is not an error of law with which the second appellate Court is bound to interfere. 123 I.C. 39. Admission of additional evidence erroneously—Second appeal. See 92 I.C. 661=1926 M. 864. Question of fact—New evidence tendered in second appeal—Permissibility. 31 Bom.L.R. 436=1929 B. 225. The High Court will reverse a finding in second appeal if there was substantial error in procedure resulting in a finding not secundum allegata et probata and not sustainable in law. 39 B. 149; 10 Pat.L.T. 589=1929 P. 609. Decision based on finding of fact contrary to case set up can be questioned in second appeal. 1926 L. 535. Where the appellate Court made a new case not raised by the parties and not warranted by pleadings or evidence High Court will interfere. 104 I.C. 781; 132 I.C. 426=1931 A. 219. Also in a case of misuse of judicial discretion. 94 I.C. 396=1926 L. 445 (2). Procedure—Finding of fact—False case on both sides. 45 I.C. 795=22 C.W.N. 149. Failure to appreciate true question in controversy is a defect in procedure and the appeal should be re-heard 13 I.C. 455=2 C.L.J. 380. See also 34 I.C. 30=23 C.L.J. 600; 35 I.C. 631; 17 Pat.L.T. 774=1937 Pat. 78; 43 I.C. 488; 1931 R. 312. Where the lower appellate Court decided a question of fact not upon the evidence but holding that a superior Court decided a similar case between different parties in a particular day, there was a defect in procedure and a second appeal lay. 6 P. 698 (F.B.). Second appeal lies in a case where a preliminary decree for accounts is passed and that decree is set aside by the lower appellate Court though the appellate Court did not pass a decree in pursuance of its judgment. 31 P.L.R. 386=1930 L. 125.

PROCEDURE—EX PARTE HEARING OF APPEAL.—Interference on second appeal. 3 L. 357. The failure to determine the critical question between the parties to a suit and to consider the oral evidence adduced on behalf of the defendant is a substantial error of procedure. 56 I.C. 40. So also if lower appellate Court gives decree not based on evidence. 26 I.C. 240. Where both parties agreed to proceed not only on the evidence taken before the Munsif but also on evidence recorded by the Commissioner, and the lower appellate Court discarded the evidence recorded before the Commissioner, there was defect of procedure within Cl. (1) (c). 106 I.C. 841=46 C.L.J. 558. The appellate Court has no power to go behind a finding of the trial Court, when the appellant has accepted it in his ground of appeal. The carelessness of the appellant's Counsel in drafting the grounds makes no difference. 59 I.C. 689.

NEW PLEA IN SECOND APPEAL.—A plea not raised in either of the Courts below cannot be entertained for the first time in further appeal to the Chief Court. 29 I.C. 761. Where a Judge sitting in appeal bases his judgment on a new case made out for the first time in appeal, and it is clear that the new case has coloured and influenced his consideration of the facts and his decision on another aspect of the case, which, although treated by the appellate Court as a minor aspect, turns out in fact to be the most important aspect of the case, and it appears that the Court has not adequately considered that aspect and consequently has arrived at a wrong conclusion, his judgment is liable to be set aside in second appeal. See also 3 O.W.N. 934. Where a point was taken in the grounds of appeal to the lower appellate Court but not noticed by it in its judgment, it must be presumed that the point was abandoned, in the absence of an affidavit to the contrary by the Advocate who argued the case before it, and it would not be entertained in second appeal. 39 P.L.R. 312. The question whether there has been a failure of justice or not is not a pure question of law and cannot be decided without finding facts and as such if the point was not taken in the lower Courts, it cannot be raised in second appeal in the High Court for the first time. I.L.R. (1939) All. 167=1939 A.L.J. 50=1939 All. 163. Matters of procedure dependent upon facts cannot be raised in second appeal. 94 I.C. 417 (2). The High Court may be justified in an exceptional case, in permitting a point of law to be taken in second appeal which goes to the root and the merits of the whole case. 71 I.C. 381=1923 A. 343; 1930 L. 937. A point of law can be raised for the first time in second appeal only when a finding favourable to the appellant would entitle him to a decree on the evidence as it stands. 1937 A. M.L.J. 71. A point of law which does not require any questions of fact to be determined but can be decided on the record as it stands may be allowed to be raised in second appeal for the first time. 66 I.C. 856; 21 A. 446; 25 Bom.L.R. 245=72 I.C. 226; 38 B. 227; 47 A. 324. See also 1938 Bom. 291. It is well settled that the Court will allow, even in second appeal, a question of law to be raised for the first time, if it can do without any unfairness to the opponents, and if a question of law is such that it does not necessitate the taking of further evidence, the High Court in second appeal would allow it to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 175 I.C. 866=40 Bom.L.R. 359=A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 291. See also I.L.R. 1938 A. 563=1938 All. 396 (F.B.). When a question of law is raised for the first time in a Court of last resort upon the construction of a document or upon facts either admitted or proved beyond controversy, it is not only competent but expedient in the interests of justice to entertain the plea. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 376. See also 1938 Rang. 468. A question of pure law can be raised in second appeal, especially when the other party knows all the relevant facts which the latter himself has mentioned in his pleadings. 1937 A.L.J. 1252. The High Court should not in second appeal entertain a new point for the first time when all the materials for the decision of such point are not before it. If it is necessary to frame an issue and call upon the lower Court to record a finding on such issue before the new point can be decided, the Court should not permit such a new point to be raised in second appeal. 1937 A.L.J. 855=A.I.R. 1937 All. 696. A mixed question of fact and law cannot be raised on second appeal for the first time. 4 L.L.J. 432, e.g., authority of partner to bind firm by acknowledgment. 1929 L. 266=118 I.C. 529; 134 I.C. 1171=1931 S. 170. See also 1937 Nag. 314. A point of law can be taken at any time, and though the question whether a suit falls under section 92, C. P. Code, is a mixed question of law and fact, if all the material facts are on the record, the question whether such facts do or do not show the trust to be a trust within the provisions of section 92 is a question of law which can be taken at any time. 31 S.L.R. 510=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 230. When, in both the lower Courts, the plea that the assignment of decree, though requiring registration, was not registered and that the assignee proceeding to execute the decree on the basis of such assignment, had no right to do so on account of the deed of assignment not being admissible in evidence for want of registration, was not raised. Held, that the question involved a question of fact as to whether the deed of assignment was registered or not and so the plea could not be entertained in second appeal. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 237. A question of jurisdiction is one of pure law, which though not raised in the lower Court can be entertained and adjudicated upon in second appeal. 57 I.C. 206=18 A.L.J. 923; 9 Luck. 365=11 O.W.N. 193=1934 O. 55. Although section 21, C. P. Code, does not in terms apply to appeals, the principle underlying it is of general application so as to cover proceedings other than original suits. Hence where an objection as to jurisdiction is not taken in the lower appellate Court, the plea must be deemed to have been waived and cannot be raised in second appeal. 29 N.L.R. 342=1933 N. 318; 53 M.L.J. 688. But see 100 I.C. 37=1927 N. 164. A question of notice cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 41 C. 418. Where the defendant did not raise in the Court of first appeal the point as to whether the notice to quit was legal and sufficient, the point could not be raised in second appeal. 2 Pat.L.J. 595=42 I.C. 655. See also 52 I.C. 517=10 L.W. 137. Where the question was as to the inalienability of certain property according to custom, and it was found to be so, a party who did not plead in the Courts below that the custom was qualified in the sense of the restraint against alienation being merely for the benefit of the proprietor, can raise that plea in second appeal. 1936 O.W.N. 260=1936 O. 235. New plea of res judicata when can be raised for the first time in second appeal. 74 I.C. 577; 8 P. 107. The High Court will not entertain in second appeal a plea of res judicata which was raised by the defendant in her written statement but withdrawn by her counsel on the date of issue and which was not raised in the grounds of appeal filed by her in the lower Appellate Court or in the High Court. 1937 O.W.N. 229=A.I.R. 1937

Oudh 243. Where an appellant in second appeal contended that an issue should be remitted to the Court below on a question of res judicata by elucidating certain facts and the plea was neither taken in the Court of first instance nor in the lower appellate Court, the High Court disallowed the plea in second appeal. 149 I.C. 93=1934 A. 770. Plea that suit is barred by section 47, C. P. Code, 9 Luck. 375=147 I. C. 910=1934 O. 55. But see 25 L.W. 11=100 I.C. 40=1927 M. 406. A plea of estoppel which was not made up in the plaint or disclosed by the evidence cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. 186 I.C. 793=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 480. Where no case of estoppel was set up in the written statement and no issue was framed on the point, it is too late to set up such a new case in second appeal as there could be no findings of fact on which any estoppel could be based. 180 I.C. 621=1938 A.L.J. 1238=A.I.R. 1939 All. 194. Estoppel is always a mixed question of fact and law, and a plea of estoppel cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in second appeal, when it would necessitate the taking of further evidence of facts. 175 I. Question whether donee has accepted the gift on the life time of the donor not to be considered for the first time in second appeal. 1940 O.W.N. 600=1940 Oudh 318. Points under the Limitation Act not taken in the Court below should not ordinarily be allowed to be raised in the High Court. 17 L.W. 169=72 I.C. 131=1937 Nag. 184; 1937 Nag. 314; 1937 All. 696. The plea of limitation or estoppel involving questions of fact which are not admitted or undisputed cannot be taken for the first time in appeal. 27 I. C. 933; 115 I.C. 680=10 Pat.L.T. 53; 56 C. 201. Plea abandoned in Courts below not to be raised in second appeal. 55 I.C. 481. Finding arrived on mistaken view of pleadings how far binding on High Court. See 1926 O. 353. A legal plea going to the root of the plaintiff's claim and arising on the facts found and not affected by any facts outside those findings can be taken for the first time in second appeal. 41 I.C. 45. Where the authority for a plea is not quoted in the Court below, the Court in second appeal cannot reverse the finding on the strength of that authority. 1930 L. 737.

NEW PLEAS—FURTHER ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—When an appellant confines himself deliberately to some of the questions decided by the trial Court and does not attack the judgment of the trial Court on other questions decided by it, if the appellate Court judgment proceed only on the questions attacked and dismiss the appeal, it will not be open to the appellant to object to the judgment in second appeal on the ground that the judgment was not in accordance with law. 150 I.C. 841=1934 P. 55 (2). A new plea attacking the validity of a sale deed on the ground of lack of bona fides, cannot for the first time be allowed in second appeal, the appellant having attacked it in the trial Court only on the ground of want of consideration and failed in his contention. 147 I.C. 952=10 O.W.N. 1186. Where no objection is taken by a party in the lower Courts to the competency of the sub-agent to bring a suit, it is not open to him to raise that point in the High Court. 1934 R. 289. See also A.I.R. 1938 M. 338 (plea of want of sanction under section 91, C. P. Code). Where the case was dealt with in the lower Courts on the footing that the defendant was a surety and in second appeal the plea was taken that he was co-obligor, held, that the new plea could not be allowed to be raised. 152 I.C. 464=40 L.W. 479=1934 M. 639.

INCONSISTENT PLEA.—Suit for ground rent—Proprietary title by adverse possession claimed by defendants—Title found against—Plea of irrevocable licence raised in second appeal not permissible. 126 I.C. 584=1933 A. 632. Where a tenant denies the relationship of landlord and tenant in his written statement, it is not open to him in second appeal to repudiate the written statement and claim that he is still a tenant and means to retain possession in that character. 156 I.C. 563=39 C.W.N. 882=1935 C. 393. EVIDENCE—(1) ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE—Objections as to the admissibility of evidence will not as a general rule be entertained for the first time in second appeal. 104 I.C. 518; 150 I.C. 841=1934 P. 55; 41 L.W. 318=1935 M. 190. The appellant cannot raise objections to the admissibility of documents received in evidence in the lower Court if under the circumstances the application is too late. 34 I.C. 57 (F.B.); 41 C.L.J. 374=86 I.C. 734. Finding of a lower appellate Court based on inadmissible evidence can be impeached in second appeal. 74 I.C. 383=1923 C. 261; 72 I.C. 985=1923 C. 378; 148 I.C. 1158=35 P.L.R. 360; 1934 P. 48=146 I.C. 937; 16 N.L.J. 232 (Admissible evidence excluded). 48 L.W. 595. Where appellate Court duly admits additional evidence under O. 41, r. 27, and the aggrieved party does not at the time ask for any opportunity to produce further evidence, a finding of fact arrived on such evidence is quite proper and unassailable in second appeal. 156 I.C. 468=16 Pat.L.T. 49=1935 P. 105 (2). Where the appellate Court has admitted in evidence certain document because in its discretion it required that evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment, it is inexpedient for the High Court in second appeal to interfere with the discretion of the lower Court. 159 I.C. 711=1935 P. 470.

(2) APPRECIATION OF EVIDENCE.—Where the High Court differed from the lower Courts, not only in the estimate of the evidence, but also with regard to the inferences derivable from document produced in the case and other circumstances, their Lordships dealt with the case on its merits. 2 P. 38=45 M. Findings of fact are conclusive in second appeal even though there has been an error on the part of the Court below in weighing the evidence. 53 I.C. 137; 92 I.C. 104=1926 C. 727; 4 Lah.L.J. 426; 1929 O. 41. See also 150 I.C. 306=1934 N. 124; 1933 P. 698 (Effect of admission). The ignoring of an important plea of evidence by the lower appellate Court is a good ground for second appeal. 42 I.C. 76; 153 I.C. 373=1935 O.W.N. 11=1935 O. 86. The credibility of witnesses accepted by the Courts below cannot be considered in second appeal but the sufficiency of the evidence can be considered in second appeal. 25 I.C. 869. Where the District Judge has not at all discussed the evidence bearing on the point in issue but merely expressed his concurrence in the finding of the lower Court on the issue, it cannot be considered a proper finding and the finding, though one of fact, is not binding in second appeal. 146 I.C. 292=34 P.L.R. 283.

(3) CONSIDERATION OF EVIDENCE.—Question of proper inference from facts found is a question of law. 8 L. 573=52 M.L.J. 663 (P. C.); 1929 A. 875; 1940 O.A. 491=1940 A. W.R. Where there is evidence on record which would justify the lower appellate Court in arriving at a particular finding and it has considered the evidence, the High Court will not interfere in second appeal merely because it comes to the conclusion that if the matter had been raised before it, it might have come to a conclusion different from the conclusion arrived at by the lower appellate Court. If there is no evidence upon which the finding could be supported then the matter becomes not a question of fact but a question of law. 167 I.C. 355=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 36. An appellate Court disposing of an appeal is not bound to repeat in extenso the arguments of the trial Judge which it accepts. But a party is entitled to a considered opinion of the appellate tribunal. It is not the first Court's view but that of the second Court that is final if the question is one of fact. 63 I.C. 954=35 C.L.J. 19. Also finding of fact based on no evidence or against express prima facie reliable evidence. 1926 O. 37; 1926 P. 187; 28 I.C. 555; 30 I.C. 505; 38 I.C. 62; 38 I.C. 586; 42 I.C. 282; 7 R. 751; 21 Pat.L.T. 873; 1940 Rang.L.R. 777; 1941 Pat. 118=197 I.C. 275; 1937 Pat. 289; 1937 Nag. 9; 1938 O.W.N. 171; 52 C.L.J. 235; 13 L. 399; 39 C.W.N. 1233; 1936 R. 488. It is true that a finding of fact arrived at by a lower appellate Court is binding on the High Court, however erroneous it might be. But this dictum presupposes that the finding is honest, that it has been arrived at on the facts of the case uninfluenced by any extraneous considerations, that it is the result of a correct appreciation of the material on the record and that it is based on evidence and not on surmises and conjectures. Any finding of fact which does not satisfy any of the requirements stated above will not be binding on the High Court. Every finding of fact is not sacrosanct and if findings of fact are arrived at on mere surmises and conjectures or on evidence that is inadmissible or otherwise legally insufficient, those findings can be disturbed. 190 I.C. 846=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 329. Where an appellate Court fails to come into close quarters with the evidence, the findings must be held to be vitiated and there must be a re-hearing of the appeal. 1920 M.W.N. 163=53 I.C. 308=10 L.W. 525. See also 100 I.C. 306=1927 M. 493; 103 I.C. 486=1927 N. 166; 1924 N. 91; 1928 L. 737; 1929 P. 98=115 I.C. 674. Where the lower Court erred in not referring to some important evidence, in the conclusions drawn from uncontradicted evidence of respectable witnesses and in assuming wrong legal principles, the errors vitiated the lower Court's finding so as to furnish ground for interference in second appeal. 1935 M. 701; 42 P.L.R. 94; 42 P.L.R. 136. Where a lower appellate Court has not discarded the defence evidence on any general grounds, but has attempted to discuss the evidence and to arrive at a reasoned conclusion, the mere fact that that conclusion may be different from the conclusion to which the second appellate Court might arrive, if it considers the matter de novo is not enough ground for discarding the finding of fact arrived at by the lower appellate Court. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 149=1940 R.D. 246 (1). A finding of the lower appellate Court based upon a failure to appreciate the true legal effect of recitals of necessity in ancient documents and omission to consider other documents of recent origin consistent with those recitals, cannot be supported in second appeal. 42 C.W.N. 837=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 541. Where a finding of fact as to the relationship of parties is vitiated by an entire misapprehension of the pedigree table, it is a finding not based on any legal evidence, and can, therefore, be interfered with in second appeal. 40 P.L.R. 162=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 303. An unsatisfactory discussion of evidence, is not, like absence of evidence or disregard of it a ground for interference in second appeal. 1914 M.W.N. 833=1 L.W. 772. Nor the fact that the lower appellate Court's remark about the shifting of the onus is not happily worded, if it has not really affected the decision on merits. 38 P.L.R. 577. The mere fact that the Court of first appeal has not made special mention of a document which is a piece of relevant evidence is not sufficient to show that it has not considered it at all. 43 I.C. 857=3 Pat.L.W. 213; 42 I.C. 397=2 Pat.L.W. 183. The right which a respondent in the lower appellate Court has to support the trial Court's decree in his favour on any points which were decided against him, if not availed of, cannot be used to ask the Court in second appeal to go into evidence bearing on that issue. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 624=1939 Nag. 260. Where the lower Court deals with the entire evidence in the case in a few sentences, without any advertence to the documentary evidence on the side of a party, and gives no reason for rejecting the conclusions of the trial Judge, as regards the credibility of the witnesses examined on the side of that party, its judgment does not satisfy the requirements of law and must be deemed to be a judgment vitiated by an error in procedure. The lower appellate Court is bound, as a matter of law, not to go against the opinion of the trial Judge, who had an opportunity of seeing and hearing the witnesses before him, in deciding upon the credibility of the witnesses. Unless good reasons are given, any interference with the conclusion of the trial Judge on matters of this kind must be deemed to be erroneous in law. A second appeal is competent in such a case under section 100. 53 L.W. 160=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 174. Finding of fact—Lower Court not referring to certain evidence since its attention was not drawn to the same—Judgment not vitiated. 11 L.L.J. 381. Mere omission to consider a piece of evidence will not alter the character of a finding of fact. 162 I.C. 21=1936 P. 243.

(4) INFERENCE FROM DOCUMENTS.—Under section 100 the High Court has no jurisdiction to reverse the findings of fact arrived at by lower appellate Court however erroneous, unless they are vitiated by some error of law. The rule is equally applicable to cases in which the findings of the lower appellate Court are based on inferences drawn from documents exhibited in evidence. [11 L. 199 (P.C.), Foll.] 61 I.A. 163=57 M. 652=1934 P.C. 112=66 M.L.J. 595 (P.C.); 39 C.W.N. 1270=61 C.L.J. 369; 190 I.C. 648=1940 Lah. 205; 42 Bom.L.R. 511=1940 Bom. 263; or from conduct. 40 L.W. 755=1935 M. 70. The proper legal inference to be drawn from the proved facts of a case is a point of law. 40 Bom.L.R. 1015=A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 492. A finding based on inferences derived from documentary evidence is as good a finding of fact as that based on oral and documentary evidence. A.I.R. 1937 All. 197 (1). The rule that the High Court has no jurisdiction to reverse the findings of fact arrived at by the lower appellate Court, however erroneous, unless they are vitiated by some error of law, is applicable to cases in which such findings are based on inferences drawn from the documents exhibited in evidence. 1937 O.W.N. 330=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 226. See also 1937 P.W.N. 236=1937 Pat. 479; 166 I.C. 454 (inference as to nature of tenancy drawn from record of rights). While a Court in second appeal will not interfere with findings of fact of the lower appellate Court, whether right legal inferences have been drawn from those facts, whether, for instance, the possession is adverse or ot, whether a transfer is made with intent to defeat or delay within the meaning of section 53, are questions of law which can be dealt with in second appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 215. Where a Court is dealing with the question as to whether from the facts found the legal inference drawn by the lower Courts is correct in cases such as of adverse possession, or under section 53, T. P. Act, or section 82, Trusts Act, it is entitled to consider in second appeal whether the facts found by the lower Court justified the conclusions in law that they have drawn. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 206. The question whether misconduct can be inferred from a set of facts is a question of law. 1937 P.W.N. 71=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 289. The question whether a building is a private mosque or a public mosque is not question of fact, but a question of law, that is a question of inference from proved facts. 1938 O.W.N. 937=A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 238. Where certain facts are found and an inference is drawn from the facts so found, it is open to the Court in second appeal to consider whether as a matter of law such inference is justified by the facts found. Whether the evidence is directed to prove fraud or conspiracy, this principle will equally apply because that principle applies to all circumstantial evidence and amounts simply to this that the inference drawn from such evidence must be one which necessarily flows from it. 19 Pat.L.T. 398=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 147. See also 1937 Nag. 230 (Question whether a Hindu family has separated in status); 1937 Rang. 225 (Inference of partnership from proved facts). The question whether a certain payment was made by way of gift or by way of satisfaction of a debt is question of fact. 1937 M.W.N. 1166=46 L.W. 617. A second appellate Court, though it cannot entertain an appeal upon any question as to the soundness of findings of fact by the lower appellate Court, can nevertheless adjudicate as matter of law upon the soundness of the conclusions which have been derived from those findings. (19 I.A. 228, Rel. on.) 1936 O.W.N. 1057=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 47. The question as to whether the lower Courts drew the correct inference or not from the circumstantial evidence on a certain point is a pure question of law. 1937 O.W.N. 438=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 301.

(5) SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.—A decision that there is no evidence to support a finding is a decision of law on which the Privy Council will interfere with the findings of fact of the Courts below. 41 C. 972=27 M.L.J. 80 (P.C.). See also 58 I.C. 482; 88 I.C. 584=1925 C. 1133. A finding based on no evidence is not binding in second appeal and can be interfered with. 60 C.L.J. 288. See also 1934 M.W.N. 1082=40 L.W. 749; 1940 Pat. 502; 1937 O.W.N. 266; 1937 M.W.N. 396; (1937) 2 M.L.J. 916; 158 I. C. 512=1935 C. 648. It is open to a Court to accept evidence of one witness in preference to that of others and a finding arrived at on such evidence cannot be said to be supported by no evidence. 161 I.C. 501=1936 S. 7. The lower appellate Court as the final Court of fact is entitled to draw such inferences from facts as it thinks proper and in second appeal there is no power in High Court to interfere with those findings; but when the appellate Court, on the slenderest of evidence, makes out a case which is not in the pleadings, its finding of fact cannot be binding in second appeal. 175 I.C. 91=1938 P.W.N. 741=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 181. Judgment based on opinions of experts is open to challenge in second appeal. 21 A.L.J. 811=75 I.C. 502. But see 157 I.C. 30=1935 A. 501, where finding based on the relative weight of the opinion of the handwriting experts was held to be one of fact. The mere question of sufficiency of the evidence adduced to establish a custom is not a ground of second appeal. 45 C. 285; 69 I.C. 800. Even from a finding of fact second appeal may be taken if the finding is not supported by any evidence on record. 30 I.C. 375; 65 I.C. 398; 13 L. 399. The sufficiency or insufficiency of evidence as proof of title cannot be debated in second appeal. 9 I.C. 427. See also 1928 O. 352 (2)=110 I.C. 531; 1929 A. 557; but a finding on conjectures and presumptions can be questioned in second appeal. 97 I.C. 241 (2)=1926 L. 659; 7 L.R. 104 (Rev.). See also 145 I.C. 407=1933 M. 163. So also a finding which is based wholly upon surmise without any positive evidence to support it. 157 I.C. 1040=1935 M. 190=68 M.L.J. 648. Where certain convincing evidence has been set aside in the lower appellate Court on a ground that can have no legal basis whatever, such a glaring misapplication of law of evidence is open to correction in second appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 385. If an appellate Court, while reversing a well considered judgment of the trial Court, fails to advert to, or in any way indicate that it has considered, a most material piece of evidence which militates against its own view, its finding cannot be accepted as an unassailable finding of fact in second appeal. 47 L.W. 477=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 568=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 582. A finding as to the existence of an agreement which has not been pleaded and based on no evidence cannot be accepted as binding. 159 I.C. 96=18 N.L.J. 104.

(6) MISREADING OF EVIDENCE.—The misapprehension of evidence is no ground for a second appeal. 21 I.C. 393. But see 1926 L. 541. But where a finding of fact is arrived at as a result of a complete misreading of a document a second appeal is competent. 42 I.C. 218; 1926 P. 725; 1930 L. 712; 134 I.C.

NOTES.

21=1931 A. 499; so also a finding arrived at on an erroneous assumption of an admission by party, who did not make it. 1928 O. 333. There is an error of law when a Court's finding proceeds upon a misconception of the real nature of the issue in the case, when several facts admitted or proved are not considered in their relation to each other and weighed as whole, when a certain legal consequence which naturally follows from admitted and proved facts is overlooked, or when a material part of admissible evidence which vitally bears on the point at issue is disregarded. A case which involves such an error of law must fall within the ambit of section 100, C. P. Code. Where therefore lower Court's judgment is based on an error of law it cannot attain finality and High Court sitting in appeal over it can hear it on facts. I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 535=1938 Nag. 470.

(7) EXCLUSION OF EVIDENCE.—The High Court is not empowered to interfere in second appeal with an order of the lower appellate Court rejecting an application made to it for the admission of additional evidence. 42 M. 737=37 M.L.J. 125; 1923 L. 30; 32 P.L.R. 813; 131 I.C. 228=1931 L. 506; 1927 M.W.N. 63 (1)=99 I.C. 669 (1). Where evidence is excluded by an Original Court and such exclusion is not objected to in the first appellate Court such objection cannot be allowed in second appeal. 16 I.C. 213; 12 I.C. 751=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 495. A finding of fact after ignoring a piece of evidence which is really admissible can be attacked in second appeal. 91 I.C. 1026=1926 C. 603; 108 I.C. 191; 54 M.L.J. 600; 1929 L. 145; 112 I.C. 461; 32 P.L.R. 714; 1933 M. 163; 138 I.C. 406=1932 A. 603; 33 P.L.R. 1013; 1933 S. 121. Where the lower appellate Court rejects the oral evidence of possession adduced by one of the parties by applying an erroneous presumption of law its finding on the question of possession is vitiated by an error of law and the High Court can reverse the finding of fact so arrived at. 155 I.C. 1087=1935 O.W.N. 674=1935 O. 394. See also 39 C.W.N. 1233. (Improper rejection by lower appellate Court of Commissioner's plan relied on by trial Court).

(8) CONSTRUCTION OF DOCUMENT.—The expression 'construction' as applied to a document includes two things 'first, the meaning of the words; and secondly, their legal effect. The meaning of the words is a question of fact in all cases. The effect of the words is a question of law. Hence the interpretation placed upon the words in the deed is a clear question of fact. Even if the document admitted of more than one construction, one of which has been adopted by the lower appellate Court, the High Court will not be competent to challenge it. 158 I.C. 71=1935 L. 378; 1937 S. 51; 1937 Cal. 371; 39 P.L.R. 376; 1937 Sind 263; 1939 Nag. 197=1939 N.L.J. 297; 1939 O.W.N. 1114; 1940 A.L.J. 420=1940 All. 373 (F.B.); 193 I.C. 789. Misconstruction of a document which is not a document of title is, no doubt, no ground for a second appeal. But where a document has been held to contain an admission by a party when as a matter of fact no such admission exists, it is not entirely a question of drawing a wrong inference from a certain document, not being a question of title, but a question of misreading of evidence, and a second appeal would, therefore, lie. 42 P.L.R. 216=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 278. The question of the construction of document is a question of law, on which the High Court can entertain a second appeal. 43 C. 1104=31 M.L.J. 745 (P.C.); 4 Pat.L.T. 627; 45 M.L.J. 663. See also 16 Pat. 527=1937 Pat. 572 (construction of plaint); 41 P.L.R. 326=1939 Lah. 264 (construction of a document of title. See also 39 P.L.R. 376); 20 Pat.L.T. 677=1939 Pat. 364; 42 P.L.R. 660=1940 Lah. 486; 190 I.C. 604=1940 All. 441 (Construction of a receipt on which the matter in issue depends); 1940 Sind 74; 1940 Bom. 255; 1937 Oudh 295=1937 O.W.N. 356 (meaning of words); 1937 Oudh 370; 20 N.L.J. 39; 35 P.L.R. 578=1934 L. 662; 1926 O. 131; 1928 N. 289. But see 119 I.C. 667; 1926 L. 21; 1926 P. 49; 5 O.W.N. 275=1928 O. 269; 132 I.C. 844 (2)=1931 L. 686. A question of how a document should be construed if it is a document of title and not merely a piece of evidence in the case is a question of law. 52 I.C. 119; 48 A. 588; 1926 M. 542; 1926 B. 493; 5 Pat.L.J. 251. See also 1926 M. 652=93 I.C. 307=24 L.W. 88; 149 I.C. 934=1934 L. 35. Unless there has been misconstruction, a mistaken inference from documents is an error, not of law, but of fact. 60 I.A. 231=143 I.C. 437=1933 P.C. 171=65 M.L.J. 154 (P.C.). Where the question to be decided is one of fact, it does not involve an issue of law merely because documents which were not instruments of title or otherwise the direct foundations of rights, but were merely historical materials, have to be construed for the purpose of deciding that question; and a second appeal would not lie because some portion of the evidence might be contained in a document or documents and the first appellate Court has made a mistake as to its meaning. [11 L. 199 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 61 C. 45=151 I.C. 813=1934 C. 461; 161 I.C. 465=1936 P. 129; 155 I.C. 833=60 C.L.J. 412=1935 C. 282; 61 C.L.J. 143=39 C.W.N. 581. Where the question is what is the proper inference to be drawn from documents whose construction is not open to any controversy—the words used being explicit and requiring no construction—the question is a question of fact and a second appeal is not competent to the High Court. 189 I.C. 545=42 Bom.L.R. 462=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 255. The question of the construction of a certain documents is a question of law but the question what legal inference may be drawn from a number of documents is a question of fact and not a mere question of law. 151 I.C. 362=1934 A. 709; 162 I.C. 838=1936 P. 287; 162 I.C. 334=1936 O.W.N. 375=1935 L. 857; 161 I.C. 158=1936 O. 225; 1935 O.W.N. 365=154 I.C. 1017=1935 O. 304. But the question of interpretation of decree is a pure question of fact, the decree not being a document of title. 1935 L. 115 (1). The construction of a decree is a pure question of law. 1937 M.W.N. 292. Documents—Construction of—Question as to—Law or fact—Documents forming root of title or basis of claim—Documents forming evidence in the case—Distinction. 56 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.); 1930 L. 691; 134 I.C. 673=1931 N. 189 (48 A. 588, Foll.). A wrong construction of a document coupled with a wrong inference from certain facts constitute an error of law where there is no other evidence accepted by the Court. 55 I.C. 366=18 A.L.J. 195; 20 N.L.J. 39. The determination of the intention of the parties is a question of fact but if the sole evidence to decide it is a document of title, then a wrong interpretation of that document is a question of law on which a second appeal lies. 149 I.C. 1016=1934 L. 193. See also 151 I.C. 311=1934 L. 291. Where the question is whether two documents executed on the same day are connected so that one is consideration for the other, the question is not one of interpretation of documents, and if the lower Courts ascertain their connection on evidence other than of the documents themselves the finding is a finding of fact which cannot be challenged in second appeal. 1934 A. 948. Finding based on construction of or inferences drawn from documentary evidence cannot be questioned in second appeal. 99 I.C. 183; 100 I.C. 631; 104 I.C. 760. See also 1926 A. 75. A finding based on a recital of consideration in a mortgage deed is conclusive in second appeal. 21 I.C. 841. The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of a suit is no doubt a question of law but the misconstruction of a document which is alleged to contain an admission, that is to say, a misappreciation of the meaning and effect of an admission is not a question of law which can be raised in second appeal. 35 C.L.J. 182=68 I.C. 1003. Construction of document in case of a deed open to one of two constructions is question of law. 65 I.C. 580=1922 L. 240; 1928 N. 30=113 I.C. 373; 1929 L. 90 (1)=30 P.L.R. 168 (2); 1929 L. 833; 1930 L. 139; 130 I.C. 103=1931 N. 25 [34 A. 579 (P.C.). Ref.]. But see 1926 L. 672. The question whether the parties to a deed of transfer intended that certain property should pass under the deed is one of fact and cannot be agitated in second appeal. 63 I.C. 746. Also question regarding whether a lease confers a heritable right or not. See 13 O.L.J. 565. The construction of a deposition is what the Court thinks is proved by it and it is wrong to speak of it as a construction so as to make it a question of law. 63 I.C. 575. Where the lower Court arrives at a finding of fact by a wrong construction of the pleading and without any evidence, the finding is liable to be questioned in a second appeal. 56 I.C. 466; 3 O.W.N. 460=94 I.C. 779=1926 O. 353; 69 I.C. 800. See also 133 I.C. 886=1931 L. 854. Where a document leaves part of the subject-matter ambiguous, and evidence is let in to remove the ambiguity, the interpretation becomes a question of fact. 103 I.C. 255; 1927 A. 689. The question of genuineness of signature is a pure question of fact. 152 I.C. 597=61 C. 365=1934 C. 633. It is true that a document is said to be executed only if it is proved to have been consciously signed or thumb-marked after the alleged executant had become aware of its contents and that the mere presence of a signature or a thumbmark on a document may not in certain cases in itself amount to a proof of its execution. But where the Judge has not been impressed by the mere presence of the thumb marks on the document in question, but there are certain other attending circumstances which have influenced his mind while formulating his conclusions that execution of document is genuine, his decision cannot be interfered with in second appeal. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 357.

OTHER ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where the appellant expressly abandons a point in the Court below he ought not to be allowed to take it in second appeal. 69 I.C. 44 (1); 134 I.C. 1171=1931 Sind 170. Intent to abandon plea not to be inferred from lower Court's failure to record finding thereon. 29 P.L.R. 607=1929 L. 81. As to abandonment by tenant of holding, see 4 P. 838. Abandonment is a finding of fact. 32 I.C. 355; 91 I.C. 493=1926 C. 751. The question whether a particular property comes within the definition of village immovable property or urban immovable property as contained in section 3, is a question of law, but its determination wholly depends on a finding of fact and the legal definition necessarily follows from this finding of fact. So a second appeal does not lie. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 284. The question of acquiescence is a matter of legal inference to be drawn from the facts proved in the case and can be taken up in second appeal. 41 I.C. 927; 36 I.C. 700; 82 I.C. 309; 73 I.C. 137. Where the Court holds that the document is so worded as to obscure its meaning and prevent the executants from grasping the fact that they were executing a deed of surrender, it is not an interpretation of a document and such finding does not involve a point of law. 119 I.C. 698=1929 N. 343.

ABANDONMENT.—The question as to whether there has been an abandonment of land by a raiyat is largely and principally a question of fact. But the inference from the facts found, as to whether there was abandonment or not, is a question of law. 61 C. 937.

ABATEMENT.—Though no second appeal lies from an order of abatement, it may be questioned in a second appeal if it "affects the decision of the case". 144 I.C. 133=1933 A.L.J. 561=1933 A. 294. An order that the appeal abates not only with regard to the respondent who has died but with regard to all the respondents, comes within the definition of a decree and as such is appealable. 43 C.W.N. 41=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 639.

(a) the decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law ;

(b) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law ;

NOTES.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.—The finding that there is a full accord and satisfaction is a finding of fact which must be accepted in second appeal. 152 I.C. 398=1934 N. 226.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Although a finding as to whether certain statement amounts to an acknowledgment arrived at by the lower appellate Court is not open to second appeal, still when the lower Court fails to consider the effect of a statement, the second appellate Court can decide whether it amounts to an acknowledgment. 14 L. 587=1933 L. 345.

ADOPTION.—The question of adoption is clearly a finding of fact and cannot be interfered with in second appeal. 1934 L. 968 (2)=154 I.C. 675.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.—Where the question of adverse possession is one of inference from documents the concurrent findings of the Indian Courts may be upset by Privy Council as the question is not one of fact. 42 A. 152=38 M.L.J. 259 (P.C.). See also 87 I. C. 1021; 1939 A. W. R. (B.R.) 124. The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of fact and law. 26 C.W.N. 890; 40 I.C. 420; 75 I.C. 672; 71 I.C. 762, and cannot be allowed to be pleaded for the first time in appeal. 102 I.C. 476=1927 L. 522. But see also 94 I.C. 38=1926 C. 881; 1926 L. 482; 148 I.C. 740=1934 P. 167. The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of fact and law. Though the facts found by the first appellate Court must be accepted in second appeal as final, the question whether the proved facts substantiate the plea of adverse possession is a matter of law which can be challenged in second appeal. 1941 O.W.N. 537=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 289. A finding of adverse possession must, to some extent be a finding of fact, but more particularly in a case where the judgment of the lower appellate Court is a judgment of reversal, the High Court may inquire into the method adopted by the lower appellate Court in coming to its conclusion, and enquire whether the adverse possession as found is supported by evidence and whether the finding, which is said to be based on the proper legal conclusion to be drawn from the settlement and mutation records, is justified. 66 C.L.J. 455=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 117. It is a question of fact whether adverse possession has been proved, but where the decision is whether adverse possession shall be inferred from facts, it is not a question of fact; it is a question of the legal inference to be drawn from facts. 176 I.C. 549=A.I.R.

ALIENATION.—The finding of the Courts below that a particular alienation was a gift and not a sale is a finding of fact binding in second appeal. 15 Pat.L.T. 596.

ANCESTRAL LAND.—A finding that property is ancestral is a finding of fact which cannot be contested on second appeal. 35 P.L.R. 532=1934 L. 517; 151 I.C. 789=35 P.L.R. 406=1934 L. 406. See also 150 I.C. 1041=1934 A. 866. (Finding that property was purchased with the funds of a certain person). A party who has all along proceeded on the assumption that the property which he was claiming was ancestral cannot, when his claim was dismissed by the lower Courts on the ground that it was barred by limitation under Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (I of 1920), section 7, for the first time in second appeal, be permitted to contend that the property was self-acquired. 1933 L. 845=35 P.L.R. 85.

BENAMI.—A question of benami or fraud is not a question of pure fact; it is a mixed question of fact and law. 43 I.C. 49=3 Pat.L.W. 339. See also 34 P.L.R. 642=1933 L. 738. A finding as to benami given after consideration of the evidence on record is binding on the High Court in second appeal. 133 I.C. 440. When there is circumstantial evidence on which the trial Court justifiably infers that a transaction is benami, the finding of the lower appellate Court that it is not benami without considering the evidence is not a proper finding which can be regarded as binding in second appeal. 63 C. 846=1936 C. 178.

"BONA FIDES".—Bona fides, finding as to, is a question of fact. 49 M.L.J. 549; 7 L. L.J. 358; 131 I.C. 662=1931 N. 67; 1938 Lah. 704.

BURDEN OF PROOF AND PRESUMPTION.—The question of onus is not necessarily and in all cases one of law. How much or what evidence is sufficient to discharge the onus is a question which will depend upon the weight to be attached to the evidence adduced. 12 I.C. 691=13 Bom.L.R. 1021. See also 9 I.C. 4; 1938 Nag. 522; 1937 Nag. 9; 1941 N.L.J. 117. Where a Court considers the case and the evidence of one side only and disbelieving the evidence dismisses the claim on the ground that the assertions made have not been proved, the case is being solely decided on the question of onus and no amount of lip service to a rule which is ignored in the letter and in the spirit will serve to turn what is then a question of law into one of fact. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 160=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 78. The question whether the presumption attaching to a document is or is not rebutted in a particular case is a question of fact and cannot be agitated

(c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

in second appeal. 1937 Lah. 468; see also 165 I.C. 763. Whether a statutory presumption was rebutted by the rest of the evidence or not is a question of fact. (A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 91, Foll.). 40 P.L.R. 655=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 445. If the Judge's finding is determined only by the question of burden of proof, or on a one-sided examination of the evidence due to the view taken about the burden of proof, then the finding stands in need of revision, but if the evidence and circumstances on both sides are duly considered, the question of the burden of proof is of very little importance. 152 I.C. 441=1934 N. 253. The adjustment of the burden of proof in a case is a question of law. 43 I.C. 478; 59 I.C. 973=12 L.W. 170; 1 L. 429; 2 L. 249; 7 L.R. 230 (Rev.)=94 I.C. 944=24 A.L.J.=513=1926 A. 453; 51 C.L.J. 465. A fact resulting from a finding on wrong burden of proof and disregard of evidence on record is not binding in second appeal. 2 Pat.L.T. 919=76 I.C. 347; 133 I.C. 220=53 C.L.J. 616; 59 C. 1012=62 M.L.J. 336 (P.C.). See also 1932 M. 415=35 L.W. 511; 19 N.L.J. 301; 163 I.C. 604=1936 R. 262; I.L.R. 1936 N. 142=164 I.C. 740=1936 N. 130. (Even when judgment of trial Court has been confirmed by appellate Court). After evidence was given by both sides and the lower Court has preferred that of one side, the objection as to wrong shifting of burden of proof is groundless in second appeal. 33 I.C. 817; 1930 L. 677=121 I.C. 377. See also 145 I.C. 992=34 P. L. R. 884=1933 L. 377. Where evidence has been led by both sides and findings have been arrived at on a consideration of the evidence so led, the question of onus in a second appeal would be immaterial. But where the lower appellate Court has placed the onus wrongly on the plaintiff and has discussed only the evidence of the plaintiff and his witnesses, its findings are not binding in second appeal. 45 C.W. N. 177. The question whether the presumption of the correctness of the record-of-rights has been rebutted in a particular case is more a question of fact than of law. 65 I.C. 527; 45 I.C. 65=22 C.W.N. 449; 12 L.L.J. 161. Failure to invoke a presumption under section 114, Evidence Act, is ground for second appeal. 25 A.L.J. 833; 121 I.C. 730. Refusal to draw the presumption under section 90, Evidence Act, will not be interfered with in second appeal. 134 I.C. 296. But a legal presumption wrongly raised by the lower Court where the law does not warrant such a presumption can be interfered with in second appeal. 32 P.L.R. 759.

CONDUCT, INFERENCE FROM.—See 40 L.W. 755.

COPYRIGHT.—In an action brought by a plaintiff for breach of copyright, but which is in substance an action for breach of confidence in permitting the plaintiff's unpublished manuscript to be used without the plaintiff's consent, whether or not the book was used, handed over to a certain person and whether it was improperly used by him are pure questions of fact. 1933 A.L.J. 393=64 M.L.J. 193=1933 P.C. 26 (P.C.).

COSTS.—A second appeal on a question of costs can be maintained. 2 L.L.J. 310=64 I.C. 962. See also 27 P.L.R. 391; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 764; 100 I.C. 598. But see 93 I.C. 1008=1926 A. 419; 1928 O. 224=107 I.C. 881; 6 O.W.N. 689 (F.B.). It cannot be said that no second appeal lies against an order for costs. Where in the Courts below wrong principle have been applied or there is some error in awarding costs, then the High Court can interfere in second appeal. If the High Court is satisfied that the lower appellate Court has considered the matter from the right point of view, it would not be open to the High Court to interfere in second appeal. The trial Court has a discretion in the matter of costs and that discretion can be inferred with in appeal only if the trial Court has exercised its discretion improperly. Where the lower Court does not keep this principle in view but considers the matter of costs as if it had been trying the suit itself, that is not the proper way of approaching the question, and the High Court will therefore interfere in second appeal. 51 L.W. 538=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 589=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 764. In second appeal the High Court will be very reluctant to interfere with an order of costs, unless it is shown that any grave injustice has been done to the party. 10 O.W.N. 981=1933 O. 455. Costs are in the discretion of the Courts below, and if no legal point or matter of principle is involved, the High Court on second appeal will not interfere. 35 P.L.R. 656=1934 L. 739. See also 148 I.C. 1166=1934 A.L.J. 803=1934 A. 434; 149 I.C. 901=11 O.W.N. 754=1934 O. 259.

COURT-FEE.—A second appeal lies from an order of appellate Court rejecting a memo. of appeal from non-payment of deficit Court-fees if there is an error in calculating the amount of Court-fees. 51 I.C. 114.

VALUATION OF SUIT.—Where the lower Courts have held that the valuation for purposes of jurisdiction placed on the suit was not unreasonable, it is not open to a party in second appeal to plead that the valuation of the suit was not correct, and that the suit, if properly valued, would be beyond the jurisdiction of the trial Court. Such a plea cannot be given effect to in second appeal. 22 Pat.L.T. 799.

CROSS-OBJECTIONS.—A second appeal lies from the decree of the appellate Court disallowing cross-objections of the respondent.

(2) An appeal may lie under this section from an appellate decree passed ex parte.

NOTES.

CUSTOM.—Question as to the existence of an ancient custom are questions of mixed law and fact. 40 M. 709=33 M.L.J. 1 (P. C.); 143 I.C. 880=37 L.W. 272=1933 M. 390; 41 M. 374 (F.B.); 40 Bom.L.R. 1015=1938 Bom. 492; 1933 A. 603. On this point, see also 27 Bom.L.R. 880=88 I.C. 891; 88 I.C. 752=23 A.L.J. 932; 93 I.C. 363; 1926 A. 215; 20 A.L.J. 57=64 I.C. 956; 1928 O. 269. Whether a particular custom is proved to exist or not, is undoubtedly a question of fact, and a mere question of sufficiency of the evidence adduced to establish a custom is not a ground of second appeal. But questions of the existence of an ancient custom are generally mixed questions of law and fact; the Judge first finding what were the things done in alleged pursuance of the custom and then determining whether these facts so found satisfied the requirements of the law. The latter is a question of law and not fact. 45 C.W.N. 809. Where the concurrent findings of the lower Courts that a certain custom did not exist is based on the rejection of the evidence which should not have been rejected, the findings could be questioned in second appeal. 1941 O.W.N. 623=1941 O.A. 394. A finding of the lower Courts that a custom set up by a party has not been established by him is one of law and cannot be interfered with in second appeal when it is not vitiated by any error of law. 1937 A.L.J. 1301=A.I.R. 1938 All. 144. Where the evidence has been viewed in the lower appellate Court on a mistaken application of the rule as to burden of proof, its judgment is vitiated on a point of law and is open to attack in second appeal. 40 P.L.R. 682=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 760. A finding as to the existence or non-existence of a custom in so far as it is a finding that a certain practice does or does not prevail, is a finding of fact. The question whether a prevailing practice has the essential attributes of a legally binding custom is a question of law. 141 I.C. 668=1933 A. 306. See also I.L.R. 1936 N. 13=164 I.C. 825=1936 N. 95. Whether the facts found in any given instance prove the existence of the essential attributes of a custom is a question of law which may be discussed in second appeal. 45 C. 285; 38 M.L.J. 275; 41 M. 374=34 M.L.J. 104; 40 M. 1108=32 M.L.J. 237; 1929 M. 751; 150 I.C. 758=1934 A. L.J. 879=1934 A. 890. A finding of custom cannot be challenged in second appeal on the ground that the evidence is insufficient. 35 I.C. 630; 102 I.C. 596=1927 A. 605; 100 I.C. 605=1927 A. 471; 99 I.C. 292=1927 A. 201; 4 O.W.N. 1229=1928 O. 121. 91 I.C. 942=13 O. L. J. 121=1926 O. 143. But see 94 I.C. 987=1926 O. 460; 1926 A. 153; 59 M.L.J. 289=53 M. 597=57 I.A. 264 (P.C.). The question whether a custom is reasonable or not is a question of law and not of fact. 29 I.C. 312=19 C.W.N. 1188. See also 41 C.W.N. 503=1937 Cal. 245. When there is legally insufficient evidence to prove a custom, a finding of the existence of custom may be questioned in second appeal, but when the insufficiency depends on the weighing of the evidence, it cannot be contested in second appeal. 9 I.C. 839 (29 M. 24; 28 A. 98, Ref.); 70 I.C. 858=1923 L. 53; 3 L. 344. See also 92 I.C. 126=1926 O. 211; 116 I.C. 799. Where a question as to the existence of a custom has been decided by a lower Court, what has to be seen is not merely whether the decision arrived at is one of fact but whether in arriving at it, the Court has committed an error in law or not; for instance, if it was based upon the acceptance of evidence which was inadmissible, it could be questioned in second appeal but if it was so based because the Judge believed the evidence of some and disbelieved that of the others, it could not be questioned in second appeal. 14 Luck. 515=1939 O.W. N. 372=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 210. See also 1939 All. 500. A decision as to the existence of a custom is a question of fact (134 I.C. 475), but an appellant in second appeal is entitled to show that the evidence, even if true, does not establish the custom. 14 I.C. 12; 134 I.C. 21=1931 A. 499; 53 A. 308. See also 13 L. 31; 1931 A. 583; 18 Pat.L. T. 477=1937 Pat. 458. Question of law—Question of custom—No evidence one way or the other—Question to be decided on authorities: Question involved one of law. 11 L.L.J. 110=110 I.C. 380=1929 L. 426. Where a wakf is established by user is a question of fact. 100 I.C. 626=1927 A. 377; 12 L. 540. Finding regarding custom upset in second appeal for misdirection. 132 I.C. 804=1931 A. 547.

DAMAGES.—When the amount of damages is fixed arbitrarily it cannot be taken as an amount arrived at on a finding which is binding on the High Court. 1923 A. 199; 28 N. L.R. 320. The amount of damages is a question of fact. 9 I.C. 984 (34 A. 333; 3 C.L.J. 140, Ref.); 140 I.C. 68 (2)=1932 N. 118. Normally the question of damages is not considered in a second appeal, but the High Court may review the matter so that substantial justice as between the parties may be done. 1934 A. 392.

DEDICATION.—The question whether certain property is wakf property is a question of law, at any rate a mixed question of law and fact. 17 I.C. 303=16 O.C. 76; 138 I.C. 215 (1). Whether a dedication is real or nominal is a question of fact. 131 I.C. 283=1931 L. 170. Whether instances of burial proved in any particular cases are adequate in character, number and extent to justify an inference of dedication is undoubtedly a question of pure fact. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 174=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 43.

NOTES.

DEFAMATION.—The question whether a writing is defamatory of the plaintiff the questions of fair comment, justification, bona fides and the quantum of damages awardable to the plaintiff in an action for libel, are all questions of fact on which the High Court in second appeal, is bound by the findings of the appellate Court. 32 M.L.J. 392. Finding of fact based only on the local investigation is not sustainable. 1923 L. 208 (1). Even if the judgment of the Appellate Court was meagre and not in conformity with the rule, unless a substantial error affecting the merits of the case is shown, High Court will not interfere. 31 M.L.J. 870. Where a judgment is of a most unsatisfactory and perfunctory character, the finding of fact contained in it can be challenged in second appeal. 70 I.C. 853=1922 P. 583; 41 I.C. 385=2 Pat.L.W. 12. Defective procedure and error of law. 85 I.C. 958=22 L.W. 352.

DISCRETION.—Where two Courts fully acquainted with the case exercise a discretion, the High Court will not interfere with the exercise of such discretion. 54 I.C. 731; 13 I.C. 943=9 A.L.J. 15; 11 I.C. 736=15 C. W.N. 1083; 66 I.C. 147=1922 L. 355; 131 I.C. 461 (2)=1931 M. 632. See also 1933 L. 867. (Refusal to allow amendment of pleading. 146 I.C. 683=34 P.L.R. 736=1933 L. 829. (Rejection of document tendered at late stage); 1933 L. 1014 (Admission of additional evidence). The discretion given to the trying Court is not one to be exercised arbitrarily but with due regard to the facts of the case and general principles of justice. High Court in second appeal has power to see which of the two Courts exercised discretion properly in accordance with the judicial principles. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 452=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 110. Per Rupchand Bilaram, A.J.C.—Where the appellate Court interferes with the discretion of the trial Court and the basis of the interference is wrong and arbitrary, not judicial, the judicial Commissioner's Court is justified in interfering with the discretion exercised by the appellate Court. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 263. Where the lower Courts have exercised their discretion not on the special facts of the case but on a misapprehension of the legal principles on which the discretion given by a provision of law should be exercised, it is competent to the High Court in second appeal to interfere and overrule that exercise. 1937 A.M.L.J. 49. An appellate Court has a discretion to grant or refuse an adjournment prayed for by the appellant or his pleader; and the exercise of that discretion is not a matter which can be made the subject of a second appeal. A refusal of an adjournment and the consequent dismissal of the appeal for want of prosecution cannot therefore be interfered with in second appeal. 168 I.C. 1001=1937 A.L.J. 174=A.I.R. 1937 All. 284. The High Court will always interfere in second appeal where a lower Court has wrongly refused to grant an equitable relief. 45 L.W. 648=170 I.C. 242=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 520. Where a judge allowing an amendment of the plaint has proceeded on a wrong view of the law so that he could not have applied his mind into the question whether he should or should not, in his discretion allow the amendment, the High Court would interfere in second appeal though the matter was one in the discretion of the lower Court. 1938 N.L.J. 198=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 388. If the Court's discretion to extend the limitation for an appeal under S. 5, Limitation Act, has not been exercised in a legal manner the High Court is entitled to reverse the decision arrived at. 52 I.C. 225=4 Pat.L.R. 381; 123 I.C. 83; 122 I.C. 575; 1930 A.L.J. 1256; 144 I.C. 133=1933 A.L.J. 561=1933 A. 294; 1936 L. 742. But see 130 I.C. 840 (2)=1931 A. 28. Where the discretion is exercised arbitrarily on a question of costs a second appeal will lie. 100 I.C. 598. Wrong discretion by lower Court under O. 13, R. 1 can be interfered with in second appeal. 110 I.C. 821=1928 P. 537. Discretion under S. 90 of Evidence Act. See 93 I.C. 13=1926 O. 362; 134 I.C. 296. Where a discretion is given to adopt one of two methods to enforce the attendance of a witness in O. 16, R. 10, High Court will not interfere with its exercise. 101 I.C. 257 (2)=1927 L. 424. The issue of commission is a matter in the discretion of the Court, and if the discretion is wrongly exercised, the question cannot be agitated for the first time in second appeal. 1933 P. 542. Improper exercise of discretion in utilising O. 41, R. 33 will not be interfered with in second appeal. 130 I.C. 774=1931 L. 370. Nor where the lower appellate Court examines of its own motion under O. 41, R. 27, C.P. Code, a witness who, in its opinion, should have been examined by one of the parties. 38 P.L.R. 449=1937 L. 115.

DOCUMENT.—Rejection of document not produced at first hearing, not interfered with in second appeal. 90 I.C. 602=1926 C. 106.

DOWER.—A finding as to the amount of dower is a mixed question of fact and law. 89 I.C. 672.

EASEMENT.—Failure to draw inference of easement is question of law. 85 I.C. 81=1925 N. 270; 85 I.C. 84=1925 N. 168. Question of additional burden on the servient heritage by particular user is one of fact for a decision of which a remand is essential. 61 M.L.J. 58=1931 M. 128.

INTERPRETATION OF FACTS FOUND BY LOWER COURT.—Where the lower Court has arrived at a certain finding of facts, and the facts are clear but the dispute relates not to the facts but to interpretation of facts by the lower Court, it can be dealt with in second appeal. 40 P.L.R. 506=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 180.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.—A finding as to the status of a tenant is a finding of fact and should not be interfered with in second appeal except on the ground of some clear error of law. 46 I.C. 351. See also 40 I.C. 513=21 C.W.N. 809; 87 I.C. 757=1925 C. 1238; 1925 P. 294; 85 I.C. 636=1925 C. 761; 1926 C. 264 (Recognition of tenancy); 41 C.L.J. 135=29 C.W.N. 500=1925 C. 632; 1926 C. 350 (question of uniform payment of rent). See also 6 P. 698=134 I.C. 296. The concurrent finding of the lower Courts that a particular lease was granted for a justifiable cause cannot be interfered with in second appeal, although some of the observations made by the lower Courts may be open to criticism. 1937 M. W.N. 1188. Findings that the tenants are raiyats and they have acquired rights of occupancy are findings of fact. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 724. The question whether a tenancy is one at will or of permanent nature on certain given facts is mixed question of law and fact. 44 C. 119; 31 Bom.L.R. 1279. See also 35 C.W.N. 1047; 1938 Pat. 609; 1938 Pat. 333. But see 92 I.C. 899 (2)=1926 C. 592; 137 I.C. 658=1932 C. 398=54 C.L.J. 353. The nature of a tenancy is a question of law when it turns on the construction of some written instrument. 20 I.C. 363=17 C.W.N. 1073. The question whether a legal right, such as the right of tenant in the land, has determined is a question of law. 15 I.C. 857. Question of law—Division of tenancy under section 88, B. T. Act. 39 C.L.J. 289. Which of the heirs represent the tenancy is a question of fact. 91 I.C. 748=1926 C. 517. As to plea of want of notice to quit. 145 I.C. 992=34 P.L.R. 884=1933 L. 377.

FRAUD AND UNDUE INFLUENCE.—A finding that an allegation of fraud was unproved is a finding of fact and is not open to challenge in second appeal. 35 P.L.R. 578=1934 L. 662; 1941 O.W.N. 643=1941 A.W.R. (cc) 166. A finding as to the existence of fraud in connection with the service of a sale proclamation or as to non-service of the same, which is not based on evidence is not binding in second appeal and can be interfered with. 19 Pat.L.T. 645=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 622. The question whether there was any fraud or not in a transaction is a question of fact, and a finding thereon by the lower appellate Court on the evidence produced by the parties is conclusive and cannot be challenged in second appeal. 1937 A.L.J. 1346=A.I.R. 1938 All. 150. A concurrent finding by both the Courts below that a sale under the Public Demands Recovery Act was not vitiated by fraud is a finding of fact and binds the High Court in second appeal. 194 I.C. 479. A finding by the lower appellate Court that the bond in suit was executed owing to undue influence, is not a pure finding of fact. It is rather a legal inference from the facts of the case. Such a finding can, therefore, be disturbed in second appeal. 1937 O.W.N. 277=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 254. Where in a case fraud is alleged, but there is no direct evidence of fraud and only an inference drawn from circumstances, such a finding involves a legal question as to whether the circumstances are such that the necessary inference can legally be derived. If the lower Court proceeds upon a wrong legal view of the nature of the circumstantial evidence from which fraud can be inferred, the finding is based upon a legal error and can be interfered with in second appeal. 20 Pat.L.T. 957=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 201.

FORFEITURE OF TENANCY.—A finding on the question whether there was forfeiture of tenancy by denial of title of landlord is a finding of fact and cannot be interfered with in second appeal. 145 I.C. 992=34 P.L.R. 884=1933 L. 377. The lower appellate Court in coming to finding that there was no forfeiture of the tenancy failed to take into consideration the effect of a statement made by the tenants. Held, that the finding was open to challenge, in second appeal [1923 P.C. 187, Dist.; (34 A. 579 (P.C.), Ref.) 149 I.C. 517=1934 A. 103.

GRANT, NATURE OF.—The finding that it was not proved that the lawa jama—that is to say, the pension moneys paid by Government—were included in the watan or hereditary endowment, and that therefore the plaintiffs could not claim a share in them as such, is a finding of fact. 60 I.A. 231=29 N.L.R. 210=1933 P.C. 171=65 M.L.J. 154 (P.C.).

JOINT FAMILY.—A finding that there has or has not been a disruption of a joint Hindu family is not a finding of fact and can be questioned in second appeal. It is an inference of the legal effect of the facts found. 144 I.C. 919. The question whether the three brothers were joint or separate, would ordinarily be a question of fact but if in coming to a finding certain documents relied upon by the defendants as evidence of partition are illegally excluded from evidence on the ground that they are not admissible the finding can be challenged in second appeal. 1934 P. 48=146 I.C. 937. A finding by the lower appellate Court, that a Hindu coparcener in filing a plaint for partition was under the influence of profligate persons who were bent upon ruining him, and that in effect the institution of the suit for partition was their act rather than his act, and that therefore the institution of the suit did not evidence an unequivocal intention on the part of the member concerned to separate from the other members of the joint family, is one of fact, and the High Court in second appeal cannot disregard the same, but must accept it as conclusive. 17 Pat. 430=19 Pat.L.T. 281=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 278.

LEGAL NECESSITY.—The finding as to the existence of necessity is a finding of fact and cannot be impugned in second appeal. 1923 L. 669; 70 I.C. 815. But see 100 I.C. 943; 96 I.C. 1006=1926 N. 486; 132 I.C. 271=1931 O. 144 (2).

NOTES.

LEGITIMACY.—Question of legitimacy cannot be gone into in second appeal, it being a question of fact. 2 L.L.J. 505.

LIMITATION.—The question if facts found by the lower appellate Court are such as to constitute "sufficient cause" within the meaning of section 5 of the Limitation Act, is a question of law for purposes of second appeal. 43 P.L.R. 502.

LOAN OR DEPOSIT.—The question whether certain money was received as a deposit or by way of loan is one of fact and the finding on that matter cannot be challenged in second appeal. 152 I.C. 319=17 N.L.J. 68=1934 N. 219.

MISJOINDER.—A finding of fact on a question of misjoinder arrived at on evidence cannot be disturbed in second appeal. 33 I.C. 118=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 9. Objection as to misjoinder cannot be taken for first time in second appeal. 1928 M. 635.

NEGLIGENCE OF GUARDIAN.—The finding of the lower appellate Court that the guardian has not been guilty of negligence is a finding of fact which cannot be challenged in second appeal. 142 I.C. 629=34 P.L.R. 110=1933 L. 337.

NON-JOINDER.—An objection as to non-joinder of parties cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal. 44 M. 344=40 M.L.J. 282. Notice to quit, validity of notice to quit is one of law. 29 C.W.N. 620=87 I.C. 708. The question of negligence is very largely a question of fact. 71 I.C. 346=1922 C. 317. Non-joinder of party in appeal—First Court's decree becomes final as regards that party. Joinder of that party in second appeal is not permissible. 14 R.D. 430; 32 Bom.L.R. 1252.

PARDANASHIN LADY.—A finding that a lady is not a pardanashin lady is a finding of fact and cannot be challenged in second appeal. 144 I.C. 720=34 P.L.R. 304=1933 L. 451.

PROCEDURE ERROR IN.—It does not follow that in second appeal an error of procedure will always lead to reversal of the lower Appellate Court's decision. It must be an error affecting the merits of the case but under section 100, C. P. Code, High Court can interfere on the ground of any substantial error or defect in the procedure which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 33. In order that a second appeal might be maintainable under section 100 (1) (c), C. P. Code, it is not sufficient to show that there was a defect in the procedure of the trial Court. It is necessary to show that the alleged defect in procedure may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits by the lower appellate Court. 1937 A.L.J. 46=A.I.R. 1937 All. 105. The question whether a document, such as, a promissory note is genuine or not purely a question of fact, and a decision on that question, being a finding of fact, cannot be interfered with in second appeal. Buo if the lower appellate Court requires too high a standard of proof for the establishment of any particular fact,—a standard of proof than that laid down by section 3 of the Evidence Act—that is an error of law or procedure justifying interference under section 100 (1) (c), C.P. Code. If the lower appellate Court differs unnecessarily from the appreciation of the evidence by the trial Court which saw and heard the witnesses, on a mistaken view as to the standard of proof, the High Court will interfere in second appeal. 1937 M.W.N. 188.

PUBLIC RIGHT OF WAY.—See 151 I.C. 263=1934 A. 941; 39 C.W.N. 303.

TECHNICAL OBJECTION.—See 145 I.C. 992=34 P.L.R. 884=1933 L. 377; 144 I.C. 573=1933 M. 353.

REMISSION.—When a Judge in second appeal interferes with the concurrent findings of fact of the Court below, he exceeds his jurisdiction under section 100, C.P. Code, and his decision is liable to be set aside in Letters Patent Appeal. 38 C.W.N. 763=1934 C. 707.

REVISION.—Where the lower appellate Court entertains an appeal which does not lie and decides it on the merits, its order may be challenged by a second appeal to the High Court. Assuming that a second appeal, is incompetent, the decision of the lower Court being one without jurisdiction, is liable to be set aside in revision under section 115, the second appeal being treated as a revision application. 7 Cut.L.T. 41.

RESTORATION (OF APPEAL).—Where the appellant's pleader appears when the appeal is called on for hearing and applies for an adjournment of the appeal on the ground that owing to other engagements he could not prepare the appeal, the file of which is very heavy, but the Court rejects his application and dismisses the appeal "for want of prosecution" the disposal of the appeal clearly amounts to a decree, and a second appeal lies under section 100. The dismissal is not a dismissal for default, and the appellant has no right in such case to apply for restoration of the appeal under O. 41, r. 19. 1937 A.L.J. 174=A.I.R. 1937 All. 284. Where a second appeal is dismissed under section 101, and the decree is sought to be amended then it has to be obtained by a review application. O. 47, R. 1 (b) permits a review application, because the second appeal was not one allowed by law. 1941 A.M.L.J. 54.

SEC. 102: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The provisions of S. 42 are controlled by those of this section when a Court of Small Causes

POWERS OF HIGH COURT.—As a rule, the Court is not in favour of entertaining revisions from orders of the lower appellate Courts in cases which are covered by S. 102, C. P. Code. These orders are intended by the legislature to be final. 165 I. C.

When the lower Court has not framed the appropriate issue, the second appellate Court may raise and decide it itself if there is sufficient evidence on record for deciding it. 47 C. 107 (P.C.). When the lower Court has not given any finding on a question of fact the High Court can, under S. 103, arrive at a finding on the evidence on record. 28 I.C. 673=1 L.W. 249; 8 R. 425. See also 47 I.C. 950; 3 P.L.T. 303. Or may remit the case to the lower Court for a finding on that issue with liberty to the parties to adduce additional evidence. 49 I.A. 286=45 M. 586=43 M.L.J. 640 (P.C.). Where the judgment of a Court of appeal is reversed on a question of custom or usage on a preliminary point, the High Court should not take on itself to examine the evidence as to usage but should remand the case for disposal on the merits by the lower appellate Court. 40 M. 1108=32 M.L.J. 237. Failure of the lower appellate Court to consider matters alleged by decree-holder about judgment-debtor—Procedure to be followed. 118 I.C. 312 (2).

REVISION.—Under section 102, if a suit is of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes and the value of the suit does not exceed Rs. 500, no second appeal would lie, although the suit has not been tried in a Small Cause Court and although the Small Cause Court returns the plaint under section 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act to be presented on the regular side. A second appeal filed in such circumstances cannot be treated as an application for revision under section 115, and the decision of the trial Court cannot be reversed on the ground that as the Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit on the regular side, its proceedings are vitiated by lack of jurisdiction, for the simple reason that it is the nature of the suit and not the Court in which the suit is tried that determines the right of second appeal conferred upon a party. 1937 O.W.N. 263=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 244.

SEC. 103.—Where the lower Court has decided a question of title, which is one of fact on inadmissible evidence and other evidence, the High Court can remand the case to the lower appellate Court directing it to record a fresh finding after eliminating the inadmissible evidence and confining itself to the other evidence in the case; or it may proceed under section 103, C.P. Code, and arrive at its own finding on a perusal of the relevant and admissible evidence. 1936 L. 788. Where the lower appellate Court has improperly admitted any evidence, the High Court has no right to look at the evidence to decide whether the remaining evidence in a case other than that which has been improperly admitted is sufficient to warrant the finding of the Court below. The only cases which can with propriety be disposed of under such circumstances without a remand, are those where independently of the evidence improperly admitted, the lower Court has apparently arrived at its conclusions upon other grounds. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 537=I.L.R. (1937) 2 C. 661.

N.B.:—This section supersedes the rulings in 9 A. 147 (F.B.) and 9 A. 26 (30).

SEC. 103 AND O. 41, R. 25.—Order 41, R. 25 refers primarily to first appeals though the rule so far as possible can be applied to second appeals. The rule as it stands allows reference only to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, which in the case of second appeals would be the lower appellate Court. Therefore, it does not follow in the case of second appeals that a finding from a first Court is to be treated on the same footing as a finding from an appellate Court. Where an issue has not been determined by the first appellate Court and in second appeal that issue is remitted on remand to the trial Court the evidence having been found to be insufficient and the trial Court after recording such evidence and giving its finding on that issue returns the case to the High Court, the issue cannot be said to have been determined by the lower appellate Court. Therefore High Court has jurisdiction to determine such issue of fact under section 103. 1939 N.L.J. 315=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 643=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 173.

(g) an order under section 95 ;

(h) an order under any of the provisions of this Code imposing a fine or directing the arrest or detention in the Civil prison of any person except where such arrest or detention is in execution of a decree ;

(i) any order made under rules from which an appeal is expressly allowed by rules :

(2) No appeal shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this section.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Clause (ff) and proviso to cl. (i) were inserted by Act IX of 1922.

NOTES.

SEC. 104, CL. (FF).—An order refusing compensatory costs under section 35-A. C. P. Code, is not appealable in view of the proviso to section 104 (ff). 18 N.L.J. 309.

CL. (G).—Supersedes the decisions in 28 A. 81 and 24 M. 62. An appeal lies under section 104 (g) from an order refusing relief under section 95 as well as from one granting such relief. 49 I.C. 86=9 L.W. 69. An appeal lies against an order awarding compensation for improper attachment. 11 I.C. 349=21 M.L.J. 460.

CL. (H).—Does not apply to order as to penalties under Stamp Act. 5 C. 311. Appeal lies from an order directing arrest and detention in civil prison of a person otherwise than on execution of a decree. 1932 A. 524=1933 A.L.J. 221=136 I.C. 367. Whether the decision of a question of fraud before the execution and conduct of an execution sale brings the case within the scope of section 47, C.P. Code. 40 I.C. 246=25 C.L.J. 399.

OTHER CASES WHERE NO SECOND APPEAL LIES.—No second appeal lies against an order of Small Cause Court. 36 M.L.J. 435 (26 I.C. 359, Diss.). An order passed in execution of a decree under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act is not appealable. Also an order passed in execution of such a decree directing the arrest of judgment-debtor. 39 I.C. 379=18 P.L.R. 1917. See also 39 I.C. 375. No second appeal lies from an order of the appellate Court against an order passed under O. 21, R. 72 (3). 28 I.C. 270=13 A.L.J. 351; see also 39 A. 191. No second appeal lies from a decision on appeal under the provisions of O. 43, R. 1, C.P. Code. 11 L.L.J. 546=120 I.C. 684=1930 L. 208; 1930 A.L.J. 454=121 I.C. 545=1930 A. 122. No appeal lies from an order passed in appeal remanding for trial on merits a case in which the plaint had been returned for presentation. 33 A. 479. There is no appeal from the order of an appellate Court restoring suit dismissed for want of process fee. 9 I.C. 484. Orders under O. 21, R. 90, setting aside or refusing to set aside sale on appeal by the High Court deal finally with the rights of parties and are appealable to the Privy Council. 40 C. 635=40 I.A. 140 (P.C.); 2 Pat.L.T. 401=6 Pat.L.J. 319=107 I.C. 448. For order under O. 21, R. 92, see 118 I.C. 805; 7 R. 37. Order for restitution passed under inherent powers of Court under section 151, C.P. Code, setting aside sale under O. 21, r. 90. No right of appeal. 9 P. 685=122 I.C. 589=1930 P. 280. There is no second appeal against an appellate order confirming an order refusing to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud. 14 I.C. 53=17 C.W.N. 524. See also 15 I.C. 679=16 C.W.N. 1051. No second appeal lies from an appellate order disallowing an application under O. 21, r. 89. 38 C. 339; 107 I.C. 488=1928 L. 444; 45 C.L.J. 557 (No second appeal from order under O. 21, R. 90). Order of District Court in appeal in terms of compromise is final and is not appealable. 3 L. 175. An order in appeal setting aside the order of the lower Court returning the plaint for presentation to the proper Court is not open to second appeal nor is such order open to revision, though it may be erroneous in law or in fact. 43 A. 334. No appeal lies against an appellate order setting aside an order of the Court of first instance refusing to set aside an ex parte decree. 9 I.C. 55=9 M.L.T. 269.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Though a surety for failing to satisfy a decree is arrested under section 104, cl. (h), yet he is given a right to appeal under sections 42, 47 and 145 of C.P. Code. 30 I.C. 684=19 C.W.N. 1085. An appeal lies against an order refusing to take action under O. 39, R. 2 (3). 39 M. 907=30 M.L.J. 523. An appellate Court under this section has no power to stay execution of decrees. 102 I.C. 11=1927 L. 494.

SEC. 104 (2) : SCOPE OF.—See 42 Bom. L.R. 428 (sub-section (2), effect on cl. 15, Letter Patent). The words of sub-section (2) of section 104, are perfectly general and there is no reason to restrict their meaning by interpreting them to mean an order deciding the appeal on the merits. 1941 O.W.N. 1010 (2)=1941 A.L.J. 516. Section 104 of the Code refers to appeals to High Courts in British India and does not forbid appeals

105. (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided, no appeal shall lie from any order made by a Court in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction; but, where a decree is appealed from, any error, defect or irregularity in any order, affecting the decision of the case, may set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), where any party aggrieved by an order of remand made after the commencement of this to His Majesty in Council when they comply with the conditions laid down in sections 109 and 110 of the Code. 148 I.C. 1202=11 O. W.N. 57=1934 O. 291. An order recording a compromise or adjustment under O. 23, R. 3, C.P. Code, is not open to second appeal. The Code only provides for one appeal when the factum or legality of a compromise or adjustment of a suit is questioned. 60 C.L.J. 173. See also 43 Bom. L.R. 719 (Second appeal from order under O. 22, R. 10).

SEC. 105: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Though section 105 refers only to decrees, the provisions of that section also apply to appeals against orders as well. 1936 M. 936. Sub-section (2) is new and supersedes the rulings in 12 A. 510 (F.B.); 18 M. 421; 12 C. 45; 14 B. 232. See 10 I.C. 514=15 C.W.N. 830; as to the meaning of word "decision", see 90 I.C. 180=1925 A. 610 (F.B.). "Affecting the decision of the case", means "affecting the decision of the case on the merits". 131 I.C. 518=1931 A. 329; 133 I.C. 129=1931 A.L.J. 377=1934 A. 294 (F.B.) dissenting from 1927 R. 150 and following 1925 A. 610; 3 Lah.L.J. 59=59 I.C. 676. 51 L.W. 727=1940 Mad. 755= (1940) 1 M.L.J. 882; 1939 Rang. 164; 1937 Rang.L.R. 207=1937 Rang. 334 (F.B.); 1937 All. 582; 1938 A.L.J. 720=1938 All. 511 (Question of jurisdiction); 1937 A.L.J. 1237 (Applicability of section to suits and appeals under Agra Tenancy Act). But see 12 A. 200; 22 C. 981; 9 C.W.N. 584 at p. 587. See 41 C.L.J. 136=1925 C. 711; 47 A. 555; 27 A.L.J. 1103. An order refusing to record an adjustment is not an order affecting the decision of a case, but is merely an order ensuring that the merits of the case should be determined. It is not therefore open for an appellant to challenge such order in appeal under section 105 when it has not been appealed against. 31 N.L.R. (Supp.) 72=160 I.C. 202=1936 N. 8. The policy of the Legislature in enacting section 105 was to give finality to orders of remand. 72 I.C. 588=1923 C. 385; 37 I.C. 844; 89; I.C. 1009; 22 L.W. 460=1924 M. 1019; 86 I.C. 608=1925 M. 916; 47 A. 853; 51 A. 780=27 A.L.J. 448. There is no appeal from an order setting aside an ex parte decree. 51 B. 495; 1940 All. 305; 1937 Rang.L.R. 207=1937 Rang. 334 (F.B.); I.L.R. (1938) All. 754=1938 A.L.J. 720=1938 All. 511 (Question of Jurisdiction can be raised in second appeal) but the order can be questioned in appeal from the subsequent decree. 5 R. 80. But see also 85 I.C. 468 (469)=1925 O. 27. In an appeal from an ex parte decree, section 105 (1), entitles the appellant to refer to the order of the trial Court refusing him an adjournment which prevented him from putting up a defence. The refusal did affect the decision of the case. I.L.R. (1940) All. 192=1940 A.L.J. 269=A.I.R. 1940 All. 305. Remand order not conclusive on points not specially decided therein beyond possibility of revision. 23 A.L.J. 656=1925 A. 566. Order in pending suit superseding award can be questioned in appeal from decree. 10 O.W.N. 117=1933 O. 563. See also 56 C. 21; 1929 L. 174; 1939 Sind 241 (F.B.)=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 22; 1939 Rang. 164; 1937 A.L.J. 651=1937 All. 582. An order remitting an award for reconsideration of the arbitrators is not open to challenge in appeal. 146 I.C. 22=1933 L. 530. An order under section 151 can be challenged under section 105 if it affected the decision of the case on the merits. Otherwise the appellate Court is not bound to set it aside. 147 I.C. 1013=35 P.L.R. 266=1934 L. 312. The opening words of section 105 (1), 'save as otherwise expressly provided', govern the whole sub-section and not merely the words which immediately follow them. The sub-section enlarges rights and does not curtail them; on the contrary it expressly saves rights already conferred, that is to say, among other things, the rights of appeal already conferred by section 104, C.P. Code. Where an application for extension of time fixed by a preliminary mortgage decree is dismissed and a final decree is passed, the order of refusal to extend time is appealable as an order. 1940 Nag. 104=1939 N.L.J. 514.

SECTION 105 (2).—Only prevents a party from agitating in an appeal a question which he could have objected to in the appeal against an order. 29 M.L.J. 772; 48 M. 267=47 M.L.J. 710. Hence as under section 249 of the Agra Tenancy Act no appeal lies from any order passed in appeal, an order of remand passed in an appeal under that Act can be attacked in second appeal against the decree that is passed on remand. 157 I.C. 1119=1935 A.L.J. 517=1935 A. 553. Order setting aside abatement of suit is not final and can be attacked in appeal against final decree. 47 A. 555; 52 C. 472. Though no second appeal lies from an order of abatement, it may be questioned in a second appeal if it "affects the decision of the case". 144 I.C. 133=1933 A.L.J. 561=1934 A. 294. As to the meaning of these words see (1940) 1 M.L.J. 882. An order Code from which an appeal lies does not appeal therefrom, he shall thereafter be precluded from disputing its correctness.

setting aside an abatement in the course of trial and allowing substitution of the heirs of a deceased party cannot be questioned in appeal from the decree in the suit whether such an order is passed before or simultaneously with the decree, such an order not being one which affects the decision of the case with reference to its merits within the meaning of section 105. (52 C. 472, Foll.) 14 L. 361=141 I.C. 337=34 P.L.R. 221=1933 L. 152. See also 145 I.C. 170=1933 C. 498. An order refusing to set aside the abatement of a suit is one which "affects the decision of the case" within the meaning of section 105, C.P. Code, and can therefore be challenged in appeal and second appeal from the decree. 39 C.W.N. 1173. Plea not raised in appellate Court—Appeal. 35 I.C. 571. The sub-section does not apply to appeals to the Privy Council. 33 A. 391; 40 C. 635 (P.C.). See also 144 I.C. 916=35 Bom.L.R. 458=1933 B. 260. Though section 105 (2) does not apply to appeals to the Privy Council, the principle of section 105 (1) can be applied to such appeals. 145 I.C. 258=35 Bom.L.R. 415=1933 B. 251. The section does not restrict Art. 15 of the Letters Patent (25 M. 525; see also 42 Bom. L.R. 428) and embodies so much of the principle contained in 7 M.I.A. 283; 10 M.I.A. 340; 10 M.I.A. 413. "Error, defect or irregularity" within the meaning of this section, mean error, defect or irregularity in procedure or in law, and not on matters of fact. 35 I.C. 209=14 A.L.J. 610; 32 C.W.N. 1020; 9 P. 102=1930 P. 266=125 I.C. 136. But see also 12 A. 200; 25 A. 280; 31 N.L.R. 72=160 I.C. 202=1936 N. 8. Unless the objection is taken in the memorandum of appeal it is not open to the appellant at the hearing of an appeal, to question the validity of the order. 15 A. 119. See also 20 A. 370; 18 A. 19 (F.B.); 14 B. 232 and 22 A. 366.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.—The principle of section 105 is applicable not only to decrees and interlocutory orders but also to orders and interlocutory orders leading to the final decree. 35 I.C. 74=4 L.W. 411. Order passed after decree on an application for amendment is not an interlocutory order. 114 I.C. 41. Notwithstanding the dismissal of an appeal against an interlocutory order it is open to a party to complain of any defect or irregularity in the order in an appeal from the final decree itself. 44 A. 533. But see also 33 I.C. 208. A plaintiff does not lose his right to raise a question of the propriety of an intermediate order with which he has complied, for the right under section 105, C. P. Code, is not a qualified right. 1 L. 54. Where the Court granted leave to the defendant to defend the suit under O. 37, C. P. Code, on certain conditions and subsequently passed a decree on the defendant not complying with those conditions, it is open to the appellant at the hearing of the appeal from the decree to canvass the validity of the conditional order granting leave to defend. 13 R. 239=157 I.C. 778=1935 R. 245.

REMAND ORDER.—Where remand was ordered on one of the two points, any one of which would have been sufficient to dispose of the case, the remand order must be deemed to have confirmed the decision on the other point. 26 C.W.N. 739=74 I.C. 597=1922 P.C. 51 (P.C.). Where a decree after remand is appealed against, the appellant cannot question the correctness of the remand order. 63 I.C. 845; 64 I.C. 816; 65 I.C. 745; 2 L. 252; 1923 R. 29; 10 I.C. 514=15 C.W.N. 830 (32 C. 1023=12 C.W.N. 590, foll.; 30 A. 479, diss.; 32 M. 83; dist.). 1928 C. 325; 6 R. 506. Remand order, whether can be ignored. 2 Pat.L.J. 669. The Court remanding the case after deciding certain points can afterwards refuse to reconsider those issues. 20 C.W.N. 43. See also 46 I.C. 922. Under section 105 (2) a lower Court cannot treat an order of remand of the appellate Court as a nullity owing to the want of jurisdiction in the latter to pass it. 47 I.C. 886. In an appeal against an order of remand, no objection could be taken on the ground that the lower appellate Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal which had abated and to order for substitution of names. The proper stage for such an objection is when the decree itself is appealed from. 164 I.C. 730=1936 A. L.J. 538. Where on appeal by the plaintiff the case is remanded on the ground that the burden of proof was on the defendants and not on the plaintiff, section 105 (2) precludes the defendants from questioning the correctness of that decision in second appeal. 1923 N. 283. Right of appeal against a remand order is unaffected by the disposal of the suit on remand before institution of the appeal. 14 I.C. 673=8 N.L.R. 42. (12 A. 510; 3 A.L.J. 40, Rel). A Court hearing an appeal against an order of remand has power not only to decide whether the order of remand is in accordance with law or not, but also whether the decision is correct or not and to dispose of the suit accordingly. 15 I.C. 181=15 O.C. 33; 16 A. 252; 3 A. 675; 5 C. 144; 20 M. 152. The reversal of the previous order has the effect of nullifying the final order. 37 M. 29=21 M.L.J. 1063.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Under O. 43, R. 1 (d), an appeal lies against an order refusing to set aside an ex parte decree but no appeal lies against an order setting aside such a decree. 31 I.C. 914=40 P.R. 1916. See also 133 I.C. 129=1931 A.L.J. 377=1931 A. 294 (F.B.); 34 I.C. 713; 12 I.C. 795=7 N.L.R. 162. Abatement—Order setting aside—Objection to, in an appeal from the decree if can be made. 71 I.C. 587=1923

106. Where an appeal from any order is allowed, it shall lie to the Court to which an appeal would lie from the decree in the suit in which such order was made, or where such order is made by a Court (not being a High Court) in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction, then to the High Court.

107. (1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, an Appellate Court shall have power—

Order allowing substitution of heirs or setting aside order of abatement passed by trial Court cannot be questioned in an appeal from the decree. 37 C.W.N. 138. Decision as to legal representative—Appeal whether lies. 5 L.W. 266=39 I.C. 371. In an appeal against the decision passed on review, objection may be taken that the review was improperly granted. 1 A. 363. See also 131 I.C. 518=1931 A. 329. Where a review is granted and an appeal is filed against that order, the attack has to be confined only to the grounds set out in R. 7 of O. 47. But if an appeal is preferred against the final decision itself after review, there is no such restriction. Only if the order granting review is attacked it could be done only on the grounds set out in R. 7 of O. 47. 1941 N.L.J. 519=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 308. An appeal lies under this section from an order improperly adding a person as a plaintiff in a suit. 71 C. 148.

SEC. 106.—A sub-Court should not be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court, as regards suits the subject-matter of which exceeds Rs. 5,000. 3 M.L.J. 97. See also 17 C. 680.

SEC. 107: SCOPE OF SECTION.—This section is intended to affect only proceedings under the Code, and is not intended to extend the operation of any portion of the Limitation Act. 12 C. 590 (593) (F.B.). Section 107, Cl. (2) invests the appellate Court with the same powers as are conferred on a Court of original jurisdiction. It does not purport to give the order passed by the appellate Court the same effect as an order passed by the original Court of a like nature. 59 C. 388=138 I.C. 643=1932 C. 482. O. 7, R. 10 applies to appeals by virtue of S. 107. 74 I.C. 93=1923 N. 310=8 N.L.J. 63. An order rejecting a memo. of appeal for deficient Court-fee is not a decree or final order and does not preclude the appellant from presenting a fresh memo. on proper Court-fee. 59 C. 388=138 I.C. 643=1932 C. 482. See also 1932 M.W.N. 104 (memo. of appeal should first be returned for correct stamping). Section 107 does not confer powers not conferred by O. 41. 42 I.C. 972=7 L. W. 10.

examine any of the parties to ascertain the facts of the case, if necessary, for the ends of justice. 42 A. 48=52 I.C. 289. Discretion to admit additional evidence should be exercised only in the interests of justice. 28 Bom.L.R. 1391 (P.C.); 1940 O.W.N. 1077=1941 Oudh 89. As to the principle applicable to reception of additional evidence by appellate Court, see 132 I.C. 259=1931 O. 298; 138 I.C. 513=1932 O. 227. An appellate Court has power to issue a commission for local investigation. In such a case, the Court is not bound to record its reasons. 135 I.C. 243=1932 A. 270, to refer to arbitration with the consent of the parties matters in dispute in an appeal. 3 M. 78; 18 C. 507; 12 C. 173; has power under Ss. 107 and 151 to add a new party in an appeal. 3 P.L.J. 409=46 I.C. 398=1918 P. 276; has power under Ss. 107 and 152 to correct clerical or arithmetical mistake apparent on the face of the record. 26 A.L.J. 1323=1928 A. 458. Power of appellate Court to allow withdrawal of suit or appeal—Proper procedure. See 39 C.W.N. 586. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 895=1938 Bom. 442. Amendment of plaint in second appeal—Power of Court. See 1935 R. 88. Although an appeal directed against a dead man is not appeal, if the name of such dead man appears on the petition of appeal instead of his legal representatives, through a bona fide error, the petition of appeal can be allowed to be amended under the provisions of O. 1, R. 10 read with Ss. 107 and 153. 123 I.C. 824=1930 A. 131. Non-joinder of absolutely necessary parties cannot be condoned in appeal. 87 I.C. 904=1925 O. 606. See also 1938 M. 329. To add necessary party on appeal and remand the case. 18 C.W.N. 259=21 I.C. 928=26 M.L.J. 86 (P.C.) affirming 35 C. 618. Where parties are transposed in appeal, no question of limitation arises. 52 M.L.J. 33; 1938 M. 329=47 L.W. 760. Has an inherent power to remand even cases not coming within O. 41, R. 23. 37 M.L.J. 536. (44 C. 929; 36 M. 492, Rel). See also 43 C. 938; 33 I.C. 576=18 Bom.L.R. 27. The High Court has inherent power to remand when the provisions of S. 107 do not apply. I.L.R. 1936 N. 188=1936 N. 140. Can pass an order of remand by consent of parties in excess of its powers under the Code. 22 I.C. 41=1914 M. W.N. 90. The powers of the High Court as to remand are not restricted by the provisions

- (a) to determine a case finally ;
- (b) to remand a case ;
- (c) to frame issues and refer them for trial ;
- (d) to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers and shall perform as nearly as may be the same duties as are conferred and imposed by this Code on Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted therein.

108. The provisions of this Part relating to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals—

- (a) from appellate decrees, and
- (b) from orders made under this Code or under any special or local law in which a different procedure is not provided.

Appeals to the King in Council.

109. Subject to such rules as may, from time to time, be made by His Majesty in Council regarding appeals from the Courts of British India, and to the provisions hereinafter contained, an appeal shall lie to His Majesty in Council—of O. 41, Rr. 23 and 25 and the High Court can always make an order of remand if the exigencies of the case required it. 43 C. 1001. See also 36 I.C. 813. Where the pleadings and issues were clear, and the plaintiff did not produce evidence, the case should not be remanded to the trial Court in order that the suit might be reheard. 155 I.C. 10=1935 R. 19. No appeal lies against an order returning memorandum of appeal for presentation to proper Court. Revision however is competent. 56 I.C. 865=2 Lah.L.J. 366. The appellate Court can return a plaint presented in a Court of a grade lower than that competent to try it for the presentation to the proper Court. 25 A. 174 (F.B.). An appellate Court has the power to return the plaint itself for presentation to the proper Court. An order of remand for that purpose is mere surplusage. 149 I.C. 1050=36 P.L.R. 99=1934 L. 233. Even where an appeal from the final decree lies, interlocutory orders may be dealt with under the Court's powers of superintendence and revision to avoid irreparable injury to the parties. 5 Pat.L.J. 550=1 Pat.L.T. 668. Appellate Court can entertain application to have ex parte decree set aside, where the applicant is a party to appeal from the whole decree. 42 I.C. 972=7 L.W. 10. The appellate Court can pass an order which the Court of first instance might have passed. 39 M. 907=30 M.L.J. 523. Can award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff. 8 C. 440; 42 I.C. 451. Pleas raised but not proved—Inconsistent pleas raised—Best available evidence suppressed—Appellate Court can reverse a finding. 57 M.L.J. 565 (P.C.). Suit by B for alternative relief against C and D—Suit decreed against D and dismissed against C—Appeal by D—No appeal or cross-objections by B—Application by B to add C as co-respondent in second appeal—Permissibility. 1933 M. 806

=65 M.L.J. 548. Suit to enforce agreement for sale—Ex parte decree—Decree set aside as against some defendants and suit tried as against others—Agreement found not genuine and suit dismissed—Ex Parte decree against other defendants, if can be set aside—Powers of appellate Court. 145 I.C. 283=1933 M. 529=65 M.L.J. 15.

SEC. 107 (2).—Where no cross-objections have been filed by respondent, the appellant has an absolute right to withdraw his appeal unconditionally at any time before judgment, his only liability being to pay costs. 1931 A. L.J. 232=132 I.C. 194. See also 1938 Bom. 442=40 Bom.L.R. 895.

SEC. 108.—The words "so far as may be" should be taken to mean so far as is consistent with the principles on which second appeals are admitted and determined. 7 M. 52 (53); 57 B. 206=144 I.C. 448=35 Bom. L.R. 127=1933 B. 205. See also 9 A. 147, 152 (F.B.). There would be no appeal against an order recording compromise by consent of parties. 35 Bom.L.R. 127. This section must be read with Art. 175, Cl. (c) of the Limitation Act. 34 C. at p. 1023. In second appeal the High Court can bring on record persons who had been originally joined in the suit, but who were not joined in the lower appellate Court. 19 M. 151. See also 28 M. 498. The Code does not require the appellant in second appeal to file a copy of the decree of the Court of first instance. 4 M. 419 (F.B.). An appellate Court can pass an interim order of injunction pending an appeal against the order of the lower Court refusing it. 14 M.L.J. 491. As to allowing amendment of plaint in second appeal. 1935 R. 88.

SEC. 109: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Leave to appeal can be granted only when the decree appealed against is a final decree. 13 M. 349. Where the conditions prescribed by the section are satisfied it is the duty of the High Court to grant

(a) from any decree or final order passed on appeal by a High Court or by any other Court of final appellate jurisdiction ;

(b) from any decree or final order passed by a High Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction ; and leave to appeal. The chances of success of the appellant in the proposed appeal are not material. 139 I.C. 54=35 L.W. 206=1932 M. 46. [See also Notes under Letters Patent, Cl. (15).] It does not mean the same thing as "final order" referred to in section 109 (a). 49 C. 967 (48 I.A. 31; 23 A. 227; 21 C.L.J. 281, Ref.) As to the meaning of the words "final order", see 1933 P.C. 58=64 M.L.J. 307 (P.C.). The word "order" referred to in section 109 (c) is intended to be not merely a final order but it is wide enough to include an interlocutory order. 49 C. 967. Section 109 should be read subject to the special jurisdiction conferred by section 12 of the Oudh Courts Act. 134 I.C. 1017=8 O.W.N. 1207. See also 66 I.A. 160=14 Luck. 252=1939 P.C. 122=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 181 (P.C.). There is a vast difference between an order made or a judgment passed on the appellate side of a Court and the final order passed on appeal. The latter may be included in the former but the former is necessarily not the same as the latter. 15 Pat. 659=17 P.L.T. 760=1936 P. 465. As to the meaning of the words "Any other Court of final appellate jurisdiction", see 46 L.W. 416=1937 Mad. 930. Orders passed not on appeal, but in exercise of the power of superintendence vested in a Court are not appealable under this section. 183 I.C. 169=1939 Pesh. 26. An order made in revision under section 115, is not an order made on appeal though it might have been made on the appellate side of the Court and hence High Court has no jurisdiction to give leave to appeal to His Majesty in Privy Council under section 109 (a). (Ibid.) As a general rule, leave ought not to be given in the case of interlocutory orders. 2 A. 65; 23 A. 220 (P.C.); 25 A. 629. See also 144 I.C. 916=35 Bom. L.R. 458=1933 B. 260; 130 I.C. 102; 8 B. 548; 6 B. 260. The words "any decree or order" in section 109 (c) do not mean any decree or order other than the decree or final order passed on appeal by High Court or by any other Court of final appellate jurisdiction. 54 I.C. 828=6 O.L.J. 664. How far decision in scheme suit is appealable to Privy Council, see 1925 P.C. 155=87 I.C. 313=49 M.L.J. 25 (P.C.). Appeal where High Court on appeal reverses the decision of the Court below, see 49 C. 560=43 M.L.J. 41=49 I.A. 108 (P.C.). Leave to appeal will not be granted upon a mere question of practice, e.g., an order for inspection. 9 Bom.H.C.R. 398. The fact that appeal lies under the Letters Patent does not preclude an appeal to the Privy Council. 7 B.L.R. 730. Consent decree is not appealable to His Majesty in Council. 5 Pat.L.J. 383. The certificate cannot be refused on the ground that no appeal lies against a judgment pronounced in accordance with an award and a decree following it. Sch. II, para. 21 (2) of the Code does not affect appeals to the Privy Council. 15 I.C. 2=15 O.C. 55. No appeal lies to the Privy Council against an order of the Calcutta High Court dismissing a Munsif under Cl. (2) of section 26 of Bengal Regulation V of 1831. 13 M.I.A. 343; also against an order cancelling a notification under which a person is admitted as a vakil. 6 A. 163. In ordinary circumstances, an appeal which prima facie falls under section 109 (a) cannot be converted into one under section 109 (c), merely because it fails to reach the money value required by section 110. It may be that in special cases the High Court may be able to certify under O. 45, R. 3, appeals from its own final decision which are of value less than Rs. 10,000, but such exceptional procedure can only be justified by exceptional circumstances. 10 O.W.N. 953=1933 O. 394 (2).

"DECISION."—The word "decision" in section 109 (a) means merely the decision of the suit by the Court and not judgment. Hence in order to affirm the decision of the Court below within the meaning of section 109 (a) it is sufficient for the appellate Court to affirm the decree. It need not also affirm the grounds of fact upon which the judgment was passed. [25 A. 109 (P.C.), Foll.] 14 L. 609=144 I.C. 18=34 P.L.R. 946=1933 L. 690.

SEC. 109 (b).—An appeal lies to His Majesty in Council from an order of the High Court refusing to issue a writ of certiorari to the Board of Revenue in proceedings under Ch. XI of the Madras Estates Land Act enhancing the rents of certain villages. Such an order is one passed in the exercise of original Civil jurisdiction falling under section 109 (b), C.P.Code. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 816=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 722=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 154.

"FINAL ORDER"—WHAT IS.—Final order—Suit dismissed on preliminary point—Order of remand is final order. 62 I.C. 776=25 C.W.N. 896. See also 1933 L. 82. An order is final only if it finally disposes of the rights of the parties and as an order refusing a stay would not finally dispose of those rights, but leave them to be determined by the Court in the ordinary

(c) from any decree or order, when the case, as hereinafter provided, is certified to be a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

Order refusing to record compromise is not final. 29 C.W.N. 832=89 I.C. 94=1925 C. 857. Order of High Court dismissing petition for adjudication of debtor is final order. 12 R. 355=1934 R. 292. See also 1937 Mad. 930 (Order of District Judge on appeal from Subordinate Judge under section 75 Provincial Insolvency Act). An order refusing to admit an appeal and an order dismissing an application for review of that order are both final orders within the meaning of S. 109 (a). 1936 R.D. 120. As to order dismissing application for restoration of appeal dismissed for default, see 145 I.C. 534=1933 A.L.J. 255=1933 A. 453. See also 1938 O.W.N. 231=1938 Oudh 107. A final order means an order which finally decides any matter directly at issue in the case in respect of the rights of the parties. 10 I.C. 439=13 C.L.J. 507; 13 C.L.J. 90=15 C.W.N. 848; 132 I.C. 211=1931 L. 556. It is used in its ordinary sense and therefore means an order which puts an end to the litigation between the parties, or at all events disposes so substantially of the matters in issue between them as to leave merely subordinate or ancillary matters for decision. 24 Bom.L.R. 925=47 B. 106. See also 1938 Rang.L.R. 330=1938 Rang. 333; 1 A.L.J. 26; 28 I.C. 569=21 C.L.J. 281. An order is "final" if it determines the rights of the parties, and "interlocutory" if it relates to a matter of procedure only. 1931 N. 24=130 I.C. 102=27 N.L.R. 172. (Case-law discussed.) The decision of the High Court on the point of limitation remanding the suit for decision on the other essential or cardinal points in the case is not a final order but an interlocutory order against which no appeal lies under section 109 (c). 144 I.C. 916=35 Bom.L.R. 458=1933 B. 260. Dismissal of appeal from judgment of single Judge on the Original Side is barred by limitation, if final order. 1927 R. 20. See also 35 Bom.L.R. 458.

ORDERS WHICH ARE NOT FINAL—NO APPEAL

LIES.—Order granting review is not final order disposing of the case. 54 A. 401=140 I.C. 110=1932 A.L.J. 235=1932 A. 318. An order by the High Court refusing the stay of execution under O. 41, R. 15 is not a final order passed on appeal. 10 I.C. 444=13 C.L.J. 681. So also order refusing to appoint a receiver. 12 P. 723=144 I.C. 457=14 Pat.L.T. 302=1933 P. 293. Order excusing delay in filing appeal under section 5, Limitation Act, is not a final order. 90 I.C. 723. Order refusing to stay proceedings under section 9 of the Arbitration Act is not appealable. 47 I.A. 124=24 C.W.N. 721=39 M.L.J. 27 (P.C.). There is no appeal from a non-existent suit. See 89 I.C. 185=1925 P.C. 174. An order remanding a suit to the original Court for disposal on the merits is not a decree or final order. 42 L.W. 568=1935 M.W.N. 796=69 M.L.J. 497. Nor an order of the High Court remanding an execution proceeding for re-decision. 38 P.L.R. 112. Nor an order of an appellate Court under O. 41, R. 25 remitting an issue to the trial Court whether a certain party rebutted the presumption as to the applicability of a family custom. 160 I.C. 811=1936 O.W.N. 218=1936 O. 205; 1939 P.W.N. 341=1939 Pat. 564 (Order on application under O. 14, R. 2 and O. 15, R. 3 for disposal of certain issues as preliminary issues not fit case for appeal to Privy Council). The High Court in an appeal decided that a document which was not admitted in evidence by the lower Court was admissible and provable, but did not determine the legal effect of the document. The case was remanded to the trial Court directing the document to be admitted in evidence and leaving the lower Court unfettered discretion. Held, that the order was not in any sense a "final order". 154 I.C. 942=1935 L. 458. An order of remand made by the High Court which decided only one issue out of several raised in the first Court is not a "final order." 14 A.L.J. 50=38 A. 150. See also 60 I.C. 522=2 L. 106; 46 I.C. 922; 132 I.C. 211=1931 L. 556; 37 C.W.N. 405=1933 P. It is final if it decides a cardinal point in the suit. 1 A.L.J. 26; 1925 R. 147. See also 27 N.L.R. 172=130 I.C. 102=1931 N. 24 (Case-law, discussed). 10 R. 499=1932 R. 189; 10 R. 335=140 I.C. 420=1932 R. 137; 23 A.L.J. 12=47 A. 335. 112; 23 A. 220, Cons.); 48 I.C. 132=1918 M.W.N. 844; 33 I.C. 756; 43 I.C. 290=19 O.C. 36; 38 M. 509=26 M.L.J. 96. The order of remand is not a decree, and an appeal would lie only if it amounts to a final order. The main test as to the finality of the order of remand is whether it finally decides the rights of the parties, and the decision can never be challenged again. In order to have finality it is not sufficient that a question of jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the suit has been decided. The finality must be a finality in relation to the suit itself, and if the suit is still a live suit in which the rights of the parties have still to be determined, there is yet no final order. An order of remand under which an order of Revenue Court returning the plaint for presentation to the Civil Court is set aside does not dispose of the rights of the parties, and therefore is not final. 56 A. 277=1934 A.L.J. 219=1934 A. 58. See also 145 I.C. 131=1933 L. 82 (Order of remand in insolvency proceedings). An order of remand to original Court for trial on the merits though it decides an important and a vital issue in the case does not finally dispose of the rights of the parties; on the contrary, it leaves the suit alive and provides for its trial on the merits in the ordinary way. It is not therefore a final order and is not appealable. (Test of finality laid down). 60 I.A. 76=11 R. 58=65 M.L.J. 307 (P.C.) See also 1941 A.W.R. (H.C. 219=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 585. Scheme suit under section 92—Trial Court finding temple to be private and dismissing suit—High Court on appeal finding temple to be public and remanding suit—High Court's order is not final adjudication. 116 I.C. 300=1929 M. 308. An order of the High Court remanding a case for trial with the direction that a person should be sued as a residuary legatee is not a decree or order within the Code. 46 I.C. 681=22 C.W.N. 640. Nor an order setting aside a compromise decree for certain technical defects and directing the Judge to re-hear the application for recording the compromise. 6 P. 282=1927 P. 363; 1940 A. 38=1939 A.L.J. 919 (Order superseding arbitration. Nor an order of the High Court deciding that a certain person should be allowed to sue as a pauper. 8 C.W.N. 296. An order refusing leave to appeal in forma pauperis is not a final order and so not appealable to Privy Council. 10 R. 504=1932 R. 192. Also an order refusing to admit an appeal presented after the prescribed period. 9 Bom.L.R. 566. An order of the High Court directing execution to proceed is not a final order. 1 C.L.R. 354; 4 Pat.L.J. 461. No appeal lies against an order appointing or refusing the appointment of a Receiver. 22 C. 928; 10 I.C. 439=13 C.L.J. 507; 6 Pat.L.T. 119=1925 P. 173. An order refusing to extend time for deposit of court-fees in an appeal is not a final order under section 109, C.P.Code and hence not appealable. 50 I.C. 79=17 A.L.J. 443. A High Court's order refusing to entertain an application for restoring an appeal which was dismissed for default, is not appealable to His Majesty in Council. 37 I.C. 832. No appeal lies from an order dismissing an appeal in default of the appellant's compliance with the rules of the Court as to the composition of the paper book in the case. 2 Pat.L.T. 112=5 Pat.L.J. 719. Where a decree has been made directing accounts to be taken, leave to appeal must be given. 15 B. 155 (P.C.). Temporary injunction—Refusal to issue, not final order. 28 I.C. 569=21 C.L.J. 281. An order rejecting an application for review is not an order appealable under section 109 (a). 22 I.C. 259=16 O.C. 264. An order which only determines the competency of an incorporated body as a judicial person to apply for probate but does not determine whether it would be entitled to a grant of it if it applies is not final. 60 I.C. 208=23 O.C. 34. Probate proceedings, appeal in. See 1925 P. 712. Order under section 8 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, if appealable to Privy Council. See 22 L.W. 362=1925 M. 243. Where in pursuance of the direction of the Privy Council the High Court asked the Commissioner to take accounts and passed a decree in accordance with his report, the decree is not one passed in any proceeding taken by the parties in order to review or modify the decision of an inferior Court. No appeal lies to Privy Council from such a decree. 55 B. 785=33 Bom.L.R. 1476.

CASES WHERE APPEAL LIES—FINAL ORDER.—Order of High Court in revision reversing order, granting leave to sue in forma pauperis is a final order—Appeal to Privy Council lies. 13 C.L.J. 688=15 C.W.N. 879. "Final order passed on appeal" may include an order directing dismissal of appeal on appellant's failure to furnish security for costs. 54 A. 390=1932 A. 312=1932 A.L.J. 254. An order passed on appeal by a High Court, determining a question mentioned in section 47, is a final decree. 3 A. 633 (F.B.). A decision on a question relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree is a decree provided the judgment conclusively determines the rights of the parties. 3 P.L.J. 339. Order of High Court allowing appeal from order refusing to set aside ex parte decree and ordering de novo trial is final and is appealable to High Court. 1932 A.L.J. 338. An order of the High Court on appeal setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale in execution is a final order and is appealable to the Privy Council. 40 C. 635=40 I.A. 140=25 M.L.J. 140 (P.C.). suit is final order—Appeal to Privy Council lies. 21 A.L.J. 686=45 A. 741. Final decree or order—Decision that suit is not barred by res judicata. 54 I.C. 504=18 A.L.J. 83. Order passed by the High Court upon an appeal made to it under section 86 of the Prob. and Admn. Act, if final. 12 Bur.L.T. 87=51 I.C. 596. (40 C. 21, Rel.) An order which deprives a party of the benefit of a final decree and directs the suits against him to be tried again is final order and an appeal lies to the Privy Council. 28 I.C. 567=21 C.L.J. 279. An order of the High Court setting aside an order of the Subordinate Court dismissing a partition suit for default after preliminary decree has been passed is a final order. 2 Pat.L.T. 155=60 I.C. 479=6 Pat.L.J. 116.

CERTIFICATE AS TO FITNESS—"FIT CASE"—The meaning of the expression 'fit one for appeal' in section 109 (c), is that the question should be either of great general importance to the public at large or great private importance to the particular litigant and the matter is not measurable in money. As it could not be said that a refusal to stay a criminal complaint would be a matter of great private importance to the particular accused, leave to appeal to Privy Council against such refusal cannot be granted. 1941 O.W.N. 455=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 120. Interlocutory orders are within the ambit of cl. (c). 31 C.W.N. 540=103 I.C. 561=1927 C. 481; 171 I.C. 630=1937 Sind 217. Where substantial rights are in no way affected by an order, there is prima facie no reason for granting a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. 42 L.W. 568=69 M.L.J. 497. A case could be certified to be a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council under Cl. (c) of section 109, only when it is of considerable importance and the principle when finally decided by their Lordships of the Privy Council would be of benefit not only to the people who were directly involved in the litigation but to the public at large. 1939 A.W.R. (C.C.) 92=1939 O.W.N. 659=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 224. Cl. (c) of section 109, applies even to interlocutory orders and in appropriate cases such orders can be made the subject of an appeal to His Majesty in Council. But before leave could be granted in such cases, the Court must be satisfied that the case is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. The discretion vested by Cl. (c) of section 109 on the High Court is to be sparingly exercised and a case cannot be certified as a fit one for appeal on the mere ground that it raises a substantial question of law. It has invariably to be seen whether the permission to appeal is or is not calculated to unduly delay the disposal of the substantive dispute between the parties on the merits. 1939 A.L.J. 919=1940 All. 38. Leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council cannot be given when that leave is asked for for the purpose of raising for the first time a question which was not raised at any time while the litigation was pending, either in the trial Court or the High Court. Such an application would be an abuse which should not be encouraged. 52 L.W. 463=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 810=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 433. A certificate granted under section 109 (c) must show on its face that the discretion conferred by that section has in fact been exercised. 44 M. 243=48 I.A. 31=40 M. L.J. 229 (P.C.). See also 64 I.C. 959=23 Bom.L.R. 1132. The special power of certifying a case to be a fit one for appeal has been conferred on the High Court to meet particularly hard cases and that on such a special certificate having been given the appeal to His Majesty in Council becomes competent. 147 I.C. 1067=1934 A.L.J. 1166=1934 A. 198. Section 109 (c) is intended to meet special cases such for example as those in which the point in dispute is not measurable by money though it may be of great public or private importance. 144 I.C. 916=35 Bom.L.R. 458=1933 B. 260; 35 P.L.R. 546=152 I.C. 684=1934 Lah. 515; 42 L.W. 568=69 M.L.J. 497; 44 M. 293 (P.C.). The fact that a Full Bench decision of one High Court differs from a decision of a Full Bench of another High Court is not in itself sufficient ground to make a case a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council under the provisions of section 109 (c). 171 I.C. 630=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 217. In deciding whether a certificate of fitness should be granted it is not enough to find that the order sought to be appealed against involves a substantial question of law. The tests usually applied to determine fitness are whether the point involved is of great public or private importance, and whether that litigation is not made oppressively expensive and the elucidation of the real issues in the case by a trial of the suit is not unduly postponed or delayed. 1934 P. 564. See also 56 A. 277=1934 A.L.J. 219=1934 A. 68; 15 P. 659=17 Pat.L.T. 760=1936 Pat. 465; 157 I.C. 614=1935 A.L.J. 233=1935 A. 424; 15 Luck. 716; 1941 O.W.N. 130=1941 Oudh 245; 1941 O.W.N. 455=I.L.R. 1941 A. 364=1941 A. 211. Mahomedans and in the circumstances, the question that falls for determination in the litigation brings it within section 109 (c), C.P.Code, and therefore a certificate granting leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council ought to be granted. 13 R. 123 = 1935 R. 113. The form of ritual in an important public temple in the country is a matter of both public and private importance falling within section 109 (c), and when the case relates to religious rites and ceremonies at a temple of national importance and raises disputes between two religious sects of a community regarding the conduct and form of worship at the temple, the questions at issue are in themselves of great public importance, so as to justify grant of a certificate under section 109 (c) permitting an appeal to His Majesty in Council. 50 L.W. 252 = A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 847 = (1939) 2 M.L.J. 378. The question whether the words 'any accession is made to the mortgaged property' in section 70 T.P.Act, mean any accession made to the mortgaged property by the mortgagor or his representatives in title or any accession to the mortgaged property by whomsoever made, is a question of great public importance having regard to the existing law in India and the large number of cases which must be affected by it. 14 R. 86 = 1936 R. 65. Every question of law is not a substantial question of law. When the question has been well settled it is not a substantial question of importance fit to be taken on appeal to His Majesty in Council. 42 L.W. 568 = 69 M.L.J. 497. Discretion to be used in granting certificate is a judicial discretion. 10 I.C. 439 = 14 C.L.J. 507. Mere questions of law are not sufficient. 21 I.C. 783 = 15 Bom.L.R. 1021. Even if they be of some difficulty, see 132 I.C. 290 = 1931 M. 642. There must be questions of public or private importance or precedents covering numerous other cases. 21 I.C. 783; 31 C.W.N. 540 = 103 I.C. 561 = 1927 C. 481; 45 M.L.J. 514 = 1924 M. 231; 21 I.C. 738; 43 M.L.J. 728; 1923 M. 125; 23 I.C. 739; 24 I.C. 620; 61 I.C. 131. See also 1 Pat.L.T. 239 = 56 I.C. 615; 6 Pat.L.J. 125; 1934 A.L.J. 1166 = 147 I.C. 1067 = 1934 A. 198. Under section 109 (c), a case can be certified to be a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council only when it is of considerable importance and the principle when finally decided by their Lordships of the Privy Council would be of benefit not only to the people who are directly involved in the litigation but also to the public at large. A suit in which the questions for decision are whether the building in dispute is a public mosque or a private place of worship and whether the defendants have established adverse possession of the mosque, cannot be brought within the scope of the above principles. 1940 O.W.N. 632 = A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 378. See also 1941 O.W.N. 130 = 1941 O.A. 135. In an ejectment suit, the question whether a tribal Chief residing within British territory is a Ruling Chief within the provisions of sections 84 to 87, C.P.Code, is not a matter of such private or public importance either to himself or to the public generally or any class or section of the public that a certificate of fitness for appeal to the Privy Council can be given within the provisions of section 109 (c). 171 I.C. 630 = A. I. R. 1937 Sind 217. When the Court certifies the case as fit for appeal, it is clearly intended to meet special cases such, for example, as those in which the point in dispute is not measureable by money, though it may be of great public or private importance. To certify that a case is of that kind, though it is left entirely in the discretion of the Court, is a judicial process which could not be performed without special exercise of that discretion evinced by the fitting certificate. Leave therefore under section 109 (c) is not to be granted as a matter of course but the applicant has to prove that his case is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Privy Council. 167 I. C. 666 = A.I.R. 1937 All. 167. Conditions for grant of certificate. 40 I.C. 680 = 33 M.L.J. 481. For case of order of remand, see 71 I.C. 339 = 10 O.L.J. 289. When leave was granted to defendants to appeal to P.C., it would be proper to grant leave to plaintiff also to appeal against an adverse finding involving a question of law. 62 C. 992. Where two Judges have arrived at diametrically opposite conclusions on vital points leave can be granted. 54 I.C. 828 = 6 O.L.J. 664. The fact that different High Courts in India have held divergent views in respect of matters similar to those before the Court is in itself no reason for certifying the case as one fit for appeal. 1936 P. 194. Valuation of suit above Rs. 10,000—Appeal valued at less than Rs. 10,000—Leave—Question of law. 54 I.C. 450. Where the order of the Board of Revenue decides a question as to whether the decision of a special judge as to proprietary rights should be accepted or whether it should be overruled by a further inquiry by the Collector, it is not a matter of such public importance as would justify a reference to the Privy Council. 1941 R.D. 792. As to valuation of property for purpose of appeal to P.C. See 1937 R.D. 198. Where two appeals arising out of the same suit were disposed of by the High Court by one judgment proceeding on one ground common to all the appellants, and the valuation of one of the appeals was above Rs. 10,000 while that of the other was less than Rs. 10,000. Held, that as the point involved in both the appeals was a common one, a certificate of fitness can be granted in the latter case under section 109 (c). 1936 A.W.R. 883=1936 A.L.J. 1025=1936 A. 832. In ordinary circumstances an appeal which prima facie falls under section 109(a) cannot be converted into one under section 109 (c) of the code merely because it fails to reach the money value required by section 110. 6 O.W.N. 211=1929 O. 243.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS.—Order of High Court refusing to enrol a legal practitioner is one under its disciplinary jurisdiction and administrative powers and is not a fit case for appeal to Privy Council. 1 P. 590. But see also 1932 A.L.J. 861 (where an advocate has been ordered to be suspended from practice, High Court can grant leave to appeal to Privy Council). In the case of an advocate the High Court found that not only was the filing of fee certificate contrary to the rules framed by the High Court but that he acted in bad faith in filing it. The point raised was that there was some contradiction in the two sub-sections of the rule at the time when the advocate had got his form of certificate printed, which contradictions had been lately removed by amendment, that there was latitude allowed to him inasmuch as it was provided that the certificate shall be so far as it is possible in the form prescribed and that in filing a certificate he had made it clear in it that he had not received the amount in cash but had accepted a promissory note in lieu of the fee. Held, that this was a case which should be certified as a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council under section 109 (c), C.P.Code, or at any rate under Cl. 30, Letters Patent. 4 A.W.R. 1129=1934 A. 898. In an application by a pleader for leave to appeal to the Privy Council from an order suspending him from practice for being punished for contempt of Court committed personally, held, that the Allahabad High Court can grant leave either under section 109 (c), C.P.Code, or section 30, Letters Patent. 55 A. 246=145 I.C. 853=1933 A.L.J. 273=1933 A. 225. It is the practice of the Allahabad High Court to treat orders striking off names of pleaders from the roll of the pleaders as falling under section 109 (c), C.P.Code. But leave under section 109 (c) cannot be granted as a matter of course and the applicant has to satisfy the High Court that the case is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. Where some points of law are raised in the case a certificate can be granted under section 109 (c). 1936 A.L.J. 1272=1937 A. 167. The High Court has got power, under section 109 (c), C.P.Code, or under Cl. 30, Letters Patent, to grant leave to appeal to Privy Council against an order passed by a Bench, suspending an advocate from practice, under cl. 8 of the Letters Patent and the Bar Councils Act, 1926. 150 I.C. 699=1934 A.L.J. 722. Question of construction of agreement may be a fit case. 45 M.L.J. 514=1924 M. 231. Fit case—Certificate conclusive. See 45 M. 475=43 M.L.J. 323=1922 P.C. 257 (P.C.). A committal for a finding of contempt for breach of an injunction is not criminal in its nature and is properly dealt with under the C.P.Code. Hence in such a case a certificate to appeal granted under section 109 to person inhibited by such injunction is quite valid. Quære—Whether a contempt committed not by any person inhibited by injunction for breach of that injunction but by a person said to have aided and abetted a person so inhibited in breaking the injunction is of such a criminal nature as to prevent an appeal. 19 Pat.L.T. 857=17 Pat. 770=A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 295 (P.C.).

"ON APPEAL".—Meaning—Order refusing to admit appeal as time barred is order "on appeal". 42 I.C. 893=131 P.L.R. 1917; 62 I.C. 216=33 C.L.J. 128 (order refusing an application under section 5, Limitation Act).

SUBSTANTIAL QUESTION OF LAW.—A substantial question of law is one on which there may be a difference of opinion. The expression does not mean 'important' question of law. Where what is complained of is the application of the law to the facts of the case the requirements of S. 110 are not complied with. 132 I.C. 2. See also A. I.R. 1939 Mad. 95=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 904 (Question of jurisdiction). Where the principles of law on a particular point are well settled and the only question is the application of these legal principles to a particular set of facts, it cannot be said that a substantial question of law arises within the meaning of S. 110. 134 I.C. 790=1931 L. 753 (2). (50 A. 208, Ref.) See also 14 L. 609=144 I.C. 18=1933 L. 690. As to what are substantial questions of law rendering a case fit for appeal to Privy Council, see 44 M.L.J. 217=1923 M. 232; 1927 O. 43. In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 109, the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must be ten thousand rupees or upwards, and the amount or value of the subject matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council must be the same sum or upwards, Substantial question of law must be such that it may result in a precedent governing numerous other cases or decide a case of great public or private importance. See 54 A. 431=141 I.C. 418 (Misconstruction of award and reference to arbitration). See also 54 A. 459. The question whether O. 1, r. 3, C. P. Code, can be so interpreted as to permit of joinder of causes of action not permitted under O. 2, r. 3, though one of law is not a substantial question of law, or a question of great public importance. So also the question of applying the law, O. 1, r. 3, to the facts of a particular case is not a substantial question of law of any importance. The questions relate only to such formal matters as the joinder of parties and causes of action. 46 L.W. 568=69 M.L.J. 497. High Courts in granting permission may impose conditions as to payment of costs. See 44 M.L.J. 217, supra. High Court in granting leave must also consider whether the subject-matter is above or below appealable value. See 2 L.W. 992=31 I.C. 46. The question whether fraud of the mortgagor would vitiate registration and disentitle the mortgagee to enforce his mortgage was a substantial question of law and fit for appeal to the Privy Council. 18 A.L.J. 137.

PROCEDURE.—Where there are separate appeals, and a joint application for leave to appeal in both cases is filed, held, (1) that a joint application is not sustainable, (2) that it is not open to the party to file another application out of time, and (3) that he can, however, amend the application by confining the prayer for certificate for leave to appeal to one of the cases. 140 I. C. 70=1932 L. 441. The applicant is not entitled as of right to appeal from an order passed on the revisional side of the High Court. 147 I.C. 1067=1934 A.L.J. 1166=1934 A. 198. Advisability of the legislature conferring a power upon the High Court to impose a condition in a fit case requiring the appellant to Privy Council to bear the costs of the appeal irrespective of the result of the appeal, at the time of granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council (at any rate in cases falling under S. 66-A (2), Income-tax Act) suggested. 163 I.C. 275=1936 S. 68. As to the correct frame of application for leave to appeal filed by one of the contributories of the wound up company, against the order of compulsory winding

SECS. 109 AND 110.—The effect of Ss. 109 and 110 is to give a proposed appellant an appeal as of right in cases where the value of the subject-matter of the suit and of the appeal are over Rs. 10,000 and the decree appealed from is not one of affirmance. On the other hand, where the decree of the High Court is one of affirmance, there is no right of appeal unless the appeal involves some substantial question of law. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 269 (S.B.). It is difficult to regard Ss. 109 and 110, directed to prohibit an appeal being brought within a chief Court in like manner as a Letters Patent appeal is brought within a Chartered High Court. The two sections taken together seem rather to be intended to provide an appeal to His Majesty on the footing that no further appeal in India is provided. 66 I.A. 160=14 Luck. 252=43 C.W.N. 733=A. I. R. 1939 P.C. 122=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 181 (P. C.). Appeals from orders passed under S. 66 of the Income-tax Act cannot be regulated by Ss. 109 and 110, C. P. Code. 22 Pat.L.T. 341=1941 P.W.N. 267=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 225.

SECS. 109 AND 112.—S. 109 is not only qualified by its opening words and by S. 111 but also by S. 112. It is plain from the terms of the Code that the Indian Legislature was not claiming or proposing to abridge or extend the prerogative. The discretion which S. 112 affirms and maintains applies to the rejecting as well as to the receiving of appeals and the prerogative is not wholly or finally concluded for either purpose by the provisions of S. 109. 66 I.A. 160=14 Luck. 252=43 C.W.N. 733=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 181 (P.C.).

SEC. 110: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873) does not control the construction of this section. 15 M. 237 (F.B.). See also 42 I.C. 966=1917 P. 301 (Effect of N.W.F.P. and Assam Civil Courts Act, S. 21). Ss. 5 and 12 of the Limitation Act do not apply to applications under this section. 28 A. 391. The assent of the respondent to the issue of a certificate cannot give effect to it in the absence of the conditions required to give the right of appeal. 23 A. 227 (P.C.). See 32 C. 963. It must always be kept in view that no real mischief can arise from not allowing a very wide construction of S. 110 because such cases, if worthy of being tried by a higher tribunal, can always be dealt with under sub-S. (c) of S. 109 (52 C. 650, (P. C.) F.). Where the value of the subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council was not upwards of Rs. 10,000 but the value was shown to be about Rs. 9750 and there were questions of law involved. Held, leave ought to be granted under S. 109, sub-S. (c). 178 I. C. 447=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 415.

"DECREE OR FINAL ORDER MUST INVOLVE."—These words refer to suits in existence and not to suits in gremio futuro. 24 A. 236 (238).

CONCURRENT FINDINGS OF FACT.—No appeal lies to the Privy Council when there are concurrent findings upon questions of fact and when upon such findings no question of law arises. 27 I.A. 166=28 C. 1 (P.C.); 25 B. 332=10 M.L.J. 300 (P.C.); 28 I.A. 11=23 A. 227 (P.C.). See also 1927 M. 443=53 M.L.J. 375; 25 A.L.J. 970; 1931 P.C. 68=61 M.L.J. 456 (P.C.). It cannot be said that whenever the appellate Court varies the decision of the lower Court on any point then ipso facto S. 110 comes into operation irrespective of the nature of the intended appeal. Where the findings are concurrent there must be a substantial question of law to support an application for leave to appeal to Privy Council. 119 I.C. 771=31 Bom.L.R. 619=1929 B. 359.

AFFIRMS THE DECISION.—The word "decision" means merely the decision of the suit by the Court. In order to "affirm the decision of the Court below" it is sufficient to affirm the decree; it is not necessary to affirm the grounds of fact on which the judgment was passed. The appellate Court affirms the decision of the Court below although the reasons given by it are not the same as those of the lower Court in respect of some matters of fact. 25 A. 109 (P.C.); 30 C. 303 (P.C.); 20 A. 367; 20 B. 699, 703; 23 A. 415 (P.C.); 20 A. 118; 21 C. 523; 1 Bur.L.J. 215=1923 R. 55; 70 I.C. 283=25 O.C. 277=1923 O. 49; 63 I. C. 292=24 O.C. 164; 23 M.L.J. 219=16 I.C. 486; 31 C.W.N. 540=103 I.C. 561=1927 C. 481. See also 146 I.C. 744=1933 P. 703 (S.B.). In construing a decree as to whether it is one of affirmance or reversal or variation, one should look to the substance of the decree and see what is the subject-matter of the appeal to the Privy Council. 117 I.C. 193=1929 P. 561. Where both the Judges of the High Court agree on the merits with the judgment of the Court below, but differ as between themselves on a question of mere academic interest, leave should not on that ground be granted to appeal to His Majesty in Council. 178 I.C. 203. Where there are several decisions in respect of several subject-matters in the same suit, the decree embodying those decisions should not, by some fiction, be regarded as one and entire. The right way of construing S. 110 is to read the words "decree or final order" in the third clause in conjunction with, and to treat them as relating to, the subject-matter mentioned in the first clause. 44 L.W. 533=1936 M. 881=71 M.L.J. 580. A case where one Court has relied on the oral, and the other on the documentary evidence is within the rule. 30 C. 303 (P.C.). A decree of the High Court dismissing an appeal for want of prosecution is a decree affirming the decision of the Court below. 20 A. 367. An order rejecting an appeal for failure to furnish security for costs is an order affirming the decision of the Court below. 54 A. 390=1932 A.L.J. 254=1932 A. 312. (5 I. C. 940, not foll.). Where the findings of fact of the Courts are in effect the same, the mere fact that the findings of the appellate Court do not in terms coincide with the findings of the original Court is immaterial. 21 C. 525; 22 P.R. 1915=26 I.C. 402. See also 1925 P.C. 122=48 M.L.J. 611 (P.C.). The question whether the judgment of the High Court is a judgment of affirmance or not does not depend upon whether the appellant is the plaintiff or defendant. It depends upon whether the judgment of the Court is one affirming the judgment of the lower Court. And this may clearly be seen by considering the position of the respondent. It is immaterial whether the effect of the modification is in favour of the appellant or adds to his detriment. 144 I.C. 320=1933 P. 262. An appeal lies from the decree and not from the judgment which is only the expression of the Court for making that decree. Extending period of grace in an appeal from a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit is not reversing the decree. 103 I.C. 703=1927 P. 379.

"AFFIRMING JUDGMENT."—The expression "the decision of the Court immediately below the Court passing such decree," as used in S. 110 means the same as the expression "decree of the Court below," and the word "decision" in the aforesaid expression means the decision of the trial Court taken as a whole. The true test for determining whether the High Court's decree affirms the decision of the lower Courts is whether the decision of the Court below as a whole has been affirmed by the High Court and not whether the decision on the point or points left in dispute have been affirmed by the High Court. Consequently, where the decree of the High Court reverses in part the decision of the lower Court whilst maintaining it with regard to the remainder of the claim, the decree of the High Court cannot be said to affirm the decision of the Court below and therefore an appeal to His Majesty in Council is competent even on points of concurrence between High Court and the lower Court without proving substantial question of law. A. I. R. 1941 Pat. 269 (S.B.). Where there is a judgment of the High Court, affirming the judgment of the lower appellate Court, there is no appeal to Privy Council. See 44 A. 200=20 A.L.J. 9=64 I.C. 916; 22 P.R. 1915=26 I.C. 402; 54 I.C. 400; 1937 Mad. 964=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 543. Even if the decree of the High Court affirms the decree of the Suboror the decree or final order must involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to or respecting property of like amount or value, ordinate Judge, where the appeal involves substantial questions of law and the value of the subject-matter of the suit and of the appeal is above Rs. 10,000, the High Court is justified in granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council. 65 I. A. 182=I. L. R. (1938) All. 601=40 Bom. L. R. 811=A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 165=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 11 (P.C.); 9 R. 360=133 I. C. 494=1931 R. 283. Appellate decree modifying trial Court decree—Modifications trivial—Decree is one of affirmance. 1929 N. 85. Costs are a matter of discretion and a variation in this matter alone does not affect the question of whether the judgment of the appellate Court is or is not one of affirmance. 146 I.C. 744=1933 P. 703 (F.B.). When the appellate Court modifies the original decree upon a single point and that completely in the applicant's favour so that he has no further grievance in that matter, he cannot, because of that modification, have a right to appeal to the King in Council on other points on which the Courts have concurred, without showing a substantial question of law. 38 C.W.N. 1174; 15 P. 637=17 Pat.L.T. 602=1936 P. 553. But see 62 C. 175=39 C.W.N. 52=1935 C. 250; 156 I.C. 10=1935 O.W.N. 947=1935 O. 489; 1937 Mad. 964=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 543. Where the appellate Court affirms the decree of the original Courts as regards the subject-matter without any variation, but only reverses an order as to compensatory costs made by the original Court, the decree in appeal affirms the decision of the Court below within the meaning of S. 110, C. P. Code, and there is no right of appeal to the Privy Council in such a case unless the appeal involves a substantial question of law. 11 O.W.N. 1055=151 I.C. 307=1934 O. 433. Where there was a modification in part, appeal to Privy Council must be confined to such part; appeal cannot be directed to such portion of the judgment as was affirmed by the High Court. 44 A. 200. See also 139 I.C. 54=35 L. W. 206=1932 M. 46; 28 Nag.L.R. 142=140 I.C. 68=1932 N. 118; 43 A. 220=19 A.L.J. 3=64 I.C. 3; 31 C.W.N. 572=103 I.C. 65 (2)=1927 C. 543; 116 I.C. 541=1928 P. 609, where extension of period for redemption was held to be no modification. 106 I.C. 243; 1939 A.L.J. 736=1939 All. 723 (High Court on appeal increasing amount of compensation in land acquisition matter). Where the appellate decree affirms the decree of the lower Court in respect of all matters in dispute and modifies it only on a single point and that completely in favour of the applicant for leave to appeal upon the opposite party expressing his agreement that it should be so modified, the decree is one of affirmance, and the applicant cannot be granted leave to appeal to Privy Council in the absence of a substantial question of law. 18 Lah. 268=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 712. It would be anomalous to grant leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council to an applicant on matters in which a High Court has concurred with the trial Court on the mere ground that on other matters High Court has modified the decree of the trial Court but in favour of the applicant. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 761. Where cross-objections have been allowed and the decree of the first Court varied to that extent, it cannot be said to be an affirming judgment. 1931 A.L.J. 968. See also 1930 L. 554=123 I.C. 523. Where two separate cross-appeals are filed in the High Court, one on behalf of the plaintiff against the dismissal of his claim and the other by the defendant in respect of that part of the claim which was decreed, and the defendant's appeal is allowed but the plaintiff's appeal is dismissed, the plaintiff has no right of appeal to His Majesty in Council as regards the decree dismissing his appeal. It does not follow that the decision in his appeal which is dismissed is not one of affirming simply because the cross-appeal by the defendant has been allowed and the adjudication varied so far as the matter in controversy in that appeal is concerned. 155 I.C. 487=1935 A.L.J. 352=1935 All. 374 (F.B.). Where there are several subject-matters comprised in the lower Court's decree, each should be regarded separately for deciding whether the High Court's decree is or is not an affirming decree under S. 110. A single decree may comprise several decisions, and each decision may relate to a distinct subject-matter. The decree embodying these several decisions in respect of different subject-matters cannot be regarded as one and entire. Consequently where the High Court reverses the decisions in respect of some, but affirms the decision in respect of others, the decree of the High Court is an affirming judgment and not a reversing one in respect of the subject-matters as to which the High Court affirms the decision of the lower Court. It cannot be held that because the decree has not been affirmed in its entirety, it cannot be regarded as an affirming decree on the ground that it is one and indivisible. 47 L.W. 393=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 631=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 487. See also (1938) 1 M.L.J. 492. Where two appeals are preferred against the same decree one by the one party and the other by the other party, but one appeal is allowed and the other dismissed, though one decree is issued in the cases, it is in essence a document containing two decrees and in effect there are two decrees. The decree in the appeal which is dismissed is a decree of affirmance within the meaning of S. 110. No leave can be granted unless there is a substantial question of law involved. 52 L.W. 509=1941 Mad. 227=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 645. Quære.—Whether the two claims, one to property and the other to an account, are to be deemed two distinct subject-matters for the purpose of granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council under S. 110. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 964=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 543. See also 1938 Mad. 598=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 492. Where the High Court on appeal enhances the amount decreed by the trial Court to the applicant for leave to appeal, the variation of the trial Court's decree is no doubt all in favour of the applicant, and he cannot have any appealable grievance against such variation, but nonetheless, the decree of the High Court is not one of affirmance. The applicant is, therefore, entitled to appeal to the Privy Council as of right without showing that some substantial question of law is involved. 40 P.L.R. 399=A.I.R. 1938 Lah 836.

THE FOLLOWING ARE AFFIRMING JUDGMENTS.—(1) Appeal dismissed for default. 29 I.C. 469=13 A.L.J. 633. (20 A. 367, Foll.) (2) Appeal dismissed with a variation as to costs. 34 C.L.J. 299=66 I.C. 407=1922 C. 316. See also 16 L.W. 262=1923 M. 30; 51 C. 869=51 I.A. 319 (P.C.); 114 I.C. 320. (5) Appeal dismissed as time-barred. 23 M.L.J. 219=16 I.C. 486. Partial variation of decree is not affirmance of judgment. 31 I.C. 272=1916 M.W.N. 122; 10 L. 688. So also where cross-objections are allowed. 1931 A.L.J. 968. A person in contempt cannot be heard in prosecution of his own appeal, until he purges his contempt, and his appeal, as it is not proper to keep the other party before the Court for an indefinite period, i.e., till he purges his contempt, can be dismissed. A petition, therefore, for leave to appeal to Privy Council against such dismissal is not maintainable. 117 I.C. 724=1929 M. 672. Even in case of affirmance of judgments, if the subject-matter is over Rs. 10,000 and there is a substantial question of law, an appeal lies to Privy Council as of right. 30 I.C. 372; 9 I.C. 1040. (10 O.C. 65, Foll.; 8 C.W.N. 294; 62 P.W.R. 1908, not foll.); 89 I.C. 941.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.—No question of appeal to Privy Council arises in cases of interlocutory orders of High Court. 148 I.C. 54=1934 L. 26.

"COURT IMMEDIATELY BELOW."—A single Judge of the High Court is a Court "immediately below" the Division Bench of the High Court under section 110. 32 P.L.R. 833. Where a Bench of two or more judges has affirmed on a Letters Patent Appeal the judgment of a Judge of the High Court, sitting singly on the original side, the decision of the Single Judge is the decision of the Court immediately below the Court passing the decree or final order within the meaning of section 110. In such a case, a certificate of fitness for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council can be granted only if the appeal involves some substantial question of law. 45 C.W.N. 1002.

SUBSTANTIAL QUESTION OF LAW.—As to the meaning of the words "substantial question of law," see 45 C.L.J. 458=103 I.C. 625=1927 C. 619; 17 C. 146; 18 C. 23; 18 I.C. 305; 36 I.C. 1; 68 I.C. 690=1923 R. 71; 85 I.C. 8=1924 P. 271; 106 I.C. 531; 1939 Income Tax Rep. 260; I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 13; 1937 7 Pesh. 61; 1933 M. 221. See also 148 I.C. 1202=11 O.W.N. 577=1934 O. 291. It is sufficient that there should be a substantial question of law not of general importance but as between the parties. 14 L. 609=144 I.C. 18=1933 L. 690. Per Courtney-Terrell, C.J.—In order that a point may be a substantial question of law within the meaning of section 110 it should be such as to impress the High Court that it is debatable in view of the authorities or that the authorities themselves may require re-consideration. The mere fact that the Judges out of deference to the arguments exhibited patience in the hearing and care in the judgment does not establish that a point is substantial. Per Mahomed Noor, J.—A question of law does not become "substantial" simply because the Judges have stated and examined it in detail in order to show it has no substance. 146 I.C. 744=1933 P. 703 (S.B.). The existence of a point of law by itself does not give a right of appeal to the Privy Council under section 110. There must be a substantial question of law. The words "substantial question of law" do not mean a question of general importance but a substantial question of law as between the parties in the case. The question must be one in respect of which there may be a difference of opinion. 142 I.C. 711=1933 M. 221; 147 I.C. 121=10 O.W.N. 879. Where the question sought to be agitated before His Majesty in Council have been the subject of consideration by the Courts in the Punjab for a period of over 70 years and the Courts have uniformly arrived at one decision on them and the predecessor-in-interest of the petitioner was a party in several of the cases in which those questions arose and on the strength of those decisions titles have been created for a long time, no substantial question of law is involved in the appeal nor is the case otherwise fit for appeal to His Majesty in Council. 39 P.L.R. 972=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 758. Where the legal principles governing the case do not admit of any doubt having been settled authoritatively by the highest tribunal and the real question is one of the application of these principles to the particular facts of the case, no "substantial question of law" arises, on which a certificate for appeal to His Majesty in Council can be granted. 165 I.C. 735. Where the legal principles such as were applied in the case are well defined a misapplication of such principles does not raise any substantial question of law. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 29=1938 Nag. 482. Where the decision on a point is based on the clear language of a section of a statute in accordance with the view taken previously by several Benches of the High Court, it is hardly proper to treat the matter as involving a substantial question of law within the meaning of section 110. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 631=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 487. In dealing with an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council it is not part of the duty of the Court to prejudge the case on the merits, but at the same time it is the duty of the Court to determine where a point of law arises for discussion on appeal to the Privy Council, whether there is any substance in the point. 106 I.C. 362. Mere question of law is not substantial question of law. 106 I.C. 362; 16 L.W. 262=1923 M. 30; 121 I.C. 506=31 P.L.R. 17 (Question of limitation well-settled; 1933 M. 221 (Construction of deed is substantial question of law). See also 25 A.L.J. 970; 40 I.C. 110; 73 I.C. 407 (Question as to the applicability of section 47, Civ. Where the proof of an alleged custom is confined to two documents, though their interpretation is challenged in appeal it could not be said that a substantial question of law is involved within the meaning of section 110, as the real question is whether the custom set up is proved or not and the interpretation of the documents was only incidental thereto. 1938 O. W.N. 1132=1939 O. 60. Where the High Court in affirming a decision holds that under a clause in the memorandum of association, the directors of a company plainly had power to do a certain thing, and that such power was clear and manifest, and the whole case turns on the merits and is decided on the facts, it cannot be said that there is any substantial question of law involved in the appeal. 13 R. 774. Where, in the beginning, the plaintiff had made certain allegations which at a subsequent stage of the trial he changed and the High Court found that the new facts alleged by him were the correct facts, and having found them true, decreed the plaintiff's suit. Held, this was not a substantial question of law. 1935 L. 91=157 I.C. 1024; 1935 L. 302=16 L. 990. In appeals to the Privy Council in partition suits, the question of valuation itself is one of sufficient importance for allowing leave to appeal. 155 I.C.

633=16 P.L.T. 279=1935 P. 266; 1938 Mad. 666=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 728. The condition laid down in the second paragraph of section 110, is independent and self-sufficient and is not in any way dependent on the fulfilment of both or either of the conditions in the first paragraph. The requirements of the second paragraph will be complied with, if there is some claim or question directly, or indirectly involved by the High Court's order either as to or respecting property of Rs. 10,000 or upwards. Where the plaintiff claims to enforce a charge and obtain a decree for sale with option to sell any part of the mortgaged property, there would be an appeal as of right under the second paragraph, if the total value of the property sought to be sold exceeds Rs. 10,000, even though the pecuniary liability of the property is limited to a sum less than Rs. 10,000. 1937 A.L.J. 38=I.L.R. (1937) All. 405=A.I.R. 1937 All. 169.

VALUATION.—The conjunction "and" between (a) and (b) cannot be read as "or" so that besides the value of the subject-matter of the suit the value of the property has to be considered both at the time of the institution of the suit and at the time of the decree of the High Court. The words "subject-matter" and property are not synonymous. The latter word is used with a view to indicate property not in suit or dispute, which may be directly or indirectly involved. 1929 N. 75; 53 M. 167=1930 P.C. 44 (P.C.); 54 A. 431=140 I.C. 418; 1937 R.D. 198; 1932 A.L.J. 838; 35 C.W.N. 669=1931 P.C. 125=61 M.L.J. 273 (P.C.). Where the plaintiff applies for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, it is not open to him to allege that the valuation given by him in his own plaint was too low and ask for its enhancement for the purposes of S. 110. 1939 A.L.J. 751=A.I.R. 1939 All. 695. If the decision in a suit for rent goes to the root of the contractual relation between the parties and determines the rights and liabilities of the parties on the basis of the lease for all time to come, the real value of the subject-matter of the suit could be taken to be beyond its apparent value. But this principle has no application where what the Court decides in substance is that there was failure on the part of the landlord to put the tenant in possession of some part of the demised land, and for the period in suit, he is entitled to reduced rent corresponding to the area in actual possession of the tenant. In such a case, the sum of money actually at stake in the suit would represent its true value. 43 C.W.N. 239. "Property" in S. 110, second para., need not necessarily be the subject-matter in dispute in the suit. 138 I.C. 670=1932 A.L.J. 730. But see also 9 R. 53=1931 R. 183. The word 'property' in the second paragraph of S. 110 must be taken to be the property of the applicants and it is the extent to which the decree has operated to the prejudice of the applicants that determines the value of the property for the purpose of the section. In a suit by some of the heirs of a certain person for maintenance allowances, the plaintiffs are entitled to rely only upon the value of their own share and not upon the value of the entire monthly allowances payable to all the heirs, when the other heirs, though made parties, have not made any claim. In such circumstances, it cannot be said that the decision in the suit will involve directly or indirectly the interests of others who have made no claim. 43 C.W.N. 432. The words "some claim or question to or respecting property, etc." in para. 2 of S. 110 must be interpreted to mean some claim or question to or respecting property additional to or other than the actual subject-matter in dispute in the appeal. The words cannot be construed to mean that if there were an increase in the value of the property between the date of the trial and the date of the appeal, so that property which was worth less than Rs. 10,000 at the time of the original suit was worth more than that sum at the time of the appeal, there would for that reason be a right of appeal to the Privy Council. That would be a result which the legislature did not evidently intend. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 402=39 Bom. L.R. 332=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 326. For the purpose of ascertaining the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance, it is necessary to ascertain the amount or value, or the subject-matter of the suit at the date of the institution of the suit. [53 M. 167 and 10 P. 86 (P.C.), Ref.] 12 R. 164=149 I.C. 1033=1934 R. 65. And not at date of decree. 38 P.L.R. 767=1936 L. 31 (57 I.A. 56, Foll.) The value referred to in this section is the market value; and where under the Court-Fees Act or otherwise a plaint or memo. of appeal is not required to be valued according to the real market value, but is allowed or required to be valued upon some other basis, the doctrine of "approbate and reprobate" does not apply, and the party can rely on the real market value for purposes of appeal to Privy Council. 58 C. 66=132 I.C. 910=1931 C. 417. See also 39 Bom. L.R. 332=1937 Bom. 326. See also 46 I.C. 576=22 C.W.N. 282 (P.C.). The market value of immovable property is usually determined with reference to instances of sales. The multiples prescribed by the Encumbered Estates Act were fixed for the purposes of that particular Act and as such they cannot be made the basis of calculating values of properties generally. 1938 O.W.N. 1101=178 I.C. 250=1939 O. 1. It is the extent to which the decree or order has operated to the prejudice of the applicant for leave that determines whether the decree or order is subject to appeal or not, and whatever may be the value of the property in respect of which a claim or question is involved in the appeal, no appeal lies under S. 110 unless the value of the loss or detriment which the applicant has suffered by the passing of the decree or order, and from which he seeks to be relieved by His Majesty in Council, is Rs. 10,000 or upwards. Where the application is for leave to appeal against an order of the High Court dismissing a petition for adjudication of an alleged debtor, the value of the petitioning creditors' debts is not the criterion to be applied, nor is the value of the debtor's estate as a whole. The question that falls for determination is, has the applicant been able to satisfy the Court that he has suffered loss or detriment of the value of Rs. 10,000 by reason of the decree or order from which he seeks to obtain leave to appeal. 12 R. 355=1934 R. 292. Where the construction of an agreement between the parties embodied in a compromise decree is in dispute and the decision of the High Court affects the interest of a party in the suit property, which is of far greater value than Rs. 10,000, that party is entitled to a certificate under the second clause of S. 110, C.P. Code, permitting an appeal to His Majesty in Council. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 838=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 742=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 36 (2). The part decreed by the High Court could not be included for purposes of valuation by plaintiff. 57 I.C. 40. The mere fact that the history of the property in dispute was the same as another valued at more than Rs. 10,000 would not bring it under S. 110 of the C.P. Code so as to give the applicant a right of appeal to His Majesty in Council. 26 I.C. 6. The value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must also be Rs. 10,000 or upwards. 39 M. 843=30 M.L.J. 317=31 I.C. 296. (24 A. 174, Foll.) The question whether a decree involves indirectly a claim to property worth more than 13,000 rupees in value must be decided with reference to actual circumstances at the time and not to circumstances which are remote, and not in particular to a mere possibility that future suits as to all or part of a large extent of the property alleged to be concerned may be instituted at some time in the future. 43 M.L.J. 728=69 I.C. 385=1923 M. 125; 84 I.C. 581=1923 C. 451; 52 C. 650 (P.C.). The value of the subject-matter must be taken to be the amount or value which the plaintiff obtained or would have obtained had he been successful at the time when the decree was passed. 60 I.C. 523=2 Pat.L.T. 340; 6 Bom.L.R. 403. To determine the value prescribed by section 110 of the C.P. Code the decree has to be looked at, as it affects the interests of the parties prejudiced by it. 4 Pat.L.J. 415=52 I.C. 723=1919 P. 257. In a suit for possession of a garden on the basis of a lease, the plaintiffs claimed possession and in the alternative the refund of premium or salary paid by them and costs of the improvements effected by them. The suit as well as the appeal to the High Court was valued at Rs. 10,000 which was not disputed by the defendants either in the written statement or at any stage of the trial. The plaintiffs, however, were given a decree only for 1/3 share of garden. The defendants applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council and the plaintiffs objected, pleading that the subject-matter of the appeal would be only of the value of 1/3 of Rs. 10,000. Held, that as the original claim in the alternative was for refund of Rs. 10,000, the question whether that amount should or should not be refunded to the plaintiffs would also be a question in the contemplated appeal in case the Privy Council should think fit and proper to dismiss the claim for possession and hence the matter involved was of the requisite valuation. 157 I.C. 605=61 C.L.J. 69. A party taking advantage of the other party's valuation cannot object to it. 104 I.C. 577=1927 M. 862; see also 1941 Pat. 269 and plaintiff's own valuation does not absolutely bar him from setting up higher valuation. (Ibid.) Also 31 C.W.N. 268=99 I.C. 921=1927 C. 225. The mere fact that a lower valuation was put on the plaint for the purposes of Court-fee does not operate as estoppel against the plaintiff for the purposes of a Privy Council appeal so as to prevent him from showing that the real value of the subject-matter in suit in the Court of first instance was Rs. 10,000 or upwards, provided the question of valuation has not been raised and decided at an earlier stage by the Court and provided also the defendant has not been led to act upon such valuation for the purpose of choosing forum for his appeal. 41 C.W.N. 289=64 C.L.J. 561=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 292. In a suit for a permanent injunction and declaration, which the plaintiff had to value, for purposes of Court-fees at the actual or market value and did value in a particular way in his plaint at Rs. 2,250, and was thereby able to begin the suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court, is precluded from going back upon such valuation and from showing that the former valuation was not real or from settling up a higher valuation for the purpose of an appeal to the Privy Council so as to bring it within section 110 (1). 59 C.L.J. 448=38 C.W.N. 751. See also 1931 C. 417=58 C. 66=132 I.C. 910. The subject-matter of a suit in the Court of the first instance was less than Rs. 10,000. In order to make up the prescribed valuation it was sought to add the amount of the decree for mesne profits of the property, which decree was obtained in a separate suit. Held, that the decretal amount could not be added so as to increase the value of the appeal to the Privy Council as it did not fall within Cl. 2, section 110. (39 M. 843 and 57 I.A. 56, Rel. on.) 38 P.L.R. 767=1936 L. 31. INTEREST AND COSTS.—In calculating the valuation of the suit in the Court of the first instance interest pendente lite with future interest up to the dies datus might fairly be taken into account. In determining the value, however, the costs of the original suit cannot be taken into account. 28 N.L.R. 345; 12 R. 164=149 I.C. 1033=1934 R. 65. See also 20 Pat. 481=1941 Pat. 255. As to adding costs, see 6 P. 444=1927 P. 328=104 I.C. 267. As the award of interest subsequent to the date of suit was entirely discretionary to the Court and as the plaintiff would not be entitled to it as a matter of legal right, it could not, in the strict legal sense, be deemed to be part of "the subject-matter in dispute on appeal" within the meaning of section 110 of the C. P. Code. (It would be different in the case of a defendant; but he should appeal against the whole decree, including interest pendente lite.) (42 A. 445, Ref.) 64 M. L.J. 496=1933 M. 401=56 M. 886. Where a trial Court grants a decree on a mortgage, but the Court of appeal while affirming the validity of the mortgage, varies the rate of interest decreed but the amount of variation is less than Rs. 10,000 leave to appeal to the Privy Council cannot be granted, for the question of interest is not of sufficient value to amount to Rs. 10,000 and as to the validity of the mortgage the findings of both the Courts were concurrent. "DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY INVOLVED."—The condition laid down in para. 2 of the section is independent and self-sufficient and does not depend on fulfilment of both or either of the conditions in the first para. 1937 A. L.J. 38=1937 A. 169=I.L.R. 1937 All. 405; 1937 Lah. 95. The mere possibility of similar litigation in the Presidency will not entitle the petitioner to add to the value in one case that of the other cases as "indirectly involved" unless the other litigation will be affected by res judicata. 34 L.W. 817=61 M.L.J. 692 following 57 M.L.J. 477. Under section 110, the question whether a decree involves indirectly a claim or question respecting property the value of which is Rs. 10,000 or upwards, must be decided with reference to actual circumstances at the time and not to circumstances, which are remote, and not in particular to a mere possibility that future suits as to all or part of the larger extent of the property alleged to be concerned may be instituted at some time in the future. CONNECTED CASES.—Where in two connected suits the points are identical but one only exceeds Rs. 10,000 in value and is certified as fit for appeal to the Privy Council, the other suit should also be similarly certified though its subject-matter is less than Rs. 10,000 in value. 43 A. 223=18 A.L.J. 1119=59 I.C. 794. DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS.—Section 39, Letters Patent, empowers the High Court to declare the fitness of an appeal in a non-criminal matter, if it is a final judgment or order, of the Court made on appeal or in the first instance. A proceeding under Cl. 10, Letters Patent, does not fall under any of the jurisdictions specified in the Letters Patent, Cl. 39, and therefore no leave to appeal could be granted. 41 C. 734=15 C.L.J. 383=19 C.W.N. 593. Proceedings under Cl. 8 (Rangoon), Letters Patent, against legal practitioner—Leave to appeal cannot be granted. 8 R. 40. Proceedings for contempt in respect of a newspaper article by an advocate and published by the editor of the paper, in which the persons guilty of contempt are convicted and sentenced, are in the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court and of a criminal nature. They are not of a civil or administrative character. The matter is of an exclusive jurisdiction and the order is final. Neither section 109 nor section 110, C.P. Code, applies to the case. 155 I.C. 188=1935 A.L.J. 810=1935 A. 811.

SEC. 113.—Where it was difficult to hold that the Judge making the reference entertained any reasonable doubt as to what his decision should be or as to what decision was correct, but the respondent withdrew any objection on this ground, as he said the questions that arose would affect a very large amount of money, reference was entertained. 1 R. 220=1923 R. 193. On this section, see also 14 I.C. 782=14 Bom.L.R. 259 (Powers of Collector). Reference ought not to be made in a case covered by authority. 1927 M. 1186. Deputy Commissioner is not a Court within the meaning of section 113 read with O. 46. 5 O.W.N. 891=1928 O. 485. The right of reference given by section 113 is a substantive right and not a mere matter of procedure. Unless this power is given specifically by statute, a Court has no power to make a reference. The proceedings under the Relief of Indebtedness Act are not 'suits' and as they are neither 'suits' nor 'appeals' nor proceedings in execution of a 'decree', the provisions of O. 46, R. 1 are not attracted. Hence the Court acting under section 20 of the Relief of Indebtedness Act has no power of making a reference to the High Court and the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a reference. 1941 N.L.J. 485=I.L.R. 1941 N. 588.

SEC. 114: REVIEW—WHEN CAN BE ALLOWED—SCOPE OF SECTION.—Section 114 has to be read with O. 47, R. 1 which prescribes the grounds upon which an application for review may be made; and unless the case can be shown to be within the terms of this rule, a review ought not to be granted. O. 47, R. 1 must be read as in itself definitive of the limits within which review is permitted and the words "any other sufficient reason" must be taken as meaning a reason sufficient on ground at least analogous to those specified immediately previously. (49 I.A. 144, Foll.) 151 I.C. 41=1934 P.C. 213=67 M.L.J. 608 (P.C.). Though both section 114 and O. 47, R. 1 are general in their terms and apply to second appeals, yet it is not open to the High Court to entertain an application for review in a second appeal on the ground of discovery of material evidence, especially when the applicant for review is not shown to have acted diligently in the matter. 1939 P.W.N. 909=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 197. An obvious and patent error of law might be a good ground for review, but where there is no such blunder, no review lies. The High Court reversed the decree of the lower Court on the fact which was not disputed but on explanation as to the description of a certain payment made by the appellant. The respondent put in an application for review on the ground that a new contention was put forward. Held, that there was no new contention and that review should not be allowed. 1933 R. 85=146 I.C. 946. It is a wrong procedure for a lower Court to review its former order merely on the ground that a ruling of the High Court had not been brought to its notice on the previous occasion. 132 I.C. 815=1931 A.L.J. 889=1931 A. 91. Held, by the majority of the Full Bench (Mukerji, J., dissenting), that an application for review of the judgment passed by a Bench hearing an appeal under the Letters Patent from the decision of a single Judge would not lie. 53 A. 535=1931 A. 244 (F.B.). (1 A.L.J. 509 and 16 A.L.J. 964, Appr.) Per Banerji and Bennet, JJ.—Procedure is one thing and jurisdiction is another. There is a clear distinction between procedure and jurisdiction. A Bench hearing a Letters Patent appeal derives its jurisdiction to hear the appeal from the Letters Patent and not from the Code, because the Letters Patent provide that such an appeal should lie to a Bench and the Code makes no such provision and as section 114 is not intended to provide for the review of judgments passed in the exercise of jurisdiction derived from other laws no review is competent. (Case-law discussed.) 53 A. 535=132 I.C. 24=1931 A. 244 (F.B.). See also 134 I.C. 630=1931 P. 409.

SEVERAL STAGES IN REVIEW PETITION.—A review proceeding ordinarily commences with an ex parte application. The Court then may either reject the application at once or may grant a rule calling on the other side to show cause why the review should not be granted. In the second stage the rule may either be admitted or discharged and the hearing of this rule may involve to some extent an investigation into the merits. If the rule is discharged the case ends. If

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed by this Code, but from which no appeal has been preferred,
 (b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed by this Code, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order, and the Court may make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

115. The High Court may call for the record of any case which has been decided by any Court subordinate to such High Court and in which no appeal lies thereto, and if such subordinate Court appears—on the other hand, the rule is made absolute, then the third stage is reached. Though in one aspect the result is the same whether the rule is discharged or on the re-hearing the original decree is repeated in law there is a material difference; for in the latter case the whole matter having been re-opened there is a fresh decree. In the former case the parties are relegated to and still rest on the old decree. Particular case held to fall at the second stage and appeal held to be competent. MISCELLANEOUS.—Public Prosecutor was given sanction to prosecute an attorney—Leave to appeal to Privy Council against order granted—Review allowed. 41 C. 734=19 C.W.N. 593=22 I.C. 324. Reversal of High Court's decision in a connected case by the Privy Council is not a sufficient cause for review. 43 M.L.J. 33=70 I.C. 741=1922 M. 227. Review cannot be granted on the ground of mistake of law or on the merits. 87 I.C. 125=1925 N. 266. Review can be allowed in respect of probate proceedings. 3 R. 261=1925 R. 314. Applicability to appeals under Letters Patent—Review. 29 Bom.L.R. 371. Judgment in an income-tax case on a statement made by the Commissioner under section 66 of the Income-tax Act does not come under section 114, because the judgment is neither a decree nor an order. 1930 A.L.J. 78=122 I.C. 741. Section does not apply to Revenue Court proceedings. 54 A. 646=1932 A.L.J. 437=1932 A. 293 (F.B.). On this section see also 1940 R.D. 604.

SEC. 115: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The powers of the High Court under the section are strictly limited to those matters mentioned therein. 35 C.W.N. 775=59 C. 68=1931 C. 604. The powers of a Court of revision are strictly confined within the limits prescribed by section 115, and, unless a judgment is vitiated by any of the defects specified therein, no interference with it can be made by the revising Court. This principle is all the more applicable in cases of revision from an order making an award a rule of Court. 177 I.C. 351=40 P.L.R. 651=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 434. When High Court as a Court of revision, under its inherent powers to remand, remands a case for further evidence on an issue and findings, retaining seizin of the case, it has no power to scrutinize or review the evidence. The powers of that Court are limited by section 115 and all it can do is to determine whether the lower Court exercised its jurisdiction with material irregularity in arriving at the finding it did on the issue remanded to it for trial. I.L.R. 1936 N. 188=1936 N. 140. The High Court ought not to interfere in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction, unless very strong considerations and, in particular, considerations of law constrain it to interfere. 146 I.C. 933=1934 P. 41. See also 30 S.L.R. 271=1936 S. 172=166 I.C. 365. Revision is not directed against decisions on questions of law or fact in which jurisdiction is not involved. [40 M. 793 (P.C.). Ref.] 27 S.L.R. 190=1933 S. 329. Mere mistake of law or fact is no ground for revision. 1937 R. 61; 166 I.C. 215=1937 O.W.N. 39. High Court should do nothing to encourage litigants to avoid the procedure laid down and seek a speedy remedy by eliminating steps provided. 145 I.C. 261=1933 N. 221 (1). As to locus standi to make an application under section 115, see 177 I.C. 138. Section 115 does not require that there should be an application. 15 P. 738=165 I.C. 927=1936 P. 591; 160 I.C. 361 (2)=1936 S. 1. Or that such application need necessarily be made by an aggrieved party. The only limitation against the exercise of the power of this Court under section 115 is that the case should be one in which no appeal lies. 146 I.C. 258=1933 L. 327. See also 144 I.C. 883=1933 S. 200. The Judicial Commissioner's Court in an appropriate case can exercise powers of revision on its own motion if it appears that there had been any material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction by the lower Court. A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 81. The High Court's power to interfere in revision and set aside an illegal order setting aside an execution sale, is not affected or rendered nugatory by the fact that the original execution case has been dismissed. Any order that the High Court might pass will not in any way be affected by that fact. 62 C.L.J. 308=39 C.W.N. 913. Omission to give a finding on necessary issue is failure to exercise jurisdiction. 150 I.C. 312=36 P.L.R. 69=1934 Pesh. 33. Where the decision of a suit involves the decision of legal inferences to be drawn from the likely to work, not in the interests of justice but rather against it, such a course should not be taken. 1930 L. 417 (2). See also 54 C.L.J. 253=36 C.W.N. 16=134 I.C. 1045=1931 C. 607; 1933 A. 154; 42 A. 626=60 I.C. 81; 1931 M. 534. Right of revision—One party applying to Court to prevent pleader of opposite party—Court preventing pleader—Opposite party can apply for revision. 110 I.C. 544=1928 M. 592. Where a decree can be appealed against to the District Judge from whose decree a second appeal can be filed in the High Court, it is not a case in which no appeal lies to the High Court at all, although no appeal can be filed from the original decree of the first Court direct. There is no ground for restricting the scope of the words "in which no appeal lies thereto" to cases where no appeal lies from the order sought to be revised. So long as a party has a right to come up to the High Court by way of an appeal and has failed to avail himself of that opportunity by first going up to the District Judge and then coming up to the High Court, he cannot ask the High Court to interfere in revision. Per Rau, J.—Are we to interpret the expression "in which no appeal lies" as if it were equivalent to the expression "in which no appeal lies or may in future lie"? I hesitate to place so wide a construction upon these words. According to the alternative interpretation, revision is barred only where an appeal, whether first or second, lies immediately to the High Court; where no such immediate appeal lies, the High Court has jurisdiction to intervene in revision, although whether it will exercise this jurisdiction or not, will depend upon the urgency of the need for intervention. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 393=44 C.W.N. 364=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 257.

REVISION AND APPEAL.—There is an analogy between a revision application and an appeal but the two are not identical. In a suit or an appeal, the points to be decided ordinarily are those on which the parties are at variance. A revision application stands on a different footing. It is a matter between a higher Court and a lower Court; in fact revisional powers may in certain cases be exercised without an appeal or an application by any of the parties concerned. 144 I.C. 883=1933 S. 200. Once the High Court is seized of the revision, then, it becomes its duty to cast its eyes (over) not merely on part of the proceedings but the whole of them. What come under the review of the High Court are the proceedings as a whole from start to finish and the object of the scrutiny of the High Court is that so far as possible justice may be done in the proceedings as a whole. 1941 A.W. R. (H.C.) 130.

POWERS OF LOCAL LEGISLATURE TO AFFECT REVISIONAL JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT.—Per Bennet, J.—The local legislature has power (with previous sanction) to pass laws affecting the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court, whether derived from the Government of India Act, 1919, the Letters Patent or the Codes. (ii) The power of superintendence under S. 107, Government of India Act, 1919, depends on appellate power and can also be affected by laws of the local legislature. (iii) Where a special tribunal is created by an Act of the local legislature or of the Indian legislature to determine rights created by that Act, and that Act states that the decision of the tribunal shall be final, there is no interference with the rights of appeal, superintendence, or revision of the High Court, because the High Court never had such rights over the tribunal. 147 I.C. 148=1933 A.L.J. 971. See also 151 I.C. 880=38 C.W.N. 986=1934 C. 666.

POWERS OF REVISION OF NON-CHARTERED HIGH COURTS.—Whatever powers Courts other than Chartered High Courts may have must be exercised under S. 115, and not under the section by which powers are conferred by the Government of India Act upon Chartered High Courts. 151 I.C. 89=1934 S. 110.

FINDING OF FACT.—The power of interference in revision is much more limited than that in case of second appeals. Hence a concurrent finding of fact of the lower Court based on evidence cannot be interfered with. 1936 P. 558. A finding of fact of the Court of appeal below is not liable to be set aside in revision. 151 I.C. 1088=59 C.L.J. 417=1934 C. 795. The question whether it has been established by evidence that a particular person became a surety for the payment of the amount due on a promissory note is a question of fact which cannot be agitated in revision. 150 I.C. 1055=1934 R. 306. The lower appellate Court decided the appeal on finding based on the construction of a power of attorney which it had jurisdiction to do. Held, that the finding was not open to challenge in revision. 15 L. 305=149 I.C. 1102=1934 L. 67 (1). Where a finding is arrived at after a consideration of the oral evidence and incidentally of certain letters, the question of the construction of these letters is not a matter which can be examined in revision. 151 I.C. 385 (2)=1934 A. 530. A finding that a certain document is not genuine is a finding of fact. 161 I.C. 21=1936 L. 725. So also a finding of the lower Court about the bailee having taken necessary care of the goods such as is required by S. 151 of the Contract Act. 161 I.C. 417=1936 O.W.N. 334=1936 O. 264. Where there had not been any real consideration of the evidence at all before the lower appellate Court and all that the Judge did was to seize hold of a rule of law about the burden of proof, a rule which incidentally loses most of its significance when there is evidence for consideration and then to seize hold of two or three superficial points in the case and rest content with that.

NOTES.

Held, that that was not what an appellate Judge was there for, especially when he was reversing a well-considered finding of a lower Court and that interference in revision was necessary. 175 I.C. 430=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 216.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—S. 115 being merely an empowering section granting jurisdiction regulated by the discretion of the High Courts, it ought to receive a liberal rather than a narrow interpretation. 40 B. 86=33 I.C. 358; 65 I.C. 37. High Court has revisional power under the Charitable and Religious Endowments Act (XIV of 1920). 27 A.L.J. 911=1929 A. 581. "Record of a case" means the record of the legal proceeding decided although it is only a legal proceeding in the suit. 24 S.L.R. 277=1930 S. 265 (F.B.). There is no provision in the section that the High Court cannot interfere in a case where an appeal lies to an inferior Court. Hence where the plaintiff has not filed an appeal to the District Judge which remedy he has from an order of the Sub-Judge rejecting a plaint, the High Court can interfere in revision. 154 I.C. 103=1935 P. 86. See also 63 C.L.J. 105=1936 C. 786. S. 115 clearly refers in Cls. (a) and (b) to jurisdiction, which means the jurisdiction of the Court and not the competence of any party to sue. A finding that a party is not competent to sue is not therefore a finding affecting the Court's jurisdiction. 165 I.C. 278=38 P.L.R. 315=1936 L. 783.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.—As to interference in revision with interlocutory orders, see 75 I.C. 107=1923 L. 301; 54 C. 1038; 156 I.C. 162=1935 R. 122; 106 I.C. 57 (As a general rule no interference with interlocutory orders). 134 I.C. 118 (L.). See also 1938 A.M.L.J. 123. It is intolerable that where issues are decided separately, there should be what is really an interim appeal in the form of an application in revision to High Court. 146 I.C. 615=1933 R. 263. The High Court has jurisdiction under S. 115 to revise an interlocutory order passed by a Subordinate Court from which no appeal lies to the High Court. But it is only when irreparable injury will be done and a miscarriage of justice inevitably will ensure that the Court will intervene. 11 R. 36=143 I.C. 525=1933 R. 49. See also 60 C.L.J. 91=38 C.W.N. 1146; 154 I.C. 615=1935 P. 90. Where the order is extraordinary or illegal or one made by the Court without any power to do so, it is open to the High Court to interfere. 134 I.C. 118 (L.). Or, if the order is palpably incorrect and is one which gives the Court jurisdiction which it has not got. 13 R. 595=1935 R. 466. The word "case" covers interlocutory order. Such order if it goes to the root of the case can be revised. 27 N.L.R. 254=130 I.C. 145=1931 N. 17. See also 9 R. 71=134 I.C. 744=1931 R. 136; 9 R. 86; 9 R. 92. The High Court would not ordinarily exercise its revisional jurisdiction in a purely interlocutory matter, namely, about the admission of a certain piece of evidence. It may however do so when the question is one of general importance and no objection is taken by the opposite party as to the competency of the Court to entertain the petition. But such case must not be regarded as a precedent for interference in purely interlocutory matters of procedure which do not affect jurisdiction, and do not inflict irreparable injury. The expression "case which has been decided" in S. 115 is wide enough to include an interlocutory order, and even though there may be an appeal from the final decree, that consideration will not prevent in a proper case interference in revision. The Court will not however interfere unless it seems that there has been a gross and culpable error likely to inflict grave injustice and cause irreparable injury. (A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 136, Rel. on.) 181 I.C. 527=A.I. R. 1939 Rang. 92. Interference would be justified if otherwise irreparable damage would result. 4 L.L.J. 176=65 I.C. 282; 44 B. 619; 5 M.L.J. 75; 1936 A.M.L.J. 4. See also 11 R. 36; 131 I.C. 503=1931 R. 193 (2) (Order impounding a document) or there are other special and exceptional circumstances necessitating interference. 26 I.C. 954=20 C.L.J. 426; or where there are other most cogent reasons. 43 I. C. 684. As far as the Madras High Court is concerned, it cannot be held that there can be no interference by way of revision in an interlocutory matter or proceedings on the ground that it is not a case decided. 113 I.C. 646=1929 M. 121. Sind Judicial Commissioner's Court has no jurisdiction to interfere in revision under S. 115, with interlocutory orders even in exceptional circumstances. 24 S.L.R. 227=1930 S. 265 (F. B.). The Rangoon High Court has always entertained applications in revision with a certain amount of freedom, even when the cases are not complete, if to allow a case to proceed would result in waste of time, trouble and money. 157 I.C. 814=1935 R. 225. On this point, see also 85 I.C. 619=1925 C. 1118; 28 C.W.N. 991=82 I. C. 1008; 1939 M.W.N. 621 (order granting temporary injunction). Interlocutory orders that can be rectified on appeal are not revisable although there may be no appeal directly from such orders. 5 M.L.J. 75. But see 14 C. 768. See also 9 M. 256; 5 A. 293; 18 B. 35. Where decree is against legal representative, as to whether revision lies from order in execution rejecting application by posthumous son to be impleaded as legal representative. 1936 S. 166.

THE FOLLOWING INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS ARE OPEN TO REVISION.—Though an order is interlocutory, if it goes to the root of all subsequent proceedings, the High Court would not decline to consider whether the Court passing the order in question had jurisdiction to pass it. 1938 A.M.L.J. 97.

NOTES.

Though an order is interlocutory, the Court will not decline to hear or interfere, if a question of jurisdiction is involved. 1938 A.M.L.J. 74. Where the order is arbitrary and unwarranted in law. 58 I.C. 729=18 A.L.J. 486; 1927 M.W.N. 218 (as) where the lower Court wrongly refused to grant commission for examination of witnesses, 35 C.L.J. 78=68 I.C. 9; improper orders under Guardian and Wards Act, 42 I.C. 240; where amendment was improperly refused, 67 I.C. 335; defect of jurisdiction causing failure of justice, 67 I.C. 278; 60 I.C. 481; where irreparable damage may result, 4 L.L.J. 176=1922 L. 100; or where irreparable waste of time and money would result, 2 L.L.J. 555=64 I.C. 387; allowing a party to adduce evidence after closing of the case, 59 I.C. 450; order as to misjoinder of parties and causes of action. 43 M.L.J. 277=70 I.C. 684; misjoinder of causes of action, 43 M.L.J. 218=69 I.C. 960; 42 M.L.J. 97; order refusing to add person as party defendant, 1929 O. 148; 1929 M. 403 (2); 1930 P. 592; order directing trial piecemeal on certain issues only, 60 I.C. 528=2 Pat.L.T. 154; improper order of remand, 1922 P. 79; 1922 P. 359=50 I.C. 470; 45 C.L.J. 194. [In such a case High Court cannot go into merits of the order of remand. 39 M.L.T. 120.] Order setting aside ex parte decree. 32 C.W.N. 507. Question whether particular person should be next friend—Order of Court—Revisable. 1929 L. 257=113 I.C. 901. Summary rejection of application under O. 9, r. 9 is revisable. 1929 L. 878. An order refusing leave to sue as a pauper is not an interlocutory order and is revisable. 142 I.C. 379. (32 A. 623 and 48 M. 700, Foll.) A Court has jurisdiction to consider the merits of the case on an application to sue in forma pauperis; the fact that the Court placed reliance on evidence which might not be relevant to a pauper application is not an irregularity affecting its jurisdiction and no revision lies. (40 M. 793, App.; 17 S.L.R. 133, Foll.) 26 S.L.R. 491=142 I.C. 379=1933 section 82; 19 Pat.L.T. 101=1938 Pat. 209; 117 I.C. 908.

THE FOLLOWING INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS ARE NOT OPEN TO REVISION.—The question of whether there is "sufficient cause" for an adjournment under O. 17, R. 1 is a question of fact; whether decision on the merits is right or wrong, it must be held to be final on the point. 154 I.C. 935=1935 A.L.J. 372=1935 A. 476. Order granting adjournment on payment of costs, 25 I.C. 207=12 A.L.J. 460; order deciding preliminary issue in a suit where such order would be appealable after final decision in the suit. 56 I.C. 248; 146 I.C. 615=1933 R. 263; 156 I.C. 615 (1)=1935 R. 158. As to order reviewing plaint rejected for non-payment of Court-fee, see 67 C. 61. An interlocutory order directing the plaintiff to pay an additional court-fee cannot be the subject of revision. The proper course for the aggrieved party would be to file an appeal if and when the plaint is rejected on his refusal to pay the court-fees. Suit for partition decree—Succeeding Judge modifying prior order—Valid—Cannot be interfered with in revision being only of an interlocutory nature. 34 C.W.N. 731=1931 C. 52. Order as to locus standi of a person to apply for setting aside sale under O. 21, R. 89 is not open to revision. 161 I.C. 424=1936 O.W.N. 344. So also in execution. Where the custody Court decided that certain person is not entitled to any priority, with reference to property in its hands. 163 I.C. 584=38 P.L.R. 800=1936 L. 521. Also order on application under S. 19, Arbitration Act. 1936 S. 205.

OTHER REMEDY OPEN.—Where another remedy is open to the party, e.g., by a suit or appeal or otherwise, the Court will not entertain an application for revision. A revision petition will no doubt lie at the instance of a party aggrieved by an order on an application under O. 21, R. 100, C.P. Code. But the High Court will not interfere unless there are cogent reasons for such interference. 44 L.W. 703=1936 Mad. 940. See also 1937 P.W.N. 489=1937 Pat. 357 (order setting aside sale under O. 21, R. 90); 151 I.C. 668=1934 R. 230; 1934 R. 212; 146 I.C. 845=34 P.L.R. 262=1933 L. 509; 144 I.C. 897=35 Bom.L.R. 360=1933 B. 185. But this is simply a rule of practice which arises from the optional nature of S. 115 which says that the High Court may make such order in the case as it thinks fit, and the High Court can interfere in special cases. 11 R. 134=144 I.C. 163=1933 R. 64. See also 68 M.L.J. 218. It has been practice of Madras High Court to exercise revisional powers in cases where lower Court decides a preliminary issue as to the maintainability of the suit, holding the suit maintainable, although there is a remedy by way of appeal against the decree in the suit itself. But it by no means follows that, because the High Court has the power to interfere it must necessarily do so. The High Court, on the contrary, ought not to interfere unless the particular point can be shortly and conveniently disposed of by way of revision. 58 M. 771=41 L.W. 257=1935 M. 282=68 M.L.J. 218. Even where an appeal is open, if the effect of allowing a revision will be a convenience to the parties and save expense, the High Court will be inclined to interfere with the order. 55 A. 256=1933 A.L.J. 268=1933 A. 374. So also where having regard to all the circumstances of the case and in the interests of justice it considers such a course necessary. 148 I.C. 1074=

1934 L. 119. See also 1933 R. 259; 41 P.L.R. 374=1939 Lah. 52; 151 I.C. 1002=1934 R. 243; 146 I.C. 493=1933 O. 540; 1933 P. 86. It cannot be held that whenever there is a remedy by way of suit, the remedy by way of revision cannot be allowed. The High Court has jurisdiction to act under S. 115 and set aside an order passed without jurisdiction and prevent unnecessary multiplication of legal proceedings. 52 L.W. 810=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 860. See also 15 Luck. 332=1940 Oudh 237. Where a petitioner in revision has another remedy open, it depends upon the facts of each particular case whether or not the High Court will interfere in revision on that ground. 179 I.C. 845=1939 Pat. 263. Though the High Court will not ordinarily interfere in revision when a remedy lies by way of appeal, the High Court will interfere if a defect of law and a grave wrong are manifest, for the High Court will not permit a case to proceed on jurisdiction snatched, and having no basis or justification. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 330=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 137. Where the effect of allowing a revision in a matter in which an appeal might also lie, will be a convenience to the parties and will save expense, the Court will interpret S. 115 liberally and will interfere in revision. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 289. The dismissal of an application for a final decree in a suit for sale on a mortgage is appealable as a decree under S. 96, C.P. Code, and a civil revision petition against the order of dismissal is therefore incompetent. 54 L.W. 107=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 125. The order rejecting a plaint is a decree. An order passed in appeal from that order that no appeal lies amounts to dismissal of the appeal. Even such order is a decree and is open to a second appeal, and not a revision to the High Court. The mere fact that the lower appellate Court refuses to entertain the appeal is no ground for preferring a revision to the High Court from the original order. 49 C.L.J. 81=115 I.C. 368. See also 119 I.C. 481=1929 L. 605. Where a plaint presented to the Subordinate Judge, First Class, was returned for presentation to the proper Court and on appeal the District Judge affirmed the order, held, that a revision was not maintainable against the appellate order. 31 P.L.R. 178. The ordinary rule is that the High Court cannot interfere in revision if the party has a remedy by way of appeal or second appeal. But this rule has its exceptions, and each case must be judged upon the circumstances peculiar to it. 28 A. 72. See also 68 M.L.J. 218; 1935 P. 86; 9 L.L.J. 19; 15 A. 405; 34 A. 592; 8 Pat.L.T. 677=103 I.C. 32=1927 P. 316; 1931 A.L.J. 974; 67 I.C. 945 (Revision entertained in case of gross injustice, though other remedy open). See also 11 R. 134=144 I.C. 163=1933 R. 64; 1933 Pesh. 52=143 I.C. 87; 142 I.C. 628=1933 P. 158; 58 C. 55=1931 C. 385; 10 A. 119; 5 R. 742; 14 P.L.T. 70; 53 A. 532=1931

NOTES.

A. 663; 1931 L. 664. The High Court will not interfere with orders allowing or disallowing claims to rateable distribution except in very exceptional circumstances. 60 I.C. 371; 14 L.W. 582=70 I.C. 20 (2). See also 1931 M.W.N. 1012; 134 I.C. 195; 33 P.L.R. 975; 41 L.W. 490=1935 M. 399; 1936 O.W.N. 262=1936 O. 185; 1936 O.W.N. 116=1936 O. 132; 1936 Pesh. 52=1935 L. 971. But where the lower Court proceeds on a clear misapprehension of a section of the Code, and refuses rateable distribution under S. 73, C.P. Code, it clearly refuses to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law, and the High Court will interfere in revision notwithstanding that a remedy by suit is open to the aggrieved party. 1935 M.W.N. 1300=69 M.L.J. 908. So also the High Court will not interfere in revision with a decision under O. 21, r. 61 as the party aggrieved has a remedy under r. 63. 1930 P. 394; 39 C.W.N. 733; 30 S.L.R. 288. But if it can be shown that the Judge passing the order failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in him by rr. 58 to 62, O. 21, its order is open to revision. 14 R. 516=164 I.C. 638=1936 R. 306. But see 58 C. 55=132 I.C. 631=1931 C. 385 and 44 L.W. 703=1936 M. 940 regarding proceedings under O. 21, r. 101. The High Court under section 115, C. P. Code, has no jurisdiction to interfere in revision with an order under section 144 which is subject to an appeal. 158 I.C. 908=1935 A.L.J. 995=1935 A. 873. Section 115 of C. P. Code contemplates the calling of the records from a trial Court and the appeal referred to therein means an appeal to the High Court. If, therefore, a trial Court has acted with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction or acted illegally the High Court has power to interfere in revision provided that no appeal lies to the High Court. The section does not require that no appeal in the meantime should have been preferred to the District Judge or that if preferred it is only the order of the District Judge which can be revised. 118 I.C. 189=1929 A. 793. Refusal to entertain an application for review based on the ground of fraud is revisable notwithstanding the existence of another remedy, 33 C.W.N. 572=1929 C. 513. When another remedy is open to a party, but it is very inconvenient and practically is no remedy, the Court should give relief by way of revision. 2 A.L.J. 370; 65 I.C. 476; 26 L.W. 76=104 I.C. 371=1927 M. 799; 53 M.L.J. 903; 55 M.L.J. 345=51 M. 664=1928 M. 416. See also 60 M.L.J. 713=1931 M. 1; 1933 R. 64. High Court will interfere in revision in such cases to prevent multiplicity of proceedings. 131 I.C. 14=1931 M. 511. See also 135 I.C. 199=1932 L. 176; 1933 L. 48=33 P.L.R. 975; 1937 Nag. 30=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 82; and save parties from long and expensive litigation. 54 A. 516=1932 A. 411=1932 A.L.J. 359. Plaintiff attached certain property which the defendant alleged was under wakf. Lower Court held that the wakf was illusory. In appeal lower appellate Court allowed to continue the attachment. Defendant came in revision to the High Court. It was contended that revision of such order did not lie. Held, that an order of this kind could be revised even though aggrieved party had remedy by regular suit. (1929 R. 297, Foll.) 1935 R. 395. Appeal to lower Court under section 47, C. P. Code—Auction purchaser can petition High Court for revision as a second appeal by him does not lie. 117 I.C. 789=1929 M. 84. There is no ground for restricting the scope of the words "in which no appeal lies" to cases where no appeal lies from the order sought to be revised. 1930 A.L.J. 924=1930 A. 604 (2). See also 123 I.C. 127=1931 L. 302 (1). Where the order of remand passed in appeal appeared to have been passed without jurisdiction, held in revision that the order should be set aside and the appeal remitted for re-decision, though the order of remand could be called in question in an appeal from the final decree. 133 I.C. 127=1931 L. 302 (1). When the order is in effect a decree, if it is appealable though it is described as a decretal order and no revision lies against it. 54 M. 337=1931 M. 471=60 M.L.J. 167. The High Court is reluctant to interfere in cases under the Dekhan Agriculturists' Relief Act where the revisional powers of District Judge suffice. 55 B. 411=33 Bom.L.R. 476=1931 B. 284. An order under section 73 is not merely a ministerial order; it is a judicial order. But the order cannot be interfered with in revision as the party has another remedy by way of suit. 27 S.L.R. 193=1933 S. 329. Order dismissing suit under section 9, Specific Relief Act, will not be revised, as remedy by regular suit is open to him. 165 I.C. 908=1936 O.W.N. 1228=1937 Oudh 183. Although the High Court will not ordinarily interfere in revision in a case under section 9, Specific Relief Act, where there has really been no trial of the case at all and the suit has been dismissed under a misapprehension of the scope of section 9, the High Court will interfere in revision. 20 N.L.J. 189=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 326.

FAILURE TO EXERCISE JURISDICTION AND WRONG EXERCISE OF JURISDICTION.—The High Court is bound to interfere where it appears that the Court of First Instance has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law. 26 M. 176; 21 M.L.J. 1020; 1935 Pesh. 21; 153 I.C. 453=68 M.L.J. 115; 68 M.L.J. 236; 1937 A.L.J. 671=1937 All. 598 (failure of Court to apply its mind to the mandatory provisions of law). Ousting jurisdiction must be patent on the face of the record before it can be predicated of a Court that it has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law. 44 B. 595; 65 I.C. 50. (Error held not to be so patent); 1922 S. 1; (1933 S. 82 and Sind Misc. Appln. No. 44 of 1930. Rel. on.) 27 S.L.R. 261=1933 S. 229. The High Court has power to interfere in revision with an order passed in appeal confirming the trial Court's decision that it had no jurisdiction to try the particular suit before it. 1941 N.L.J. 245. If the defendant has a defence which the law allows him to raise, and the Court refuses to entertain it, its action goes to the root of jurisdiction, whatever the reasons given. It is a case of non-exercise of jurisdiction, and the High Court has power to interfere under section 115. I. L.R. (1937) Nag. 159=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 267. See also 1937 A.L.J. 842=1937 All. 753; 1937 Nag. 39. There must be some limit to the latitude to be given to the principle that a Judge has jurisdiction to come to a wrong decision as well as to a right one. It is not possible to stretch the principle to the extent of holding that it precludes the High Court from interfering in a case where a Judge has given a litigant the benefit of a contract to which he has found that litigant was not a party. That is an illegal exercise of jurisdiction or at any rate a material irregularity. 41 C.W.N. 601. Where a Court has jurisdiction to make an order and refuses to make it on the ground that it has no jurisdiction, that is a good ground for interfering in revision under section 115. 36 Bom.L.R. 499=58 B. 485=1934 B. 252. "Jurisdiction" in section 115 of C. P. Code means a jurisdiction local, pecuniary, personal or with reference to the subject-matter of the suit. 23 I.C. 977=41 C. 323; 15 I. C. 669. See also 46 C.L.J. 182=103 I.C. 468=31 C.W.N. 818; 11 M. 220 (F.B.); 7 A. 345, 350; 8 A. 519. A Court's decision regarding its own jurisdiction in a particular matter is open to revision. 104 I.C. 342=1927 S. 239; 116 I.C. 172. But see 1929 L. 83. Where the lower Court itself has to determine whether it has jurisdiction or not to try the case, and it exercises its discretion wrongly and proceeds to try the case, the High Court has power to interfere in revision. 20 N.L.J. 247=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 334. Where orders of lower Court amount to refusing to try the case and to exercise jurisdiction vested in them, revision lies. 1937 N. 39. Refusal to entertain defence which law allows is a case of non-exercise of jurisdiction, and revision lies. 165 I.C. 926 (Nag.). Where the question is whether the Civil or Revenue Court should take cognizance, an erroneous decision can form the subject-matter of revision. 27 A.L.J. 1157. An order of a Small Cause Court returning the plaint for presentation to proper Court is revisable. 1932 A.L.J. 1068=1933 A. 106. So also an order by a Court returning a plaint for presentation to the Small Cause Court and this even when the District Judge failed to make a reference under O. 46, r. 7. 1932 N. 70. Where the parties went to trial on the merits and the Court raised an issue as to want of jurisdiction suo motu at a late stage and returned the plaint, held that the order was not justified and should be set aside in revision. 131 I.C. 303 (2)=32 P.L.R. 737. Where the lower Court exercises jurisdiction in a proper manner, the High Court will not interfere. 45 A. 548=73 I.C. 538; 45 A. 425. See also 68 M. L.J. 324. Ordinarily interference in revision is inadvisable in cases of decisions as to jurisdiction and should only be made in exceptional cases to remedy injustice. 1923 L. 565; 73 I.C. 755=1923 L. 524. Where a decree is obtained against a person who does not represent the estate and the estate is sought to be sold in execution of such a decree, the case falls within the principle of 32 C. 296, and the decree is liable to be set aside in revision for want of jurisdiction. 53 C.L.J. 415=134 I.C. 305=1931 C. 673. High Court's interference under section 115—If confined only to question of jurisdiction. 20 C.W.N. 1080=37 I.C. 129. On the mere ground that the decision was wrong, a High Court certainly will not interfere but where the lower Court had no jurisdiction to enquire into the question, High Court has power to interfere in revision. 1 R. 265=76 I.C. 504. See also 106 I.C. 901 relying on 6 L. 487 (P.C.); 40 M. 793 (P.C.); 27 M. 504; 30 C. 397; 46 C.L.J. 182=103 I.C. 468=31 C.W.N. 818; 27 A.L.J. 961=119 I. C. 859. The order of a Court wrongly refusing to entertain an application on the ground that it did not lie at all, is on account of the declining of a jurisdiction, liable to be set aside. 38 M.L.J. 322; 48 I.C. 139=8 L. W. 436; 31 I.C. 536=2 L.W. 1115; 31 I.C. 209; 28 I.C. 707=2 L.W. 366. Points of jurisdiction, even though not taken in the lower Court, can be argued in the High Court. 41 L.W. 20=1935 M. 89.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES OF WRONGFUL EXERCISE OF JURISDICTION.—Where a Court has acted by inventing a rule of procedure for itself which is not warranted by law the High Court is not only competent to interfere but should interfere in its revisional jurisdiction. 27 A.L.J. 769=1929 A. 593. The High Court can interfere in revision when a Civil Court has wrongly entertained a suit cognizable by a Revenue Court. 56 I. C. 946=23 O.C. 281. Also when a suit is wrongly tried by a Court of Small Causes. 1932 L. 637. District Munsiff exercising small cause jurisdiction when not invested with such powers—Revision lies. 22 I.C. 909=12 A.L.J. 109. But High Court would not interfere in revision, in a suit cognizable by a Small Cause Court, but tried by a District Munsiff and appeal suit heard by the District Court without any objection. 21 B. 417; 75 I.C. 769. Revision lies against order wrongfully refusing to file appeal. 99 I.C. 690. Jurisdiction, want of—Plea to be substantiated by evidence. 52 I.C. 32. An order without enquiry is without jurisdiction. 24 L.W. 839=99 I.C. 383=1927 M. 188. Omission to refer to evidence. 104 I.C. 321; 99 I. C. 946=44 C.L.J. 565. The omission of an appellate Court to deal with an appeal before it on the merits is a failure to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law. 40 C. 518=20 I.C. 420. The High Court has power to set aside the order of the lower appellate Court on the ground that no appeal lay to it at all. 5 Pat.L.J. 97=55 I.C. 15. See also

NOTES.

140 I.C. 48=1932 L. 416. But see 1929 R. 198. Where the lower Court accepts an appeal which is incompetent, the High Court may interfere in revision and set aside its order. 152 I.C. 622=1934 L. 540. Where an order, not being appealed against, becomes final, it cannot be set aside by the appellate Court when hearing an appeal against a later order; nor can such Court pass an order which is inconsistent with the earlier order. Such an order of the appellate Court is liable to be set aside in revision. 152 I.C. 693=1934 L. 538. An order of the appellate Court directing the rehearing of a suit without any finding as to the sufficiency of the cause for the non-appearance of the defendant is illegal and without jurisdiction. 54 I.C. 965=1 Pat. L.J. 69. See also 100 I.C. 135=1927 M. 335. Where the appellate Court has jurisdiction to hear an appeal and passes an order directing the first Court to proceed with the suit the order cannot be attacked in revision, even though it may be erroneous in law. 53 A. 519. An erroneous decision of the lower appellate Court that the first Court had or had not jurisdiction to entertain a suit can be interfered with in revision. 39 M. 195=24 M.L.J. 112; 76 I.C. 1010=1923 L. 412. Where a Court assumes jurisdiction to pass an order on an erroneous view of the law, in a matter where it has in fact no jurisdiction, it is a case for interference of the High Court. 46 M. 536=44 M.L.J. 1; 100 I.C. 936=1927 L. 342. Jurisdiction—Refusal to exercise—Court misinterpreting section 73 of the C. P. Code and consequently refusing help. 10 I.C. 527=15 C.W.N. 842. See also 1927 M. 1030; 60 I.C. 371; 70 I.C. 20 (2) (Mad.). Where the Court below does not judicially consider what it ought to have considered, and decides something that it is not called upon to decide, there is illegal or irregular exercise of jurisdiction. 155 I.C. 1088=1935 A.L.J. 527=1935 A. 310. When a Court, upon an erroneous view as to the scope of a section of the Code, applies it to a case to which it has no application, it acts without jurisdiction. 33 C. 487; 99 I.C. 425=1927 M. 427. See also 191 I.C. 217; 36 C.W.N. 788=1932 C. 857 (B.T. Act). Where a Court rejects the application of two idols, represented by their shebait for permission to file a suit in forma pauperis on the erroneous assumption that they are not "persons" entitled to present such an application under O. 33, C. P. Code, its decision amounts to a conscious violation of the specific rules of the C. P. Code and is open to revision. (1931 N. 17; 1924 N. 44 and 1922 B. 584, Foll.) 31 N. L. R. 413=18 N.L.J. 347=158 I.C. 660=1935 N. 209. See also (1941) 1 M.L.J. 31; 1936 A.M.L.J. 4. A mere misconstruction by a subordinate Court of section 87 of the Negotiable Instruments Act is not a ground for revision by the High Court under section 115, C. P. Code. 12 I.C. 138. Issues framed not arising from plaint and rejecting application to confine issues to matters stated in plaint

—Revision lies. 1929 N. 347. Suit dismissed on questions not raised—Revision lies. 1929 L. 294. Case of misconstruction of pleadings. 1927 L. 44. Where the lower Court has found a different case for the petitioners from that set up by them in their petitions, and allowed their claim, it is an irregularity which justifies interference in revision. 133 I.C. 301=1931 M. 534. A Judge who passes a decree which is not supported by any evidence on the record has taken upon himself a jurisdiction not vested in him by law. 10 C.W.N. 14; 9 A. 398, 404. See also (1941) 1 M.L.J. 250; 39 P.L.R. 499. Finding of fact without evidence. 64 I.C. 85. Holding particular evidence as inadmissible was vastly different from failing to exercise a jurisdiction vested by law in the Court of the first appeal. 1929 P. 633. Where, by an error of law, the Court excludes certain evidence from consideration, the evidence being the main evidence in the case, there is such a material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction as may lay the judgment open to revision. 119 I.C. 417 (2). See also 14 Pat.L.T. 70; 35 C.W.N. 1242; 1931 A. 452. When a document has some legal effect on the decision, its exclusion can be treated as a refusal to exercise jurisdiction. 25 I.C. 204. When the conclusion of the lower Court is obviously opposed to the finding expressed in the body of the judgment, the High Court can interfere in revision with such an order. 1929 M. 841 (1)=119 I.C. 64; 1930 M.W.N. 1227. Where a subordinate Court proceeds with the trial of a suit in contravention of section 10, C. P. Code, it usurps a jurisdiction not vested in it by law and its order refusing to stay the suit though interlocutory, is open to revision by the High Court. 42 A. 409; 70 I.C. 5=16 L.W. 607. An order under section 10 staying a suit amounts to a decision that the Court has no jurisdiction to try the suit. If wrongly used, it is a refusal to exercise jurisdiction and is open to revision under section 115. 50 I.C. 212; 14 I.C. 711; 14 I.C. 221; 1929 L. 694. See also 139 I.C. 48=33 P.L.R. 787. But see 1929 L. 662. An order refusing to stay a suit during the pendency of another suit in the same Court is not an interlocutory order and it is not subject to revision under section 115, C. P. Code, and section 44 of the Punjab Courts Act. However, if circumstances justify such a course the Court may interfere either under section 151, C. P. Code or under section 107 of the Government of India Act. 31 Punj.L.R. 174=1930 L. 525. An order refusing to stay the trial of a suit which is connected with an appeal pending in the appellate Court is revisable. 1933 L. 50. Where a Judge refused to try the issues raised before him, he has declined to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law and the High Court can interfere. 39 A. 297=38 I.C. 335. The failure of a District Judge to decide a plea amounts to a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction and his decision is liable to be set aside in revision. 54 I.C. 662. Omission to decree claim admitted.

As to order allowing amendment of plaint, see 36 P.L.R. 264=1934 L. 974. The refusal by the lower Court to allow an eminently just and equitable application for amendment is tantamount to a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction vested in the Court under sections 151 and 152 of the Code. 8 Luck. 734=11 O.W.N. 550=1934 O. 352. See also 148 I.C. 347=15 Pat.L.T. 602=1934 P. 425; 38 C.W.N. 1183. An order directing a plaint to be returned for amendment without a prayer being without jurisdiction, is open to revision by the High Court. 24 M.L.J. 455=19 I.C. 672; 1913 M.W.N. 1024=21 I.C. 767. Also an order dismissing summarily an application by plaintiff to restore a suit dismissed for default. 100 I.C. 677=1927 L. 239. Where an order refusing to re-open a suit decreed ex parte is set aside on appeal, the order setting aside the trial Court's order is open to revision. 145 I.C. 370=1933 R. 156. The Judge had before him an application for re-opening the ex parte decree which on the face of it was time-barred and which he recognised as being time-barred on its face. Yet he allowed an extension of time. Held, that in re-opening the case he exercised a jurisdiction which he had not got and that the order re-opening the case should be set aside. 144 I.C. 980=1933 R. 110. Failure to exercise jurisdiction vested by the Calcutta Rent Act can be interfered with under section 115, C. P. Code. 26 C.W.N. 711=49 C. 328. Failure to deal with question of limitation arising in the case is no material irregularity requiring interference in revision. 32 I.C. 785=3 L.W. 176. But see 18 I.C. 391=17 C.W.N. 667. Where a suit was withdrawn by the plaintiff without the Court's considering the terms of withdrawal especially as to costs, it was held that the omission to consider the question of costs which resulted in injustice to defendant is a failure to exercise the jurisdiction vested in the Court. 31 I.C. 617=13 A.L.J. 10 (Rev.); 1929 A. 683. Application for decree absolute—Declining to entertain objections. 5 Pat.L.J. 342. When a date is appointed for the hearing of parties in order to ascertain valuation on sale proclamation, the Court acts without jurisdiction in fixing valuation at an earlier date without hearing the parties. 3 P.L.T. 342=65 I.C. 360. Where the Court wrongfully cancelled a lease granted by a guardian which was perfectly within his competence, held, in revision, that the order was made without jurisdiction and must be set aside. 1930 L. 1017=132 I.C. 203. Where a Court orders that a guardian is responsible for the income of the estate of minor only from the date of the grant of the certificate of guardianship, and the order is not appealed against, it is not competent for the successor of the former Judge to hold him liable from an earlier date on which he was appointed; and such an order is liable to be set aside in revision. 152 I.C. 691 (1)=1934 L. 592 (1). Where executing Court allows a person not entitled to deposit amount in satisfaction of decree the Court acts without jurisdiction within S. 115. 26 C.W.N. 167=70 I.C. 127; 45 A. 425=21 A.L.J. 313; 52 I.C. 344. Where the lower Court took a wrong view of the law relating to procedure and refused to proceed with the execution proceedings, held, that the lower Court had refused to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it and the High Court could interfere. 143 I.C. 189=10 O.W.N. 263=1933 O. 225. In deciding that certain property was not saleable the lower Court was only exercising its jurisdiction and it cannot be said to have refused to exercise its jurisdiction, by refusing to execute the decree by attachment of property which it held to be not saleable. 149 I.C. 815=1934 R. 263. The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with the wrong exercise by the Courts below of powers vested in them under O. 21, rr. 89 to 92 dealing with confirmation and setting aside of auction-sale. 67 I.C. 286; 32 C.W.N. 57=104 I.C. 199=1927 C. 63; 17 Pat.L.T. 852=1937 P. 104; 17 Pat.L.T. 940 (F.B.). See also 1937 Pat. 357. Where a Judge has proceeded on the assumption that a Court has no jurisdiction to order addition of parties to a suit in which one of the defendants died before the institution of the suit, he has failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law. 147 I.C. 782=1934 A.L.J. 126=1934 A. 25. Appellate Court wrongly entertaining appeal from order passed under O. 21, r. 58, in claim by judgment-debtor of attached property in representative capacity. 17 Pat.L.T. 810. The refusal to entertain an application under O. 1, r. 8 without proceeding in accordance with law comes under section 115. 145 I.C. 387=14 Pat.L.T. 361=1933 P. 302. Issuing notice under Regulation not in force is revisable. 10 Pat.L.T. 787=1929 P. 537. Defect in the signature of plaint in a suit in the Village Court cannot be interfered with by Munsif under section 73, Village Courts Act, nor by the High Court in revision. 30 L.W. 499. Where the lower Court refuses to set aside a sale of a Patni, erroneously holding that section 14 of the Patni Regulation is not retrospective, it fails to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law and consequently the order is open to revision. 61 C. 903=38 C.W.N. 720=1934 C. 512.

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION TO ATTAIN "ENDS OF JUSTICE".—The powers under section 115 are intended to be exercised with a view to subserve and not to defeat the ends of justice. 144 I.C. 904=1933 A. 154. See also 145 I.C. 164=35 Bom.L.R. 388=1933 B. 245; 41 L.W. 20=1935 M. 89. The rule that where substantial justice has been done between the parties, even if the lower Court has erred in law the High Court ought not to exercise its discretion in favour of the party relying on a technical plea, though a sound one, has to be applied with care. The substantial justice referred to above relates

- (a) to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or
- (b) to have failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or

to rights to which a party has a legal right as opposed to a purely moral claim. The rule applies when owing to some technical rule of procedure or to some stupid blundering the claim is likely to fail whereas had the proper rule or remedy been applied it would have succeeded. It does not refer to cases where whatever the plaintiff had done his claim could not in any event have succeeded. If a plaintiff's suit is barred by time, the rule referred to is not attracted to such a case. 1941 N.L.J. 324. See also 42 P.L.R. 227. Where the conditions set out in section 115 are present, a summary view of justice is frequently not a conclusive or even a very safe guide, especially, where the real obstacle in the way of the opposite party is a statutory bar of limitation. 1934 P. 50. An order under section 145 passed by a Sub-Judge can, if necessary, be revised by the High Court although an appeal lies to District Court from such order and a further appeal from the order of the District Court lies to the High Court. 11 R. 134=144 I.C. 163=1933 R. 64. Where the Court passed an order in the course of execution assessing mesne profits on an erroneous basis. Held, that the preliminary decree was erroneous in so far as it failed to fix the basis for the assessment of mesne profits and that, having regard to the fact that if this Court had pursued the proper course and fixed the basis in the preliminary decree, it would have been open to revision and with a view to save a great deal of money, time and labour, the order should be interfered with in revision. 151 I.C. 922=38 C.W.N. 384=1934 C. 503. Where the burden of proof has been wrongly placed by the lower Court and there has been a miscarriage of justice the High Court should interfere. 159 I.C. 70 (1)=1935 R. 131.

SEC. 115, CL. A Court has jurisdiction to hear an application for review though insufficiently stamped and the High Court will not interfere on that ground. 21 I.C. 942 (C.); 43 A. 288; 2 L.W. 366. Where the trial Court extended time for paying deficient Court-fee after the passing of a decree, held, that the order was without jurisdiction and must be set aside in revision. 129 I.C. 732=1931 A. 318. A general order of remand by an appellate Court which misunderstands its own duties and in substance declines jurisdiction is liable to be revised by the High Court. 63 I.C. 358. N. 73=164 I.C. 848=1936 N. 157; 1940 Pat. 263; 1940 Pat. 437; 1939 P.W.N. 341=1939 Pat. 564; 1939 Pat. 74; 1939 Pesh. 9. Cl. (c) of section 115 has a distinct meaning from that of the other two clauses. It does not refer only to defects of procedure; nor is it confined to errors in the method or manner of trial. It empowers the High Court to interfere and correct gross and palpable errors of Subordinate Courts for the ends of justice. 38 C.W.N. 1146=60 C.L.J. 91. Cl. (c) of section 115 contemplates cases other than those referred to in cls. (a) and (b). The words in cl. (c) did not occur in the Code of 1877 and were introduced for the first time in the Amending Act of 1879. They are intended to re-refer to cases where the Court has jurisdiction and has exercised it but has acted illegally or with material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. 34 C.W.N. 515. For the meaning of the words "illegally" and "material irregularity", see 7 B. 341, 358 (F.B.); 7 R. 339=1929 R. 145; 1929 A. 683. See also 1932 A.L.J. 803; 149 I.C. 1126=1934 Pesh. 29. "Acting illegally or with material irregularity" does not mean committing an error in the decision arrived at; but where a procedure has been adopted which is grossly improper and leads to a denial of justice, it amounts to a material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction. 1933 A.L.J. 110=1933 A. 295; 34 Bom.L.R. 1273; 1932 A. 154. The High Court as a Court of revision is not expected to weigh the evidence which is led before the lower Court. But when it is found that there is no evidence at all from which the inference as drawn by the lower Court could be deduced, the High Court has no alternative but to interfere. Further where the lower Court has acted without any clear conception of the law on the subject or has failed to apply the law to the facts of the case, it acts illegally, and in any case with material irregularity, justifying interference by the High Court in revision. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 988=47 L.W. 578=1938 Mad. 634=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 100. A Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction if it arrives at a finding without reference to unequivocal evidence on record. 42 P.L.R. 48=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 180. The ignoring of a reported ruling of the High Court or complete failure to grasp its essentials, must be taken as material irregularities. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 22. Failure by the lower Court to notice that a certain ruling which it has followed does not apply to the case is a case of material irregularity. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 76. When the lower Court commits an illegality in the exercise of its jurisdiction in refusing to follow a ruling of the Chief Court by which it is bound, it is incumbent on the High Court to interfere in revision. 171 I.C. 527=A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 197. Where the Court passes an erroneous order on a wrong view of the law, allowing an application, when it ought to reject it for non-compliance with the requirements of the statute, the error amounts to such an illegality or material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction as to call for the interference of the High Court under section 115. That is a fit case for the exercise of the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court. 18 Pat.L.T. 409=1937 P.W.N. 497=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 537. A Court acts with material irregularity, "if not illegally," within the meaning of section 115, (i) if it shuts its eyes to a proposition of law or to an important fact in evidence before it as distinct from misapplying the one or attaching a wrong legal consequence to the other; (ii) if it saddles the wrong party with a burden of proof; (iii) if it decides an appeal on a point of fact not raised at all before the Court from which the appeal is brought. It is also a material irregularity if a Court decides an appeal on a point of law which the party in whose favour it decides has waived and which is not one (such, for example, as limitation, gambling and public policy), of which the Court is bound to take cognizance irrespective of the parties. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 244. It is a material irregularity to come to a finding which is based entirely on a guess. 151 I.C. 429=1934 R. 214. Or on surmises for which there is no justification from the evidence on the record. 1936 O. W.N. 237. Where the lower Court decrees the suit on a case which is not to be found in the pleadings and is inconsistent therewith, it acts illegally in the exercise of its jurisdiction and with material irregularity. 14 R. 511=163 I.C. 668=1936 R. 235. Or where suit is decided on a case not put forward by parties. 1935 Pesh. 174. Where in a pre-emption suit the lower Courts import irrelevant considerations into the discussion of evidence and refuse to give the vendee the full sum proved to have been paid, merely because those considerations raise suspicions in the minds with regard to genuineness of the price paid, it, commits a material irregularity. 160 I.C. 452=1936 Pesh. 12. As to whether revision lies where a wrong order impleading party to suit was rectified by a subsequent order by successor in office, see 39 C.W.N. 1010. Only in an exceptional case High Court investigates the evidence in the exercise of its revisional powers. 12 P. 862=14 Pat. L.T. 651=1933 P. 575 (F.B.). If the Court refuses a party a right to lead evidence on a matter on which the parties are at issue, it exercises its jurisdiction with such material irregularity as to vitiate its order and the proper course is to set aside that order. 144 I.C. 461=14 Pat.L.T. 300=1933 P. 278. There is material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction, if there is no proper consideration of pleadings and evidence and the High Court would interfere in revision with a finding of fact reached owing to misconception of the method by which the question should be considered. 144 I.C. 834=29 N.L.R. 164=1933 N. 188; 1938 Mad. 321; 186 I.C. 530; 1939 Rang. 413 (Lower Court misreading evidence on record). See also (1941) 1 M.L.J. 250. Unless the Judge confines himself to the case of the plaintiff as set out in the plaint he acts with material irregularity in determining the question of whether the plaint discloses a cause of action. 145 I.C. 307=14 Pat.L.T. 338=1933 P. 284. A Court acts improperly when, without directing an amendment of the pleadings or revising the relevant issues, it allows a question to be argued before it which cuts at the very root of the plaintiff's suit, but which is not raised in the pleadings at all and decides it; in doing so it ignores some of the most material provisions of the C. P. Code. The High Court in such a case will interfere under section 115. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 330=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 137. The fact that the burden of proof as to certain issues has not been correctly placed is no ground for interference in revision. 151 I.C. 548 (1)=35 P.L.R. 334. An order of the lower Court which is virtually a refusal to go into the question of jurisdiction before proceeding to hear the suit on the merits amounts to an irregularity open to the High Court to interfere in revision. 152 I.C. 369=1934 M. 617 (1). Order allowing plaintiff to withdraw suit on grounds not covered by O. 23, r. 1. See 25 A.L.J. 870=103 I.C. 229=1927 A. 704; 25 A.L.J. 838=103 I.C. 372. See also 145 I.C. 222=1933 O. 255; 147 I.C. 441=1934 A. 214; 1935 A. 284=153 I.C. 684. Where a mortgage bond was on the face of it discharged, and in the possession of the obligor, it was however, held to be a material irregularity to make the latter prove the fact of discharge. It was for the plaintiff, who sued on mortgage to prove the loss of the document and further to show that the debt was subsisting. 163 I.C. 809=1936 M. 526. See also 61 C.L.J. 18=1935 C. 710. Where the lower Court in framing the issues, definitely places the burden of proof wrongly and refuses to recast the issues correctly, where the matter is one of considerable importance, the High Court will properly interfere in revision. 158 I.C. 601=1935 M. 784=69 M.L.J. 239. See also 50 L.W. 459=1939 Mad. 733=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 44. A Court does not act illegally or with material irregularity in refusing to dispose of certain issues in a case as preliminary issues without going into the merits of the whole case, when the issues in question are not clear cut issues of law but are mixed up with questions of fact. 1939 P.W.N. 341=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 564. It is a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction, if the Court holds that the defendant has admitted a certain claim of the plaintiff when the defendant has not done any such thing; it is also a material irregularity to hold an item proved which the trial Court has held not proved without stating on what evidence the appellate Court relies for the proof of the item. 41 P.L.R. 492=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 470. When the only issue tried by the lower Court is not one upon which the dispute between the parties can be properly adjudicated, Court acts with material irregularity. 7 Bom. L.R. 12 (16). Where in disposing of an objection under O. 21, r. 58, C. P. Code, the Court failed to decide the only real issue, namely, the question of possession; and decided the other issue as to title, held, that the Court had acted with material irregularity and it was a proper case for interference in revision. 132 I.C. 666=1931 L. 666. See also 1938 Rang. 319. The expression, "material irregularity" was held to include an irregularity of procedure materially affecting the merits of the case. 13 C. 225. Where the decree in suit is contrary to the judgment and the terms of a compromise filed by the parties and the Court rejects an application for correction under section 152, C. P. Code, it is open to the High Court to interfere in revision with the order of the lower Court. 134 I.C. 1009=1931 O. 422. But a wrong interpretation of a deed of compromise filed in the execution proceedings does not amount to a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. 1935 L. 971. Material irregularity—Application under O. 21, r. 89—Deficient sum deposited—Same due to miscalculation of Court Officer—Objection raised after 30 days—Court refusing permission to depositor to deposit deficient amount—Interference in revision. 33 C.W.N. 1170=1930 C. 249. See also 28 C. 574 (583); 1928 M.W.N. 49. Where the Court did not consider the question of extension of time under section 5, Limitation Act, held that it acted with material irregularity in rejecting the appeal as having been filed out of time. 1933 L. 260=145 I.C. 153; 40 Bom. L.R. 152=1938 Bom. 209 (order dismissing an application in disregard of section 4, Lim. Act). A mere error in law is not an illegality or material irregularity. 23 B. 177. See also cases under "Error of Law". If the Subordinate Court follows the decision of other High Courts in preference to those of its own High Court, it acts in the exercise of its jurisdiction with material irregularity. 11 P. 616=140 I.C. 572=1932 P. 346. Where there is a wilful disregard or conscious violation of a rule of law or procedure, the case is one of material irregularity calling for interference in revision under section 115, C. P. Code. 59 B. 430=156 I.C. 662=37 Bom.L.R. 241=1935 B. 222. An order by the Full Bench of the Presidency Small Cause Court, allowing an application under section 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act and sending the case back for retrial, which order is influenced by what was told them in their private room at an ex parte enquiry, is improper and ought to be set aside in revision. 62 C. 289. Granting leave under section 20 (b) without issuing notice to opposite party does not amount to acting in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference in revision. 1933 L. 266. But where an order under section 24 (1) directing the transfer of a suit is passed without notice, it is tainted with material irregularity. 1931 A.L.J. 1061. Where the result of an erroneous decision is to perpetuate the error and cause multiplicity of suits not for one year but for all time, the High Court would be justified in interfering in revision. 115 I.C. 351=56 M.L.J. 273. See also 1931 M. 511. Rent decree executed as money decree for want of proper parties—Simultaneous attachment and proclamation of sale—No notice to judgment-debtor—Encumbrance not mentioned—Price fetched inadequate—High Court could interfere in revision. 1929 P. 588. Where in such a matter the Court, after due inquiry under O. 21, r. 17, directs the release of part of the land and to order the sale of only so much as was necessary to satisfy the decree, there is no ground justifying interference in revision. 153 I.C. 1024 (1)=1935 P. 143. The mere fact that notice did not proceed in the peculiar way prescribed in section 61 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, does not deprive the Court of jurisdiction or vitiate the trial under that section and does not call for interference in revision. 59 C. 311=36 C.W.N. 530=1932 C. 441. Execution sale—Order setting aside in contravention of statutory requirements as to deposit—Revision. See 39 C. W.N. 913. An order contravening provisions of O. 21, rr. 89 and 92 is an illegal exercise of jurisdiction and is a material irregularity within section 115 (c). 1930 A. 843. Confirmation of a sale in execution before an application under O. 21, r. 90 by the judgment-debtor has been decided is a material irregularity which adversely affects the judgment-debtor. 1933 A. 137=145 I.C. 732. There is no material irregularity in a Court confirming a sale to a decree-holder, who did not happen to go herself to the auction, but sent her husband who did not have a proper power of attorney to act on her behalf; hence the order confirming the sale is not open to revision. 1935 R. 521. As to order refusing to proceed with execution of decree on plea of uncertified adjustment, see 1935 R. 481. Where in a petition under O. 21, r. 100, the lower Court asked the decree-holder to begin his case and examine his witness before the examination of the claimant's witnesses, it is a serious irregularity which justifies interference in revision. 132 I.C. 301=1931 M. 534. See also 1932 M. 513 (Proceedings under section 53, Provincial Insolvency Act). An inference based on a mere conjecture is vitiated by material irregularity. 1931 R. 318. Omitting to give grounds for allowing to bring fresh suit, while suit is withdrawn is material irregularity and therefore revision lies. 34 C.W.N. 912=1931 C. 107. If grounds are given, they cannot be scrutinized in revision. 125 I.C. 580. Order consolidating two suits against the wishes of the parties and when the issues and the evidence in them had little in common can be raised. 13 Pat.L.T. 726=1933 P. 61. A Court acts with material irregularity when it sends a suit for trial to the wrong Court. 138 I.C. 136=1932 M. 217. Security-bond given for grant of succession certificate—Application for its assignment—Rejection without perusing bond. See 154 I.C. 816=1935 A. 705. The failure of a Court to fix a time for payment of process amounts to a material irregularity; and if the Court, which has not fixed a time for the same, dismisses a suit under O. 9, r. 2, C.P.Code, for failure to pay process-fees, the High Court will interfere in revision and set aside the order of dismissal. 158 I.C. 250.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—ABUSE OF PROCESS OF COURT.—Where in a mortgage suit a preliminary decree was passed and the judgment-debtors failed to pay up the amount and thereupon the plaintiff applied for a final decree but the parties were absent on that date and the Court dismissed the suit under O. 9, R. 3, and the plaintiffs subsequently applied under section 151 praying for the setting aside of the order, held, that the Court had no power to dismiss the suit but should have proceeded to pass the final decree. Held also, that the order of dismissal was an abuse of the process of the Court and could be rectified in an application under section 115. 8 Luck. 496=10 O.W.N. 293=1933 O. 229. Arbitrators in a case claimed a certain amount as their fees for their work. The Court reduced the amount to less than 1/7th without giving any opportunity for the arbitrators to put up their case. Held, that failure of the Court to hear the arbitrators fell within purview of Cl. (c) of section 115. (53 I.A. 27, Rel. on). 160 I.C. 361 (2)=1936 Sind 1. When executing Court did not give any consideration to the question whether the Collector's proposal ought to be confirmed in the circumstances, but proceeded to adopt it as a matter of course, the Court failed to exercise judicially the discretion which is vested in it under section 72, C.P.Code. It amounted to a material irregularity. 1935 L. 964. Where the Court dismisses an application for restoration of a suit dismissed in default under the impression that Art. 163, Limitation Act, applies to the case which does not in fact so apply, it constitutes a material irregularity and the order is open to revision. 1935 Pesh. 186. An appellate Court failing to notice an important ground of appeal when dealing with the appeal, commits a material irregularity. 162 I.C. 416=1936 Pesh. 97. It is obligatory on Court to record a proper judgment complying with the requirements of law even in dismissing an appeal under O. 41, r. 11, C.P.Code. Where the appellate Court simply dismisses the appeal with the remark that there was ample material to support the order passed by the trial Court, its order is liable to revision. 38 P.L.R. 431. The Court acts with material irregularity in refusing to allow an amendment under O. 6, R. 17. Where the real question between the parties could not be properly decided without allowing the amendment and where the amendment, if allowed, would prevent a multiplicity of suits on a matter which is rather trivial. 157 I.C. 112=1935 A. 651. Where a judge summarily deals with an application to be added as party to a suit and dismisses it, totally misapprehending the nature of the application he acts with material irregularity. 62 I.A. 257=57 A. 678=39 C.W.N. 1249=1935 P.C. 185 (P.C.).

No revision lies from an order striking out a defendant, as such an order does not decide anything between the parties. 14 I.C. 263; 32 A. 623. So also where parties are added. 64 I.C. 563; 90 I.C. 721. When in a suit the mortgagee claimed land from a third party through the mortgagor and the suit was decreed though the mortgagor was not a party the Court acted with material irregularity. 54 C. 338=99 I.C. 749=52 M.L.J. 368 (P.C.). Where addition of parties causes not only misjoinder of parties, but also causes of action, revision lies. 90 I.C. 721. Where the right to raise an objection as to non-joinder came into existence during the suit, and such objection was not taken in the trial Court, it cannot be raised in revision. 46 I.C. 648. But see 44 I.C. 564. Where an order for addition of parties was made due to devolution of interest during pendency of suit, appeal and not revision is the remedy. 14 C. 716. Addition of parties—Order refusing to make a transposition of parties when open to revision. 34 I.C. 186=20 C.W.N. 712. Where a Court does not apply its mind to real dispute in the case and wanders into discussion of extraneous matters and disallows an application by a person who is directly affected by the result of the suit, to be impleaded as defendant, and, directs him to seek his remedy by separate suit; the order is open to revision. 164 I.C. 882=1936 L. 619.

AMENDMENT OF PLAINT AND PLEADINGS.—The High Court has power to interfere under section 115 with an order directing that a plaint should be amended. 63 I.C. 419. See also 36 P.L.R. 264=1934 L. 974; 8 Luck. 734=1934 O. 352; 1925 M. 188; 1940 O.W.N. 1194=1940 A.W.R. (C.

The refusal of the Court to allow an amendment in order to enable the controversial matter between the parties to be settled once for all amounts to failure to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law. 55 A. 256=1933 A.L.J. 268=1933 A. 374. See also 55 A. 169. If the result of the amendment allowed by the lower Court be to convert the suit into one of another and different character by the addition of the prayer for a relief barred by limitation at the date of plaint it is a case of material irregularity which should be put right by revision. 133 I.C. 497=1931 M. 542=61 M.L.J. 316. A Court is not empowered to accept additional written statement to meet allegations not raised in the plaint. The proper course is to amend the plaint, if allowable, and direct filing of written statement, and frame issues and decide. 30 I.C. 41=29 M.L.J. 53. Where a Court dismisses a suit refusing an opportunity to amend the plaint, if necessary, the High Court can interfere under section 115. 1 P.L.T. 188; 55 I.C. 445; 22 M.L.J. 136=12 I.C. 173; 15 L.W. 667=68 I.C. 167; 98 I.C. 458=1927 M. 212. See also 1932 M. 603=141 I.C. 420. AMENDMENT OF DECREE.—See 1941 Oudh 66. Where the lower Court refused an application to amend a decree by inserting a provision for the taking of accounts mentioned in the award in accordance with which the decree was passed, held, that the omission to incorporate that provision was accidental, that the order of the lower Court may be set aside and application for amendment allowed in revision. 34 P.L.R. 802. It is the settled practice of the Patna High Court that the revisional powers of the High Court are not exercised in cases in which a party entitled to appeal has not appealed. 18 Pat. 694=20 P.L.T. 492=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 570. Section 115 was only intended to relate to questions of jurisdiction and not to questions of law or construction of document, or a wrong decision by a Judge. These are not matters affecting jurisdiction and cannot constitute sufficient grounds for treating an appeal as an application in revision, when an appeal is expressly prohibited by law. Section 115 is intended only to supplement the Code in relation to matters on which the Code is silent, and not to provide the parties with a right of second appeal. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 342=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 360. Incompetent appeal entertained by appellate Court can be set aside in revision. 25 Bom.L.R. 147=72 I.C. 256. But see 131 I.C. 561=35 C.W.N. 31=1931 C. 425. See also 18 Pat.L.T. 812 (Summary disposal of appeal under O. 41, R. 11); see also 1937 Pat. 349=18 Pat. L.T. 321; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 374 (Order allowing appeal when no appeal lies). 17 Pat.L.T. 815 (Appeal wrongly entertained against non-appealable order). Where the appellate Court rejects a memorandum of appeal on the ground that it is out of time before registering the appeal, the appellate Court assumes a jurisdiction which it does not possess, as the Civil Procedure Code does not authorize the appellate Court to pass such order at that stage. The order rejecting the appeal can therefore be interfered with in revision under section 115. 42 C.W.N. 72=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 732.

=38 P.L.R. 121=1936 L. 538. So also in the case of an order passed under section 19, Arbitration Act, 1936, section 205. Order appointing arbitrator against party's wish—If revisable. 51 A. 54=115 I.C. 611. Where the parties had agreed that the case should be decided by arbitration and counsel for parties made statements before the Court giving the names of the two persons whom to appoint arbitrator but the statements were silent as to what was to happen in case both the persons refused to act and there was no express provision that the Court would have no power to appoint a third arbitrator and the Court appointed a third arbitrator on refusal of the named arbitrators, held that there was no material irregularity and that the fact that the Court had misinterpreted the statements of counsel on a point of law would not justify interference in revision. 151 I.C. 148=1934 A.L.J. 711=1934 A. 368.

AWARD.—The order of a Court decreeing a suit in terms of an award is not open to revision. 152 I.C. 90=11 O.W.N. 1203=1934 O. 494; 38 P.L.R. 783. No revision is maintainable against an order passing a decree in terms of an award. 190 I.C. 257=1940 O.W.N. 794. A Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in placing a construction on an award which is not in accordance with the evidence given by the arbitrator himself. 39 P.L.R. 582. Where only some of the arbitrators take part in the hearing, but no objection is then taken and the merits of the award are not affected thereby, an order confirming such award is not open to revision on this ground. 38 L.W. 927=1933 M. 862=65 M.L.J. 755. See also 1933 M. 697=65 M.L.J. 376. Where the Judge refuses to consider the objections to an award though filed within time, he refuses to exercise a jurisdiction which vests in him, and a revision application against it should be allowed. 142 I.C. 835=1933 R. 38; 30 S.L.R. 271=1936 S. 172. See also 1937 M. 405=45 L.W. 405; 170 I.C. 487=1937 Sind 171. Where in superseding an award the Court acted illegally and with material irregularity, the High Court could interfere in revision. 20 A.L.J. 125=64 I.C. 934=1922 A. 69; 192 I.C. 371; 27 A.L.J. 918=1929 A. 743. On this point, see also 87 I.C. 371; 133 I.C. 416=1931 A. 721; 133 I.C. 465=1931 A.L.J. 727=1931 A. 659. The scope of S. 115 is very limited and the High Court cannot interfere in revision merely because the lower Court has taken a mistaken view as to what does or does not constitute misconduct on the part of the arbitrator. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 659=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 386. Where a Court overrules objections raised against the validity of an award in arbitration on the ground that no leave of Court was obtained under O. 32, r. 7, C. P. Code, and directs a decree to be drawn up in terms of the award, dismissing an application to set aside the award, its order is revisable by the High Court under S. 115, provided it is shown that the Court below has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested or has acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity. The order of reference to arbitration which has been made without the leave of the Court being expressly recorded is itself open to revision. 41 Bom.L.R. 485=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 296. Where an award is impugned on the ground that the arbitrator held his enquiry in the absence of the objector and the latter applies to the Court to summon the arbitrator as a witness to substantiate his allegation, the refusal of Court so to do is not only a material irregularity but is an illegality and the order passed by the Court filing the award and passing a decree on its basis is improper. 145 I.C. 329=34 P.L.R. 397=1933 L. 538. Where after the matter in dispute in suit was referred to arbitration and an award passed the objections of the petitioner were rejected and the Court proceeded under Sch. II, para. 16 to pronounce judgment according to the award, held, that the order was of an interlocutory nature and incapable of being revised. The arbitration proceedings are merely a portion of a branch of a suit and a part of a suit cannot be a "case" within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code. (Case-law discussed.) 143 I.C. 309=34 P.L.R. 651=1933 L. 692; 38 P.L.R. 121=160 I.C. 1052=1936 L. 538. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 490=1939 Bom. 279; 1937 All. 65=1936 A.L.J. 1333 (F. B.); 163 I.C. 380=38 P.L.R. 725=1936 L. 466. Revision is not maintainable against an order setting aside an arbitration award while the case has not been fully decided. 164 I.C. 722=1936 A.L.J. 517. An order passed under Sch. II, para. 15, setting aside an award is not revisable. 34 Bom.L.R. 376=138 I.C. 215=1932 B. 232. Where a Court sets aside an award of arbitration on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrators its order is not open to revision. 47 B. 721=73 I.C. 464; 43 A. 101=59 I.C. 667; 59 I.C. 811=45 B. 832; 1929 L. 688; 1931 A.L.J. 842; 157 I.C. 1017=1935 A. 456; 1939 O.W.N. 716=1939 Oudh 238; 1939 O.W.N. 751. Where no notice was given of the filing of the award as required by the rules, the High Court can interfere in revision with a decree passed in terms of the award. 63 I.C. 243. When a Court passing a decree on an award has committed an error in procedure or has misused the jurisdiction prescribed by Sch. II, whether there is revision against the decree. See 64 I.C. 363; 64 I.C. 294; 38 I.C. 769; 105 I.C. 105. If it can be shown that the lower Court acted altogether without jurisdiction in passing a decree in terms of the award, it would be permissible to entertain a revision under S. 115. 146 I.C. 582=10 O.W.N. 1196=1933 O. 547. The High Court is generally reluctant to interfere with awards made in arbitration, the parties having been content to submit the matter in dispute to lay Judges of their own choosing. But if there is a question of jurisdiction involved which is important and which goes to the root of the matter, the High Court may and will interfere to remedy injustice. 30 S.L.R. 478=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 174. See also 1937 Lah. 63=39 P.L.R. 139. A Court which does not follow the provisions of O. 32, R. 7 in a matter of a reference to arbitration by the next friend of a minor plaintiff exercises its jurisdiction with material irregularity, and the High Court can and will interfere in revision under S. 115, even though the question of jurisdiction was not raised in the Court below. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 327=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 178. Where the party has consented to the illegal procedure, he cannot afterwards move the High Court in revision. 135 I.C. 230=1932 A. 154=1931 A.L.J. 1087. Nor where no objection was taken in lower Court to the filing of private award on the ground that it was not registered. 1937 C. 201. Interference in revision is not rightful where there is no irregularity in the proceedings or error in procedure or misuse of a jurisdiction and the decree of the Court is passed according to award of arbitrators. 16 I.C. 996; 28 I.C. 427. The Court on filing an award not containing decision on a point in dispute cannot be considered to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law or failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law. 17 I.C. 33=1912 M.W.N. 1076. Where a Court accepts an award filed by the arbitrator without giving the parties time to file exceptions to the award, there is material irregularity in the exercise of discretion, and the order accepting the award should be set aside. 1933 A.L.J. 149=1933 A. 313. High Court would not interfere with an award, if substantial justice has been done. 1933 A. 924=147 I.C. 746. Where the arbitrators improperly admit crucial evidence in the case, which must strongly affect their minds, the High Court will interfere in revision and set aside the whole award notwithstanding that it has been filed in Court and a decree passed in accordance therewith. 41 L.W. 51=1935 M. 184. High Court should not interfere with the award if no illegality is apparent and the irregularities in procedure are formal. 12 I.C. 269=21 M.L.J. 1005. High Court would not interfere with a decree based on an award on a technical objection. 137 I.C. 151=1932 O. 156. Also in case of arithmetical error in award. 53 M.L.J. 38=103 I.C. 829. It should not interfere unless it finds not only an illegality committed but some substantial harm resulting from that illegality. 61 M.L.J. 761=34 L. W. 725. Whether revision lies from order refusing to give opportunity to party to produce evidence in support of objections to award, see 37 I.C. 400; 53 A. 778=1931 A. 761. High Court has power to revise the proceedings of the lower Court after the delivery of the award to it and can rectify any illegality or material irregularity in the lower Court's procedure in dealing with the award. 34 I.C. 845=9 S.L.R. 183. See also 50 I.C. 52=4 P.L.J. 267; 65 I.C. 50. But where the ground of attack on an award has failed and the Court has refused to set aside the award under para. 16 (1) of the second schedule a decree must be passed in accordance with the award and a finality attaches to such a decree and the matter cannot be allowed to be challenged in revision. 1931 A.L.J. 906=1932 A. 76; 1936 O. 1=11 Luck. 441=1935 O.W.N. 1036. Where suit is decreed in terms of award, the fact that the Court rejected the application of the applicants to withdraw the matter from the arbitrator wrongly thinking that it had no jurisdiction to do so, is no ground for interference in revision. 157 I.C. 649=1935 O.W.N. 920=1936 O. 150. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 34 (Award of fees to arbitrator by Court).

BOARD OF REVENUE.—The Board of Revenue have no authority under S. 115 to call for the record of cases disposed of under the Oudh Rent Act and pass such orders thereon as it may think fit. 1937 O.W.N. 1164.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—A mistake as to onus of proof gives rise to a revision petition. 41 P.L.R. 513=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 562. See also 1941 Rang. 244. Where a statute specifically puts the burden of proof upon a certain party, the Court in placing the burden of proof the other way is acting with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction, and the High Court may in a proper case interfere in revision to set right an issue framed in such a manner as to disregard the statutory provision regarding burden of proof. To disregard the direction of the statute with regard to burden of proof is a perverse decision and conscious departure from the rule of procedure. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 644=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 334.

"CASE DECIDED."—A "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115 might fall within the category of orders passed in the assumption of jurisdiction not vested in the Court by law. Where an invasion of vested rights of the subject is threatened by a Court assuming a jurisdiction which it does not possess, and it is about to resort to the use of the machinery at its disposal, the High Court will, as a superior Court, exercise its powers under S. 115, and will not restrict its jurisdiction. 41 Bom.L.R. 490=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 279. Meaning of—Order under S. 10 of the Religious Endowment Act—Revision—Powers of interference. 40 M. 793=33 M.L.J. 69 (P.C.). Order deciding that Sikh Gurdwara Act applies terminates proceedings and revision lies. 8 L. 362=1927 L. 394. "Case" is not defined in the Code; it cannot be confined to litigation in which there is a plaintiff who seeks to obtain a particular relief against a defendant before the Court, but includes an ex parte application praying that persons in the position of trustees or officials should perform their trust or discharge their judicial duties. 40 M. 793 (P.C.); 1937 All. 691. See also 1938 O.W.N. 1054 (Revision of orders under S. 3 of Charitable and Religious Trusts Act). The word "case" in S. 115 is a word of wider import than such words as "suit" or "appeal". 40 B. 86=33 I.C. 358; 48 B. 43; 41 C. 632; 1936 S. 205. The word "case" does not necessarily mean "suit" but can mean a proceeding. If any proceeding in a suit has terminated it is certainly a case decided within the meaning of S. 115 although the suit itself has not been finally disposed of. 1929 A. 743=51 A. 1010. In the case of a suit, it is the suit itself and not any branch of it which can be regarded as a "case". But proceedings before the commencement of a suit as well as proceedings after a suit has come to an end, being proceedings independent of the suit, must stand on a different footing. 11 Luck. 529=1936 O. 22=1935 O.W.N. 1158 (F.B.). The words used in S. 115 do not contemplate the invoking of the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court in the case of interlocutory orders passed during the trial of a pending suit. 11 Luck. 529 (F.B.). A case must be something complete in itself so that it may be treated as independent matter. 1929 A. 957. Where the Court below decides that it should proceed with a suit, it does not decide a case within the meaning of S. 115 and no revision lies. 1929 A. 957. The words "case decided by a Court" mean a matter which has been disposed of effectually by the Court and not merely for the time being. A purely ad interim order that does not effectually dispose of the matter before the Court would not be case decided. 51 A. 957=1929 A. 581. See also 1941 O.W.N. 1136. The decision on a single issue by a subordinate Court in a suit which is still pending in that Court is not a "case" decided. 43 A. 564=63 I.C. 15. See also 138 I.C. 30=1932 O. 271. See also 1941 Mad. 84=(1941) 2 M. L.J. 606. The High Court will not ordinarily entertain revision applications against decisions on issues which are not decisions of the whole suit. But where such a decision relates to the question of the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the suit and it relates to a matter which, if decided wrongly, would result in an elaborate trial which would otherwise be unnecessary, the High Court will interfere in revision. 52 L.W. 522=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 606. Where the matter under revision is still under investigation and the lower Court has not finally decided any question, and the points raised by the petitioner can still be urged before the lower Court, it would be undesirable to interfere in revision even if the High Court had the power to interfere. 21 Pat. L.T. 629=187 I.C. 838. Proceedings relating to question of stay can be treated as a "case". 132 I.C. 222=1931 L. 503. See also 1937 All. 658. An application under S. 10 for the stay of a suit is not a "case" and an order for stay passed on that application is not the decision of a case within S. 115. 58 I.C. 90=42 A. 409. An order setting aside an order rejecting an appeal for failure of the appellant to give security for costs is not open to revision when it is made in the interests of justice. 42 A. 626=60 I.C. 81. An order of a Small Cause Court returning the plaint for presentation to proper Court is a "case decided". 1932 A.L.J. 1068=1933 A. 106. See also 42 P.L.R. 364 (Order returning appeal for presentation to proper Court); "case" includes interlocutory orders. I.L.R. 1940 Nag. 463. The refusal by a Court to adjourn the hearing of a suit in order to enable the applicant to pay the Court-fee is not an order which should be revised by the High Court. 45 A. 218=60 I.C. 921; 64 I.C. 211. Dismissal for default. See 53 C. 827. The High Court has power to interfere in revision with an order for the payment of deficit Court-fee, if it is convinced that the order is not supportable under the law and is passed in the illegal exercise of jurisdiction by the Court below. The fact that the plaintiff would have a right of appeal after the plaint has been rejected, on his non-compliance with the order, is no bar to revision. 60 C.L.J. 469=1935 C. 279=62 C. 417.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—(1) "CASE DECIDED"—WHAT IS.—No revision lies from an order merely refusing to allow an amendment of a pleading. Cases where the amendment comes under some other order of the Code, for example, the addition or substitution of parties, or striking off a pleading may amount to a case decided; but an order passed purely under O. 6, r. 17 is not. 165 I.C. 1=1936 A.L.J. 923=1936 A. 686 (F.B.). Where the effect of refusal of permission to amend a plaint is to shut out a part of the plaintiff's claim it is a "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115, and where the effect of allowing a revision in a matter in which an appeal might also lie will be a convenience to the parties and will save expense, the Court will interpret S. 115 liberally. A.I.R. 1940 N. 302=1940 N.L.J. 340. See also 1941 N. 289. Where the effect of an order of the Court is definitely to debar the plaintiff from proving a part of his claim by refusing an amendment which did not alter the nature of his suit, that is a final decision of the Court on that part of his case and is a "case decided". 55 A. 256=145 I.C. 859=1933 A.L.J. 268=1933 A. 374. A Court in framing issues or refusing to frame issues is deciding a case, if onus of proof is involved in the form of the issues. 163 I.C. 809=1936 M. 526. The dismissal of an application by the defendant to have the issue relating to the jurisdiction of the Court decided in the first instance amounts to a "case decided". 146 I.C. 792=1933 A.L.J. 707=1933 A. 753. An order of Court refusing to allow an amendment of the plaint amounts to "a case decided". 1934 A.L.J. 989; 157 I.C. 112 = 1935 A. 651; 1935 A.M.L.J. 100. Where an amendment comes under some provision other than O. 6, r. 17, e.g., 'the addition or substitution of parties or striking off a pleading' the order may amount to a 'case decided.' Where an application is in fact and in substance one to elucidate the array of the parties as described in the plaint, it is not an application for amendment of a pleading and the rejection of such an application constitutes the decision of a case within the meaning of S. 115, and is revisable by the High Court. I.L.R. (1940) All. 564 = 1940 A.L.J. 445 = A.I.R. 1940 All. 448. An order returning the plaint for representation in another Court can be revised. 144 I.C. 828. See also 17 N.L.J. 169 = 1934 N. 259. Where the order sought to be revised marked the termination of a definite state of a proceeding in a suit a "case" should be deemed to have been decided so as to attract the application of S. 115. 147 I.C. 782 = 3 A.W.R. 119 = 1934 A.L.J. 126 = 1934 A. 25. The order of the trial Court directing the payment of additional Court-fees amounts to a "case decided". (Case-law discussed.) 55 A. 274 = 1933 A.L.J. 311 = 1933 A. 350; 154 I.C. 520 = 1935 A.L.J. 376 = 1935 A.W.R. 368 = 1935 A. 455. But see contra 158 I.C. 949 = 1935 O.W.N. 1158 (F.B.). An order to amend the decree is different from the amended decree and a revision lies from the former order. 147 I.C. 633 = 1934 A. 100 (2). See also 1941 O.W.N. 1136. The question whether an application to sue as a pauper dismissed for default is properly restored could not be raised in an appeal from a decree passed in the suit and therefore there is a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115 and an application in revision will lie in respect of it. 1941 O. 367 = 1941 O.W.N. 678. The proceedings on an application for permission to sue as a pauper are anterior to, and independent of, the suit and an order under O. 33, r. 7, whether it grants or rejects the application, terminates those proceedings and is a "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115, C.P. Code, and is open to revision on any of the grounds mentioned in that section. 43 P.L.R. 82. An application for pauperism may be treated as a case within S. 115, but a mere admission of the petition cannot be so treated. 150 I.C. 561 (1) = 1934 L. 401 (2). See also 1941 O.A. 427; 1937 O.W.N. 971 = 1937 Oudh 481. An order of the District Judge refusing to grant an absolute discharge to an insolvent cannot form the subject of second appeal. It can however be the subject of revision. 150 I.C. 80 = 35 P.L.R. 114 = 1934 L. 198. The proceedings for a temporary injunction are taken under O. 39 and must be deemed to be "a case" and therefore open to revision as they do not directly affect the ultimate decision of the suit one way or the other. 1933 L.

1046. The word 'case' used in S. 115 is wide enough to include an interlocutory order and the High Court will interfere even in the case of such orders provided they otherwise fulfil the requirements of S. 115. 175 I.C. 107 = I.L.R. 1940 Nag. 463 = A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 210. An order by Court holding the suit of a plaintiff time-barred in respect of certain reliefs claimed by him is a 'case decided' to that extent. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 507. The dismissal of an application to treat a time-barred appeal as a cross-objection to the appeal by the opposite party is not a decree but only an order which is open to revision by the High Court. 15 L. 641 = 1934 L. 273. A revision against an order refusing a review is not incompetent. 151 I.C. 568 = 1934 A.L.J. 937 = 1934 A. 971. See also 148 I.C. 496 = 1934 A. 250. As to order holding vakalatnama liable for stamp duty, see 58 B. 597 = 36 Bom. L.R. 658 = 1934 B. 299. Where a partner of firm which was being sued against was not permitted to cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses and to produce evidence for defence as any other defendant, the order passed by the lower Court was not in accordance with law and its decision that the defendant was not entitled to take part in the conduct of the case amounted to a "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115. 55 A. 719 = 1933 A.L.J. 1264 = 1933 A. 523.

"CASES DECIDED"—WHAT ARE NOT.—When a Court grants an application for a certain amendment it cannot be said that a case has been decided within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code. 152 I.C. 886 = 1934 A.L.J. 757 = 1934 A. 785. The decision of the Court below under S. 10 that it has jurisdiction amounts to a mere finding on a question of law which is the subject-matter of issue and cannot be treated as being in itself a "case decided". The mere fact that a separate application for a stay of the proceedings has also been dismissed would not confer jurisdiction on High Court. 149 I.C. 176 = 1934 A.L.J. 702 = 1934 A. 520. No application in revision will lie against an order of a Judge under S. 10 refusing to stay proceedings and directing a suit to proceed. Such an order is not a case decided within the meaning of S. 115. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 291. A mere decision as to the amount of the Court-fees payable does not amount to a "case decided" nor is it necessarily an irregularity in procedure or illegality or a refusal to exercise jurisdiction. 149 I.C. 1183 = 1934 A.L.J. 381 = 1934 A. 620 (F. B.). No revision lies from an order refusing to take up and decide an issue of law before the evidence is commenced. Such an order does not amount to a case having been decided. 1934 A.L.J. 1204 = 1934 A. 986. An order giving leave to defend conditionally under O. 37, r. 3, C.P. Code, is an interlocutory order and does not amount to a "case decided" within the purview of S. 115, C.P. Code. Even assuming the order not to be an interlocutory order, the Court cannot be said to act illegally or with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in giving leave to defend conditionally, and the order is not, therefore, open to revision under S. 115. I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 289=40 P.L.R. 69=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 548. Where an order is passed setting aside the award of the arbitrator and directing the parties to produce evidence, there is no case decided but only a case pending and no revision lies under S. 115, C.P. Code. But where the High Court has given certain directions to the lower Court as to how it should proceed in hearing the parties and considering the objections to the award and the lower Court has not carried out those directions and has purported to act in a different manner, the High Court has under the provisions of S. 107 of the Government of India Act power and jurisdiction to set aside the order of the lower Court setting aside the award and to direct it to carry out its orders already given. 154 I.C. 310=1935 A.L.J. 309=1935 A.W.R. 244=1935 A. 519. See also 1938 A.L.J. 813=1938 All. 557 (F.B.); 1939 Sind 241=183 I.C. 724 (F.B.); 1941 N.L.J. 333. The question whether the award is bad on the face of it or whether there is misconduct on the part of the arbitrators is entirely a question for the trial Judge. The order of the Judge that the award cannot stand is entirely within his jurisdiction. Besides, such order is not open to revision under S. 115, C.P. Code, because it is not a case which has been decided but is in the nature of an interlocutory order preceding the hearing of the case itself. 152 I.C. 309=15 Pat.L.T. 693=1934 P. 550. Orders allowing applications under O. 9, r. 9, C.P. Code, should only be sparingly interfered with. 152 I.C. 110=11 O.W.N. 1373=1934 O. 491. See also 151 I.C. 765=1934 M. 681=67 M.L.J. 485; 1938 Sind 76. The order of a Court dismissing the application of a party to be made a party to a suit under O. 34, r. 1, though interlocutory, has decided a case and a revision petition lies against such an order. 13 Luck. 625=1938 O. 10=1937 O.W.N. 1118. Whether a decision that an application is maintainable can be called "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115, is at least open to doubt. 1936 N. 280. Orders relating to an application for restoration of proceedings dismissed in default constitute a 'case' within the meaning of S. 115. 161 I.C. 212=1936 L. 618. Where an execution application is dismissed for default of a decree-holder and an application to restore the execution petition is also dismissed, revision from the order of dismissal of the execution petition does not lie. 1934 L. 349. See also 62 C. 417=1935 C. 279. As to rejection of plaint in part, see 1936 L. 1021. A decision in a pending suit that certain evidence is inadmissible does not amount to a "case" decided within the meaning of S. 115. 18 N.L.J. 132. So also order disallowing certain questions put to a witness.

COURT-FEE AND VALUATION OF SUIT—CONFLICT OF RULINGS.—The general practice in all the High Courts is not to interfere with interlocutory orders unless when such order may result in irreparable injury to one or other of the parties. When a suit is allowed to proceed on an insufficient Court-fee it is not either of the litigant parties who suffers but the revenue. It is not the object of a fiscal statute to enable litigants to be defeated on technicalities. 15 P. 340=17 Pat. L. T. 9=1936 P. 85. See also 18 Pat. L. T. 864. The High Court has power to interfere and will interfere in revision against an erroneous decision of the trial Court adverse to the plaintiff in the matter of Court-fee. The question of Court-fee is not a matter which really concerns the defendant, though he may raise that question, and the Court in deciding a question of Court-fee is deciding an issue not as between the plaintiff and the defendant, but is deciding an issue as between the Crown and the plaintiff. If the decision be adverse to the plaintiff, it amounts to a refusal to exercise the jurisdiction to try the issues as between the plaintiff and the defendant, and is subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under S. 115. Where, however, the decision is in favour of the plaintiff, it is not open to the defendant to apply to the High Court in revision, because in the first place he is not a party to the dispute between the Crown and the plaintiff, and, secondly, he has a remedy, should the decision on the merits be against him, in bringing the matter of the Court-fee duty to the notice of the appellate Court under S. 12 of the Court-Fees Act; and, thirdly and most important, as between the plaintiff and the defendant the trial Court has not refused to exercise its jurisdiction to decide the case on the merits. 16 Pat. 766=18 Pat.L.T. 977=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 22 (F.B.). See also 40 P.L.R. 1039=1938 Lah. 80; 1938 N.L.J. 1=1938 Nag. 122 (F.B.). An order of a trial Court determining the proper Court-fee payable on a plaint and holding that it is insufficiently stamped is not revisable by the High Court; and such an order, which by itself does not fall under S. 115, cannot be revised by the High Court merely because it is bound to be followed by some other order which may be without jurisdiction. 49 L.W. 270=A. I. R. 1939 Mad. 380=(1939) 1 M. L. J. 317. The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere in revision with the decision of the lower Court on the question of the classification of the suit for purposes of Court-fee, where such decision has been adverse to the plaintiff. 18 Pat. 267=1939 P.W.N. 197=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 274; 20 Pat. 780. The

NOTES.

High Court, no doubt, generally does not interfere with a decision in a matter of Court-fee which is favourable to the plaintiff, when there is only a simple question involved as to how much Court-fee the plaintiff shall pay. But where a question of jurisdiction is raised and that expressly depends on a decision as to the proper Court-fee, the High Court can and will interfere in revision to prevent the trial of a case by a Court which has no jurisdiction, when an appellate Court has wrongly directed that Court to assume a jurisdiction which it has not got. 52 L.W. 146=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 821=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 176. Where a preliminary issue, as regards Court-fee, has been fully decided, the order is an order deciding a case and is open to revision. (55 A. 274, Foll.) 148 I.C. 908 (1)=11 O.W.N. 617=1934 O. 212 (2). See also 42 C.W.N. 192. In a case where there is a mere matter of valuation and the Judge applies his mind and comes to a decision, the Judge having exercised his jurisdiction no appeal will lie against the quantum of stamp duty which he directs shall be payable. But where the question is as to the particular category into which the suit falls, i.e., whether duty is payable upon the suit as belonging to a particular class or whether another duty is payable as belonging to another class and the Court decides that the case falls into a class other than that contended for by the applicant and therefore is liable to payment of an amount which is larger than that which the plaintiff contends for, and refuses to entertain the suit until the higher duty is paid, it amounts to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction under legal grounds and therefore it is a matter proper for revision. 152 I.C. 1003=1934 P. 641. An order made by the lower appellate Court, before it dismisses the appeal for default, directing the appellant to make good deficient Court-fee is not open to revision because it cannot be said that the order was passed without jurisdiction, or that the Court acted illegally or with material irregularity or exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law. 151 I.C. 292=11 O.W.N. 1040=1934 O. 396. Where a favourable decision has been given as regards Court-fee to the plaintiff, the High Court has no power of revision either under S. 115, C. P. Code, or under S. 107, Government of India Act. It is immaterial whether the applicant is the defendant or the Government. 56 M. 744=65 M.L.J. 25=144 I.C. 516. Quære.—Where Government is not a party to the suit, it is doubtful whether a petition for revising the order as to Court-fee favourable to the plaintiff can be presented by Government. 56 M. 744=65 M.L.J. 25. Questions of Court-fee if they involve questions of jurisdiction are revisable. 134 I.C. 816=34 L.W. 252=1931 M. 716. Also where they bear upon the value of suit for purposes of jurisdiction. 1936 M. 411=70 M.L.J. 398. Also where the decision is wrong, and results in a refusal to exercise jurisdiction vested in it. 163 I.C. 462=1936 Pesh. 140. A revision petition is competent and lies against an order directing payment of additional Court-fees. 1937 A.M.L.J. 28. An order to pay additional Court-fee is an interlocutory order and cannot be the subject of a revision. 39 P.L.R. 819=18 Lah. 430. When it is a question of principle to be applied to the levying of Court-fees, the High Court may interfere in revision. 142 I.C. 195 (1)=1933 M. 367. An order under S. 149 requiring the plaintiffs to pay the additional Court-fee is not open to revision. 51 I.C. 581; 104 I.C. 145=1927 M. 1021 (2)=53 M. 452; 102 I.C. 877. COMMISSION.—Order issuing commission for examination of plaintiff may be interfered with in revision. 3 P. 863=6 P.L.T. 520; 1927 M. 524. The Court has jurisdiction to dispose of the application for examination of witnesses on commission. An order rejecting the application cannot be said to be without jurisdiction nor can the Judge be considered to have exercised it illegally or with material irregularity only because he took an erroneous view on a question arising in the case. An interlocutory order like the one in question cannot be said to amount to a "decision" of the case within the meaning of S. 115. 1934 A. 37 (2). See also (1938) 1 M.L.J. 769. Jurisdiction—Irregular exercise of—Application for commission—Pardanishin lady living beyond jurisdiction—Order refusing application and insisting on examination at place of Court—Revision lies. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 21. An order refusing to issue without sufficient reason, a commission for the further cross-examination of a witness partly cross-examined and who happened to live more than 200 miles away, is also subject to revision, the ground being that much harm may accrue to a party from such a refusal. 1938 A.M.L.J. 123. Where a witness cited by a party to the suit is a public servant in Government employ and serving at a place more than 200 miles from the Court where the suit is pending, O. 16, R. 19 is a bar to the Court obtaining the presence of the witness by summoning. In such a case, the Court should exercise its discretion by issuing a commission to examine that witness especially when the witness is an important witness though he may be the husband of a party to the suit. If the Court in such a case refuses a commission, it acts with material irregularity and the High Court will interfere in revision under S. 115. 21 Pat.L.T. 197=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 437. Where a defendant who has made a counter-claim applies to be examined on commission the mere advantage of observing the defendant's demeanour in the box is not a sufficient reason for refusing a commission. The failure to distinguish between applications of the plaintiff and of the defendant in such a matter is an irregular exercise of jurisdiction in which the High Court can interfere in revision. 57 M. 705=67 M.L.J. 95.

CONSTRUCTION OF DOCUMENT.—If there is a misinterpretation of the document the concurrent findings of the lower Courts are open to revision by the High Court. 146 I.C. 363=1933 Pesh. 67. The High Court will be reluctant to interfere in revision with a finding on the interpretation of a document unless the lower Court was very clearly wrong. 1935 M. 160=1934 M. W. N. 854=154 I. C. 582. Where a document cannot possibly bear the construction that has been placed by the lower Court on it, the High Court has jurisdiction to revise its decree. 164 I.C. 888=38 P.L.R. 348=1936 L. 801. The High Court will interfere in revision with the decree of the lower Court where it has misunderstood the case and has not considered the effect of a clause in a bond on which the plaintiff relied. 41 P. L.R. 909.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE.—The interpretation of S. 23 of the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act is an important matter coming within the scope of S. 115, and in an appeal from the decision passed by the lower Court in an incompetent first appeal, the High Court will deal with the matter in revision and revise the decision of the first Court. 52 L.W. 646=(1940) 2 M. L. J. 709. See also 52 L.W. 301=1940 Mad. 808=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 291.

COSTS.—The question of costs is principally within the discretion of the Court below and unless the High Court is satisfied that this discretion has been exercised arbitrarily it will not interfere in revision with that discretion. 144 I.C. 76=1933 A. 311. When the Code expressly gives a party a right to perform a certain act through a recognised agent and the Court has not directed him to perform it in person, the Court cannot arbitrarily reject that act and mulct the party in costs because he has chosen to do that which the Code expressly allows him to do. That is a material irregularity on a question of procedure and justifies interference in revision. 193 I.C. 707=A.I.R. 1941 N. 205.

CRIMINAL PROSECUTION.—An order punishing a person for contempt of Court can be revised. 27 A. 380. Also an order granting sanction under S. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. 17 M.L.J. 123. But see also 3 A. 508. An order of a Judge passed under S. 195 or S. 476, Cr. P. Code, is open to revision under this section and not under S. 439, Cr. P. Code. 23 Cr.L.J. 291=1922 A. 438. See also 1923 A. 490 (1); 48 I. C. 499; I. L. R. (1941) Kar. 422; 12 Pat. L. T. 671=1931 P. 411; 1935 Oudh 59; 35 C. W. N. 775=134 I.C. 1063=1931 C. 604; 1931 L. 105. Prosecution order of a Collector under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, while acting under S. 70, C. P. Code, cannot be revised by High Court. 38 I.C. 419=14 A.L.J. 1077. A civil Court does not cease to be a civil Court when it is considering an application made to it under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, in respect of offences, alleged to have been committed in relation to a proceeding in that Court, and if for the purpose of that application it remains a civil Court, it must be governed by the provisions of the C. P. Code. An application for revision arising out of proceedings in a civil suit must therefore be dealt with as a civil revision petition and a similar application arising out of a criminal proceeding must be dealt with as a criminal revision petition. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 762=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 465=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 719 (F.B.). S. 476 confers the power to prosecute. That power is conferred on the Court in which, or in relation to a proceeding in which the offence appears to have been committed, and if that Court refuses to prosecute, then the power is transferred to the appellate Court under S. 476-B. Excepting these two Courts, no other Court, not even the High Court, unless it happens to be the appellate Court contemplated by S. 476-B has power to prosecute. Before a prosecution can be launched, the Court must be of opinion both that an offence appears to have been committed and that it is expedient to prosecute. If the lower Courts consider the matter under Ss. 476 and 476-B and deal with them judicially and come to the conclusion that it is not, in their opinion, expedient in the interests of justice to prosecute, the High Court has no power to compel them to do so. The discretion is theirs and theirs alone. The High Court has no jurisdiction whatever to interfere in revision under S. 115, C. P. Code, however wrong or erroneous the High Court may consider the conclusion to be. The High Court can, it is possible, interfere in revision, if the lower Courts do not consider the matter under these sections or if they direct their minds to matters which are foreign to those sections or if they act arbitrarily or capriciously. 1941 N.L.J. 91=A.I.R. 1941 N. 155. The High Court can revise an order under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, passed by a Civil Court if it fails to specify the charges. 38 A. 695=36 I.C. 836. See also 11 O.W.N. 1469. A petition to revise proceedings under S. 195, Cr. P. Code, of a Civil Court should not be under S. 439, Cr. P. Code. 17 Cr.L.J. 184=33 I. C. 824; contra 19 I.C. 197=40 C. 477. See also 28 I.C. 334=19 C.W.N. 447; 40 C. 477=17 C.L.J. 245=33 I.C. 824; 32 I.C. 330=18 M.L.T. 591. Where the trial Court after an enquiry comes to the conclusion that a defendant in a civil suit ought to be prosecuted under Ss. 193, 465 and 471, I. P. Code, and sends a complaint but on appeal the appellate Court comes to a finding that the materials on the record do not justify the hope that the prosecution would end in conviction and set aside the order of the trial Court the former Court does not act without jurisdiction or irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction and the High Court will not interfere with its order under S. 115, C. P. Code. 152 I.C. 34=1934 A.L.J. 870=1934 A. 1065. Where an order withdrawing the complaint is made by the District Judge, the application in revision against that order is governed by S. 115. 147 I.C. 535=35 Cr.L.J. 432 (2)=1934 P. 55 (1).

DELAY.—Revision is a privilege and not a right and it corresponds to the remedies in England known as Certiorari and Mandamus. The invariable rule in these cases is that a party aggrieved must come to the High Court for relief at the earliest possible moment and also must come with no ulterior purpose. 39 I.C. 570; 43 I.C. 470;

19 C.L.J. 9; 1923 M.W.N. 159=72 I.C. 137. As a general rule the High Court does not entertain revision petitions after three months, but the High Court may, in a proper case, excuse the delay in the exercise of its discretion. 16 L.W. 760=65 I. C. 732. See also 1937 A.L.J. 1181=1938 A. 98=I.L.R. 1938 A. 148; 98 I.C. 723 (1); 1933 L. 175 (Delay of over a year). It is not the usual practice of the High Court to interfere in revision after great delay, e.g., when the application is made more than one year from the date of the order. 142 I.C. 687=33 P.L.R. 1070=1933 L. 175. But where the applicant was not a party to the order which he seeks to revise and the order was passed behind his back and without notice to him, the delay is excusable and should be condoned. 1936 O.W.N. 262=1936 O. 185. A Court is not competent to refuse the issue of a commission for examination of a witness on the ground that the application is made at a late stage and that consequently it might entail an adjournment of the trial. Such refusal amounts to a misdirection and justifies the High Court in interfering with the order in revision. 67 M.L.J. 878=58 M. 400=1935 M. 21. The conclusion of the Court that there has been an unnecessary delay for the claim would not be open to revision by the High Court. But, if without any opportunity having been given to the objectors or their counsel to explain the delay, the Court has dismissed the objections summarily, the Court has acted with material irregularity and the order of dismissal can be set aside in revision. 1933 A.L.J. 1177=1933 A. 751 (1). Considerable delay in filing a petition is not in itself a sufficient ground for rejecting the petition where once it has been admitted to hearing. 1935 L. 120. As to delay of over three years, see 86 I.C. 329. See also 1929 O. 383.

DISCRETION.—It is not open to the High Court in revision to question the discretion exercised by the lower Court, unless it is apparent on the face of the record that the discretion has been arbitrarily and erroneously exercised. 36 P.L.R. 5=150 I.C. 305=1934 L. 807; 19 Pat.L.T. 309; 48 L. W. 517=1938 Mad. 979=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 642; 1939 A.M.L.J. 17; 43 Bom.L.R. 719; 194 I.C. 21; 1937 Pat. 528 (Order exercising discretion under S. 5, Limitation Act). Where the lower Court has passed an order upon a careful consideration by exercising discretion vested in it and upon judicial principles the order cannot be interfered with in revision. 14 Pat.L.T. 252=1933 P. 239. See also 59 C.L.J. 389=1934 C. 780=37 C.W.N. 1093. Where discretion is given to a Court, it has to be exercised judicially and not arbitrarily, and it is open to the High Court to interfere in revision where such Court appears to have exercised this discretion without applying its mind to the case. 1933 A. 957. S. 115 does not apply to a case where the lower Court has considered the matter judicially and has refused to exercise its discretion under S. 151, C. P. Code. In such a case no question of jurisdiction arises at all. But there are circumstances in which the High Court would itself be justified in exercising its discretion under S. 151 and setting aside the lower Court's order. 1935 A. 49. The power to add the name of any person upon whom any interest has devolved as a party to the proceedings is one within the discretion of the Court, hence an order under O. 22, R. 10, adding or refusing to add a party is not subject to revision by the High Court. 43 Bom.L.R. 719. Failure to exercise discretion in excusing delay on insufficient grounds for filing application for review after time falls under this section. 100 I. C. 727=1927 A. 386. Late production of documents—Order excusing delay and admitting documents—Discretionary under O. 13, r. 2—Not revisable. 1930 P. 603. Where an appellate Court refused to admit additional evidence offered three days after the argument was closed, the High Court would not interfere with its order in revision. 67 I.C. 252. The High Court will not interfere in revision with a discretionary order permitting evidence to be adduced under O. 41, r. 27. 33 P.L.R. 330=137 I.C. 513. As to interference in revision with the discretion of lower Court, see 7 Lah.L.J. 290=90 I.C. 632; 85 I.C. 660; 1925 C. 293; 90 I.C. 243=48 A. 199; 83 I. C. 133=1922 A. 218; 1932 C. 831. The High Court will not interfere in revision with the lower Court's order directing the Commissioner to ascertain mesne profits. 16 L.W. 312=74 I.C. 812. Where a subordinate Court not only has made a mistake in law but has entirely misunderstood the nature of the judicial discretion it was called upon to exercise the High Court will interfere in revision under S. 115. 42 M. L. J. 97=45 M. 194; 9 L. W. 166=49 I.C. 268; 26 M.L.J. 467=23 I.C. 572. A High Court ought not to interfere with every exercise of discretion by the Court below, even if no appeal is allowed, but must do so only where there has been a wanton abuse of process. 23 I.C. 522; 31 C.W.N. 653; 32 C.W.N. 128. The issue or a refusal to issue by a subordinate Court, a commission to examine witnesses is not an abuse of process warranting an interference by the High Court. 23 I.C. 522. Where a Judge uses his discretion to grant or refuse leave to institute a suit he does not act illegally nor with material irregularity nor is any question of jurisdiction involved. 17 I.C. 400. As to order imposing condition of security in granting leave to defend under O. 37, r. 3, C. P. Code, see 71 M.L.J. 241=43 L. W. 298=1936 M. 246. The High Court will not interfere in revision with an order for payment of adjournment costs for not complying with a provision of law, when the amount awarded is neither excessive nor unreasonable. 57 I.C. 506. Nor with the lower Court's order to amend issues at a late stage. 1928 M.W.N. 836=113 I.C. 313 (1). An order under O. 1, R. 10 can be revised under S. 115, when the Court fails to exercise a discretion vested in it and when its failure is due to error. 171 I.C. 798=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 338. See also 1937 Pat. 38 (Order rejecting application to be added as intervener). Where a Court summarily rejects a prayer to try a preliminary issue on a point of law and in its summary jurisdiction has not even expressed any opinion as to whether the question of law would be sufficient to dispose of the case, to refuse to exercise the revisional jurisdiction in such case might give rise to the gravest hardship. 17 P.L.T. 253=1936 P. 250. The High Court's interference with the discretion of a Court is confined only to an ignorant or perverse exercise of it. 20 C.W.N. 1080=1 Pat.L.J. 465=37 I.C. 129; 1927 M.W.N. 838; 52 C.L.J. 23=1931 C. 319. Where trial Judge, in the exercise of discretion refuses to stay the suit under S. 19 of the Arbitration Act on the ground that complicated questions of law are likely to arise which can better be determined by the Court than by the arbitrators, the High Court will not interfere in revision with the discretion exercised by him. 163 I.C. 854=38 P.L.R. 846=1936 L. 904.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule that a discretionary order cannot be interfered with in revision. Where amendment of the plaint was applied for before the trial began but the Court refused the same though plaintiff had good grounds, held, in revision that the amendment should be allowed subject to any order for costs that may be made by the lower Court. 1934 C. 102=37 C.W.N. 1093. See also 1935 C. 102=38 C.W.N. 1146. On an application under S. 152, the Court is not bound to correct the decree. The Court has a discretion to make the amendment or not. And in such cases the applicant has no right in revision proceedings to demand an adjudication upon any point; his right is merely to bring the matter to the notice of the High Court and to leave it to the discretion of the Court to interfere, if interference is necessary in the interests of justice. The High Court will not interfere unless the lower Court has exercised its discretion in such a manner that it was obviously wrong and unjust for it to make the order he did. 10 O.W.N. 958=1933 O. 425. See also 1937 Pat. 528. A long delay by the defendants in referring the matter to arbitration justifies the Court in refusing to enforce the clauses of arbitration. And this being a matter of discretion, if no sufficient reason is made out, the High Court will not interfere with it. 1933 L. 1007 (1). Where the Subordinate Judge refused to issue a commission, because it was made too late, the order cannot be revised on the ground that under R. 57 of the Civil Rules of Practice the Judge ought to have satisfied himself that there were sufficient reasons for not making it at the proper time, even though the High Court might have been taken a different view. (9 M. 256, Ref.) 1933 M.W.N. 648. It is for the trial Court to decide in what order it will decide the issues and the High Court will not interfere in revision in order to make a direction on this point. 1933 A. 749. The power to extend time under S. 5, Limitation Act, is discretionary. The High Court will not interfere in revision with an order refusing to grant extension based on certain reasons. 162 I.C. 416=1936 Pesh. 197. See also 19 Pat.L.T. 309. Where a Court refuses to extend the time fixed for payment of deficient Court-fee after expiry of time originally fixed, under an erroneous view that it had no power, its order is open to revision, as it has not exercised any discretion in the matter. 149 I.C. 96=1934 L. 537. Petitioners paid money to avoid attachment of their movables in execution of a decree. On their objections, the execution proceedings were set aside and they applied for refund of money paid under S. 151. The Court refused the application, but the lower appellate Court allowed it. In second appeal it was contended that the lower Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal as the order of lower Court was passed under S. 151. Held, that even assuming that no appeal lay, the High Court was competent to revise the order of the execution Court and that it was equitable that the benefit received by the decree-holder under the execution proceedings should be restored to the petitioners when those proceedings were set aside. 149 I.C. 1105=1934 L. 108. Order granting extension under S. 43, Provincial Insolvency Act—No revision lies. 59 M.L.J. 710=1931 M. 10. Also an order under S. 41 of the same Act. 132 I.C. 525 (1)=1931 L. 672. An order appointing a person as a trustee of a public trust cannot be revised. 1931 A.L.J. 1071=1931 A. 765. Order under Charitable and Religious Trusts Act—Revision. See 40 L. W. 920=1935 M. 56=68 M.L.J. 55. There is nothing to prevent one Court from notifying to another a particular complicated situation and to suggest to it the advisability of staying proceedings before it. The Court in such a case must no doubt attach due weight to such communication and give reasons for refusing to comply with the request. But the Court has a discretion in the matter and such discretion shall not be interfered with unless there is some flagrant miscarriage of justice. 1935 Pesh. 182. On this point, see also 1941 P.W.N. 507; 43 Bom.L.R. 719.

passes an order which he had jurisdiction to make restraining a returning officer from holding an election, the fact that the order passed will result in great inconvenience to the public does not amount to an illegality or material irregularity in the exercise of his discretion. 1933 A.L.J. 759=1933 A. 343. In a suit in an election dispute the High Court cannot interfere in revision with the lower Court's order on grounds which involve nothing more nor less than appreciation of evidence, and decide for itself on the question of fact whether the votes were valid or not valid. The High Court has to confine itself to the question of jurisdiction. 1930 M. 225 (2). The District Judge acting under the Mandatory Election Rules and deciding an objection to an election acts as a persona designata and his decision is not revisable. 11 R. 1. So also a decision under section 15 of the Bombay City Municipal Act. 35 Bom.L.R. 89=1933 B. 105. Orders passed by the District Judge acting under section 79, Burma Penal Self-Government Act, could not be revised. 10 R. 517. Where a sub-judge passes an order on a certain petition in the capacity of an election commissioner, no revision lies against it. 138 I.C. 459=1932 M. 560. See also 1938 Sind 153. As to revision of order of District Judge under Bengal Municipal Act dismissing election petition, see 39 C.W.N. 971.

EVIDENCE.—See 1939 O.A. 425 (finding on un rebutted oral evidence). An application under section 115 to revise the order of refusal to receive documentary evidence by the lower Court does not lie as such order cannot be construed to be decision of a case nor is there any illegality in exercise of the jurisdiction which is vested by law. 145 I.C. 810 (1)=10 O.W.N. 637=1933 O. 345 (1). Where the lower Court had based its decision on the opinion of the hand-writing expert though he had not given sworn testimony in support of the report, held, that the objection to the evidence being received could not be taken for the first time in revision. 150 I.C. 357=1934 L. 230.

EX PARTE DECREE.—Order setting aside ex parte decree is open to revision. See 88 I.C. 46; 52 M.L.J. 477; 90 I.C. 329; 1931 A.L.J. 377=133 I.C. 129=1931 A. 294 (F.B.); 8 C. 832; 53 M.L.J. 110=1927 M. 722; 100 I.C. 836=1927 L. 342; 1940 M.W.N. 1179; 32 S. L.R. 703=1938 Sind 76. A defendant who suffers an ex parte decree to be passed against him and fails to appeal against an order refusing to set aside ex parte decree under O. 9, r. 13 cannot thereafter invoke the revisional powers of the High Court to get the order declining to restore the suit set aside in revision. 18 Pat.L.T. 374. Where the petitioners were declared ex parte, even if the order was wrong on the merits, the High Court has no jurisdiction under section 115, to interfere with such an order. Where a decree is passed after declaring certain persons as ex parte the proper procedure for those persons is to have preferred an appeal against the decree and not to come by way of revision under section 115 against the order declaring them ex parte. 176 I.C. 825=1938 M.W.N. 17=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 217. The High Court will not entertain a revision application against a decree which could come before the High Court in second appeal. An ex parte decree passed by a Court which is subject to appeal and second appeal is not a decree which is subject to revision under section 115. Such a case cannot be said to be a case which has been decided by any Court subordinate to the High Court and in which no appeal lies. 1937 A.L.J. 831=A.I.R. 1937 All. 691. An order purporting to set aside an ex parte decree under O. 9, r. 13 is an order deciding a case within the meaning of section 115, C. P. Code, and revision therefore lies. The fact that an appeal lies against an order made under O. 9, r. 13 refusing to grant an application to set aside an ex parte decree and that no appeal lies against an order granting an application to set aside a decree does not exclude the remedy by revision in the latter case, much more restricted though the remedy by revision is. 32 S.L.R. 703=A.I.R. 1938 Sind 76.

ERROR OF LAW.—Error of law by itself is no ground for revision. 75 I.C. 472=1923 A. 465 (2); 106 I.C. 829=1928 L. 102; 107 I.C. 273 (1). See also 18 A.L.J. 373=58 I.C. 182; 83 I.C. 334=1924 R. 212; 90 I.C. 430; 1912 M.W.N. 993=1 L.W. 59; 38 M. 775; 21 M.L.J. 1013; 100 I.C. 76 (1)=1927 A. 573; 106 I.C. 851=46 C.L.J. 527; 1929 R. 187; 8 O.W.N. 1235=12 L. C.*—An erroneous decision on a question of fact or law does not fall within the purview of section 115. 146 I.C. 777=1933 S. 279 (F. B.). Section 115 applies to jurisdiction alone, the irregular exercise or non-exercise of it or the illegal assumption of it. A mere error of law is not an illegality within the meaning of the section. 142 I.C. 616=10 O.W.N. 259=1933 O. 240. See also 40 P.L.R. 461; 1938 Lah. 357; 16 Pat. 729=1937 Pat. 647; I.L.R. The High Court will not entertain a revision petition directed against an alleged wrong conclusion of law, in which no question of jurisdiction is involved. 36 P.L.R. 177. Where a Court has jurisdiction to determine a question and it determines that question, it cannot be said that it has acted illegally or with material irregularity because it has come to an erroneous decision on a question of fact or even of law. 153 I.C. 996=1934 R. 233. An erroneous decision on a question of law does not amount to an assumption of jurisdiction or to irregular or illegal exercise of jurisdiction. The question whether the Court had wrongly admitted a deed of adoption in evidence without its being properly and duly stamped cannot be raised in revision as it amounts only to an erroneous conclusion on a question of law. 35 P.

Question whether grant was made to one not holding kudivaram is one of fact—Cannot be gone into either in revision or appeal though decision of the question is necessary to see whether suit lies in Civil Court. 1929 M. 259. The fact that the Court passes a wrong order is not sufficient to justify interference. But when the Court is under a complete misapprehension as to the facts before it, it is a proper case for revision. 132 I.C. 832=1931 R. 111 (2). The fact that a Court has misconstrued the effect of a document is no ground for revision. 16 A. 39. See also 107 I.C. 273 (1). Also the fact that document has been considered to be inadmissible in evidence. 23 B. 177 at 179. Refusal to amend a clerical error in the form of probate may be a ground for revision. 27 C. 5. An illegal order passed under O. 31, r. 93 can be revised. 9 M. 437. But not an order rejecting a memorandum of appeal. 7 A. 42. When a Court rejects an application to set aside a sale on the ground that the applicant had no locus standi, the case does not fall under this section. 32 C. 572. Where a Court reviews its prior order of dismissal for default of a petition under O. 21, r. 58, the order of review is not revisable. 50 A. 801=1928 A. 392. Where a subordinate Court rejects an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for defective verification and does not offer a chance to the applicant to correct the defect, it amounts to a failure to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it under section 153 of the C. P. Code, and the High Court can interfere in revision. 55 A. 216=145 I.C. 436=1933 A.L.J. 110=1933 A. 295. Where a Judge has entertained the application for attachment before judgment, issued the preliminary notice, heard the mortgagor, who showed cause against the application, but based his order dismissing the application for attachment before judgment on the mistaken view that an application under O. 38, r. 5, cannot be made in a mortgage suit, until the mortgaged property has been actually sold, the sale proceeds have proved to be insufficient and the mortgagees apply for a decree over under O. 34, r. 6, there is no failure to exercise jurisdiction and no revision lies. ERRONEOUS DECISION.—That the District Judge has given a wrong decision is no ground for interference on revision. 1935 L. 602; 1935 L. 120. In a case under section 115 even an error of law is not a sufficient ground for interference by the High Court. (11 C. 6, Rel. on.) 1936 C. 706; 40 C.W.N. 698, unless it raises a question as to jurisdiction. (1928 L. 140, Rel. on.) 1935 L. 972; 156 I.C. 777=1935 P. 191; 1935 L. 951; 187 I.C. 350=1940 Rang. 75; 43 Bom.L.R. 480. Nor even an error on a mixed question of fact and law. 157 I.C. 474 (1)=1935 P. 448; 155 I.C. 419=1935 P. 267. The fact that the High Court, if it had been the trial Court, might have come to a different conclusion, is not sufficient to justify interference under section 115. 1936 S. 205. The High Court will not ordinarily exercise its revisional powers even though the lower Court has decided a question of fact or law erroneously; but its hands are not tied when it finds that the order of the Court below is entirely and absolutely unjustifiable and is almost perverse. 1939 P.W.N. 229=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 430. The High Court will not interfere in revision with a decision on the merits even if it be erroneous both in law and in fact, if the lower Court had jurisdiction to entertain the dispute between the parties. But if that Court had no jurisdiction whatever in the matter, the High Court, if it finds that the lower Court has made a mistake as to the extent of its jurisdiction, may then interfere. 14 P. 488=155 I.C. 976=16 Pat.L.T. 311=1935 P. 385. If a Judge assumes jurisdiction of the matter and proceeds to decide a question of law, however erroneous this decision may be, the High Court cannot interfere in revision. But if before assuming jurisdiction he determines a question of law or fact to determine the question of jurisdiction, a wrong decision in a case of this kind is certainly revisable by the High Court. 161 I.C. 26=1936 P. 119. See also 39 C.W.N. 915. Breach of provision of law—Ex parte decree against father and son—Order setting aside against latter and refusing to set aside against former—Revision. 155 I.C. 837. Where a decision disallowing a claim based on the prerogative right of the Crown to be paid its debt in priority to other creditors is fundamentally wrong, a revision petition lies to the High Court and is justified. 69 M.L.J. 832=1936 M. 132=59 M. 428.

ILLEGALITY.—Obvious misreading of law will justify revision. 13 Lah.L.T. 34. Where the Judge omits to apply an obvious principle of law he acts illegally in the exercise of his jurisdiction and therefore revision lies. 1936 Lah. 746. But misconstruction of a section of a statute by the lower Court in deciding a matter which it has jurisdiction to decide does not amount to illegality or material irregularity. 39 C.W.N. 910=62 C.L.J. 349. Clause (c) of section 115, means, that a High Court may interfere in a case where a Court subordinate to it has performed some action, even though while correctly exercising its jurisdiction, contrary to the law or in such a manner as to import a material irregularity into the proceedings.

NOTES.

The High Court will not necessarily interfere in every case of illegality or irregularity and ordinarily it will make any order as it thinks fit only where the illegality or irregularity is serious or where material injustice has been caused thereby. 1938 A.M.L.J. 115. An order passed under section 151 is capable of being revised by the High Court under section 115. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 475. See also 1939 All. 668=1939 A.L.J. 675. Where a Court has proceeded on a wrong view of the law as regards the scope and object of O. 21, r. 88, it must be deemed to have failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law and must be interfered with in revision. 1940 N.L.J. 453=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 337. Where the order of the lower Court is passed following certain reported rulings of the High Court, such an order should not be interfered with by the High Court in revision. 1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 62. A Judge acts illegally and with material irregularity in exercise of the jurisdiction vested in him when in defiance of the order of his predecessor he disallows rateable distribution. 147 L.C. 1071=11 O.W.N. 161=1934 O. 110. So also where a Court which rejects an appeal for non-payment of deficient Court-fee, without really giving the appellant an opportunity to make good the deficiency. 153 L.C. 503=11 O.W.N. 1555=1935 O. 119. Also order sanctioning compromise by guardian injurious to minor's interests. 1935 O.W.N. 333=1935 O. 287. Order refusing to receive plaint insufficiently stamped on last day of limitation—When stamps of required denomination not available. 71 M.L.J. 804. Where the lower Court entirely disregards the most important piece of evidence in the case, namely, the original grant in favour of a charity, and bases its order on documents which are either irrelevant or could not have been referred to for interpreting the original grant, the procedure amounts to an illegality or material irregularity which would justify the High Court in interfering in revision under section 115. The fact that there may be other remedies open is not ground for refusing to exercise the powers under section 115. 58 B. 623=36 Bom.L.R. 687=1934 B. 343; 1935 M. 56 (1)=68 M.L.J. 55. See also I.L.R. 1938 M.988=1938 M. 634=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 100; 60 C.L.J. 19; 13 L. 761=1933 L. 99. Where the lower Court has taken into account the patent facts which are very material in deciding whether the story of a party, on whom the burden of proof lies is true or not, the High Court has no power to revise a decision of the lower Court, although taking the probabilities of the case as the guiding factor the High Court may disagree with it. But if the lower Court has manifestly failed to take into account material and patent facts appearing in the evidence, there is gross and palpable error in the decision and it can be set aside in revision. 1934 R. 356. Where two different suits for rent are hit at by O. 2, r. 2 the High Court will interfere in revision to declare their invalidity though the trial of the suits has not resulted in injustice. 146 L.C. 351=37 C.W.N. 730=1933 C. 831. To allow a party against whom no proceedings can be taken in execution to be proceeded against, merely because the plaintiffs, who represent a temple knowing the exact rights of the parties and of everyone concerned, made a mistake in exonerating her in the suit, cannot be permitted on any ground of alleged moral right of the temple property, and the order in execution should be interfered in revision. 144 L.C. 30=1933 M. 508. Merely that a leave under section 20 (b) is granted without first issuing notice to opposite party does not amount to acting in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify an interference in revision under section 115; nor can such an order contemplate any grave or irreparable injustice so as to invoke the provisions of section 107, Government of India Act. 1933 L. 266. Where a Court has jurisdiction to decide a question before it and in fact decides the question, it cannot be regarded as acting in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity merely because its decision is erroneous. [11 C. 6 (P.C.), Foll.] 151 L.C. 668=1934 R. 230. See also 1935 L. 120. Where a lower Court has applied its mind to the case before it and duly considered the facts and the law applicable, then, although its decision may be erroneous, that error cannot be corrected on revision. (7 R. 339, Foll.) 150 L.C. 1055=1934 R. 306. An order passed under O. 9, r. 9 even though made without jurisdiction is not subject to interference by the High Court in revision. 143 L.C. 222=1933 O. 331. A Court had appointed a Receiver of suit properties. It passed an order of ejectment against an occupant of the premises though neither party had a present right to remove him. It was advisable in the circumstances of the case not to eject him. Held, that the order of ejectment having been passed with jurisdiction, though wrongly, was not open to revision under section 115, but could be interfered with under section 107, Government of India Act. 146 L.C. 258=1933 L. 327. Where the appellate Court has simply come to an erroneous decision on a question which was raised by an appeal properly preferred to it, it cannot be said that the appellate Court has exercised a discretion not vested in it by law and the circumstance that the question related to the jurisdiction of the Court of first instance in no way affects the jurisdiction of the appellate Court. Held, that no revision lay against an appellate order confirming the order returning the plaint for presentation to proper Court. 151 L.C. 416=1934 L. 536. On this point, see also 38 C.W.N. 1001=1934 C. 861.

ISSUES, FRAMING OF.—It is by law the duty of the trial Court to frame issues in a suit. It is not any part of the legitimate duties of the High Court to help lower Courts to frame issues. They alone have jurisdiction to frame the issues in the suits which come before them for trial, and they have jurisdiction to decide wrongly as well as rightly. The fact that a wrong decision is made is never a ground for interference in revision under section 115. 50 L.W. 459=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 733=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 44. See also 69 M.L.J. 239=1935 Mad. 784.

JURISDICTION.—Points of jurisdiction, even though not taken in the lower Court, can be argued in the High Court. 154 I.C. 705=41 L.W. 20=1935 M. 89. Where a Court makes an order which it has no jurisdiction to make, the order is revisable by the Court in revision. 181 I.C. 896=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 518. The High Court under section 115 ought not obviously to interfere in revision so as to restore an order which itself is without jurisdiction or founded on irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction, although the order under revision is one without jurisdiction. 1938 P.W.N. 313=19 Pat.L.T. 111=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 447. The High Court will not generally interfere with a decision on a question of law, as the lower Court has jurisdiction to decide a question of law either rightly or wrongly. But the decision on a question of law can be interfered with if in fact a question of jurisdiction does arise. Where a lower Court makes an order under S. 151, which it has no jurisdiction to make, the order will be set aside in revision. 16 Pat. 729=18 Pat.L.T. 826=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 647. See also 1939 Sind 137; 1940 Nag. 337. The High Court will not exercise revisional powers on a point of jurisdiction whether the suit lies in the Small Cause Side or the Original Side of the Court when such interference will be bringing about an injustice. 154 I.C. 705=41 L.W. 20=1935 M. 89. Where the lower Court has jurisdiction to decide the question and there has been no illegality or material irregularity in its decision, the application for revision must fail. 156 I.C. 1098 (R.); 1936 N. 280. "When a decision is come to in a matter in which the Court has jurisdiction a question of jurisdiction is not involved", Expl. 156 I.C. 777=1935 P. 191. Where a Court entertains and decides an appeal which in law does not lie and is incompetent, the High Court will interfere in revision and set aside the decree and judgment passed by such Court. 62 C.L.J. 530; 157 I.C. 900 (L.). Where a regular suit entertains a suit of small cause nature which it has no jurisdiction to entertain or try, and tries it to the exclusion of the Small Cause Court, its decision must be set aside in revision. 18 N.L.J. 123. Jurisdiction is entirely independent of the manner of its exercise. The former involves the power to act at all, and is independent of the decision reached in the exercise of that power. The latter is confined to the authority to act in the particular way in which the Court does not. Where, therefore, what the Court has done is only to decide the starting point of limitation, it has every power to do so and such an order is not revisable. I.L.

CASES OF ABSENCE OF JURISDICTION.—

See also 40 Bom.L.R. 104=1938 Bom. 159; 1938 N.L.J. 54. Where the lower Court by a misunderstanding of the legal position and by a wrong interpretation of law fails to exercise its proper jurisdiction, the High Court will interfere in revision. 1939 P.W.N. 50=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 263. It is the duty of an Appellate Court to properly dispose of an appeal and this necessarily involves dealing with the points raised by the appellant and looking into the record, so far as may be necessary, after making an effort to understand and appreciate the appellant's case. Where the Appellate Court fails to do so, its failure in these respects means either that there was no more than a colourable exercise of jurisdiction by it or that it acted with material irregularity and in either event the High Court has power to interfere in revision. 182 I.C. 708=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 216. Where the Court of a Munsif returns a plaint for presentation to the Revenue Court holding that it has no jurisdiction to try the suit, and on appeal the District Judge also holds the same view and dismisses an appeal, the aggrieved party is entitled to come up to the High Court in revision. The question involved, namely, whether the Munsif's Court had jurisdiction to entertain and try the suit filed in his Court, is directly one relating to the jurisdiction of his Court, and the High Court in such a case has power to interfere in revision under section 115. ex parte decree—Revision—Interference. See C.P.Code, Sch. II, para. 8. 1937 M. 9 = 71 M.L.J. 648. Order allowing suit to be withdrawn in contravention of O. 23, R. 1 (2)—Revision. See C.P.Code, O. 23, R. 1 (2). 155 I.C. 210 = 1935 P. 251. Under section 115, C.P.Code, in cases where a Court below has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it, the High Court may pass such order as it thinks fit, and it is not incumbent upon the High Court to remand the case for exercise of that jurisdiction by the Court below. 154 I.C. 921 = 1935 Pesh. 21. CASES OF FAILURE TO EXERCISE JURISDICTION.—Application to set aside sale under O. 21, R. 90, by attaching creditor—Rejection on the ground of non-compliance with O. 21, R. 54 (2). 63 C.L.J. 560; 167 I.C. 672; 17 Pat. 107; 1938 A.M.L.J. 23 (Refusal to enquire in claim petition under O. 21, R. 58). See also 1938 Rang. 319; 177 I.C. 799 (Order refusing consolidation of suits). An order rejecting an auction purchaser's application for confirmation of the sale is not an appealable matter, nor can it be revised. 47 L.W. 51 = A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 307. An order of a Court rejecting an application under the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act on the ground that the applicant is not competent to apply for the benefits of the Act is in effect a refusal to exercise the jurisdiction invoked by the applicant, and the High Court will interfere in such a case under section 115. 52 L.W. 301 = A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 808 = (1940) 2 M.L.J. 291. Order as to rateable distribution. 1935 P. 201 (2). See also 177 I.C. 269. The Court executing the decree has jurisdiction to decide the question of rateable distribution as between rival decree-holders; and the High Court will not therefore interfere in revision with an order allowing rateable distribution, as no question of jurisdiction is involved in the matter. 18 Pat.L.T. 817 = A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 651. Award in reference not agreed to by all parties. 1935 Sind 212. Where the lower Court did not consider the only question that it had to consider in the case, it must be deemed to have not exercised its jurisdiction, and the High Court will interfere in revision. 157 I.C. 432 = 1935 P. 454. Where the lower Court on a misconstruction of the order passed by an executing Court on a claim petition refuses to go into the merits of the case. 58 M. 936 = 1935 M. 547 = 68 M.L.J. 518. Application under section 174 (3), proviso (b), B.T.Act—Order requiring deposit before consideration on erroneous construction of section—Revision. See 39 C.W.N. 1176. Where a Court acts without jurisdiction, e.g., when it receives a deposit made by a party beyond the time fixed in a case where time is of the essence of the contract or compromise in pursuance of which it is made, the High Court must interfere in revision, though no real miscarriage of justice has occurred, because the acceptance of the deposit is clearly an act without jurisdiction. 5 Cut.L.T. 27. See also 1940 P. 87; 18 Pat.L.T. 833 (Order refusing delivery and O. 21, R. 99); 1938 A.L.J. 864 = 1938 All. 635 (Order under section 9, Specific Relief Act—Revision lies); 1938 All. 456 (Order under section 5, U. P. Agriculturists' Relief Act). An order refusing permission to a minor defendant attaining majority to file an additional written statement is not one with which the High Court will interfere in revision, because there is no refusal to exercise a jurisdiction vested in the lower Court which it was bound to exercise. 41 L.W. 640 = 68 M.L.J. 155. Where the plaintiff asks for an alternative relief, "in case of failure" (ba surat digar) of the primary relief and the alternative relief is granted by the trial Court, primary relief being refused, and the appellate Court dismisses the appeal by the plaintiff without going into the question whether the plaintiff is entitled to the primary relief on the ground that it is not necessary as the alternative relief is granted. 1936 Pesh. 38 = 162 I.C. 658.

LAND ACQUISITION PROCEEDINGS.—See 1938 N.L.J. 54; 1937 Mad. 948 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 429. A Land Acquisition Collector, assuming that he is a Court while dealing with applications under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, is not a Court subordinate to the High Court, and the High Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to interfere with his order under that section in revision under section 115. 42 C.W.N. 212 = A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 250. An order of a District Judge rejecting a reference made under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act in the erroneous view that the party at whose instance the reference was made was not entitled to demand a reference, is open to revision under section 115. 43 C.W.N. 973 = I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 401 = A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 669.

LEAVE TO SUE IN FORMA PAUPERIS.—Where an application for leave to sue as pauper is dismissed for non-production of a Succession Certificate, the High Court will interfere. 16 M. 454. A Court has jurisdiction to consider the merits of a case on an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis; the fact that the Court placed reliance on evidence which might not be relevant to a transfer application is not an irregularity affecting its jurisdiction and no revision lies. 142 I.C. 379 = 1933 Sind 82. In an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis a Court acts without jurisdiction in going into the evidence elaborately and trying the question of title in order to see if he has a good cause of action; so also failure to take evidence on the question of pauperism amounts to not exercising jurisdiction vested in it by law and the order can be interfered with in revision. 45 A. 548=73 I.C. 538. See also 1938 Nag. 210; 1938 O.W.N. 561=1938 Oudh 146; (1941) 1 M.L.J. 31. According to the practice of the High Court of Patna a revision petition does lie under section 115, against an order granting leave to a pauper plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis. The fact that the order is an interlocutory order or that the government have not moved in the matter is no bar to the High Court exercising its discretion in revision. 19 Pat.L.T. 101=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 209. No application in revision lies against an order admitting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis. 67 I.C. 641=1922 A. 208; 1933 A. 295=145 I.C. 436=55 A. 216. But see (where it is admitted without notice). 104 I.C. 364=8 P.L.T. 794. On receipt of an application to appeal as a pauper, the Court has first to consider whether prima facie there is any ground for its rejection. If it is rejected, the matter ends. But if it is not rejected a notice though not compulsorily should be issued to the Government Pleader and the respondent and on hearing them, the Court has to decide whether the applicant is in a position to pay the court-fees and further whether the decree is one which is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law or is otherwise erroneous or unjust. Refusal to hear Government Pleader is revisable. 1934 A.L.J. 827=148 I.C. 624=1934 A. 424. An order rejecting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is not open to revision. 44 A. 248=65 I.C. 255; 125 I.C. 578 (2). See contra 104 I.C. 198. See also 1939 Oudh 129; 1940 O. 353; 1940 Oudh 148; 1941 N.L.J. 473; 1938 O.W.N. 561; 1937 Oudh 481; 1940 Pat. 263. Where the Court to which an application under O. 33, R. 1 for leave to sue in forma pauperis is presented, dismisses the application although satisfied that the applicants are paupers, holding that the suit is not maintainable in view of the provisions of section 47, and where in coming to this conclusion, it not only refers to certain proceedings mentioned in the proposed plaint but makes use of the information obtained therefrom, the use of such information is irregular and it amounts to a material irregularity in the conduct of the proceedings in the lower Court which vitiates the order passed therein. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 453. Where on an application for leave to appear in forma pauperis the District Judge directs the Munsif to make an enquiry and on his report that the applicant is not a pauper rejects the application without hearing the applicant, he acts in the exercise of his jurisdiction with material irregularity and the order passed by him cannot, therefore, be supported. Although the applicant has appeared before the Munsif, he is entitled to show to the Judge that the report of the Munsiff is wrong. 186 I.C. 170=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 263; 145 I.C. 436=55 A. 436=1933 A. 245. An order rejecting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is a complete decision of the case so far as the Court rejecting it is considered, and is open to revision under section 115, C.P. Code, and a finding by the lower Court on evidence that the petitioner is a pauper, is one of fact and final in revision. 152 I.C. 417=11 O.W.N. 1356. The High Court has no authority to interfere in revision with an order of a Court declaring a party to be a pauper for purposes of O. 33, R. 1, C.P. Code. The fact that the lower Court wrongly holds that the ornaments worn by a female applicant are her necessary wearing apparel cannot be a ground for holding that it has acted illegally or with material irregularity in adopting that view. 19 Pat.L.T. 844=1939 P. 95. On this point, see also 1935 M. 230=41 L. W. 135; 105 I.C. 30; 1929 L. 498 (1); 1930 A.L.J. 901; 1937 M.W.N. 415; 1939 Oudh 129=1939 O.W.N. 193; 142 I.C. 379=1933 S. 82 following 32 A. 623 and 48 M. 700; 1933 A. 295=55 A. 216=1933 A.L.J. 110=145 I.C. 436; 9 R. 86=1931 R. 129; 1931 R. 318. Where a Court rejected an application under O. 44, R. 1 on erroneous grounds, it amounted to material irregularity and the High Court can interfere in revision. 54 A. 394. LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ORDER UNDER.—Section 36 of the Legal Practitioners Act confers a special jurisdiction on Subordinate Courts, and inasmuch as the attendance in Court is an important valuable civil right of a citizen, it cannot be taken away from him by a Court if its jurisdiction has been exercised either illegally or with material irregularity. Consequently an order of a District Judge under section 36 declaring a person to be a tout is capable of being revised by the High Court under section 115, C.P. Code. The District Judge in making the order under section 36 of the Legal Practitioners Act is acting as a Court and not in an administrative capacity, and his order therefore falls within the scope of section 115, C.P. Code. This revisional jurisdiction of the High Court is, however, necessarily of an exceptional character, and cannot be invoked except in furtherance of justice. Section 439 of the Cr. P. Code has no application to the case, and the order cannot be revised under that section. Nor can the order be revised under the Government of India Act of 1935, by reason of sub-cl. (2) to section 224 of the Government of India Act of 1935. I.L.R. 1938 Mad. 988 = 1938 Mad. 634 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 100. Section 115—Material irregularity—Objection that pleader engaged by opposite party should not be allowed to appear—Objection accepted in lower Court—No interference in revision. A. I. R. 1938 Rang. 241. Where a Judge orders that an advocate could not with propriety appear on behalf of a party by reason of the fact of his having been interested on behalf of the other side in matters which were collateral to the suit in question and there was upon the record proof of ample material before him upon which he could make such an order and there was no suggestion that whether he was right or wrong he did not do so bona fide, then it is not a case for the High Court to intervene. 1939 Rang. 183. Per Mosely, J.—The order is admittedly a "judgment" as defined in section 2 (9) of the Code, and therefore the powers of the Court are restricted as laid down in section 85, Government of Burma Act and the question cannot be agitated in addition as one of general superintendence over the Courts as provided in section 85 (1) of that Act. 1939 Rang.L.R. 514 = 182 I. C. 77 = A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 183 (S.B.).

LIMITATION.—High Court can interfere in revision under section 115 where the lower Court allowed an application barred by limitation without at all applying its mind to the question of limitation and deciding that question. There is a distinction between cases in which the lower Court decided the question of limitation and cases in which the lower Court did not apply its mind to that question at all. 144 I.C. 147 = 1933 P. 132. A wrong decision on a question of limitation is not a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. 1934 Pesh. 103. Although it is not a matter of law, but it is a matter of uniform practice that civil revisions are entertained only if they are filed within three months of the date of the order sought to be revised. 1933 P. 582. Limitation—Legal revision is not governed by any law of limitation. 144 I.C. 482 = 1933 Pesh. 51. High Court can interfere in revision in a case which is on the face of it time-barred and where the lower Court has made an order without adjudicating on the question of limitation. (A.I.R. 1916 Cal. 651, Rel. on.) 176 I.C. 134 = A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 87. While ordinarily it is the practice of Courts not to entertain revision applications preferred more than three months after the order appealed against, in suitable cases this practice should not be rigorously enforced. 1937 A.M.L.J. 107. Where a Court dismisses a suit or an application on the ground of limitation it does not refuse to exercise jurisdiction. On the contrary it takes cognizance of the suit and exercises jurisdiction by holding that on a point of law the suit fails. To ignore the plain terms of section 4 of the Limitation Act is to deprive a litigant of the statutory privilege given to him by that section; and a refusal to apply the section in a case in which it does apply amounts to exercising jurisdiction illegally and with material irregularity, justifying interference in revision under section 115, C.P. Code. 175 I.C. 221 = 40 Bom.L.R. 152 = A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 209. It is a rule of practice in Rangoon High Court that revisions may be filed at any time within 90 days of the date of the decree sought to be revised, and the applicant is entitled to utilize that rule of practice to the full. 1940 Rang.L.R. 237 = A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 91.

NEW PLEA.—It is not the practice to interfere in revision on a point not raised or argued in the lower Court. 1940 N.L.J. 340 = A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 302. A question of jurisdiction can be raised even on revision. 162 I.C. 416 = 1936 Pesh. 97. But if it is dependent on the investigation of facts it cannot for the first time be dealt with by the High Court in revision. 24 I.C. 862. See also 6 P.L.T. 295 = 87 I.C. 381 = 1925 P. 461; 100 I.C. 37; 103 I.C. 68. Where the appellate Court sets up a new case for defendant it acts with material irregularity. 98 I.C. 867 (2) = 1927 L. 73. Where the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff was allowed to set up a claim not open to original plaintiff, the High Court will interfere in revision and set aside the order. 42 M.L.J. 43 = 68 I.C. 703. A party is not entitled to raise the question of registration in revision simply because it is apparent on the face of it, though it has not been raised in the Courts below. It is the duty of the plaintiff to have raised this issue. 151 I. C. 105 = 1934 Pesh. 50. Where in revision the petitioner urged that a new issue which was already covered by the issues under consideration should be framed, he could not be granted a further opportunity of doing that which with common care and attention he must have known he had to do from the start. 164 I.C. 189 = 1936 Pesh. 157. Where in an application for execution of an instalment decree filed beyond three years from the date of the first default, the decree-holder bases his cause of action on the default clause in the decree and wants to save limitation by certain payments made by the judgment-debtor which he fails to prove he cannot set up in revision a new case that his application is for realisation of the unpaid instalments within three years from the date of his application. 42 C.W.N. 437.

REMAND.—The inherent power under section 115 to remand a case may be exercised when the trial Court has not tried the case properly. Where the appellate Court ought not to give facilities to the parties for adducing further evidence, the fact that the Court desires to do so cannot give it jurisdiction to set aside the decree of the Court below and remand the case for re-trial. 148 I.C. 962=15 P.L.T. 142=1934 P. 284. See also 1933 Pesh. 48; 146 I.C. 777=1932 Sind 297 (F.B.). Where the appellate Court set aside the order of the trial Court and remanded the suit for retrial and further re-framed an issue and directed the lower Court to take additional evidence on the issue: Held, the order was illegal and was not appealable as it was not one under O. 41, R. 23; but that the High Court could set it aside in exercise of its powers under section 115. 158 I.C. 86=1935 L. 161. See also 42 P.L.R. 201=1940 Lah. 290. An appellate Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in going beyond the pleadings and the grounds of appeal and in remanding a suit for the trial of issues which do not arise in the case. 152 I.C. 133=35 P.L.R. 684=1934 L. 708; 1935 L. 111. The trial Court held that it had no jurisdiction to try a case and returned the plaint. The District Court on appeal, held, that the trial Court had jurisdiction and remanded the case. Held, that the order of remand, even if erroneous, was within the jurisdiction of the District Court and that it could not be interfered with in revision. 34 P.L.R. 771=1933 L. 940. See also 1935 L. 161.

REVIEW.—An order of Court rejecting an application under O. 47, R. 1 after considering the grounds of review is not open to revision. 40 P.L.R.J. & K. 31. Where a Court grants a review when there is no sufficient reason for granting a review under O. 47, R. 1 it is certainly a case in which a question of jurisdiction is incidentally involved, which would entitle the High Court to interfere in revision under section 115, if the question of jurisdiction involved is not covered by O. 47, R. 7. 50 L.W. 903=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 203. Both O. 47 and section 151 are to be construed strictly, and are not intended to be used, and are not to be used, to allow one Judge to sit in appeal on orders of his predecessor exercising an equal jurisdiction with his own. Where a Judge sets aside an order passed by his predecessor dismissing suit as against one of the defendants in a suit, his order is one without jurisdiction, inasmuch as he usurps an appellate jurisdiction which he does not possess. Such order, although alleged to be passed under section 151, is in substance one reviewing the judgment of his predecessor. Although an appeal against such order is not strictly maintainable, such an appeal, treated as revision application, is competent. The order sought to be set aside is not an interlocutory order so as to bar an application in revision, inasmuch as it sets aside an order which is not an interlocutory order. In any case, it is an order deciding a case within the meaning of section 115, and a revision application against it is maintainable. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 330=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 137.

SCHEME SUIT.—Where on an application filed under a scheme framed under section 92, the District Judge does not give his decision on all the points raised by the parties, and an appeal is incompetent from his order, the High Court can interfere in revision under section 115 (c), not only to the extent of supplying those omissions in the District Judge's order by giving their directions on those points but can consider and reopen in revision the points on which the District Judge has given his decision, when the consideration of the former would necessarily involve a reconsideration of the latter. 73 C.L.J. 532. If a Court on an interpretation of a scheme framed under section 92, holds that it authorized the appointment of a trustee in place of a deceased trustee, no question of jurisdiction arises in the case. Even if it be assumed that it has not put a correct construction on its terms, it cannot be regarded as anything more than a mistake of law, but that cannot be a ground for interference with the order under section 115. 1937 O.W.N. 39=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 193.

SECURITY FOR COSTS, ORDER AS TO.—See 41 L.W. 135. Where in a suit in forma pauperis, the defendant put in a petition under O. 25, R. 1 (3); C.P. Code, for security for costs at the earliest possible opportunity, and had been diligent throughout in his prosecution and the Court after several adjournments finally dismissed the petition on the ground that the suit itself was ready for trial, that the defendant had already incurred the costs and that no useful purpose could be served by directing the plaintiff to furnish security at that stage. Held, that although generally an order requiring security under O. 25, R. 1 (3) is entirely a matter of discretion with which the High Court would not interfere, the circumstances of the above case were very peculiar as the Court, instead of disposing of the petition at once on its merits, adopted the wholly unjustifiable course of adjourning it together with the suit, thereby defeating the very object of the petition, and finally dealt with it not on its merits, but dismissed it for something which, if true, was not the fault of the petitioner but was entirely due to the position created by the action of the Court itself and that thereby the Court committed an irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction. 41 L.W. 135=1935 M. 230=69 M.L.J. 38. Accepting or refusing to accept security furnished by a person appointed as a guardian of property of a minor is a matter within the discretion of the Court. Where the Court in exercise of its discretion has accepted the security and it is not shown that the Court has acted with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction, no revision lies against the order accepting the security. 41 P.L.R.

Application of Code to High Courts.

117. Save as provided in this Part or in Part X or in rules, the provisions of this Code shall apply to such High Courts.

TECHNICAL DEFECTS.—The High Court will not be justified in interfering in revision with an order granting permission to the plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis on the ground that the power of attorney granted by the plaintiff to the Mukhtar who filed the application was technically defective, when the plaintiff has been in fact found to be a pauper. 42 P.L.R. 227. See also 1941 N.L.J. 324.

WITHDRAWAL OF SUIT.—Where the Court allowed the plaintiff to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, and the order was supported by good reason, held, that the order could not be interfered with in revision. 145 I.C. 222=10 O.W.N. 311=1933 O. 255. Where a Court gives leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit under O. 23, R. 1, in a case in which it has no power to grant leave to file a fresh suit, it acts without jurisdiction. Where the Court does not at all purport to consider whether it has jurisdiction or not, and does not indicate any ground for granting permission and gives no finding that there was a defect in the plaint, the High Court can interfere in revision. 1940 M.W.N. 806=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 398. When the Court has applied its mind to the question of permitting the withdrawal of a suit under O. 23, R. 1 (2) and has exercised its discretion the order cannot be interfered with in revision even if it is shown that the discretion has not been exercised properly. 147 I.C. 441=1934 A.L.J. 821=1934 A. 214. See also 103 I.C. 229; 105 I.C. 372; 43 Bom.L.R. 143 (F.B.); 1941 Mad. 46; 1941 O. A. 343. Where a Court permits a plaintiff to withdraw his suit and to bring a fresh suit under O. 23, R. 1, it is unnecessary for the High Court in revision to enquire into the sufficiency of the ground. All that it has to do is to see whether the Court below has or has not applied its mind to the matter before it and if it is apparent that it did apply its mind, even if it has exercised a wrong discretion, the case would not come under section 115, C.P.Code. 1935 A.L.J. 277=1935 A. 284. See also 157 I.C. 673=1935 A.L.J. 983=1935 A. 740; 159 I.C. 147=1935 A.L.J. 330=1935 A. 381. In the absence of any grounds such as are contemplated by O. 23, R. 1, C.P.Code, the Court has no jurisdiction to allow a suit to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit. In any case there can be no doubt that the Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in allowing the suit to be withdrawn. 158 I.C. 280=1935 O.W.N. 1066=1935 O. 495. In revision application against order confirming an award and ordering a decree to be drawn up, ordinarily a copy of decree should be annexed to the application. But failure to do so is not fatal to the application and it should not be rejected on that ground alone. 30 S.L.R. 271=1936 S. 172. 118. Where any such High Court considers it necessary that a decree passed in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction should be executed before the amount of the costs incurred in the suit can be ascertained by taxation, the Court may order that the decree shall be executed forthwith, except as to so much thereof as relates to the costs ; and, as to so much thereof as relates to the costs, that the decree may be executed as soon as the amount of the costs shall be ascertained by taxation.

SEO. 122:POWERS OF HIGH COURT—RULES.

—Under section 122 High Court has power to amend, alter or add to any of the rules in the 1st Schedule to the Code. If a new rule that has been made is to some extent in conflict with the previous existing rule it must, by implication, be deemed to have annulled or altered the old rule. 134 I.C. 836=1931 A.L.J. 865=1931 A. 567 (F. B.). Object of the section is to provide for elasticity in procedure and to enable defects in the Code to be remedied without the dilatory process of legislation. There is nothing in the Code to say that those rules should not be inconsistent with the Code. 57 C. 676=129 I.C. 181=1930 C. 685. But see also 128 I.C. 238=1930 A.L.J. 1126=1930 A. 558. High Court has power to alter, amend and add to rules of procedure laid down in the Code, but it has no power to alter the period of limitation provided by the Limitation Act. 68 I. C. 777=1923 L. 96; 1930 R. 228=8 R. 380 (F. B.). Section 5 of the Limitation Act, as it stands, does not extend to application to set aside ex parte decrees, but High Court acting under section 122 can frame a rule making it applicable to the periods of limitation prescribed in that Act. 32 I.C. 975. In order to have the effect of varying the rules

123. (1) A Committee, to be called the Rule Committee, shall be constituted at <sup>1</sup>[the town which is the usual place of sitting of each of the High Courts <sup>2</sup>[and of the Chief Court] <sup>3</sup>[* * *] referred to in section 122].

(2) Each such Committee shall consist of the following persons, namely :—
 (a) three Judges of the High Court established at the town at which such Committee is constituted, one of whom at least has served as a District Judge or <sup>4</sup>[* * *] a Divisional Judge for three years,
 (b) a barrister practising in that Court,
 (c) an advocate (not being a barrister) or vakil or pleader enrolled in that Court,

(d) a Judge of a Civil Court subordinate to the High Court, and
 (e) in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, an attorney.

(3) The members of each such Committee shall be appointed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge, who shall also nominate one of their number to be president;

Provided that, if the Chief Justice or Chief Judge elects to be himself a member of a Committee, the number of other Judges appointed to be members shall be two, and the Chief Justice or Chief Judge shall be the President of the Committee.

(4) Each member of any such Committee shall hold office for such period as may be prescribed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge in this behalf; and whenever any member retires, resigns, dies or ceases to reside in the province in which the Committee was constituted, or becomes incapable of acting as a member of the Committee, the said Chief Justice or Chief Judge may appoint another person to be a member in his stead.

(5) There shall be a secretary to each such Committee, who shall be appointed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge and shall receive such remuneration as may be provided in this behalf <sup>5</sup>[by the Provincial Government].

124. Every Rule Committee shall make a report to the High Court established at the town at which it is constituted on any proposal to annul, alter or add to the rules in the First Schedule or to make new rules, and before making any rules under section 122 the High Court shall take such report into consideration.

in the first Schedule to the Code, the rules under section 122 must first have been considered and submitted by a Rule Committee appointed under section 123. 74 I.C. 330=1923 P. 19. Under the rules of Lahore High Court framed under section 122, the memo. in the case of second appeal shall be accompanied by a copy of the first Court's judgment. 2 L. 227.

RULE ULTRA VIRES.—Under section 122 Chief Court framed a new rule in place of R. 2, O. 34, which allowed interest at Court rate and not at mortgage rate as stipulated. The new rule was held to be ultra vires as it limited the substantive right of the mortgagee to the stipulated rate. 12 I.C. 18=4 Bur.L.T. 207. Power of other High Courts to make rules.

Provided that any such High Court may, after previous publication, make a rule extending within the local limits of its jurisdiction any rules which have been made by any other High Court.

<sup>3</sup>[126. Rules made under the foregoing provisions shall be subject to the previous approval of the Government of the Province in which the Court whose procedure the rules regulate is situate or, if that Court is not situate in any Province, to the previous approval of the Governor-General.]

Rules to be subject to approval.

127. Rules so made and <sup>4</sup>[approved] shall be published in the <sup>5</sup>[official Gazette * * * ], and shall from the date of publication or from such other date as may be specified have the same force and effect, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court which made them, as if they had been contained in the First Schedule.

Publication of rules.

128. (1) Such rules shall be not inconsistent with the provisions in the body of this Code, but, subject thereto, may provide for any matters relating to the procedure of Civil Courts.

Matters for which rules may provide.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by sub-section (1), such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely :—

(a) the service of summonses, notices and other processes by post or in any other manner either generally or in any specified areas, and the proof of such service ;

(b) the maintenance and custody, while under attachment, of live-stock and other movable property, the fees payable for such maintenance and custody, the sale of such live-stock and property, and the proceeds of such sale ;

(c) procedure in suits by way of counterclaim, and the valuation of such suits for the purposes of jurisdiction ;

(d) procedure in garnishee and charging orders either in addition to, or in substitution for, the attachment and sale of debts ;

(e) procedure where the defendant claims to be entitled to contribution or indemnity over against any person whether a party to the suit or not ;

(f) summary procedure—

(i) in suits in which the plaintiff seeks only to recover a debt or liquidated demand in money payable by the defendant, with or without interest, arising—on a contract express or implied ; or on an enactment where the sum sought to be recovered is a fixed sum of money or in the nature of a debt other than a penalty ; or on a guarantee, where the claim against the principal is in respect of a debt or a liquidated demand only ; or on a trust ; or

(ii) in suits for the recovery of immovable property, with or without a claim for rent or mesne profits, by a landlord against a tenant whose term has expired or has been duly determined by notice to quit, or has become liable to forfeiture for non-payment of rent, or against persons claiming under such tenant ;

NOTES.

SEC. 129.—Rules made by High Court are valid only if they are consistent with the Letters Patent. 34 C. 619, 624. Object of the section is to provide for elasticity in procedure and to enable defects in the Code to be remedied without the dilatory process of legislation. There is nothing in the Code to say that those rules should not be inconsistent with the Code. 57 C. 676=129 I.C. 181=1930 C. 685. But see also 128 I.C. 238=1930 A. L.J. 1126=1930 A. 558. Rule 725 of Rules of Bombay High Court is the governing rule for appeals from the Original Side and not O. 41, R. 10. 37 B. 572. Section 129 expressly authorizes Bombay High Court to make rules to regulate its own procedure in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction. A payment order under R. 874 in favour of a solicitor when validly made can be executed as a decree. 162 I. C. 489=1936 L. 369.

SEC. 131.—Rules framed under this section come into force from date of publication or from such other date as may be specified. 50 A. 865.

SEC. 132: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Section 132 applies not merely to witnesses but also to the examination of parties to a suit or proceeding. 11 I.C. 668. The words "personal appearance" mean "personal attendance." (56 Cal. 865, Diss.; 1925 M. 905, Rel. on.) 55 A. 666=146 I.C. 885=1933 A.L.J. 1384=1933 A. 551; 159 I.C. 153=1935 S. 208; I.L. R. (1941) 2 Cal. 155. Section 132 is not confined to purdanashin woman strictly so called. An old Hindu lady belonging to a high family but not belonging to the purdanashin class ought not to be compelled having regard to her social position and the feeling of her class, to appear in the witness-box, but must be examined on commission; the costs of the commission being costs in the cause. 45 C. 492=22 C.W.N. 147. Court has no power to insist that a pardanashin lady must attend and give evidence in Court. She may refuse to attend and say that her statement should be taken on commission. It is immaterial whether she is a party or a witness. (56 C. 865, Diss.) 55 A. 666=146 I.C. 885=1933 A.L.J. 1384=1933 A. 551. See also 1928 C. 814. A pardanashin lady may be included in the statutory description of "women who according to the customs and manners of the country ought not to be compelled to appear in public". When a transformation of customs has taken place, she can no longer claim, as of right, the statutory exemption. 45 C. 697. A pardanashin lady is entitled to be examined on commission although she has previously appeared in public, and has been examined in Court in a palki. 45 C. 697; 26 C. 650. Section exempts from appearance and not from attendance in Court. Ladies can be compelled to come to the Court in a palki secluded from public gaze. If their examination is made in a room, the public being excluded and they being concealed from the gaze of the officer, it is a perfectly legal manner of examining them. 56 C. 865=1929 C. 528. But see 55 A. 666=1933 A. 551; 159 I.C. 153=1935 S. 205. An unmarried girl of 12 who belongs to a class, the female members of which never go out in public, is entitled to the privilege afforded by this section. 24 W.R. 375. In the case of a woman who was in mourning, and therefore according to custom, was not to leave her house for two or three years, a commission was refused in 14 B. 584. Proof of custom regarding seclusion of recently widowed ladies necessary before issue of commission. 1927 M. W.N. 218. As regards criminal cases, there has, perhaps, been a slight divergence of judicial opinion on the question of the examination of pardanashin ladies on commission. 45 C. 697=22 C.W.N. 197. This is a right which the Court has no power to deny. 1928 C. 814. Where the allegation that a pardanashin lady examined on commission was being tutored by somebody behind the pardah is established, the Court has the discretion to exclude the evidence. But there is no justification for the judge to insist on the attendance of the pardanashin lady in Court. 55 A. 666=146 I.C. 885=1933 A.L.J. 1384=1933 A. 551.

133. (1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from personal appearance in Court any person whose rank, in the opinion of such Government, entitles him to the privilege of exemption.

(2) The names and residences of the persons so exempted shall, from time to time, be forwarded to the High Court by the Provincial Government and a list of such persons shall be kept in such Court, and a list of such persons as reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of each Court subordinate to the High Court shall be kept in such subordinate Court.

(3) Where any person so exempted claims the privilege of such exemption, and it is consequently necessary to examine him by commission, he shall pay the costs of that commission, unless the party requiring his evidence pays such costs.

SEC. 134.—Arrest is made by the duly authorised officer touching the person. Placing the arrest warrant in the hands of person sought to be arrested does not constitute arrest. 7 R. 599.

SEC. 135 (2): CONSTRUCTION.—Reasonably wide construction must be given to section 135 (2). It is not the intention of legislature that a person holding an arrest warrant should be able to pounce upon a person the moment the Court which he has been attending rises for the day. 36 C.W.N. 1071. See also 55 B. 612; 39 C.W.N. 318. The plain interpretation of section 135 (2) is that the exemption from arrest under civil process is limited in point of time taken by a party, witness, etc., in going to or attending or in returning from the tribunal mentioned in the clause. As to what is a reasonable time, it is a question of fact and must depend on the circumstances of each case. Section 135 has been enacted in pub-their pleaders, mukhtars, revenue-agents, and recognized agents, and their witnesses acting in obedience to a summons, shall be exempt from arrest under civil process other than process issued by such tribunal for contempt of Court while going to or attending such tribunal for the purpose of such matter, and while returning from such tribunal.

(3) Nothing in sub-section (2) shall enable a judgment-debtor to claim exemption from arrest under an order for immediate execution or where such judgment-debtor attends to show cause why he should not be committed to prison in execution of a decree.

lie interest with a view to ensure smooth and speedy administration of justice and so cannot be given a wide interpretation to help a judgment-debtor who has deliberately managed to avoid execution of the decree. 175 I.C. 781=1938 A.L.J. 500=A.I.R. 1938 All. 356. An Income-tax Officer is a "tribunal" within the meaning of section 135 (2) and a party is exempt from arrest while on his way to appear before that Officer in compliance with a notice issued to him under section 23 (2) of the Income-tax Act. 144 I.C. 463=1933 L. 214. In order to obtain exemption under this section, party must first satisfy the Court that his attendance in Court is bona fide in relation to the matter pending before it, that the Court which he attends has jurisdiction in the matter, or the party believes in good faith that it has such jurisdiction. The exemption enures during such period as is reasonably required in going to the tribunal from his ordinary place of residence, in attending that tribunal, and in returning from it to the ordinary place of residence whence he came. What period is reasonable is a question of fact. The exemption is forfeited if in going to or in returning from the Court there is an unnecessary or excessive deviation sufficient in the opinion of the Court to forfeit the privilege. No party or witness can claim to return to his ordinary place of residence by any route he likes. (5 H.L.C. 671; 4 M.H.C.R. 145; 32 A. 3; 11 East 439 and 46 A. 663, Foll.) 55 B. 612=33 Bom.L.R. 44=1931 B. 175. See also 36 C.W.N. 1071. The principle which would apply to a person living in the place in which the Court is situate must be applied to the person who takes up temporary lodgings in that place, i.e., the protection extends only from his temporary lodgings to the Court or from the Court to his temporary lodgings. Hence an arrest effected when he has left his temporary lodgings and is taking a walk is legal. 1935 P. 6=14 P. 242=154 I.C. 610=16 P.L.T. 560. The privilege of exemption from arrest granted under the provisions of section 135 (2) enures for the benefit of a party while he is going to or attending a Court and lasts till he returns from the Court to his ordinary place of residence. (A.I.R. 1931 B. 175, Foll.; A.I.R. 1935 P. 6, Not Foll.) 158 I.C. 507=1935 N. 216. The word "tribunal" in section 135 (2) is used to cover tribunal both of British India as well as of Native State. 1935 N. 216.

SEC. 135 (3).—Sub-section (3) is new and supersedes the decision in 4 M.H.C.R. 145. See also 14 Ben.L.R. App. 13; 5 C. 106; 4 M. 317; 5 C.L.R. 170. Words "other than a process issued for contempt of Court" give effect to the ruling in 4 Beng.L.R.O.C. 90. Judgment-debtor is protected from arrest in the circumstances mentioned in the section, and a person who causes arrest and Officer arresting are guilty of an offence under section 342, Penal Code. 36 I.C. 493=121 P.L.R. 1916 (Cr.). of this Code not relating to the execution of decrees, and such person resides or such property is situate outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court to which the application is made, the Court may, in its discretion, issue a warrant of arrest or make an order of attachment, and send to the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person or property resides or is situate a copy of the warrant or order, together with the probable amount of the costs of the arrest or attachment.

NOTES.

I.C. 513. Wrongful arrest in contravention of section 135 will not give rise to an action in tort for damages unless it has been procured maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause. 7 R. 598. Allegation by judgment-debtor that he should not be arrested as protected by this section—Process server, if bound to inquire into allegation—Arrest in spite of protest, if offence. See 39 C.W.N. 318=1935 C. 551.

SEC. 136.—Section does not apply to a case in which defendant resides within same district in which Court issuing a warrant is situate. 2 B. 560; 8 M. 205. See also 57 C. 1280=130 I.C. 252; 50 M.L.J. 401=1926 M. 574. When a Court exercises the extraordinary powers conferred on it by section 136 (1), the provisions of that section must be strictly observed; the warrant of arrest must be endorsed to the District Court outside the jurisdiction of the issuing Court, in which the warrant is to be executed. If such a warrant is endorsed not to the District Judge, but to a Munsiff in that district, it is defective warrant, and the persons arrested in execution of such a warrant cannot be treated as being in lawful custody for purposes of section 225-B, I. P. Code. 18 Pat.L.T. 760=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 603. Under section 136 the order of attachment is to be sent to the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate. No District Court or a Court with the powers of a District Court under the Civil Procedure Code has been established in the Shan States to which the order of attachment before judgment in question can be sent. Where therefore the Court of Mandalay sent an order of attachment before judgment to the Court of Assistant Superintendent at Kalaw. Held, that such Court was not a District Court and hence the issue of order was wrong. 1937 Rang.L. R. 249=A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 367. It applies only to cases in which decree passed in one district has to be executed in another district. 4 C. 823. Section 136 (1) enables a party to enforce an order of injunction against a person outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court passing the order. 57 C. 1280=130 I.C. 252=1931 C. 279. Section 136 directs that where property is situated outside the local limits of the Court to which an application for attachment before judgment is made and the Court passes an order for attachment, it has to send the order of attachment to the District Court and the District Court on receipt of the order, has to cause the attachment to be made by its own officers or by a Court subordinate to the District Court and after making the attachment the District Court has to inform the Court which had ordered the attachment, of its compliance. It is not open to the Court ordering such attachment to send its order for compliance directly to any other Court except the District Court and an attachment made by any Court except the District Court and without the intervention of the District Court, would be unauthorised and invalid. Section 46, C. P. Code, could have no application to such a case, for it only applies to matters which arise after a decree has been made. 1941 A.L.J. 225=1941 A. 212. High Court in its original jurisdiction has power to make an order of injunction and when that is disobeyed, to order the arrest of the person disobeying though he might reside beyond the limits of its ordinary original jurisdiction, and also to transfer the same for execution to a District Judge within whose jurisdiction such person resides. Such orders are not ultra vires or without jurisdiction. District Judge who arrests the party in execution of the writ sent to him acts in the lawful exercise of his powers. 61 C. 971=38 C.W.N. 799=1934 C. 818. Court can order attachment before judgment of property outside local limits of its jurisdiction; it can also order removal of such attachment. 9 R. 561=1931 R. 279 (10 I.C. 794, Foll.) If Court which actually effects attachment before judgment has power to remove it, see 9 R. 561. Applicability of section—Appointment of receiver—Disobedience of Court's orders—Contempt—Arrest outside jurisdiction. See 32 C.W.N. 114.

(2) The District Court shall, on receipt of such copy and amount, cause the arrest or attachment to be made by its own officers, or by a Court subordinate to itself, and shall inform the Court which issued or made such warrant or order of the arrest or attachment.

(3) The Court making an arrest under this section shall send the person arrested to the Court by which the warrant of arrest was issued, unless he shows cause to the satisfaction of the former Court why he should not be sent to the latter Court, or unless he furnishes sufficient security for his appearance before the latter Court or for satisfying any decree that may be passed against him by that Court, in either of which cases the Court making the arrest shall release him.

(4) Where a person to be arrested or movable property to be attached under this section is within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal or at Madras or at Bombay, <sup>1</sup>[* * * *] the copy of the warrant of arrest or of the order of attachment, and the probable amount of the costs of the arrest or attachment, shall be sent to the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta, Madras <sup>2</sup>[or Bombay], as the case may be, and that Court, on receipt of the copy and amount, shall proceed as if it were the District Court.

137. (1) The language which, on the commencement of this Code, is the language of any Court subordinate to a High Court shall continue to be the language of such subordinate Court until the Provincial Government otherwise directs.

(2) The Provincial Government may declare what shall be the language of any such Court and in what character applications to and proceedings in such Courts shall be written.

(3) Where this Code requires or allows anything other than the recording of evidence to be done in writing in any such Court, such writing may be in English; but if any party or his pleader is unacquainted with English a translation into the language of the Court shall, at his request, be supplied to him; and the Court shall make such order as it thinks fit in respect of the payment of the costs of such translation.

138. (1) The <sup>3</sup>[High Court] may, by notification in the official Gazette, direct with respect to any Judge specified in the notification, or falling under a description set forth therein, that evidence in cases in which an appeal is allowed shall be taken down by him in the English language and in manner prescribed.

(2) Where a Judge is prevented by any sufficient reason from complying with a direction under sub-section (1), he shall record the reason and cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

Oath on affidavit by whom to be administered. 139. In the case of any affidavit under this Code—

(a) any Court or Magistrate, or

(b) any officer or other person whom a High Court may appoint in this behalf, or dar of a Munsiff Court receives the affidavit in exercise of the powers conferred on him ex officio, then no doubt his jurisdiction is limited to matters arising within and subject to the jurisdiction of that Munsiff. But the issue of process of the District Judge's Court through the Nazarat of the Munsiff is a matter arising within the Munsiff's jurisdiction and Sberistadar can receive an affidavit in such a matter. 14 P.L.T. 635=1933 P. 713.

SEC. 141: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Procedure prescribed by the Code is applicable as widely as possible to miscellaneous proceedings. 21 C. 479. Section does not apply to applications for execution of a decree which are proceedings in the suit. It applies only to original matters in the nature of suits, i.e., to such matters as applications for appointment of guardians, and for custody of infants, and to proceedings under the Divorce Act, and to recording of evidence in probate cases, and many other similar matters other than suits and appeals. 9 A. 36 (41); I. L.R. 1937 B. 144=167 I.C. 750=38 Bom. L.R. 1303=1937 B. 111. See also 1941 Rang. L.R. 246; 18 C. 635 at 638; 15 I.C. 559=116 P.R. 1912; 29 C.W.N. 521=1925 C. 391 (applicability of section to proceedings before Rent Collector); 106 I.C. 808 (proceedings under the Indian Companies Act). Section 141 applies only to original matters in the nature of suits, such as proceedings in probate, guardianship, and so forth. The expression "original matters" means matters which originate in themselves and not those which spring up from a suit or from some other proceeding or arise in connexion therewith. Thus it does not apply to O. 9, r. 9 for restoration of a suit dismissed for default. 54 C. 405=31 C.W.N. 576=1927 C. 534. See also 148 I.C. 595=1934 M. 496=66 M.L.J. 310. O. 9 of Code cannot be applied to dismissal of an application under O. 21, r. 90. But it is open to Court to invoke its inherent jurisdiction under section 151 to restore such application. 1931 A.L.J. 622=1931 A. 594. Power conferred by this section should not be exercised without sufficient cause. 8 M. 548 (550) (F.B.). Section deals with law of procedure alone and does not touch substantive law of arbitration. 5 R. 563=1928 R. 137. Where after the passing of a preliminary mortgage decree the decree-holder dies and his legal representative applies to be brought on record and also applies for a final decree and they are dismissed for default, he is not bound under section 141 to apply to set aside the dismissal under O. 9, r. 9. A fresh application by him to be brought on as the legal representative is quite in order. 1941 Rang. L.R. 246. It cannot be held that section 141 makes want of notice for passing of a final decree in a mortgage suit an illegality. It is doubtful if section applies to a matter where a clear procedure is laid down. 30 L.W. 551=1929 M.W.N. 867. See also notes under section 151.

MEANING OF TERMS.—Term "suit" applies to suits in the strict sense, and is not intended to cover proceedings for enforcement of rights decreed in suit. 12 A. 392 (F.B.). "Suit" includes appeal. 110 I.C. 374=1928 L. 488.

PROCEEDINGS TO WHICH SECTION IS APPLICABLE.—Applicable to proceedings in original suit. 4 P.L.T. 735=1924 P. 346. Section 141 is wide enough to make the provisions of section 10 apply to arbitration proceedings. 66 I.C. 796=1922 S. 6. Where application to sue in forma pauperis is dismissed for default, O. 9, r. 9 read with section 141 enables the Court to restore the application for proper reasons. 1933 M. 5=140 I.C. 226=36 L.W. 586. No appeal lies from order rejecting application for restoration of suit dismissed for default. 28 N.L.R. 83=139 I.C. 296=1932 N. 101. Procedure prescribed by section 98 applies to miscellaneous proceedings. 3 B. 204. Appeal lies under this section against an order of the District Court under section 5 of the Religious Endowments Act. 4 M. 295. Section is not applicable to a Judge acting under section 10, Religious Endowments Act. See 29 M.L.J. 671. See also 40 M. 793=44 I.A. 261=33 M.L.J. 69 (P.C.); 37 M.L.J. 162=53 I.C. 56; 38 C.L.J. 358=1924 C. 327. SEC. 144: "COURT OF FIRST INSTANCE," MEANING OF.—See 61 I.C. 962=13 L.W. 67; 1931 R. 21. The words "Court of first instance" as used in section 144 are used in contradistinction to a "Court of appeal" and mean the Court which passed the decree, or if that Court has ceased to exist, the Court to which the proceedings are transferred in substitution for the Court which passed the decree. 1937 A.L.J. 588=I.L.R. ## NOTES.

"PARTY", MEANING OF.—See 44 A. 555; 38 Bom.L.R. 1326=1937 Bom. 101; 98 I.C. 1042=1927 A. 182; 1940 Pesh. 44; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 47; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 877.

PRINCIPLE OF RESTITUTION.—The power of a Court to direct restitution is inherent in the Court itself. It rests on the principle that a Court of justice is under a duty to repair the injury done to a party by its act. The right of a party to have restitution and the duty of the Court to give him restitution do not rest on the provisions of section 144 of the Code, which defines the procedure only in one class of cases requiring restitution by enacting that the application for restitution is to be made in the Court of first instance. The other part of the section gives the measure of restitution and empowers that Court to determine the form and amount of restitution. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 486=44 C.W.N. 438=1940 Cal. 260. Even if a decree is varied by the appellate Court not after contest but by a compromise between the parties, the Court can allow compensation on the principle of section 144 in the exercise of inherent jurisdiction. The measure of compensation will be the profit which the party in possession actually derived or could have derived by exercise of due diligence from the date on which he should have surrendered possession under the compromise. 42 P.L.R. 429. Restitution in a case not strictly falling within the terms of section 144 should be made upon the equitable principle underlying section 144 and in exercise of the inherent power of the Court to prevent abuse of its process. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 492=1939 N.L.J. 193=1939 Nag. 101. The prejudice to be removed by restitution must be the result of the erroneous terms of the original decree. Once it is found that the erroneous character of the original decree has made no difference to what has taken place, there is manifestly no case for restitution; whether the modification of the decree is slight or substantial will be irrelevant. 21 Pat.L.T. 973=1941 Pat. 130. Where money due to a party under a decree is paid to his vakil whose vakalat implies a power to receive money out of Court on his client's behalf that is sufficient to support an application by the opposite party on reversal of the decree to apply for restitution against the party to whose vakil the money was paid. Section 144 is sufficiently wide to cover such a case. The fact that payment to the vakil is not certified to the Court will not defeat the application for restitution. 179 I.C. 994=48 L.W. 945=A.I.R. 1939 Mad.

SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Section 144 applies where a decree has been reversed or varied appeal, revision or by a review, but not where the consequence of a decree has been affected by a subsequent decree passed in another suit. 1937 A.L.J. 34=1937 A.W.R. 34=1937 A. 232. See also 39 Bom.L.R. 112=1937 B. 173. Section 144 is confined to cases in which the decree of a trial Court is varied or reversed by some superior Court or by reason of some order passed by a superior Court. 1 P.L.J. 43=34 I.C. 747. See also 157 I.C. 677=1935 A. 126. An application under section 144, being in substance one made for seeking the aid of the Court in working out the final decree should be regarded as an application for execution of the decree passed in appeal. (7 O. W.N. 1153, Foll.) 160 I.C. 814=1936 O.W.N. 262=1936 O. 185. Section 144 contemplates restitution, where, and in so far as, a decree has been varied or reversed. An order of the executing Court confirming a sale which is afterwards set aside does not amount to a decree and therefore the application for mesne profits payable in consequence of that order cannot be made under section 144. A. I.R. 1939 Lah. 508. No application for restitution can properly lie where a party, taking advantage of an order of injunction, unlawfully takes possession of properties to which he is not entitled. The proper remedy of the persons aggrieved by such unlawful act is by way of suit and not by way of restitution. No question of restitution arises when there has been no delivery of property through Court. 45 L.W. 398=168 I.C. 926=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 315. See also 1936 R.D. 563. The right of the auction-purchaser to a refund of the money paid by him arises both under section 144, and also on principles of equity and justice and if the case does not come under section 144, the Court can exercise its inherent jurisdiction to direct a refund of the money to the auction-purchaser. 1936 L. 497. See also 1940 Lah. 59 (Application by auction purchaser for compensation for improvements on sale being set aside). See also 19 Pat.L.T. 111=1938 Pat. 447; 40 P.L.R. 692=1938 Lah. 456; 1938 Cal. 554; 1937 Pat. 647=16 Pat. 729. See also 1937 M.W. N. 342=1937 Mad. 694 (Mesne profits by way of restitution). The expression "any party" in section 144 is not confined to parties in the appeal in which the decree has been reversed or modified. It includes every person against whom the decree appealed from was passed, though he was not a party to the appeal, provided the appeal is in effect and substance in favour of such person. The conditions on which restitution can be granted under section 144 are: (1) that the applicant must be a party to the litigation which has terminated according to law; (2) that he has lost, or been deprived of, something by reason of the decree or order which has been subsequently varied or reversed; and (3) that on the final pronouncement of his rights, the party applying is entitled to the benefit of restitution. The section does not in terms state or require that the applicant must be a party to the proceeding which has resulted in the original decree being reversed or varied; nor does it require that the final decree should provide for a right in him to apply for restitution. All that is necessary is that the final decree must be such that it would be inequitable to allow his opponent to retain what he has obtained from the former on the strength of a decree which ultimately is held to be erroneous or wrong. A party to the suit from whom costs have been recovered, is therefore entitled to apply for restitution on the reversal of the decree finally in appeal, though he himself has not been a party to the subsequent stages of the litigation in appeal. I.L.R. 1937 B. 150=38 Bom.L.R. 1326=1937 B. 101. See also 1937 Bom. 173; 1941 R.D. 670; 1941 R.D. 429; 1939 O.W.N. 765=1939 Oudh 273. A party taking possession of any thing under colour of his decree is bound to make restitution of everything that he takes possession under colour of the decree on reversal of that decree. Where a party entitled under his decree to hold charge of an institution, also takes possession of the building in which the institution is located under colour of the decree, such possession naturally and necessarily following the taking of charge, he is under an obligation to restore possession of the building, on reversal of the decree, to the persons who were admittedly in possession at the time the suit was instituted. He cannot be allowed to plead that he took possession only of the institution under the decree, and that he took possession of the building by force or otherwise and thus resist restitution. The object and purpose of section 144, C. P. Code, is that the parties shall be restored to the position which they originally occupied. 1937 A.L.J. 1107=A.I.R. 1937 All. 728. Section 144 applies where a decree has been reversed or varied upon appeal, revision or by a review. Where the consequence of a decree has been affected by a subsequent decree passed in another suit, there is no variation or reversal of the earlier decree within the meaning of this section, and it has, therefore, no application. 1937 A.L.J. 34=A.I.R. 1937 All. 232; 39 Bom.L.R. 112=1937 B. 173. Section 144 does not apply to cases in which the decree is held to be wholly or partially null and void as the result of a decree in some other suit or of other independent proceedings initiated for the purpose. But section 144 is not exhaustive of the powers of restitution and it is not only permissible, but is imperative, to grant restitution by exercising the inherent powers vested in the Court by section 151, provided the exercise of those powers is necessary for the purpose of preventing injustice and does not contravene any statutory provision. 55 A. 221=1933 A. L.J. 60=1933 A. 218. One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors. This statement of the law is general enough to cover a case where the executing Court has been made to take a wrong step by an erroneous decision passed by another Court. The non-applicability of section 144 would not prevent a Court from granting restitution in the exercise of its inherent powers. Where a Court has wrongly paid the money to a person not entitled thereto, it has not only the power but it is also its duty to recover it from him. 167 I.C. 67=1937 Mad. 95; 103 I.C. 657=1927 L. 635; 118 I.C. 389=1929 L. 657; 34 C.W.N. 746=1931 C. 42; 33 L.W. 259=1931 M. 81=60 M.L.J. 219; 21 Bom.L.R. 157=43 B. 433 (F.B.); 39 I.C. 763=2 P.L.J. 361; 37 I.C. 863; 84 I.C. 75=1924 A. 713 (decree against minor); 1929 R. 157; 43 L.W. 773=1936 M. 636; 60 C.L.J. 44. See also 150 I.C. 924=1934 L. 322; 36 P.L.R. 119=1934 L. 1023; 1935 M. 5 (1)=67 M.L.J. 787; 57 M. 849=1934 M. 330=67 M.L.J. 49 (Power of Court to rectify mistaken payment and call back money paid). Thus where the decree is admittedly a nullity, the suit having been instituted against a dead man and the Court having levied execution when there was no decree has inherent power to rectify its own mistake under section 151, and to allow restitution of money paid in execution. 146 I.C. 564=38 L.W. 874=1933 M. 888(1). See also 146 I.C. 1079=1933 Pesh. 76; 1933 P. 564. (Court can exercise its inherent power to order restitution although the aggrieved party may have another remedy by way of suit). Though section 144 may not be strictly applicable to a case the Court under section 151 would be entitled to make such orders as are just and proper for the disposal of the profits enjoyed by the plaintiff under the orders of the Court during the suit and the appeal. 1936 M.W.N. 503=43 L.W. 773=1936 M. 636; 1936 L. 497. Section 144 is not exhaustive of the power of the Court to order restitution. Section 151 saves the inherent power of the Court to act right and fairly according to the circumstances towards all parties involved. 42 L.W. 444=1935 M. 783=69 M.L.J. 84; 1936 L. 497; 1936 M. 636. One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors. This statement of the law is general enough to cover a case where the executing Court has been made to take a wrong step by an erroneous decision passed by another Court. The non-applicability of section 144 would not prevent a Court from granting restitution in the exercise of its inherent powers. the decree itself providing for a certain titution is set aside by virtue of a provision in the decree itself providing for a certain contingency which has occurred. 149 I.C. 365=14 P.L.T. 753=1934 P. 150. Section does not contemplate variation or reversal of a decree under a private compromise entered into by the parties whether out of Court or in the course of an execution proceeding. 1933 A.L.J. 724=1933 A. 743. But see 1933 M.W.N. 641 (contra); see also 148 I.C. 569=1934 L. 604. Rules as to arbitration do not apply to restitution proceedings. 1941 A.L.J. 596. Where by an ex parte decree, a defendant is ejected but the suit is ultimately restored by the appellate Court and the defendant regains possession under a compromise during the rehearing of the suit, a claim by him for compensation does not come within the provisions of section 144. There is no doubt that an application under section 144 can lie when the original order has been varied or reversed by a superior Court the proper remedy is by a regular suit. 1940 O.W.N. 506=1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 150. Section applies not only to restitution brought about in consequence of a decree passed on contest but also to compromise decrees passed on appeal. Section requires only a variation or reversal of the decree of the Court of first instance, however that may be effected. 68 M.L.J. 332=41 L.W. 705=1935 M. 476. The words 'or otherwise' are inserted only to provide for cases where it is not possible to make restitution in the sense of restoring the very property that was lost to the petitioner and when the Court proceeds to do the next best thing that it could do in the circumstances. For example, where in execution of the decree of the first Court, the suit property is sold in Court-auction and purchased by a stranger, restitution is possible only of the proceeds and not of the property. 1930 M.W.N. 1245. See also 130 I.C. 353=1931 R. 21; 1937 R.D. 509. Application under section whether application for execution of the decree. 1 Luck. 40=13 O.L.J. 731; 7 O.W.N. 1153. Right to restitution not restricted to reversal on appeal only. 30 M.L.J. 366=33 I.C. 739; 65 I.C. 797=1922 M. 70. Section applies also to appellate decrees. 38 M. 1120=27 M.L.J. 112. In the matter of restitution power of Court not confined to section. 103 I.C. 657=1927 L. 635; 1929 L. 657; 34 C.W.N. 746. Section does not lay down that where a decree has been varied or reversed the parties are to be placed in the same position in which they were before the suit was brought nor does it direct that other proceedings such as suits are to be ignored. 118 I.C. 519=1929 A. 527. The object of section 144 is to provide a speedy and simple remedy for any party who has suffered by reason of an erroneous decree made by a Court of first instance and it does not apply to a case where the Court has decided questions of conflicting rights under different decrees which may be very complicated. Section refers only to cases where a decree of the Court of first instance is revoked on appeal for revision. 33 C.W.N. 908=1929 C. 814. Section prescribes a remedy which is separate from and independent of that which is open to a person under O. 21, R. 90. Where an application under O. 21, R. 90 is dismissed and the sale confirmed the aggrieved party can apply under the section. 1931 A. 655. Section is meant to apply ordinarily to the class of cases where a person having obtained a decree executes it and recovers some money or property from the judgment-debtor and then the decree is reversed which necessitates restitution of property or money which the judgment-debtor had to part with at the instance of the Court on the ground that the decree is no longer in force. Where the plaintiff was never in possession of the property and it could not be said that as a result of the decree of the first Court the property was taken out of his possession this section does not apply. 140 I.C. 482=1932 P. 317=11 P. 553. It does not apply to decrees passed before the passing of this Code. 29 I.C. 380. Object of the section is to shorten litigation and afford speedy relief. 17 I.C. 121=16 C. L.J. 135; and to restore the status quo ante of the parties. 55 I.C. 356. See also 129 I.C. 326. Application for restitution to be made to Court which passed the decree—Separate suit, if lies. 44 A. 283=20 A.L.J. 13. The power of restitution expressed in section 144 is inherent in all Courts, Civil or Revenue. 46 I.C. 475=11 Bur.L.T. 3. Section is imperative and mandatory and no discretion is given to the Court. 42 I.C. 523=6 L.W. 568; 1928 R. 293. A special direction as to restitution is unnecessary when the final decree is in favour of the applicant. 29 I.C. 380. Restitution may be granted even when the decree is set aside on review. 28 A. 665. Although a Court goes beyond the terms of a decree and gives possession, it can order restitution. 9 C.W.N. 381. Even if the section does not apply to possession taken on the strength of a declaratory decree which is upset in appeal, the Court can grant restitution. 6 C.W.N. 710. Execution sale—Setting aside—Re-payment of purchase money—Payment of encumbrances by purchaser. 2 P. 10=44 M.L.J. 735=49 I.A. 351 (P.C.). Damages—Wrongful attachment—Sale by Court—Deposit under O. 21, R. 89—Loss from private sale. 1927 M. 353. An order for refund of money deposited under O. 21, R. 89 is not justified by section 144, at any rate it is not an order which can be made on an application in restitution and probably not one which can be made even in a suit. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 771=1941 A.L.W. 910=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 278. If a judgment-debtor or any other person bound by a decree makes a deposit under O. 21, R. 89 to have a sale of his property held in execution set aside, it cannot be held that his claim for restitution made either under section 144, or under the general law, after the decree has been reversed in appeal or set aside in a suit brought for the purpose is unsustainable.

NOTES.

There can be no pretence for saying that the payment made by him was voluntary. It would be a clear case for awarding relief to him under section 72 of the Contract Act. 52 L.W. 226=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 725=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 340. If a judgment-debtor against whom an ex parte decree was passed chooses to set aside the sale held in execution of that decree by making the necessary deposit under O. 21, R. 82, and afterwards the ex parte decree also is set aside, the judgment-debtor would not be entitled to claim a refund of the amount which he had deposited. Such a deposit is not made by him directly in connection with the decree which has been passed against him but is made in order that he may obtain a special privilege which the law provides. This being the case, he is not entitled to a refund of such compensation money as a benefit by way of restitution within the meaning of section 144. 43 C.W.N. 104. Section 144 was not intended to apply to sureties but only to the parties to the suit or their representatives. The surety only undertakes to return the property, namely, the material object and not the liability for safeguarding the rights of the owner in respect of the property. If any loss is caused to the owner by reason of the property not being returned in the condition in which it was when it was taken, or if for any other reason the owner suffers damage, that has nothing to do with the execution of the decree as such. CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—S. 144, is worded in the most comprehensive terms and should be widely construed. Its object is to put right what was originally an error of the Court and to restore the parties to the position they would have occupied. The word "party" should be given a wide meaning so as to include persons who would become subsequently concerned. The fact that a party to a suit (a plaintiff) who has obtained a decree wrongly against another person prefers to get the immediate benefit of it by a sale or transfer, rather than by way of execution, in no way affects the right of the original party defendant to recover in restitution what he has paid over under pressure of the original erroneous decree. The fact that he paid it over to a nominee of the original plaintiff is wholly irrelevant to his right to recover against the person who caused him to make that payment, namely, the original plaintiff. I.L.R. 1941 M. 498=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 877. The words "place the parties in the position which they would have occupied but for such a decree," in S. 144, must be construed as meaning that the parties are to be put in the position which they would have occupied had it not been that a wrong decree had been passed. There is nothing in the section which would justify the Court in holding that the claimant to restitution as to be given any better position than that which he occupied at the time when the wrong decree was passed or that he must base his claim on the theory that he is entitled only to what he would have got had there been no decree at all and had the proceedings been pending right up to the time when the final decision set the matter at rest. 52 L.W. 214=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 850=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 47. The word "parties" mentioned in S. 144, means persons claiming under them which obviously means persons who have succeeded to the position of the parties in the litigation either by contract or by operation of law or in other words who are their representatives. An assignee is obviously a representative of the original party and is therefore liable to restitution. Similarly, though it is by a legal fiction that the attaching creditor becomes a party, yet once he has been empowered to execute a decree under O. 21, R. 53 (3), C.P. Code, there is no reason why he should not be taken to be a party to the proceedings when he has done so. Hence he is also a representative for the purposes of S. 144. 191 I.C. 209=A.I.R. 1940

NOTES.

JURISDICTION.—By virtue of S. 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the Insolvency Court has all the powers of a Civil Court. Where the Receiver had in pursuance of an order of Court paid off some of the assets to the creditors, the Court has the power under S. 144, on the reversal of that order by the High Court, to direct the creditors to refund the amount. 143 I.C. 330=1932 A.L.J. 1095=1933 A. 117; 1930 A. 415. See also 1937 A. 575=I.L.R. 1937 A. 670 (objection to jurisdiction; when to be raised).

MEASURE OF DAMAGES OR COMPENSATION.—A person who obtains possession of immovable property under and by virtue of orders passed in execution proceedings, based upon what at the time was a valid decree but has subsequently been set aside on appeal, can in no sense be regarded as a trespasser during such period. For that period he is liable to the real owner for compensation or damages and not for mesne profits in the strict sense. But on and after the reversal of the decree he becomes a trespasser if he does not vacate and hand over possession, as in duty bound, and remains liable for mesne profits as such so long as he remains in possession. But the measure of damages or compensation for the first period can on no principle be higher than during the second period. The principle to be followed in awarding compensation or damages by way of restitution under S. 144 is that the assessment must be on the basis of not what the party in possession could have made, but what he did in fact make or could with reasonable diligence have made. 38 C.W.N. 1197. See also 17 N.L.J. 281. 1935 A. 76.

FOR WHOM RESTITUTION CAN BE ORDERED.—Where execution sale is set aside as void the auction-purchaser can demand a refund from the decree-holder. 18 I.C. 381=15 Bom.L.R. 41. See also 43 B. 235. But see contra 3 R. 251=1925 R. 215. Where judgment-debtor is dispossessed under wrong order of Court subsequently set aside, it is the duty of Court to restore him to possession. 18 N.L.R. 24=1922 N. 82. Execution sale set aside—Purchaser paying revenue. 51 I.C. 706. Where preliminary decree has been reversed or varied by appellate Court it follows that final decree passed thereon and all execution proceedings in pursuance of final decree fall through and there is no necessity for filing an appeal from final decree. 133 I.C. 622 (2)=1931 A. 655. Where assignment takes place even after the appellate decree, which is the basis of the claim for restitution, the assignee is entitled to the benefits of S. 144. 1918 P. 243=46 I.C. 465. See also 53 L.W. 283=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 469; I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 150 (Right of party to restitution though not impleaded in appeal); 38 M. 36=23 M.L.J. 513; 30 C. 857. As to maintainability of an application for restitution between substituted parties, see 10 R. 480=1932 R. 148=138 I.C. 260. Where certain alienations were set aside but decree was reversed on appeal by alienor alone, the alienees could apply for restitution. 98 I.C. 1042=1927 A. 182.

AGAINST WHOM RESTITUTION CAN BE ORDERED.—A co-plaintiff in whose favour a decree is not passed is not a decree-holder and restitution cannot be ordered against him. 41 I.C. 23. A person who has obtained a merely declaratory decree (as muttawali) which is not capable of execution cannot claim restitution. 161 I.C. 444=1936 L. 48. Attaching decree-holder of original decree is liable for restitution on reversal of original decree by the appellate Court. 59 M.L.J. 225=53 M. 796. Restitution cannot be had against a bona fide purchaser for value at an auction-sale held by a competent Court even though the decree is set aside on appeal. 38 A. 240=14 A.L.J. 302; 30 M.L.J. 497 (auction-purchaser not a party to suit, see 41 M. 467); 1925 L. 176. S. 144, C.P. Code, only applies to parties to the erroneous decree but not to third parties. 16 O.C. 225=21 I.C. 570. But see 1929 L. 657; 164 I.C. 379=44 L.W. 265=1936 M. 634. Section 144 allows restitution to be made against the decree-holder who obtains any benefit under a decree which is afterwards reversed in appeal. It does not allow restitution against a third party such as a stranger auction-purchaser. 75 I.C. 238=1924 A. 273. See also 48 M. 767=49 M.L.J. 452. In proceedings relating to restitution only a summary inquiry is contemplated and complicated questions of a stranger's rights should not be gone into. 58 C. 1070=134 I.C. 906. See also 13 P. 108=1933 P. 109=15 P.L.T. 491. As to restitution against an assignee decree-holder, see 38 M. 36=23 M.L.J. 513; 42 I.C. 527. Restitution under S. 144 can be claimed not only against the opposite party, but also his representatives or persons deriving title from him. The party entitled to restitution is entitled to have his lands restored to him free from all encumbrances, including any tenancy that might have been created in the meantime by the party who was successful in the first Court but eventually was found to have no title to the land. Such tenants are not protected by S. 19 of the Agra Tenancy Act. 152 I.C. 663. The party sued for restitution on the reversal of a decree in appeal cannot plead his rights acquired during the pendency of the litigation in some other capacity by way of defence and his remedy to establish such rights is by independent suit. 5 O.W.N. 162=1928 O. 208. Where decree-holder himself is auction-purchaser, sale cannot stand, if decree be subsequently set aside or modified because the purchase is subject to the final result of litigation between the parties. Judgment-debtor seeking to get rid of sale should have relief only on condition that he paid up what was due under the ultimate decree and decree-holder would have a charge on the property for amount ulti-mate'y found due by appellate Court on payment of which judgment-debtor would be entitled under S. 144 to have the property restored to him on his depositing the decretal amount in Court. 7 R. 107=117 I.C. 252=1929 R. 157.

INTEREST AND COSTS.—The Court has power to award interest on costs which the judgment-debtor may be liable to refund to him. 20 O.C. 327=43 I.C. 337; 153 I.C. 654=68 M.L.J. 168=1935 P.C. 12 (P.C.). See also 1939 All. 66; 19 A.L.J. 771=63 I.C. 513. As to right to interest, see also 27 B.L.R. 485=1925 B. 313; 16 L.W. 587=1922 M. 70; 41 M. 316; 21 C.W.N. 564=24 C.L.J. 467; 37 M.L.J. 591; 139 I.C. 348=63 M.L.J. 383. Restitution ordinarily involves interest. The duty of the Court when awarding restitution under that section is imperative. It shall place the applicant in the position in which he would have been if the order had not been made, and for this purpose the Court is armed with powers (the word "may" is empowering, not discretionary) as to mesne profits, interest and so forth. 153 I.C. 654=1935 P.C. 12=68 M.L.J. 168 (P.C.); 50 L.W. 432=A.I.R. 1940 M. 15=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 509. The executing Court has a discretion under S. 144 to allow interest on a sum that is refunded under the provisions of that section. The fact that the refund was occasioned by a compromise between the parties in which no mention of interest was made does not operate to deprive the said Court of such a discretion. 48 I.C. 569 (1)=1934 L. 604 (1). See also (1939) 2 M.L.J. 509; 1934 A. 13. Where after execution, the amount due under a decree is reduced in appeal, the amount that the judgment-debtor can recover is not only the excess amount paid by him but also an additional amount by way of interest or an additional amount by way of damages which the Court is empowered by S. 144 to grant. As regards the rate of interest, the Court rate must always be taken as the rate that fairly compensates litigants in the absence of special reasons to the contrary. 1941 N.L.J. 94. Although ordinary interest is a part of the normal relief given in restitution, it would not be proper to allow interest when there is no direction for its payment in the order of the final Court of appeal. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 486=44 C.W.N. 438=1940 Cal. 260. See also 1940 Mad. 15=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 509. Where judgment-debtor deposits amount of costs decreed in Court and decree is subsequently reversed in appeal, he is entitled to a refund of amount deposited together with interest thereon from date on which the decree-holder withdrew the money from Court. 35 C.W.N. 1305. If money lies in Court and no person is benefited no interest is payable. 3 R. 251. But see 1929 P. 593. A party in whose favour an order has been made directing the repayment of costs paid by him under a decree subsequently reversed is entitled to interest thereon. 131 I.C. 832=61 M.L.J. 34. A party realising costs awarded under a decree must refund the amount on reversal of the decree quite apart from the fact that property in suit was given to a charity or applied to another purpose. 54 I.C. 816. Where Court passes a joint decree for costs against several defendants and one of them deposits the decree amount for himself and on behalf of others, depositor is entitled to a refund of the amount when decree is reversed in appeal and no question of proportionate refund can arise under these circumstances. 35 C.W.N. 1305. See also 1935 A. 126. The fact that the principal only is secured by the bond given by the executing creditor who withdrew the money from Court does not affect his liability to pay interest under this section. 39 I.C. 22=2 P.L.J. 149; 31 L.W. 262. Order of His Majesty in Council—No express direction as to restitution and interest on costs—Executing Court can order the same. 50 A. 767=1928 A. 293. See also 44 C.W.N. 438=71 C.L.J. 127.

INTEREST AND MESNE PROFITS.—See 54 L.W. 594=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 768. Decree for possession of estate—Reversal on appeal—Execution—Subsequent restoration of decree of original Court on appeal to Privy Council—Right to restitution—Extent of right—Trial Court refusing to pass decree for future mesne profits—No bars claim to future mesne profits by way of restitution. 52 L.W. 214=1940 M. 850=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 47. As to the method of calculating mesne profits to be awarded by way of restitution, see 52 L.W. 214=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 47; 1941 Mad. 36=I.L.R. Code, indicated that the possession obtained under an erroneous decree subsequently reversed is wrongful possession and hence on a reversal of the decree the judgment-debtor would be entitled not only to possession but also to mesne profits during the period he was kept out of possession. ## NOTES.

1940 Bom. 30=187 I.C. 354. Execution sale—Delivery of symbolical possession—Application for setting aside sale—Dismissal—Appeal—Compromise—Payment of decree amount by instalments—Restitution—Claim for mesne profits prior to delivery of possession—Sustainability. 56 C. 550. Ordinarily, upon reversal of a decree for possession, the judgment-debtor would be entitled to possession, if claimed. He would also be entitled to mesne profits during the period he was wrongfully kept out of possession. But it cannot always be said upon reversal of the decree unless it gives a clear indication of the fact that the possession taken under the decree is wrongful. S. 144 makes a distinction between restitution which is properly consequential on the variation or reversal of the decree and restitution which is not. Discretion is vested in the Court to make an order for mesne profits which are properly consequential on such variation or reversal. There may be a reversal which does not imprint on the possession taken a wrongful character within the meaning of the definition of "mesne profits" contained in S. 2 (12), C.P. Code. If in the order of reversal the character of that possession has been determined then the question ceases. But if it is not, and the Court remands the suit for the determination of that question afresh or further inquiry, then it would be premature for the Court of restitution to make an order for mesne profits in the application for restitution, as that would amount to determining a question which is sub judice. S. 144 does not enunciate the doctrine of restitution in an unqualified form and does not contemplate a complete and unqualified restitution with all consequential reliefs. The Court has to regard the nature of the claim, the relief granted, the variation introduced in appeal, and the manner in which the ultimate decision might affect the rights of the parties to the subject-matter in dispute. These considerations have to be borne in mind in exercising the discretion vested in the Court in determining the claim to ancillary relief by way of refund of costs, payment of interest, damages or compensation and mesne profits. 41 Bom.L.R. 1204. See also 1940 Bom. 30.

PEACEFUL POSSESSION NOT IN EXECUTION OF DECREE.—If a decree-holder instead of executing the decree gets possession of the property in question the owner of the property is entitled to restitution on the decree being set aside in appeal. 42 A. 568=57 I.C. 148; 8 L. 41=99 I.C. 952=1927 L. 37. See also 27 I.C. 813=21 C.L.J. 75; 26 I.C. 890=19 C.W.N. 1167. But see contra in 8 L. 356. Where a decree for ejectment is set aside in appeal and only formal possession had been given to the decree-holder in execution of the decree, inasmuch as that whatever possession of the holding was with the judgment-debtors prior to the decree for their ejectment, it continued throughout until the ejectment decree was upset in appeal, the judgment-debtors are not entitled to any compensation under section 144. 1940 R.D. 330=1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 176 (1). A pre-emptor obtained possession of the property on the deposit of amount mentioned in the decree. Vendees filed a suit for possession on the ground that the deposit was not made within the time allowed and the trial Court upholding that objection dispossessed the pre-emptor and gave possession to vendees. The pre-emptor succeeded in appeal. Held, that he was entitled to be restored to possession as it was incumbent on the Courts to restore the parties to the status quo. 144 I.C. 695=1933 L. 791.

NATURE OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE SECTION—EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS.—Proceedings under the section, if proceedings in execution—"Party", meaning of. 44 A. 555=20 A.L.J. 456; 1 Luck. 40=13 O.L.J. 731; 6 P. 252=102 I.C. 614=1927 P. 278; 1932 L. 527=138 I.C. 260. See also 65 C.L.J. 165=41 C.W.N. 157=1937 C. 152; 1937 R. D. 21; 3 P. 371=5 Pat.L.T. 145 (F.B.) (resembles execution only superficially). An application for restitution under section 144 is essentially a different thing from an application for execution. 150 I.C. 1096=1934 A.L.J. 503=1934 A. 696 (F.B.). But see 45 B. 1137=23 Bom.L.R. 480. "Party" includes representative of a party. 138 I.C. 260=1932 L. 527. The expression "any party" in S. 144 is not confined to parties in the appeal in which the decree has been reversed or modified. It includes every person against whom the decree appealed from was passed, though he was not a party to the appeal, provided the appeal is in effect and substance in favour of such person. 38 Bom.L.R. 1326=1937 Bom. 101. Proceedings under section 144 of the Code are proceedings in execution of decree. 28 C.W.N. 988. Section 141, C.P. Code, applies to restitution proceedings. 44 A. 407=1922 A. 223. See also L.R. 3 A. 443; 40 M. 780. An application for restitution under section 144 is neither a suit nor a proceeding in execution. It is a miscellaneous proceeding to which the rules applicable to execution proceedings do in substance apply. 47 I.C. 47=3 P.L. J. 367.

RECEIVER, APPOINTMENT OF.—Where all that could be given to an applicant for restitution is some sort of joint possession over the land in suit, and the previous relations between the parties do not hold out much hope that they are likely to arrive at an amicable working arrangement between themselves, more particularly while a further appeal is pending and one of the parties still claims the right to exclusive possession of the whole of the land, it is proper to make over the property to a receiver until the claims of the parties are finally decided. 43 P.L.R. 467. It is settled law that section 144, C.P. Code, does not apply only when execution has been taken out, but applies also when property has passed in consequence of the decree which has been reversed. The section will not apply if it can be found as a question of fact that the change of position does not result from the decree which is set aside. When property is being held by a receiver until one of the rival claimants succeeds in establishing his title and the property is then made over to one of the parties who has obtained a decree to this effect, treated as anything but the direct consequence of the decree, whether the decree is one for possession or not. 43 P.L.R. 467.

LIMITATION—CONFLICT OF RULINGS.—See 1936 M.W.N. 1119=44 L.W. 798=71 M.L.J. 795. An application for restitution under section 144, not being an application for execution, Art. 181 of the Limitation Act applies. 8 Bur.L.T. 165=30 I.C. 680; 3 Pat. 371 (F.B.). See also 44 C.W.N. 438=71 C.L.J. 127 (Limitation for restitution in consequence of order of Privy Council). Where on receipt of an order from the High Court staying all proceedings with reference to an application for restitution, the lower Court merely directed that it should be filed for the present in the record room, it is merely an administrative order and not a judicial one. It is in no sense a final disposal of the case. An application under S. 144 is a miscellaneous case and once initiated that miscellaneous case does not give rise to any application of the Limitation Act during the course of its disposal. As long as that remains pending, there is no question of the application of the Limitation Act to its proceeding. Attention of the Court that orders may be passed on the pending application, is all that is necessary and for that there can be no limitation. 177 I.C. 695=A. I. R. 1938 All. 552. The time is to be computed from the date of the final decree in favour of the party, i.e., the date of the decree of the Court of first appeal or the second appeal as the case may be. Right to apply for ascertainment of mesne profits does not accrue until after delivery of possession to the successful party. 7 P. 794=10 P.L.T. 49=1928 P. 598. When a person who was dispossessed in execution of a decree subsequently sues for a declaration and obtains a decree in his favour, his right to recover mesne profits accrues on the day of his wrongful dispossession, i.e., the decree in his suit (or appeal from it as the case may be) which declares him entitled to possession, and it ceases on the day he recovers possession in pursuance of the decree. Because he is entitled to mesne profits up to the date of recovery of possession, it does not follow that his right to mesne profits arises on his taking possession. An application filed by such a person more than three years after the date of the final decree is therefore barred under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act. 17 N.L.J. 281. See also 144 I.C. 150=1933 C. 422. Limitation for application for restitution. 19 A.L.J. 549=63 I.C. 184; 21 C.W.N. 564 (dependent judgment). As to limitation in the case of an application for refund of purchase-money by the purchaser, see 1931 M.W.N. 1006. An application under section 144 is not an application for execution and is governed for the purposes of limitation by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act; and time runs from the date of the decree of the appellate Court when the first Court's order was "reversed" and the right to apply for restitution accrued. 1937 R.D. 21. See also 1939 All. 66=I.L.R. 1939 A. 103.

BAR TO SUIT.—Section 144 exhausts the remedies which a litigant against whom a decree has been given, has, when his property is sold under the decree and the decree is subsequently varied, to have restored to him the property sold in excess of what should have been sold. So no action lies to obtain restitution by getting the sales declared void. He has no other right of action in cases where the sale is not void ab initio. 134 I.C. 1151=1931 M. 713. See also 158 I.C. 908=1935 A. 873. Where restitution cannot be obtained by application under section 144 (1), there is no bar to the institution of a suit. 44 A. 687=20 A.L.J. 636. Consequently a suit for recovery of damages by a successful defendant against an unsuccessful plaintiff for bringing a false suit which involved great injury to the defendant is maintainable. 44 A. 687=20 A.L.J. 636. PROCEDURE.—Application for restitution may be made in such manner as the nature of each case might require and need not follow in every case the procedure in O. 21, r. 11. 45 L.W. 522=1937 M. 173=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 108. An application on the Original Side of the High Court under section 144 for restitution in execution proceedings made long after the suit has been determined and the rights of the parties fully settled by a final judgment is not an application in a suit at all nor is the order made on it a judgment. It is not a final judgment, such a judgment having been already delivered; it cannot be said to be either preliminary or interlocutory judgment. It is merely an order and not a judgment under the Letters Patent and is not appealable. Even if the order be regarded as a decree, there would be no right of appeal, the matter being governed by the Letters Patent and not by C.P. Code. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 446.

COURT-FEE.—Restitution proceedings are not execution proceedings. They are miscellaneous proceedings in the nature of suits, where large amounts claimed as damages might be involved. A memorandum of appeal from an order refusing restitution must be stamped with ad valorem Court-fee under Sch. I, Art. 1 of the Court-Fees Act. Art. 11 of Sch. II has no application to the case. 65 C.L.J. 165=41 C.W.N. 157=1937 C. 152. See also 1941 N.L.J. 459. An appeal against an order made on an application under section 144 ought to bear an ad valorem court-fee. 42 C.W.N. 152. See also 1938 Rang.L.R. 635.

APPEAL.—An order passed under this section is a decree, see section 2, and an appeal lies against such order. 8 M.L.J. 276. But see 10 P.R. 1914 (order dismissing application for restitution is not appealable). 20 I.C. 203; 19 Pat.L.T. 111=1938 Pat. 447. See also 13 P. 108=146 I.C. 1045=1934 P. 109. Restitution to purchaser on sale being declared void. See 1938 Pat. 447=19 Pat. L.T. 111. An order under this section is a decree. As to the principle upon which the doctrine of restitution is based, see 23 M. 306 (310). Second appeal also lies. 86 I. C. 376=1925 C. 1074. Order of restitution as against assignee of decree-holder is one under O. 21, R. 97 and as such not appealable. 1930 A. 415. See also 42 Bom.L.R. 367 (Order under O. 21, r. 93). Where the Court orders restitution under its inherent powers applying the principle of section 144, the order is not appealable. 1930 N. 138. Where an application was made under section 144 and an order passed under section 144 read with section 151, it is appealable even though it is subsequently held that section 144 had no bearing on the case and the application thereunder was incompetent. 140 I.C. 482=1932 P. 317. See also 1939 O.W.N. 765. Where property is sold in execution of the decree but in appeal the decree is modified so as to reduce the amount to a lesser figure the judgment-debtor cannot, even though the purchaser be the decree-holder himself, recover the property sold on payment of the decree amount, unless he shows that the prior sale was in substance and truth a consequence of the error in the original decree. (Case-law discussed.) 54 C.L.J. 293; 32 P.L.R. 739.

SECOND APPEAL.—A second appeal from an order passed on an application for restitution under section 144 relating to a rent decree, is not barred either by section 102, C.P. Code or by section 153, B.T. Act. 43 C.W.N. 859=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 612.

SECTIONS 144 AND 145.—Joint and several decree against two defendants—Appeal by both—Stay of execution—Deposit of decree amount by one—Amount drawn out by plaintiff on execution of surety bond by sureties—Bond reciting that "if the defendants succeeded in the appeal" they would be liable for the amount—Construction—Appeal successful as regards one defendant only. Held, (1) that the appellant was entitled to restitution of the money from the plaintiff; (2) that the surety bond must be construed as an undertaking by the obligors to the obligees jointly, and that the liability of the sureties was conditioned upon the "defendants", i.e., both of them, succeeding in the appeal, and that as only one of the defendants had succeeded the appellant was not entitled to restitution as against the sureties by enforcement of their bond against them, because the sureties could not, upon the language of the bond, be held to have undertaken a liability except upon the condition that the appeal of both the defendants succeeded. 44 L.W. 838=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 229.

SECTIONS 144 AND 151.—Where a decree has not been varied or reversed, a Court has no power to grant restitution under section 144, or under its inherent powers under section 151. I.L.R. 1937 N. 153=1937 N. 151. See also 19 Pat.L.T. 111=1938 Pat. 447; 1936 R.D. 563. Money paid by a defendant in a pauper suit as court-fees due to Government under an order of Court which is reversed on appeal is not money liable to be dealt with by way of restitution under section 144 and therefore no interest can be awarded on such amount under section 144. Section 151 will, however, apply to such a case; but that section being discretionary the Court may refuse to award interest in view of the particular circumstances of the case. 44 L.W. 873=1937 M. 178=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 21. In a proceeding started under section 144, the Court held that section 144 did not apply but granted relief under section 144 read with section 151. Held, that the Court having decided the rights of the parties and in effect given a decree which was capable of execution, the order was appealable though it was styled as falling under section 144 or section 151 or under both sections 144 and 151. No application in revision lay against such order. 19 Pat.L.T. 118=1938 P.W.N. 31. Section 144 is confined to cases in which the decree of a trial Court has been varied or reversed by some superior Court or by reason of some order passed by a superior Court. In other cases the order for restitution would come under section 151, and is not appealable unlike an order under section 144. 19 Pat. L.T. 111=1938 Pat. 447.

SECTION 145: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Section 145 must be read with section 128, Contract Act, which makes the liability of the surety co-extensive with that of the principal debtor. After judgment-debtor fails to pay decretal amount, decree-holder is entitled to proceed against surety as if he was his judgment-debtor. 1933 N. 287. See also 1933 L. 913. A bond given to the Judge of a Court in pursuance of an order of the Court under O. 32, R. 6, must be enforced by a suit upon the bond. Such a bond is not enforceable by execution in the manner provided by section 145. A suit is the proper means of enforcing it. 1936 M. W.N. 1127=44 L.W. 621=1936 M. 953=71 M.L.J. 675. But see 165 I.C. 453=1936 M.M.N. 443=1936 M. 589. A decree against judgment-debtor can be executed against his surety who has, by means of a statement made before the Court, undertaken to satisfy the liability of the judgment-debtor. It does not matter that the name of the surety is not mentioned in the decree. 164 I.C. 281=38 P.L.R. 623=1936 L. 463. An application for execution of a decree against a surety under section 145 is an application for the enforcement of the bond as such, and even if it is occasioned by and mentions only the breach of one condition, execution can be ordered by the Court if, in the course of the proceedings arising out of that application, it appears that a breach of any one or other of the conditions has occurred. 30 S.L.R. 177=1936 Sind 244. Section is not applicable to a suit by a surety for recovery of money forfeited owing to non-appearance of party. Section is merely procedural and does not in any way define a surety's liability. 5 R. 494=1927 R. 316. The "person" need not now have become liable as surety "before the passing of the decree", as was held in 30 B. 506. The words "for the fulfilment of any condition" will supersede the ruling in 8 M.L.J. 199. As to extent of surety's liability, see 1925 L. 170; 91 I.C. 772=1925 L. 552; 83 I.C. 870=1925. Sind 25. See also 150 I.C. 750=1934 L. 401. A surety under O. 21, R. 40 (3) for production of the judgment-debtor cannot be rendered liable under section 145 for the debt due. 18 R.D. 243=15 L.R. 285 (Rev.); 84 I.C. 998=1925 R. 135=2 R. 567 (Surety not to be made liable simply because judgment-debtor was produced somewhat late); 89 I.C. 342=19 S.L.R. 390 (Section not applicable to surety under Guardian and Wards Act). Section is applicable even to a person who is surety for himself. 131 I.C. 500=1931 R. 65. Section applies only where surety has rendered himself personally liable for the decretal amount and such liability can only be enforced against him to the extent to which he has become personally liable. 29 I.C. 149=19 C.W.N. 961. See also 57 M. 688=1934 M. 186=66 M.L.J. 248; 22 C.W.N. 919; 19 C.W.N. 178; 17 C. L.J. 267 (F.B.). Section prescribes a summary remedy in execution for the realisation of the security in execution to the extent to which the surety has made himself personally liable. 34 I.C. 407=(1916) 2 M. W.N. 273; 21 I.C. 612. But see 1932 A. L.J. 1060. Where immovable property is given by a judgment-debtor as security for the due performance of decree the property can be realised by decree-holder in execution and no separate suit is either necessary or maintainable. 34 M.L.J. 84=41 M. 327; 7 R. 352=1929 R. 126; 8 P. 891. Per Division Bench.—Where security bond creating personal liability and hypothecation of property is executed by surety to the executing Court under O. 41, Rr. 5 and 6, decree-holder can move executing Court to enforce the bond as against surety. 15 L. 282=149 I.C. 300=1934 L. 138 (F.B.). See also 165 I.C. 453=1936 M. 589. But see 1934 O. 139; 66 M.L.J. 540, infra. Where sureties gave a security bond under O. 45, R. 7 undertaking personal liability and also charged the property as further security, it is only the personal liability and not the liability of hypothecated property which can be enforced under section 145, because the words "in the manner herein provided for the execution of decrees" refer to execution in O. 21 and not to cases of sales of mortgaged property. (39 A. 225, Ref.) 11 O.W. N. 376=148 I.C. 864=1934 O. 139. On an application to enforce a security bond executed by certain sureties hypothecating immovable properties in respect of a certain amount drawn by the next friend of the minor plaintiffs on their behalf. Held, that (i) section 145 was not applicable, as the sureties had not made themselves personally liable and the matter was not connected with the execution of a decree and was not a question between parties to the suit; (ii) as it was not executed in favour of any named person, it could not be assigned by Court and the only mode of enforcing it was by Court making an order in the suit upon an application to which the sureties are parties and by directing sale of the properties for the realisation of the amount due; (iii) no such direction could, however, be made, till the extent of the liability of next friend was determined in a separate suit. [46 I.A. 228=38 M.L.J. 302 (P.C.), App.] 57 M. 803=1934 M. 262=66 M.L.J. 540. Before proceedings are started under section 145 it must be established that the person against

MEANING OF TERMS.—The expression "any decree" is wide enough to cover a decree that has already been passed as well as a decree that may be passed after the person concerned has become liable as surety. 1935 L. 189.

INHERENT POWERS OF COURT.—Although the case may not fall under S. 145 Court has not inherent power to enforce the bond without recourse to a suit, the proper procedure being to get an order from Court, after notice to the sureties, that the bond is forfeited and then to proceed to execute that order. (42 A. 158 and 51 M.L.J. 239, relied on.) 145 I.C. 1004=1933 M. 722=65 M.L.J. 507. See also 57 M. 688=1934 M. 249=66 M.L.J. 248; 56 M. 939=1933 M. 691=65 M.L.J. 342; 166 I.C. 670=44 L.W. 717=A.I.R. 1936 M. 990.

CONSTRUCTION OF SURETY BOND.—The rule that a security bond must be strictly construed according to its own terms is certainly true where there is no ambiguity in the terms, but where there is a contradiction in terms, S. 95, Evidence Act, allows a reference to antecedent circumstances. Thus where there is any doubt about the true construction of the security bond, the bond must be considered in the light of the order directing security to be given. 61 C. 890=150 I.C. 985 (2)=1934 C. 569.

EXTENT AND NATURE OF LIABILITY.—Where property is given in security for due performance of decree in particular amount the effect of subsequent transfer of the property is that the decree-holder can enforce the security bond only to the extent of the amount secured thereunder by the sale of the property specified therein, and any sale for more than the amount specified in the bond will be without jurisdiction in the absence of the transferee and will not bind him, and such a sale can be set aside on the alienee depositing the amount due under the bond. 165 I.C. 453=1936 M.W.N. 443=1936 M. 589. Where, by the terms of a security bond, the surety undertook to be liable if the debtor "failed to pay", the words mean only voluntary non-payment by the debtor. Liability of the surety cannot be determined until the time for execution has arrived. Death of defendant for whom the opponent stood as surety does not discharge him. 19 Bom.L.R. 112=41 B. 402. Nor does his liability cease if the suit was at one time dismissed for default and then restored. 59 C. 1450=139 I.C. 815. Surety for decretal amount can be made liable for amount enhanced on appeal. 1935 L. 21=156 I.C. 903. A surety bond for performance of a decree or for restitution in case the decree is reversed is enforceable by a regular suit and the obligee need not enforce the bond by a proceeding in execution. 13 Bom.L.R. 909=36 B. 42. See also 12 L.W. 329=39 M.L.J. 472. A surety is one who takes upon himself, and guarantees the performance of an obligation which rests primarily upon another. His obligation is an accessory one. S. 145 has no application unless the person sought to be proceeded against has taken upon himself the liability of another. It need not be the liability of either the judgment-debtor or the decree-holder but it may be the liability of an officer of the Court charged with the conduct of the execution proceedings. It is however essential that he should have undertaken to discharge another's obligations. 1939 Cal. 316=182 I.C. 865. The law requires one notice to be served on the surety under S. 145, and if such a notice has been served, other execution proceedings are maintainable against the surety without fresh service of such a notice. 40 C.W.N. 465. A mere record in the order-sheet of the Court that a notice has been served on a particular person may not be evidence of service of such notice. But when the order in the order-sheet records that the party served has appeared in Court, the order is proof of his appearance, and the effect of the order is conclusive of the fact that the person has in fact been served with a notice. 40 C.W.N. 465. No order attaching the personal property of a sapurdar can be passed under S. 145 unless notice has been given to him. 132 I.C. 49. See also 1931 M. 828; 158 I.C. 373=1935 L. 145. The sapurdars are not relieved of their responsibility about the property entrusted to their care by the Court when the attachment ceases nor have they authority to hand over the goods to the judgment-debtor at the request of the decree-holder. The sapurdars take the goods from the agent of the Court subject to certain conditions to wit that they shall produce the goods whenever the Court orders them to do so or pay its equivalent value to the Court. It follows from the contract itself that they cannot deal with the property without first obtaining the direction of the Court. 189 I.C. 810=A.I.R. 1940 Pesh. 29. Where a decree in a suit in which the property is attached and entrusted to a sapurdar prior to decree, is wholly satisfied and the property is returned to the judgment-debtor, the sapurdar cannot be made liable for its return on the application of persons not parties to the suit and in respect of attachment in a different suit, Courts can act in the interests of the parties or suitors in particular cases. 1941 N.L.J. 514. A sapurdar cannot exonerate himself from the liability imposed on him on the ground that he in good faith handed over the properties which had been given under his charge to a third person. It is his duty to obtain the instructions of the Court before handing them over. 1936 A. 555=1936 A.L.J. 736. See also 1935 A.L.J. 335=1935 A. 373. There must be notice to the surety of some kind before his property can be attached in execution of the decree, attachment of the surety's property without notice being ultra vires. It is immaterial however whether such notice is given by the Court which passed the decree or the Court to which it is sent for execution. 1938 Lah. 593. Notice may be given either by Court which passes the decree or by Court to which the decree is sent for execution. 29 B. 29 (34); 26 C. 224; 12 B. 76; 19 B. 578; 15 M. 203; 3 A. 806. The defendant who was put in charge of attached property misappropriated it. The plaintiff thereupon sued on the ground that he was a decree-holder and had suffered loss by the defendant's conduct. Held, that S. 145, C.P. Code, was a bar to the suit. Held also, that the plaintiff ought to have taken action against the defendant in execution of his decree. 27 A.L.J. 80=113 I.C. 751=1929 A. 266 (2).

DURATION OF SURETY'S LIABILITY.—The sureties executed a bond by which they gave security to the extent of Rs. 550 for mesne profits. It provided as follows:—"If in accordance therewith decree is passed in this suit in favour of the plaintiffs and the defendants have to pay mesne profits for the current year, the defendants shall pay that amount." Suit was dismissed by trial Court, but decreed on appeal. On application to execute the bond, held, that the bond became vacated on suit being dismissed by trial Court. ed into behind the back of surety only operates as a covenant not to sue between the creditor and the debtor and does not operate to discharge surety, because surety's right of recourse against the debtor is not extinguished. 56 M. 625=1933 M. 309=64 M.L.J. 386. The effect of a compromise on the liability of surety is a question of fact in each case. Where surety undertook liability for the restoration of the property and payment of mesne profits in case the decree of trial Court was reversed on appeal and his liability was not in terms excluded in case of a compromise, the surety is bound by terms of a compromise between the parties although entered into without his knowledge. But if the compromise provides for postponed payment or for the amount being paid for instalments the surety is discharged from his obligations. 56 M. 625=1933 M. 309=64 M.L.J. 386. Where a suit under O. 21, R. 63 is compromised and the plaintiff defaults in making the payment undertaken by him, it is certainly open to the decree-holder to take out execution against such a plaintiff also; for his position is that of a surety who by virtue of the compromise became liable for the payment of the decree amount. 1939 A.L.J. 801=A.I.R. 1939 All. 517.

LETTERS TO DECREE-HOLDER UNDERTAKING TO DISCHARGE DEBT—ENFORCEABILITY IN EXECUTION.—It is not essential for the purpose of executing a decree against a surety under S. 145 (a), that a contract of suretyship should be in the form of a bond executed in favour of the Court. A letter addressed to the decree-holder undertaking to discharge the decree-debt is sufficient for the purpose, and the surety who so renders himself personally liable may be proceeded against under S. 145 (a). 58 M. 777=1935 M. 209=41 L.W. 144=68 M.L.J. 136.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Extent of surety's liability—Mode of enforcement—Decree-holder asked to furnish security—Mesne profits. 42 A. 158=46 I.A. 228 (P.C.). See also 145 I.C. 285=38 L.W. 254; 30 Bom.L.R. 19. Where the judgment-debtor was not told specially to be in attendance on a particular day on which he was absent, but his counsel who could have done all that was required was present, there is no default which renders the surety liable to pay the decretal amount. If his personal attendance is necessary on that day, the surety should be given notice to produce him. 41 P.L.R. 282=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 368. The assignee-decree-holder can proceed in execution against the surety. It is not necessary for him to get assignment of the surety bond and institute suit. (1928 M.W.N. 681, Ref.) 1932 M.W.N. 1296. Surety for production of movables of judgment-debtor—Execution against—Procedure. 1933 M.W.N. 185. See also 1937 R.D. 518. S. 145 permits the execution of a decree (passed against a stranger) against the surety as though it were a decree passed against the surety. It may be that he is a party only for a limited purpose. Hence where a father has become liable as surety for a decree passed against a stranger, the interest of surety sons can be taken in execution of the decree. The fact that the decree-holder has power to sue the surety instead of taking recourse to execution under S. 145 does not preclude the decree-holder seeking a shorter and less expensive remedy of execution under S. 145. 173 I.C. 950=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 148.

APPEAL.—Even under the old Act, the surety had a right to appeal. 12 B. 71. See also 56 M. 909=65 M.L.J. 407; 57 M. 803=66 M.L.J. 540. Where animals which were attached in execution of a decree were entrusted to the defendants as supurdars who did not produce them for sale before the amin when required to do so, S. 145 does not prevent decree-holder from bringing suit against the defendants for the value of the animals. 1935 A.L.J. 335; surety cannot by application be discharged of his bail bond and that an order refusing discharge cannot be appealed against. 1929 L. 435. But see 56 M. 909=65 M.L.J. 407. S. 145 provides that any person who has become liable as surety and against whom a decree may be executed shall be deemed for the purposes of appeal to be a party within the meaning of S. 47. Therefore a surety has a right of appeal against an order, directing execution against him. 152 I.C. 693=35 P.L.R. 466=1934 L. 538. See also 1931 L. 503. Where after notice to the surety for the judgment-debtor the creditor applied to the Court for an order under S. 55 (4) for realisation of the security and the Court, after hearing the surety, passed an order under S. 55 (4), the order is appealable. 135 I.C. 812=1932 B. 77.

REVISION.—An order under S. 145 passed by a Sub-Judge is open to revision by the High Court although an appeal lies to the District Court from such order and a further appeal from the order of the District Court lies to the High Court. 11 R. 134=144 I.C. 163=1933 R. 64.

simply enables a party for whose benefit security has been given to enforce the surety bond against the surety by way of execution to the extent to which the surety has rendered himself personally liable, and no more. If an order for or in the course of execution is made against a surety who is within the ambit of S. 145, he is at liberty to appeal against that order as though he were a party to the suit within the meaning of S. 47; but in other respects he is not deemed to be a party within S. 47. Hence S. 145 does not bar a regular suit against surety. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 470=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 175.

LIMITATION FOR EXECUTION AGAINST SURETY.—See 1932 M.W.N. 1296. When an attachment before judgment in the movables of the debtor was made, the surety executed a bond to produce the items attached whenever called upon by the Court and to be bound by such orders as may be passed by the Court. It was dated 7—11—1921. A decree was passed on 7—9—1922. An application for execution was filed by assignee decree-holder on 7—11—1925. Held, that the application was barred under Art. 182; that Art. 65 was not applicable; that limitation on the bond began to run from the date of the decree itself and that the application was barred. 142 I.C. 363=37 L.W. 127=1933 M. 219.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—S. 145 does not lay down that the notice of attachment should be in writing. All that is necessary under the law is that before the attachment actually takes place, the surety should have notice of the order directing attachment, the object being that he may be able to raise objections, if any, to the validity of the order. If the objection of want of notice is not raised before the executing Court, it must be taken to have been waived. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 772. Where a person has executed a bond as surety for a receiver and has become liable under the bond, the order of the Court to pay up the amount due on the bond falls within the scope of S. 145 and can be enforced by procedure prescribed in that section. 189 I.C. 177=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 151. Where the movables of a judgment-debtor are attached and a surety bond is executed for the production of the articles, though a separate suit to enforce the bond is not necessary, action on the bond does not fall under S. 145. The proper procedure for enforcing the bond is to move the Court to make an order calling upon the surety to produce the articles or the money for which he has rendered himself liable. Without such an order under the bond, a petition for the arrest of the surety is premature. 142 I.C. 581=1933 M. 342 (1). An order passed on an application by a next friend to draw out the money paid into Court by judgment-debtor and to have it invested in Government Promissory Notes is one made in "a proceeding consequent to a suit" and where a third party has bound himself as surety for the amount so withdrawn by the next friend, an order for execution can, under S. 145, be made against the surety. (41 M. 40, Dist.) 56 M. 687=1933 M. 678=65 M.L.J. 142 (F.B.). The assignee decree-holder can proceed in execution against the surety. It is not necessary for him to get an assignment of the surety bond and institute a suit. (1928 M.W.N. 681, Ref.) 142 I.C. 363=1933 M. 219.

SECS. 145 AND 147.—The right to enforce a surety bond in execution is conferred by S. 145. The surety must be regarded as a party to the suit as well as to the decree, by reading Ss. 145 and 147 together, and the same consideration which apply to the judgment-debtor should also apply to him as well in matters of execution. 1940 N.L.J. 244.

SEC. 145 AND O. 38, R. 5.—Order 38, Rule 5 no doubt contemplates security for the production in Court of property sought to be attached before judgment or its value at a future time when called upon and the amount of the security demanded should ordinarily be commensurate with the value of the property sought to be attached, and not the decretal amount. But the object of the legislature for providing for attachments before judgment was to secure the prospective decree-holder in matter of realisation of the money that might be eventually found by the Court to be due to him. Where, therefore, a Court makes a demand for and takes security for the prospective decretal amount, at most it is only an irregular manner of the exercise of its jurisdiction. But the surety who has executed the surety bond in that form cannot raise the objection to the bond in the course of execution proceedings started against him under the provisions of S. 145. 40 C.W.N. 657=1936 C. 143.

SEC. 146.—Under S. 146 transferee from an auction-purchaser is entitled to delivery of possession. 40 A. 216=42 I.C. 936. See also 84 I.C. 665=1924 M. 470. Executing Court cannot go behind the decree and by invoking S. 146, it cannot change a decree passed against R into a decree against his legal representatives. For purposes of rateable distribution the executing Court must take the decrees as they are. 159 I.C. 575=40 C.W.N. 26=1935 C. 738 (S. 146, if enlarges scope of S. 73, see ibid.). Legal

147. In all suits to which any person under disability is a party, any consent or agreement, as to any proceeding shall, if given or made with the express leave of the Court by the next friend or guardian for the suit, have the same force and effect as if such person, were under no disability and had given such consent or made such agreement.

148. Where any period is fixed or granted by the Court for the doing of any Act prescribed or allowed by this Code, the Court may, in its discretion, from time to time, enlarge such period, even though the period originally fixed or granted may have expired.

Execution application by one of several surviving coparceners though cannot be given effect to as being defective, is yet not altogether invalid 51 B. 143=100 I.C. 619=1927 B. 123. S. 146 is not intended to apply to a coparcener while the manager or karta in a joint Hindu family is alive so as to allow the coparcener to sue in his place. There is no devolution of interest in such a case as is contemplated by S. 146. 30 S.L.R. 467=1937 S. 94. S. 146 applies only when the person claiming to take or continue a proceeding can properly be regarded as claiming under the original party who brought the action or took the proceeding. Where pending a suit for ejectment by a lessor, a final partition is passed in another suit allotting the property, the subject of the ejectment suit to the son of the lessor, it cannot be said that the son gets the property by reason of any assignment from his father and the son cannot be regarded as a person claiming under the lessor within the meaning of S. 146, so as to entitle him to come on record in an appeal against his father alone by the defendant in the ejectment suit from the decree therein. 52 L.W. 357=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 876=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 349. Where merits are on the side of appellant he can be allowed to appeal even though he is a transferee from a party after the decree. 40 I.C. 846=1917 M.W.N. 306. A real owner can be allowed under S. 146 to file an appeal against the dismissal of a suit instituted by his benamidar who has released his right in the property claimed in the suit by a deed which recites that the appellant is the real purchaser of the property. The Court has ample powers under S. 146 to permit the person in whose favour the plaintiff has released his rights in the property to file an appeal. 50 L.W. 429=1940 Mad. 16=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 759. Assignee after decree and before appeal ought to be allowed to join in the appeal under this section. 38 I.C. 511=20 O.C. 31. See also 53 L.W. 283=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 469. A transferee to whom a future decree (and nothing else) has been expressly assigned can execute the decree subsequently passed. The transferee can apply for execution under S. 146, though not under O. 21, R. 16, which cannot apply to a case where there is no decree in existence at the time of the assignment. O. 21, R. 16 does not, however, prohibit an application by a transferee who obtains an assignment of a decree before it is actually passed. The rule is not at all inclusive in this matter. 54 L.W. 429=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 631; 1935 L. 119; 69 I.C. 959=3 P.L.T. 625. See on this section 12 M.L.J. 435; 29 C. 33. Where on death of a pauper plaintiff pendente lite his heir is brought on record and he is not himself a pauper, application may be made to have him dispaupered. 131 I.C. 828=1931 M. 324.

SIMPLE MORTGAGEE SUBSEQUENT TO SUIT—RIGHT TO CONTINUE SUIT.—S. 146 is a general residuary provision. It cannot be invoked in a case of devolution of interest which is expressly provided for by O. 22, R. 10 and an application to be impleaded as a party and continue the suit can only be allowed to the extent to which O. 22, R. 10 allows and no more. A simple mortgagee subsequent to suit of the share of a partition suit cannot be allowed to be added as plaintiff and continue suit after original plaintiff has withdrawn the suit, under O. 22, R. 10 or under the residuary provisions of S. 146. He is not a person 'claiming under' a party; his is only a derivative interest. 38 L.W. 280. See also (1940) 2 M. L. J. 376.

SEC. 148.—[See also notes under S. 149.] SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—It is a general rule that where a party is required to do a thing under a decree and time limit is prescribed for doing it, the Court which passed the decree has no jurisdiction to extend the time limit, but it is subject to the qualification that where the decree or order which fixes the time is not intended to be final and the Court still retains control over the proceeding, the Court may extend time under S. 148. Whether the Court still retains control over the proceeding or not must be determined upon the nature of the proceeding and the order passed therein. 21 Pat.L.T. 849=1940 Pat. 50. See also 1940 Mad. 934=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 427; 42 C.W.N. 449. Where a Court has granted time within which a payment must be made and has declared that in default of payment within the time specified the proceedings will stand dismissed, there is no power under S. 148, after the date on which the proceedings would stand dismissed to extend the time in which the payment was to be made. But when the application for extension is not made under S. 148 but under S. 151, invoking the inherent powers of the Court, and the mistake which led to the failure to pay was not a mere mistaking of the party but the mistake of the Court's officer, the Court has inherent power to prevent the party from being damnified by the mistake of the Court's own officer and can extend the time for the ends of justice. (1941) 1 M.L.J. 638. A trial Court has power to grant extension of time under S. 148; the appellate Court is not the only Court which can pass an order extending time though the decree has been confirmed on appeal. 1935 R. 500. Section 148 does not authorise the Court to enlarge the period provided by O. 21, r. 58 for the payment of balance of purchase-money. 35 C.W.N. 877. Under O. 21, r. 89 the money to get the sale set aside has got to be deposited within thirty days of date to sale. S. 148 has no application because the period of days is not fixed or granted by Court; it is fixed by the Code and cannot be extended under Limitation Act. 1933 R. 8. See also 1935 A.L.J. 995=1935 A. 873. Court cannot extend period originally fixed by a decree. But when application for extension is made before the decree, Court is bound to consider it, and exercise the jurisdiction conferred on it by S. 148 one way or the other. If it fails to consider an application through a mistake of its own, it has inherent jurisdiction to rectify its mistake, even though it means the re-opening of a decree. No party should be allowed to suffer because of Court's negligence. 30 N.L.R. 258=149 I.C. 840=1934 N. 109. S. 148 does not apply to extension of time for deposit of printing charges under R. 13 of the Oudh Rules of Practice. 50 I.C. 789=22 O.C. 13. See also 61 C.L.J. 512 (Extension of time for payment of costs made condition precedent to allowing amendment of plaint); 156 I. C. 207=1935 O. W. If on an application by the judgment-debtor for setting aside a sale, an order is passed that if the decretal amount is deposited within a certain time the sale would be set aside and on failure to deposit that sum within the stipulated period, the application would stand dismissed, the Court ceases to have jurisdiction and has no power to grant the judgment-debtor an extension of time to put in the decretal amount, unless he files a properly constituted application for the review of the order. S. 148 can have no application in a case of this nature in which a final order has been passed in a judgment. The provisions of O. 20, R. 3 would apply. I.L.R. In a case where a judgment-debtor is to pay a certain amount of money, but there is a clause under which if he pays certain instalments promptly a certain concession would be made to him and a smaller sum would be accepted in full satisfaction of the debt, there is no case of penalty or forfeiture, and the party seeking to take advantage of the concession must carry out strictly the condition on which it is granted. This class of cases must be distinguished from the class of cases where there is an agreement to pay a sum of money by a particular date with a condition that if the money is not paid on that date, a larger sum should be made; this latter condition is in the nature of a penalty, while in the former class of cases, it is not a penal clause and hence the Court has no power to grant relief from the obligation to abide strictly by the condition which is in the nature of a concession. The principle is the same whether the sum involved is large or small, and the fact that the default is only in respect of small margin is no ground for the grant of relief. There is no general principle of equity that the Court can relieve a party in default in respect of money payments whenever the Court thinks just. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 389.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—Per King, J. (Obiter).—In order to avoid a conflict between O. 45, R. 7 and S. 148, it must be held that O. 45, R. 7 must prevail, both on the principle "generalia specialibus non derogant" and on the principle that the general discretion given by S. 148 is a judicial discretion which can only be exercised according to law and not in contravention of law. 55 A. 432=1933 A.L.J. 207=1933 A. 241 (F.B.). See also 1939 P. 667=19 P. 123 (F.B.).

Court can extend time for payment of deficit Court-fee. 21 Pat.L.T. 849=1940 Pat. 50. In a redemption suit Court could extend the time fixed in decree for payment of decretal amount to a prior mortgagee only under O. 34, R. 8 and not under S. 148. 34 A. 388. Time agreed upon by parties for the payment of decretal amount of mortgage money may be extended by Court in a proper case. 50 I.C. 937=23 C.W.N. 439. Where the terms of a compromise decree are not interdependent and each direction stands by itself and is separately enforceable, the fact that decree-holder and judgment-debtor have been guilty of failure to perform their respective obligations under the decree does not disentitle one party from compelling the other to perform his obligations in execution proceedings and in such a case S. 148 does not debar Court from extending time fixed by the decree. 116 I.C. 651=1929 N. 164. See also 1934 O. 44; 148 I.C. 251; 147 I.C. 559. When there is a decree based on an agreement between the parties, an essential term of that agreement embodied in the decree cannot be changed by an act of the Court on the application of only one of the parties, but the consent of both the parties to the original agreement would be necessary for its modification. Where a definite period is fixed for the performance of an obligation as an essential part of the contract, the Court has no power to vary the terms and to grant an extension of time, if the time stipulated is an essential part of the terms of the contract embodied in the decree and not a mere threat of a penal nature. ## NOTES.

APPEAL.—Orders under S. 148 are not appealable because they are neither decrees nor included in the list of appealable orders. 1935 R. 500.

REVISION.—A Court arbitrarily granting an application for restoration of a suit long after period of limitation expired acts without jurisdiction and its order is open to revision. 52 I.C. 439=4 P.L.J. 428.

SECS. 148 AND 149.—Under Ss. 148 and 149, read together, it is always open to Court to extend the time for the payment of deficient Court-fee even after expiry of the time originally fixed for payment and Court has power to extend time in such circumstances even after passing a decree when the direction as to payment of the Court-fee is not incorporated in it. Such extension should be granted where the mistake is due to mere accident or inadvertence and on the merits, it is a fit case. 149 I.C. 96 (2)=35 P.L.R. 459=1934 L. 537. See also 66 C.L.J. 78. When time is fixed by the Court for payment of deficit Court-fee on a plaint, it is not open to the plaintiff to demand as a matter of right that the time should be extended. The power to grant extension vests in the Courts either under S. 148 or S. 149, under either of these sections the question is one of the Court's discretion and not the plaintiff's right. S. 149 expressly provides for defective documents being retrospectively validated. The Court must, however, exercise its discretion, not capriciously, but judicially and reasonably. 1938 M.W.N. 259=47 L.W. 492=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 542=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 610. To extend time under Ss. 148 and 149, the Court must have a case before it in regard to which it has jurisdiction. The expressions 'from time to time' in S. 148 and 'at any stage' in S. 149 clearly indicate this. The jurisdiction of a Civil Court commences when a plaint is filed and comes to an end when judgment is pronounced under O. 20, r. 3. Where a preliminary decree for dissolution of partnership fixed a time for payment of deficient Court-fee and stated, that on default the decree would become a nullity, the time so fixed cannot be extended either under S. 148 or S. 149, as the jurisdiction of the Court has come to an end on the pronouncing of the judgment and signing of the same. Such a judgment cannot according to O. 20, r. 3, which is imperative, be altered except as provided by S. 152 or by review. Because of O. 20, R. 6 during the time between the signing of the judgment and the decree, nothing could be altered. 177 I.C. 824=1938 A.L.

SEC. 149: SCOPE OF SECTION.—[N.B.—See also Notes under S. 148.] The discretion conferred on the Court by S. 149 is normally expected to be exercised in favour of the litigant except in cases of contumacy or positive mala fides or reasons of a similar kind. The question of bona fides in this connection should be construed in the sense that the word is used in the General Causes Act and not as used in the Limitation Act. A thing should be presumed to be done bona fide, if it is done honestly whether it is done negligently or not for the purposes of judging whether the discretion under S. 149 should or should not be exercised in favour of the litigant. 40 P.L.R. 413=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 361 (F.B.). The Court has a double function; it has its judicial function to hear and determine cases; it has also the function of acting as a collector of revenue for the Government in the shape of Court-fees according to the statutes provided, and in exercising that function it has a discretion granted to allow time. Under S. 149, the Court has a clear discretion to allow time to a plaintiff for the payment of Court-fee, and when the Court-fee has been paid, the plaint upon which it was paid must be deemed as having been filed on the day on which it was actually filed. The provision for payment of Court-fees has really nothing to do with the litigation as such or with the merits of the case, and is merely a provision enforcing the payment of revenue by a denial of judicial process to a person who does not pay the provided fees. 18 Pat.L. T. 665=16 Pat. 600=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 550 (S.B.). See also 1940 Pat. 50. Where a Court passes a decree in a suit, and provides that the decree shall be subject to the condition of plaintiff's paying the deficit Court-fee by a certain date failing which the suit will stand dismissed with costs, there is a final order which cannot be subsequently altered or amended except with regard to clerical orders or on review. The Court has no jurisdiction to extend time under S. 149, for payment of the deficit Court-fee, whether the application for extension of time is made before or after the expiry of the time fixed for payment. The suit stands dismissed under the order already made. If the Court refuses to grant time and holds that the suit already stands dismissed, it is not without jurisdiction, and cannot be interfered with in revision. 1941 P.W.N. 516. See also 1938 A. 497. Power to allow deficiency of Court-fee to be made up is not confined to Court receiving the insufficiently stamped document. 13 L.L.T. 31. See also 1940 Pat. 50. Discretion under S. 149 extends to the whole or any part of any fee prescribed and can be exercised at any stage in the case. 33 C.W.N. 781=117 I.C. 493=57 M.L.J. 281 (P.C.). See also 156 I.C. 405=16 P.L.T. 385=1935 P. 201. The section is intended to remedy the hardship caused by rulings in 20 M. 319; 27 C. 376; 28 A. 310; 10 C.W.N. 844 and follows 29 A. 749 (F.B.). Under O. 7, r. 11 the Court may admit a plaint though written on paper insufficiently stamped, if the plaintiff on being required by the Court supplies the requisite stamp paper within the time allowed by the Court, the plaint is a valid plaint and must be regarded as having been filed on the date on which it was originally presented. The Court has a discretion under S. 149 to grant time for payment or to extend the time granted for payment and the discretion of the trial Court in the matter should not be interfered with by the Court of appeal. 48 L.W. 244=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 560=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 135. Permission to pay deficient Court-fee is in the discretion of Court but would ordinarily be granted unless there was proved deliberate intention of the person liable to pay the Court-fees to evade obligations. 18 R.D. 44. See also 156 I.C. 405=1935 P. 201; 1936 L. 935. Where appeals presented without the proper Court-fee are accepted by the office without objection, the question of the Court-fee payable not being free from doubt, and the appellants are not guilty of any deliberate attempt to avoid payment of proper Court-fee, they (appellants) are entitled to the grant of time for payment of the same. 159 I.C. 274=1935 L. 448. Where in the trial Court the defendants themselves had stated that the Court-fee was payable on a certain amount and the Court after enquiry had fixed that amount as the proper value of the suit, the appellate Court, when it finds this value to be insufficient, should grant the plaintiffs time to make good the deficiency. This is eminently a case to which the provisions of S. 149 apply. 40 P.L.R. 33. A Court has a discretion to extend time for payment of the requisite Court-fee due on a memorandum of appeal, when the appellant had paid a substantial portion of the Court-fee and pleaded poverty as a ground for extension of time. 177 I.C. 505=1938 N.L.J. 155=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 322. Where the copies supplied to a pleader who filed an appeal showed the value of the suit at a certain amount which was less than the correct amount, and Court-fee was paid thereon, the mistake is clearly bona fide, and the Court should allow the deficiency to be made good and not dismiss the appeal. 38 P.L.R. 262. Where an insufficiently stamped memo. of appeal is presented and deficient Court-fee is paid on a later date, the appeal takes effect from date on which Court-fee was paid. 37 C.W.N. 179=146

I.C. 359=1933 C. 796. Where deficient Court-fee is paid within time allowed by Court but after the period of limitation, suit is not barred. 23 I.C. 408=12 A.L.J. 709. See also 21 A.L.J. 333=1923 A. 349 (1); 45 A. 518; 84 I.C. 946; 4 P. 190; 107 I.C. 223. Whatever the reasons for the Courts granting time for payment of deficit Court-fees, the effect of the grant of time, even if it is after the claim is barred by limitation, is that the plaint takes effect as if it had been presented along with the full Court-fee on the date of its first presentation. 52 L.W. 533=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 934=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 427. In the absence of an order granting time under S. 149, presentation of the unstamped or insufficiently stamped memorandum of appeal will not amount to a valid presentation. 47 L.W. 211=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 316=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 514. In the certified copies of the judgment and the decree of the lower appellate Court, the value of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction was given as Rs. 5 and on this amount the appellant paid Court-fee while presenting the appeal. Subsequently it transpired that the real value of the suit was much more and therefore the appellant was called upon to pay the deficient Court-fee which he made good within the time allowed but after the period prescribed by law for presentation of the appeal had passed. Held, that this was eminently a fit case in which the delay in filing the deficient Court-fee should be condoned under S. 149. 39 P.L.R. 389=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 688. Where the Court-fee payable on a memorandum of objections to an award has not been paid through inadvertence, owing to a bona fide mistake of the objector's Counsel but the requisite Court-fee is paid at the earliest opportunity, the Court should, under S. 149, accept the Court-fee and should not dismiss the objections as not properly stamped. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 276. If Court in its discretion allows time for paying the deficiency in Court-fee and the deficiency is made good, S. 149 enables the defective document to be retrospective in its effect. 1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740; 156 I.C. 405=1935 P. 201; 154 I.C. 135=1935 O.W.N. 162=1935 O. 231. S. 149 gives wide and unfettered discretion to the Court to accept Court-fees at any stage, and if the Court receives the Court-fee after the expiry of the period of limitation, the instrument is validated retrospectively as from date of its presentation. 163 I.C. 770=1936 O. 340. See also 37 P.L.R. 199. Where High Court remanded the case with direction that plaintiffs should make good deficiency "within ten days of the case reaching trial Court" and the Sub-Judge who heard the case passed an order directing plaintiffs to appear on a certain date and on the latter date asked them to deposit the requisite Court-fee within ten days from the date and that order was complied with, held, the Court could not subsequently reject the plaint on the ground that Court-fee had been paid out of time. 137 I.C. 76=1932 L. 235. See also 14 L. 312=146 I.C. 809=1933 L. 598. Inability of a party to raise funds is not ordinarily a sufficient ground which would entitle the Court to exercise its discretion under S. 149, and to permit payment of the deficit Court-fees. But that rule has reference only to normal conditions. But where it is shown that the party seeking the Court's discretion lives in a district where an acute famine prevails and that in consequence he was unable to procure the necessary funds, an exception should be made to the rule, and the Court in such a case will exercise its discretion in his favour under S. 149. 40 C.W.N. 1294. Where Court rejected a plaint on the ground that the deficiency in Court-fee had not been made good and plaintiff subsequently, instead of filing a fresh plaint, asked that suit should be restored, and paid the deficiency of Court-fee on the former plaint. Held, that the Court had power to treat the Court-fee already paid as part of the Court-fee and is not compelled to require the plaintiff to pay a full Court-fee on the fresh plaint. 159 I.C. 630=1935 A.L.J. 1127=1935 A. 985. The Court will not in its discretion allow the deficiency of Court-fee to be made up on the day of the hearing unless it is satisfied that some grounds exist for the exercise of its discretion and that a bona fide mistake was made. 44 I.C. 398. Where an application to sue in forma pauperis found to be mala fide the Court in the exercise of its discretion is justified in refusing to grant extension of time under S. 149. 42 P.L.R. 684=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 446. Where a person files a suit in forma pauperis within the period of limitation but his application to sue as pauper is dismissed and he is required to pay Court-fee on a date which went beyond the limitation period and the Court-fee is so paid at a time granted under S. 149, the suit should be regarded as filed when the pauper application was first made. However, if it is to be regarded as filed when Court-fees were paid, then the period during which the applicant was busy in prosecuting his pauper application should be excluded in counting the period of limitation and no question of limitation arises under O. 33, R. 15. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 730. If an application to sue in forma pauperis is filed and pending disposal of that application, the pauper by paying the amount of stamp-fees into Court, admits that he is no longer desirous to sue as pauper, the plaint filed with the application will relate back to the date when the application was filed, always assuming that the application to sue in forma pauperis was made bona fide. 1935 M.W.N. 863=158 I.C. 790=42 L.W. 655=1935 M. 878 [2 A. 241 (P.C.), Foll.]. See also 62 C. 711; 161 I.C. 954=1936 Pesh. 69; 1936 A. 584 (F. B.). S. 149 cannot empower a Court after refusing to allow a petitioner to sue in forma pauperis, to pay Court-fee and treat his application for leave to sue in forma pauperis as a plaint. If such an applicant files a suit, whether with the original document contained in his petition or with a plaint subsequently drafted, he can do so only by strict compliance with the provisions of O. 33, R. 15, under which rule alone the suit comes into existence. Where a petitioner, on being refused leave to file his suit in forma pauperis and ordered to pay the defendant's costs, asks for time for paying Court-fee, and pays the Court-fee on a subsequent day to which the matter is adjourned and at a later stage of the suit the defendant who till then makes no mention of his costs, pleads non-payment of the costs and an issue is framed on the point as to whether the suit is barred by O. 33, R. 18, if the plaintiff pays such costs, S. 149 cannot apply, and the suit cannot be held to be properly filed under O. 33, R. 15, on the date on which the Court-fee has been paid. But though O. 33, R. 15 is imperative, a suit in which the costs have in fact been paid must be treated as one instituted on the day on which the costs are paid, and cannot thereafter be dismissed as barred under O. 33, R. 15. 49 L.W. 323=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 316=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 738. A Judge acts ministerially in distributing plaints and does not constitute a Court for the purpose of extension of time under S. 149. But the mere fact that the deficiency in Court-fee is made up on his requisition is not material, as even if the plaint is sent to the trial Court with deficient Court-fee, that Court would be bound to ask the plaintiff under O. 7, R. 11 to make up the Court-fee within a period to be fixed by it, and could reject the plaint only if the deficiency is not made up within that period. 39 P.L.R. 199=171 I.C. 764=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 392. See also 1937 Pat. 550 (S.B.). There is nothing in the wording of S. 149 to support the view that it does not apply to an executing Court. Where Court-fee is payable in a decree but no time is fixed for its payment in the decree itself, there is no reason why the executing Court could not allow time for the payment. An application for execution of that decree filed within time is not, therefore, barred by limitation by reason of the Court-fee having been paid after limitation, if it was paid within the time allowed by the executing Court. 39 P.L. R. 581=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 720.

NOTES.

FORM OF ORDER.—A decree of the type that "plaintiffs should pay deficient Court-fees on Rs. 470-8-0 within 15 days or suit shall stand dismissed" is undesirable. The proper course is for Court to fix a time for payment and wait until it expires before passing its decree. The decree should then be a final one dismissing the suit and not contain contingent clauses. (1918 A. 98, Ref.). 30 N.L.R. 258=149 I.C. 840=1934 N. 109.

LIMITATION.—In case of a suit in which an insufficiently stamped plaint is filed within limitation period, though the deficiency in the Court-fee is made up after limitation period, the suit is deemed to have been instituted on date of the actual filing of the plaint under section 149. 1 P.L.J. 420. Where plaint is filed in time but with an insufficient Court-fee and the deficiency is made good under O. 7, R. 11, no question of limitation arises. The law is otherwise as regards memoranda of appeal. 3 P.L.T. 142, See also 18 Pat. L.T. 665=16 P. 600=1937 P. 550 (S.B.) Where in a suit for dissolution of partnership, a defendant is given a final decree for a certain sum on his paying the requisite Court-fee, the proceedings in that Court do not become final until that Court either accepts the Court-fee or holds that the claim is dismissed for non-payment of the Court-fee. Until this Court-fee is paid there is no decree capable of execution, and when there is no decree capable of execution limitation cannot begin to run under Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. As section 149 gives the Court absolute discretion, at any stage, to allow the person by whom Court-fee is payable to pay it, its acceptance of Court-fee though after three years from the date of the order directing the payment of the necessary Court-fee, is quite valid and time for execution of the decree begins to run only after the date when the Court-fee was paid. I.L.R. (1938) All. 848=1938 A.L.J. 917=A.I.R. 1938 All. 539. See in this connection 133 I.C. 122; 146 I.C. 753=1933 A. 572=1933 A.L.J. 1357.

SET OFF.—Written statement not bearing requisite Court-fee—Power of Court to decide set-off—Demand of Court-fee at late stage—Legality. 16 P.L.T. 76.

REVISION.—Where objections were filed against an award without affixing Court-fee stamp, and the Court disposed of the matter without taking any notice of the objections and without giving the objector any opportunity whatsoever to make good the Court-fee stamp. Held, in revision, that the Court had acted with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in ignoring the provisions of section 28 of the Court-Fees Act and section 149, and its order was, therefore, liable to be set aside. 38 P.L.R. 1163=169 I.C. 672. If the discretion allowed to a Court under section 149 to allow time for payment of Court-fees is exercised in an outrageous fashion which prejudices the defendant, it is quite open to the injured defendant to go to the High Court for relief in revision; and the High Court, in an application for revision against the order allowing time, would, by virtue of its general powers of superintendence, interfere and check the action of the lower Court. But if the injured party takes no such step, he is not entitled in an appeal from the final decree in the suit to attack the ultimate decree or order of the trial Court on the basis of the wrongful exercise of discretion by the lower Court in allowing extension of time. Such wrong exercise of discretion, whether by the trial Courts or first appellate Courts, must be remedied, if at all, at once by the High Court on the application of the aggrieved party, and it would be too late if that party allows the suit to proceed and then seeks to interfere with the discretion in appeal. 18 P.L.T. 665=16 Pat. 600=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 550 (S.B.).

REVIEW.—If, without an application for review, a Court sets aside its own previous order rejecting a plaint for non-payment of deficient Court-fees and gives a further extension of time under section 149, its subsequent order is not a nullity but remains a perfectly good order until it is set aside by a superior Court or in proper proceedings. 69 C.L.J. 379=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 722. If plaintiff obtains a grant of time by an entirely false representation, it would be inequitable to allow him to take advantage of his own fraud. An insufficiently stamped plaint was filed on the last day of limitation with an application for granting time for payment of full Court-fee alleging that plaintiff was not possessed of the amount required. The Court granted an extension of time for paying the full stamp and within the time allowed the requisite Court-fees were paid; but subsequently on the date of hearing, the defendant contended that time was obtained by plaintiff on false pretences and the Court reviewed its order granting time, and finding that it was obtained by plaintiff under false pretences, set it aside and dismissed the suit as barred by limitation. Held, that the Court had power to review its order granting time under section 149 and reject the plaint as barred by limitation. 1937 N. 87.

SECTION 149 AND O. 7, R. 11: RELATIVE SCOPE OF.—The provision in the Code which really enables a Court to grant time to make good a deficiency in Court-fee stamp on the plaint is not R. 11 of O. 7, but section 149, O. 7, R. 11 does not enforce upon a Court, the granting of time to make good the deficiency in Court-fee stamp. It is not an enabling provision but a disabling one. The authority to issue the order granting time lies in section 149 and the penalty for default in R. 11 of O. 7; section 149 gives the Court a discretion either to grant time or to refuse to grant time. 190 I.C. 197=1941 Oudh 30=1940 O.W.N. 797. See also 1937 O.W.N. 804=1937 O. 414; 1941 Pesh. 69.

150. Save as otherwise provided, where the business of any Court is transferred to any other Court, the Court to which the business is so transferred shall have the same powers and shall perform the same duties as those respectively conferred and imposed by or under this Code upon the Court from which the business was so transferred.

151. Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent power of the Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court.

NOTES.

SEC. 150.—Section applies also to cases of partial territorial adjustment of jurisdiction and transfer of business with reference to that part alone to another Court. 46 M. 1=42 M.L.J. 344. See also 61 C.L.J. 543; 34 L.W. 271=1931 M.W.N. 842=61 M.L.J. 307 (following 42 M.L.J. 244 and 43 M.L.J. 713); 1929 A. 677. Section 150 only applies to cases where the business of a Court is transferred to another Court on account of the abolition of that Court or the transfer of any local area from the jurisdiction of one Court to that of another. It cannot be invoked to meet a case where there has neither been a transfer of the entire business of a Court owing to its abolition, nor a transfer of any particular case from one Court to another. Where there has only been a transfer of jurisdiction as to future business subject to an express reservation as regards pending cases, the Court in which a suit was pending and which passed the decree has exclusive jurisdiction to entertain and decide applications for restitution arising out of such suit. I.L.R. (1937) All. 670=1937 A.L.J. 538=A.I.R. 1937 All. 515. The word "transfer" is not used in a limited sense of transfers under the special provision of the Code. It implies that the whole business can be transferred to another Court without an order from a superior Court under S. 24. When all proceedings are transferred ipso facto to the new Court, such new Court has power to continue execution proceedings relating to lands situated in transferred area pending the former Court at the time of transfer. 37 M. 462=26 M.L.J. 189. SEC. 151: SCOPE OF SECTION—INHERENT POWERS OF COURT.—Scope of section pointed out. 47 C.L.J. 87; 1940 Rang.L.R. 421; 1941 A.L.J. 345. There will be always cases and circumstances which are not covered by the provisions of the Code wherein justice has to be done. 33 C. 927; 33 C. 1094; 40 M. 1069; 1930 C. 20; 36 C. 193; 61 C. 711. Legislature can only foresee the most natural and ordinary events and no rules of any Code can be made to regulate for all time to come and for all cases that may happen. 9 W.R. 402 at p. 406; 1925 O. 128. S. 151 provides only for an extraordinary procedure and action under it is not in any sense obligatory. The section could only be invoked where no other remedy is possible. It does not confer any substantive rights on parties but is mainly meant to get over difficulties arising from rules of procedure, which would otherwise prevent courts from dealing out justice between the parties. 1941 A.L.J. (Supp.) 1=1940 O.W.N. 1072. Per Blagden, J.—S. 151 does not empower the Court to make any order which the particular individuals who at a given moment happen to compose it think just or calculated to prevent an abuse of its process. The words "ends of justice" and "abuse of the process of the Court", must, in fact, be construed with due regard to the rest of the provisions of the Code, the section being really intended to prevent the Courts being rendered impotent by any omission in the Code. The section empowers the Court to make "necessary orders," and no other orders. 1940 Rang.L.R. 512=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 162 (F.B.). A party who had an appropriate remedy under a specific provision of the Code of which he has failed to avail himself cannot be allowed to invoke the inherent powers of the Court. There is no room for the exercise of such powers in a case coming within any specific provision of the Code. 52 L.W. 357=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 876=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 349. Section 151 does not confer new power on the Court. It simply saves the inherent power of the Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court in cases and circumstances which are not covered by the express provisions of the Code which deals only with procedure and not with substantive rights and obligations; by the exercise of inherent power the Court cannot exonerate a litigant from an obligation imposed upon him by the statute. 159 I.C. 443=62 C.L.J. 298=1935 C. 707;

164 I.C. 200=1936 A.L.J. 736=1936 A. 555; 158 I.C. 971=1935 Pesh. 151. See also 153 I.C. 329=40 L.W. 853=1935 M. 105 (Power to make interim order of maintenance). Ordinarily the preservation of the inherent power would not enable Courts to extend the scope of powers specifically conferred upon them by other provisions of the Code, and S. 151 should not be utilised so as to make it supplementary to S. 115. The inherent powers, which can be exercised by a superior Court, are ordinarily such powers as are necessary to exercise in relation to proceedings pending before it, and would not include a power similar to power of revision under S. 115, even to cases to which that section is not applicable. 156 I.C. 806=1935 A.L.J. 549=1935 A. 599 (F. B.). Court has an inherent power "ex debito justitiæ" to consolidate, postpone, pending the decision of a selected action, and to advance the hearing of suits; to stay on the ground of convenience cross suits; to ascertain whether the proper parties are before it; to enquire whether plaintiff is entitled to sue as an adult; to entertain application of a third person to be made a party; to add a party; to allow defence in forma pauperis; to decide one question and to reserve another for investigation (the Privy Council pointing out that it did not require any provision of the Code to authorise a Judge to do what in this matter was justice and for the advantage of the parties); to remand a suit in a case to which neither S. 562 nor S. 566 (1882) applies; to stay the drawing up of the Court's own orders or to suspend their operation if the necessities of justice so require; to stay, apart from the question whether the case falls within S. 545, the carrying out of a preliminary order pending appeal; to stay proceedings in a lower Court pending appeal and to appoint temporary guardian of a minor upon such stay; to apply the principles of res judicata to cases not falling within Ss. 13 and 14 of the Code (1882) and so forth." 33 C. 927 at p. 932; 6 M. Also for "punishing for contempt of Court committed when the Court is not sitting; deciding questions of jurisdiction though the Court is ultimately found not to have jurisdiction over the suit; directing a party who has applied for leave to appeal to His Majesty's Council to pay costs on the dismissal of his application; amending decrees or orders; granting restitution in cases of reversal of execution sales and orders in execution proceedings; restraining by injunction a person from proceeding with a suit in the Small Cause Court; staying proceedings pursuant to its own order in view of an intended appeal; and treating an application for revision as an appeal and vice versa." 40 C. 955 at p. 959. See also 61 C. 711. "Since laws are general rules, they cannot regulate the time to come so as to make express provision against all inconveniences, which are infinite in number, and so that their dispositions shall express all the cases that may possibly happen. It is the duty of a law-giver to foresee only the most natural and ordinary events, and to form his dispositions in such a manner as that, without entering into the detail of singular cases, he may establish rules common to them all; and next, it is the duty of the Judges to apply the laws, not only to what appears to be regulated by their express dispositions, but to all the cases to which a just application of them may be made, and which appear to be comprehended either within the express sense of the law or within the consequences that may be gathered from it." (Domat's Civil Law cited in 9 W.R. at p. 406). Inherent powers are not limited to sections 151 and 152. 1925 C. 420. Section 151 does not confer a new power on the Court, but only makes a statutory recognition of the inherent power of the Court to do certain things ex debito justitiæ. 132 I.C. 562=1931 A. 427; 139 I.C. 491=1932 A.L.J. 784=1932 A. 587; 140 I.C. 412=1932 O. 293. It is not only permissible but imperative on Court to grant restitution under this section, provided it is necessary for preventing injustice and does not contravene any statutory provision. 55 A. 221=144 I.C. 492=1933 A.L.J. 60=1933 A. 218. Court can pass such orders in exercise of its inherent powers as may be necessary for the ends of justice. 138 I.C. 328=33 P.L.R. 152=1932 L. 267. See also 132 I.C. 562=1931 A. 427. Insolvency Courts possess, as much as other civil Courts, the powers to make orders which may be necessary in the ends of justice and to correct their own errors committed inadvertently or by oversight. 15 L. 698. Section 151 is intended for exceptional cases for which there is no remedy except the Court's inherent powers. It is not intended to enable Court to evade or ignore the provisions of law which govern procedure. Where after passing a decree, a Court suo motu set aside its own decree on the ground it had discovered some documentary evidence on the record the procedure is illegal. 21 A.L.J. 447=73 I.C. 494; 86 I.C. 1045 (S.). may appear to prevent justice in order to give effect to the real and substantial right of the parties. Sections 151, 152 and 153 are just as applicable to Courts of first instance as to Courts of appellate jurisdiction and the appellate Court ought to take steps by way of amendments which were clearly open to the first or other lower Court. 34 I.C. 79=38 A. 398; 1 Luck. 187=105 I.C. 146=1927 O. 276. Section 151 empowers Courts to deal with their own decrees and orders and does not give authority to superior Courts by way of conferring jurisdiction over inferior Courts. 42 B. 363=45 I.C. 552. The inherent power of a Court can be invoked only for the attainment of the ends of substantial justice. 19 C.W.N. 835=25 I.C. 267. Court may do what is fair and equitable. 84 I.C. 134=48 M. 494; 138 I.C. 328=1932 L. 267. Section 151 is not a general clause validating every act of a Court which cannot otherwise be justified. The Court can act under the section only if it is necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court. If the Court purports to prevent an abuse it must find what that abuse is. The Court cannot pass an unconsidered order of dismissal leaving it to be inferred, firstly, that there were circumstances warranting its acting under section 151; and secondly, that it did so act. 54 M.L.J. 665=1928 M. 522. It must not be used to defeat the imperative provisions of section 3 of the Limitation Act. 66 I.C. 270; 86 I.C. 256=1925 L. 321 (2); 142 I.C. 185=1933 R. 90. An application which is barred both by the law of limitation and by the principle of res judicata cannot legally be entertained or granted by a Court in the exercise of its inherent powers. 1935 L. 60. The doctrine of inherent power has no scope for application where there is express statutory provisions on the point in controversy. 69 I.C. 718; 75 I.C. 487=1923 L. 506 (2); 106 I.C. 575; 15 I.C. 53=16 C.W.N. 1029. See also 1935 L. 60. It is only when the Court has exhausted its powers under the specific provisions of the Code, that it can fall back upon the residuary power with which it has been vested under section 151. 1935 P. 68; 38 P.L.R. 373. A reductio ad absurdum can be avoided by a Judge under the provisions of this section which is wide enough for the purpose. 37 I.C. 382. The inherent powers of a Court are not to be used in order to relieve a party from the consequences of his own mistakes or to enable him to evade the law of limitation. 43 M.L.J. 184=70 I.C. 743; 89 I.C. 427. See also 1925 L. 321; 1935 L. 60. Excusing delay to sue as pauper. 101 I.C. 320 (1)=1927 N. 197. Refund of excess Court-fee—Application made after long delay—Certificate to apply to Government can be refused. 1930 P. 435 (2). Inherent power is that which inheres in a Court by the very fact of its being empowered to exercise any jurisdiction at all so that it comes within the express sense of the law or within the consequence that may be gathered from it. 1 L.W. 882=26 I.C. 63. The power mentioned in section 151 must be used very sparingly and only in the last resort. 67 I.C. 296; 34 I.C. 787; 33 M.L.J. 184=70 I.C. 743=1922 M. 417. If a suit is dismissed by the trial Court for certain reasons, it is open to the Court of appeal to dismiss it for completely different reasons. 4 O.W.N. 862=104 I.C. 824=1927 O. 455. Varieties of inherent powers are well recognized and new categories cannot be invented. 150 I.C. 446=1934 A.L.J. 1191=1934 A. 585.

solidation of second appeal—Single memorandum of appeal, vakalatnama and Court-fee—High Court had no inherent power to order such consolidation. [54 M.L.J. 595, overruled.] 53 M. 248=1930 M. 376=58 M.L.J. 510 (F.B.). Consolidation of Civil Revision Petitions—Filing single vakalat and paying single process-fee to common respondents—Power of High Court—Consolidated process on payment of fee in each case—Whether can be ordered. 53 M. 262=1930 M. 381=58 M.L.J. 521 (F.B.). A Court has inherent power to consolidate suits and this jurisdiction can be exercised even without the consent of the parties. 3 P.L.T. 584=67 I.C. 1000=1922 P. 566; 3 P.L.J. 446=45 I.C. 551.

As to power to admit evidence, see 138 I.C. 328=33 P.L.R. 152=1932 L. 267. The presence of a witness during the examination of the previous witness may well be termed an abuse of the process of the Court and therefore under section 151, Court has inherent power to prevent that abuse by refusing to take the evidence of that witness. 1934 A.L.J. 750=1934 A. 840. See also the following case: 138 I.C. 524=1932 A. 656 (Power to revise its own order superseding a reference to arbitration). The Court has inherent jurisdiction to deal with allegations of misconduct of arbitrator, even though the award is not made. 1933 P. 566. The holder of a decree for mesne profits which has not yet been ascertained, who has applied for the ascertainment thereof and for attachment under O. 21, R. 42, is entitled under this section and under section 73, to claim rateable distribution in the assets realised by prior attaching creditor. 151 I.C. 609=40 L.W. 291=1934 M. 604=67 M.L.J. 303. Where High Court dismisses a suit on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to try it, it can, by virtue of its inherent powers, direct the return of the plaint to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court, although O. 7, r. 10, C.P.Code, is not applicable to it. 12 R. 432=1934 R. 342. High Court has inherent power to reinstate legal practitioners who have been dismissed from their profession. (38 C. 309; 11 I.C. 997; 1 P. 684, Rel. on.) 148 I.C. 299=11 O.W.N. 368=1934 O. 140 (S.B.). Where in a suit a party objects that a pleader engaged by the opposite party should not be allowed to appear as he had been previously engaged by him in connection with the same litigation, and the lower Court after hearing both the parties, accepts the objection, an application by the pleader to set aside an order does not lie either under section 151 or section 115, or under section 85, Government of Burma Act. 177 I.C. 511=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 241. Code has reserved to every Court under section 151 the inherent power to make such orders as should be made ex debito justiae and every Court should have in view the shortening of litigation, preventing duplication of proceedings, and saving the parties from harassment and expenses. And delay, by itself, is not sufficient to deprive a party of his remedies, if such delay does not amount to waiver, acquiescence or abandonment of his claim or has not created a corresponding right in his opponent on extinguishment of his own. 61 C. 711.

ENDS OF JUSTICE.—Section recognizes inherent powers of a Court to make orders to prevent a miscarriage of justice. 38 A. 147=36 I.C. 585; 19 Pat. 159; 1938 Sind 137; 86 I.C. 882=1925 C. 1145; 1941 O.W.N. 1239. But not for purpose of remedying the effects of negligence. 148 I.C. 496=1934 A. 250. The proposition that where an alternative remedy is provided the Court is precluded from exercising its inherent jurisdiction under section 151, is too wide and does not take into account cases of a special and exceptional character which may demand the exercise of the equitable jurisdiction in the ends of justice to correct palpable mischiefs. There is no reason to limit the powers of the Court in cases where the Court is moved to correct its own mistake and wants to afford redress to the party who has been made to suffer for such mistake. 1940 O.W.N. 1086=1940 O.A. 104. Section 151 should be applied with great caution and only when the ends of justice require its application. In order to decide whether the ends of justice require the application of the section to a particular case, the Court has to keep in view not only the interest of the applicant but also that of the other party who may be affected by the order sought to be made under the section. 20 Pat.L.T. 883=1939 P.W.N. 832=A. I.R. 1939 Pat. 678 (F.B.). A Court has inherent jurisdiction to recall and cancel its invalid orders. I.L.R. (1938) All. 71=1937 A. L. J. 945=1938 All. 8. A Court has always got an inherent power to vacate or set aside an order made by it when it is brought to its notice that the order is one which is null and void and should never have been made. Its power to so rescind or vacate such an order is not limited to cases of fraud or deception practised upon the Court. 32 S.L.R. 215. Court is bound to exercise its inherent powers cautiously and with circumspection, and it is not at liberty to do so where the order proposed would contravene any principle of the common law or equity, or would affect a matter in respect of which provision has been made by statute either expressly or according to the true intentment thereof. 14 R. 173=163 I.C. 340=1936 R. 208 (F.B.). When the law of the land has provided ample remedies—Statutory and otherwise—for the redress of a wrong suffered by a party owing to the conduct of his opponent or the mistakes committed by the Court, a party is not entitled to invoke, and the Court ought not to exercise, the inherent jurisdiction of the Court. 39 Bom.L.R. 112=1937 B. 173. See also 1937 S. 101. It is of course easy in the quiet atmosphere of the Court to say that this and that should be done, and another suit should be brought; but any one who has any experience of the difficulties of litigation in India, particularly where a widow or a minor is concerned, can realize that where two courses are open, one in which the Court can take immediate action in a suit that is before it and the other in which the Court can merely say that another suit should be filed, the Court is bound in the exercise of its duty and in answer to its own conscience to direct that course should be taken which would lessen the difficulties and remove obstructions in the way of widows and orphans. 1937 S. 101. A suit can be stayed under the inherent powers under section 151 apart from the provisions of section 10. 10 L. L.J. 470=1929 L. 12; 123 I.C. 50. See also 45 L.W. 764=1937 Mad. 563=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 672; 1 P. 149, 235; 144 I.C. 107=1933 L. 50. Cognizance of cases which cut at the root of controversy. 98 I.C. 280=1927 M. 143. Section 151 has been enacted to deal effectually with abuse of process of Court. The institution of a second suit against the same party for the same relief on the same cause of action is not an abuse of the process of the Court. 27 M.L.J. 405=25 I.C. 597. O. 20, R. 3, C.P.Code, is not exhaustive and it is the duty of a Court to invoke its inherent powers to correct errors that have led to injustice through no fault of a party and to do real and substantial justice. 152 I.C. 211=1934 N. 234. Order of Court obtained by misleading it and its process abused—Court can order the party to make good the loss to the other side. 1928 M. 610=110 I.C. 535. Objection to execution of decree—Objectors alleging mistakenly that they were in possession—Objection upheld but no order passed for possession to objectors—Power of Court to restore possession. 1934 P. 683. When a situation arises in a case of contest between a life-tenant and a remainderman, consequent on the death of the former before the final decision of the Court, the Court has an inherent jurisdiction to make suitable orders for the ends of justice. 150 I.C. 425=11 O.W.N. 917=1934 O. 337.

LIMITATIONS ON THE EXERCISE OF COURT'S POWERS.—The section applies only when there is no other express provision of law. 30 I.C. 38=21 C.L.J. 614; 55 C. 219=103 I.C. 864=1927 C. 850=47 C.L.J. 69; 1933 P. 132; 69 I.C. 718; 82 I.C. 813; 1935 L. 60; 16 C.W.N. 1029. Section 151, is to be invoked when no other remedy under the law is available and one party or other is entitled to relief in equity. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 55=1940 R.D. 159. It is a well-recognised principle that where a party has another remedy, and will not adopt or negligently fails to pursue it, the Court will not, as a general rule, grant him relief under its inherent powers under section 151. 1938 P.W.N. 313=19 Pat.L.T. 111=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 447. The powers of section 151 have to be exercised sparingly. Where there is specific provision of law, or a specific procedure provided by law, which has not been followed by a party, or of which advantage has not been taken by a party, the Court would certainly hesitate before exercising its inherent jurisdiction under section 151. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 743=40 Bom.L.R. 1025=A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 510. When there are specific provisions in the Code for the remedy which a party seeks, it is not open to him, after his failure to adopt those remedies, within the period allowed by law, to appeal to the inherent powers of the Court to obtain that remedy. Hence where a party has not applied under O. 21, Rr. 89, 90 or 91 it is not open to him to seek the inherent power of the Court to set aside the sale. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 433. See also 1938 A.L.J. 1041. Where other remedies are open to the applicant under the C.P.Code, the inherent powers of Court under this section cannot be invoked. 1932 L. 28=136 I.C. 735; 1932 O. 220; 8 O.W.N. 1238. See also 190 I.C. 174; 1941 Oudh 91=192 I.C. 332; 1941 R.D. 429; 193 I.C. 637=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 349; 1940 O.W.N. 1006; 31 S.L.R. 32=1937 Sind 101; 1940 O.A. 709=1940 A.W.R. next friend of minor plaintiff to provide for security for costs before hearing. 1934 A. 458 (1). There is no inherent jurisdiction in High Court to direct Courts subordinate to it to proceed in a particular manner. Section 151 does not confer any jurisdiction on the Court which did not already exist. It merely preserves the inherent power of the Court which it may possess. Varieties of inherent jurisdiction are well recognised, and new categories cannot be invented. 150 I.C. 446=1934 A. L.J. 1191=1934 A. 585. Rights conferred by sections of the Code—No provision for working out those rights—Inherent powers can be invoked to apply the provisions of the rules which are nearest in point with such modifications as may be necessary. 131 I.C. 610=33 L.W. 359=1931 M. 303=60 M.L.J. 628. Section 151 cannot be invoked so as to treat an appeal filed on behalf of one party as the appeal of another, simply because it should have been filed on behalf of the other and it was the intention of the pleader filing it to appeal on behalf of the other. 151 I.C. 25=1934 A. 677.

WHO CAN MOVE THE COURT.—Inherent powers of a Court cannot be used for the benefit of the litigant who has his remedy under the Code of Civil Procedure, much less for one who having his remedy has lost it by his own delay. 26 I.C. 46=27 M.L.J. 605. Section applies to amendment of decrees and not to amendment of plaint. But Court can make corrections for ends of justice. Extensive powers of amendment may be exercised under sections 151 and 153. (Ibid.) See also 140 I.C. 113=1933 A. 102; 8 O.W. N. 1238; 141 I.C. 400=1933 L. 135. The Court has inherent powers to amend or vary a perfected order and to make necessary orders at any time even after an appeal has been preferred against it where the decree is not in accordance with the intention of the Court as gathered from the judgment as a whole. 26 I.C. 946=18 C.W.N. 772. Amendment of decree after disposal of appeal. 8 Pat.L.T. 143. Section 151 would enable a Court to alter a decree when it does not correctly express what the Court actually decided or intended to decide. 73 I.C. 679=1923 L. 147; 157 I.C. 810=1935 O.W.N. 968=1935 O. 461. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 1170; 1937 M.W.N. 1013; 1937 O.W.N. 1110. The Court has always got the power to make an order allowing the amendment of an execution petition in the interests of justice. Its power is not limited by O. 21, R. 17, the Code being not exhaustive. Sections 151 and 153 enable the Court to exercise its inherent powers of amendment when the interests of justice require the same. 39 C.W.N. 1144. As to amendment of plaint and decree see 155 I.C. 236=1935 O.W.N. 471=1935 O. 369; 1941 O.W.N. 1. As to power to amend sale certificate, see 156 I.C. 812=41 L.W. 571=1935 M.W.N. 378=1935 M. 420. Where the decree has not been signed the Court has power to make alteration to make decree consistent. 17 L.W. 254=74 I.C. 416; 37 I.C. 352. It is not competent to a Court to amend the decree of another Court transferred to it for execution even though the error may be obvious. 15 L.W. 301=65 I.C. 710; 34 I.C. 787=3 L.W. 499. Where the question of costs was raised by the applicant for an amendment of the decree in both the first and second appeals which were dismissed, the matter must be presumed to have been adjudicated upon adversely to him. In such circumstances, no application by him for amendment of the decree relating to costs is competent in the first appellate Court. 41 P.L.R. 136=1939 Lah. 312. It is not open to a Court to entertain a second application for amendment of a decree, when a prior application on the same question has been dismissed. 41 P.L.R. 136=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 312. parties in the property affected by the decree. The principles which apply to the amendment of pleadings cannot be extended to the amendment of a decree after interest of third parties has accrued. 41 Bom. L.R. 800=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 389. An application to amend a plaint on the ground that the correct view has subsequently been laid down by the High Court should be allowed. 26 I.C. 383. Where the parties allowed a decree to be enforced for six years before attempting to amend it, it should not be amended specially when there is no clerical or arithmetical mistake. 67 I.C. 320. Where the trial Court is of the opinion that the error if any was not one arising from any accidental slip or omission but rather arising from the negligence of the parties, it would not be proper for the High Court to say that there is such an error as would justify an amendment. Further where it cannot be amended under section 152, it could neither be amended under section 151. 186 I.C. 667=1940 O.W.N. 213=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 298. A Court has inherent power to amend a decree for pre-emption and deduct the amount due to the pre-emptor from the vendee as a charge on the property sold, from the pre-emption money. 54 I.C. 34. Court cannot amend a decree which is in conformity with judgment. 100 I.C. 142=1927 L. 403. Where, in a mortgage suit, the boundaries of the mortgaged property are not correctly given by inadvertence and a sale certificate is issued after the sale held after passing of the preliminary and final decrees, the preliminary and final decrees can be amended and if the misdescription has not affected the sale price, the sale proclamation and the sale certificate can also be amended. If, on the other hand, the sale price has been affected by such misdescription, the sale will be set aside and decree-holder will be entitled to bring the properties to a fresh sale. [41 C. 590 (P.C.). Ref.] 1934 L. 29. Where the mortgaged property is incorrectly described in the plaint, in the preliminary decree and in the final decree, an amendment of the description of the property in final decree can be allowed in the exercise of the inherent powers of the Court. [19 C.W.N. 1021, Rel. on.] 1935 R. 522. See also 1936 O.W.N. 575=162 I.C. 233. So also where the khassra number of the mortgaged property was wrongly given in plaint. 8 Luck. 734=150 I.C. 791=11 O.W.N. 550=1934 O. 352. Where a mistake as to description of property is made in the plaint and is repeated in the judgment and decree Court has power to amend plaint and decree. 153 I.C. 378=1935 O.W.N. 31=1935 O. 92. Where after the passing of a final decree on a mortgage an application is made under sections 151, 152 and 153, C. P. Code, to amend the mortgage deed, preliminary and final decrees with reference to the extent of the interest mortgaged, namely, from 'five pies' to 'five shares' on the ground that a mistake which crept in the mortgage was repeated in the plaint and in the decrees, it cannot be granted for the mortgagees cannot be allowed to obtain by this application what they could not have obtained in the suit itself. This is a case which is governed by the rule laid down in section 94 of the Evidence Act. I. L.R. (1939) All. 399=1939 A.L.J. 193=A. I.R. 1939 All. 231. Even in the case of a compromise decree, Court has ample powers under section 151, if not under section 152, to correct its mistake and amend its decree so as to bring it in accordance with the agreement of parties. (36 B. 77 and 10 C. 612, R.) 150 I.C. 721=1934 R. 108. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 1217=1935 B. 75. P brought a suit for possession of land against K. Criminal proceedings between the parties were also pending about the same time and possession of a part of the land in suit was restored to P by the Criminal Court. Counsel for P consequently made a statement in Court that his client had received possession of a part of the land in dispute. Counsel for K stated that an appeal had been preferred against the award of possession. The suit proceeded and finally the Judge granted a decree to P for possession of the land in suit excluding that portion given to him by the Criminal Court. Subsequently the owner of Criminal Court was upset in appeal, and P was dispossessed of that land. P applied under sections 151 and 152 to have this land also included in his decree. Held, that section 152 was not applicable, but the amendment could be made under section 151. 1934 L. 735. During pendency of a suit a compromise petition was filed by the parties which stated that the defendant was to pay a certain amount in satisfaction of plaintiff's claim within three months, that as security for such payment defendant had handed over Government promissory notes to one L who was not a party to the suit and that if within three months the agreed amount or part thereof was not paid, L was to sell the promissory notes or as many of them as necessary and satisfy plaintiff's claim. The petition then prayed that the suit be recorded as compromised. Upon this Court passed the following order: "Let the case and suit be dismissed in terms of compromise." No order was made as to costs nor any decree was prepared. The agreed amount was not paid. L instead of selling promissory notes returned them to defendant. Plaintiff sought execution against defendant, but discovering that no decree was passed applied to Court under sections 151 and 152 for amendment of the order. Held, that the order of Court dismissing suit was wrong. The plaintiff was entitled to a decree in terms of the compromise petition and failing to realise amount in three months or by sale of promissory notes, he was also entitled to realise it by executing decree against defendant. The liability of the defendant did not cease merely by handing over promissory notes to L who was not a party to the suit. Sections 151 and 152 applied and the order of Court should be amended. (34 I.C. 186, Dist.) 1933 P. 135.

ADDING PARTIES.—Even in cases where the application for addition or substitution of parties does not fall within the language of the rules of the Code, Courts have power to pass the necessary orders for the addition or substitution of parties. (1932 C. 783; 1929 M. 268; 44 M.L.J. 322 and 38 M. 406, Rel. on.) 1933 A.L.J. 1512. An appellate Court has power to implead only such persons as parties to the appeal as were parties in trial Court and were not made parties to appeal but not those who were complete strangers to the suit. 56 I.C. 726=31 C.L.J. 130; 67 I.C. 10=34 C.L.J. 405. Court cannot use its inherent powers to extend the scope of a provision which places limitation on it. Appellate Court has therefore no jurisdiction to implead a person against whom an appeal has abated as such a person is not one "interested in the result of the appeal" within O. 41, R. 20. 41 L.W. 111=1935 M. 175. Powers of a Court to implead parties under section 151 are circumscribed by O. 41, R. 20 and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the inherent powers under section 151 could be invoked. 73 I.C. 136=1923 L. 490. See also 43 P.L.R. 471; 19 Pat. 159=20 Pat.L.T. 883=1939 Pat. 678 (F.B.). Also 8 L. 161 (power of High Court to transpose parties); 1927 C. 37. A Court has jurisdiction in an appeal to order the addition as parties to the appeal legal representatives of respondents who were not parties to the appeal in the sense that they were dead. Though the appeal might be one against a dead person or persons, the Court has power under sections 151 and 153 to add the legal representatives and amend the record in order to prevent injustice being done to either side. 39 Bom.L.R. 444=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 602=1937 Bom. 401.

AFFIDAVIT.—Power to direct particulars to be put in affidavit or petition. 40 C.W.N. 913.

ALTERATION OF ORDER PASSED BY PREDECESSOR.—It is not open to a Judge in the exercise of his inherent powers to modify or alter an ex parte order of his predecessor passed in the execution proceedings, when the modification or alteration of the order, more than three years after the order was passed, far from furthering the ends of justice would work serious injustice to the interest of the decree-holder. 158 I.C. 705=1935 O.W.N. 1091. Section 151 is not intended to constitute one Subordinate Judge an appellate authority over his predecessor of like jurisdiction as himself. If one Judge reviews the order of another, he cannot escape the provisions of O. 47 by placing his order under section 151. Both section 151 and O. 47 are to be construed strictly and are not intended to be used to allow one Judge to sit in appeal on orders of his predecessor exercising an equal jurisdiction with his own. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 330=1938 Sind 137. Where a presiding officer of a Court has passed an order, his successor cannot and should not go behind that order and hold that order to be ultra vires. 1938 O.W.N. 348=1938

ARBITRATION.—POWER TO SUPERSEDE ARBITRATION.—There is an inherent jurisdiction in Court to intervene and supersede the arbitration if the case fell under section 151, viz., where such an order is necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court. Where after a reference to arbitration has been made on the agreement of the parties, it is found by the Court that two out of the three arbitrators forming the tribunal are closely connected with one party and that the other party were unaware of the relationship, the circumstances of the case bring the matter within section 151 and the Court has power to supersede the arbitration. 153 I.C. 505=1935 A.L.J. 72=1935 A. 281; 41 L.W. 261=68 M.L.J. 537=1935 M. 349. The Court cannot revoke its order of reference to arbitration in the exercise of its inherent power under section 151, C. P. Code. Such a power does not exist apart from the provisions contained in Sch. II, C. P. Code. 167 I.C. 171=1937 A.L.J. 29=1937 A. 141 (F.B.). See also 1932 A. 655; 41 L.W. 261=68 M.L.J. 537; 71 M.L.J. 648=1937 M. 9.

AWARD.—Award under Co-operative Societies Act—Mistakes in—Correction—Jurisdiction of Civil Court executing award to direct rectification. See 40 C.W.N. 89.

COMMISSION.—Order of executing Court regarding commission payable to auctioneer—Interference by High Court. See 1935 L. 956.

COMPENSATION FOR IMPROVEMENT.—The order of the executing Court confirming a sale which is set aside on appeal does not amount to a decree and therefore an application by auction-purchaser for improvements payable in consequence of that order cannot be said to fall within the purview of section 144 as that section contemplates restitution where a decree has been varied or reversed. Nor does the application fall under section 47 as the question of improvements is one between the auction-purchaser and judgment-debtor and does not relate to the execution, satisfaction or discharge of the decree as such. The application can therefore fall only under section 151. The question of improvements by auction-purchaser is a question incidental to and consequential on the setting aside of the sale. The executing Court under section 151 has jurisdiction to go into the question of improvements. The judgment-debtor cannot be allowed to retain the benefit of the improvements made bona fide by the auction-purchaser without paying for them. The case therefore is a fit one for the exercise of the inherent powers of the Court under section 151. 189 I.C. 683=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 59. Section 151 cannot be interpreted as giving the Courts power which under the general law they do not possess. A Court has no power under the section to give compensation to a decree-holder, who after purchasing property in execution in satisfaction of his decree loses part of that property as the result of another suit. 16 Pat. 729=18 Pat.L.T. 826=1937 Pat. 647.

NOTES.

COMPROMISE DECREE can be set aside in exercise of inherent powers of Court on the ground that the party had not consented to the terms mentioned in the decree. 8 O.W.N. 1267. See also 1933 P. 135; 41 Bom.L.R. 994; 57 C. 1143=1931 C. 51. Where a compromise decree is passed by a fraud practised upon the Court, it is within the inherent power of the Court to correct its own proceedings. But where a consent has been obtained by the practice of fraud between the parties, the remedy lies by way of suit and not by way of an application. 13 P. 165=148 I.C. 947=15 Pat.L.T. 103=1934 P. 229. The remedy of a party who impeaches a consent decree on the ground that his consent was induced by fraud is to institute a regular suit for the purpose. Section 151 is not applicable in such a case. In the first place, the section being a residuary section should not be applied at all unless there is no other remedy open to the litigants. In the second place, the matter for enquiry in such matters is something extraneous to the suit itself and the same kind of investigation is necessary as in a contested suit. Further it cannot be said that there was any fraud practised upon the Court which would justify it in exercising its inherent power. 43 C.W.N. 969=A.L.R. 1939 Cal. 658. Compromise effected on behalf of pardanashin lady by fraud—Court can set aside—No appeal lies. 146 I.C. 933=1934 P. 41. A compromise decree under O. 23, R. 3 could be passed only after there has been an order that the compromise be recorded. This is not a purely formal matter, but is a question of substance. Where, therefore, a Court passes a decree on the basis of a compromise without a formal order for recording the compromise the decree is irregularly passed and such a decree can be set aside on an application under section 151. 14 P. 356=16 Pat.L.T. 536=1935 P. 439.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.—The effect of the section is to give absolute power to Courts to summarily punish contempts by fine or imprisonment. 50 I.C. 981=23 C.W.N. 389; 86 I.C. 650=1923 M. 92.

CONVERSION OF ONE PETITION INTO ANOTHER.—The petition under section 151 can be treated as one for review. 43 M.L.J. 290=70 I.C. 425. Restoration application of an application under O. 9, R. 9 dismissed for default can be treated as one for review. 54 C. 405=103 I.C. 69=1927 C. 534. High Court can condone misapplications of special provisions; it can convert application for revision into memo. of appeal. The High Court's power cannot be exercised if law is not complied with as regards limitation and Court-fees. 48 I.C. 779.

CONVERSION OF SUIT INTO APPLICATION.—Where legislature provides a procedure of a summary nature by an application without expressly barring any suit in that behalf, it is always within powers of Courts, when instead of application a suit is filed, to treat the suit as an application and decide accordingly. 165 I.C. 715=40 C.W.N. 856=1936 C. 342.

CRIMINAL COMPLAINT.—The High Court has jurisdiction under section 151 to grant an injunction in personam against a person who has submitted to the jurisdiction to restrain him from proceeding with a criminal complaint in a Court which is not subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court, if in the exercise of its discretion the High Court thinks proper to do so. But this is a jurisdiction which should be exercised with extreme caution. 43 Bom.L.R. 287.

DEFENCE, STRIKING OFF.—Court can in exercise of its inherent powers strike off the defence in a fit and proper case. Where such order was justified by repeated defaults of defendant it cannot be interfered with in revision. 34 L.W. 864=61 M.L.J. 477.

DISMISSAL FOR DEFAULT.—The Court in a proper case can re-admit an appeal dismissed for default. 45 B. 648=60 I.C. 919. See also 1927 C. 76. Where the next friend of a minor appellant is of unsound mind, the minor's absence at the hearing cannot be treated as default and his appeal will be re-admitted by Court in exercise of inherent powers. 45 B. 648=60 I.C. 919. A partition suit is not liable to be dismissed for default after the passing of the preliminary decree. 47 M.L.J. 441, relied on. An order by the trial Court dismissing a suit for default after the passing of the preliminary decree cannot be treated as one made under the provisions of O. 9 and although the application to restore the suit has been made under R. 9 it is not in fact governed by the provisions of that Chapter at all but must be deemed to be an application made under section 151 and, therefore, no appeal lies under O. 43, R. 1 (c) against the order of the Court dismissing such an application. 30 L.W. 979=54 M.L.J. 781. See also 1940 O. W.N. 1086. When the application itself shows that it is one for the restoration of a suit, justice should not be denied, simply because there is a technical objection to the word "review" which has been employed in the application. As the Code cannot be said to be exhaustive, it is not necessary in every case to have the support of a section of the Code to pass an order not expressly or impliedly forbidden which is required in the interests of justice. 1 L. 339=58 I.C. 748. Where on the hearing of an application under O. 9, R. 13, the Court finds that no sufficient cause for non-appearance has been made out, it should dismiss the application. The Court has no power in such a case to restore the suit on other grounds under its inherent powers. 62 C.L.J. 268=39 C.W.N. 894. Restoration of execution application dismissed for default. 99 I.C. 954=1927 M. 355=52 M.L.J. 123; 50 M. 67=26 L.W. 878. See also 1935 R.D. 318; 26 A.L.J. 382=117 I.C. 372; 119 I.C. 494; 13 L. 761=142 I.C. 686=34 P.L.R. 70=1933 L. 99; 4 A.W.R. 1025=1935 A. 27.

COURT-FEE, REFUND OF.—In cases which are not governed by sections 13, 14 and 15,

NOTES.

Court-Fees Act, the High Court has inherent powers to direct a refund under section 151, of excess Court-fee, where Court-fee has been paid in excess of the amount payable, and obvious injustice has been done. 39 C.W.N. 1074=1936 C. 347. See also 1937 M. 178; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 21; 1937 Cal. 86; 1937 A.W.R. 389=1937 A.L.J. 481. Where the Court has inherent power to order the refund of excess Court-fees, a direct order for a refund ought to be passed. If the Court does not possess jurisdiction to pass an order for refund, it is not its duty or function to issue eleemosynary recommendations for the purpose of enabling a litigant to present a memorial ad misericordiam to the Revenue Authorities. [55 M. 641 and 57 M. 542 (544), Disappr.] 14 R. 173=163 L.C. 340=1936 R. 208 (F.B.). Where a Court-fee has been paid by a litigant of a larger amount than that exigible under the Court-Fees Act, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to order that the excess Court-fee be refunded ex debito justitiæ. But where a specific Court-fee exigible under the Court-Fees Act has duly been paid, and in the Act express provisions are inserted setting forth the circumstances in which a Court-fee can be refunded, the Court has no jurisdiction in the exercise of its inherent powers or otherwise than as therein prescribed to order that the Court-fee chargeable and paid shall be refunded to a litigant. Where, therefore, an order of remand passed by the Court does not come within section 13 of the Court-Fees Act but is one purported to have been passed under its inherent powers, the Court has no jurisdiction either under the Court-Fees Act or in the exercise of its inherent powers to refund the Court-fee paid by the appellant. 14 R. 173=163 L.C. 340=1936 R. 208 (F.B.). See also 154 L.C. 460=1935 Pesh. 8. Plaintiff rejected for deficiency in Court-fee—Plaintiff making good the deficiency and asking for restoration of suit—Power of Court to treat Court-fee already paid as part of Court-fee. See 1935 A.L.J. 1127=159 L.C. 630=1935 A. 985. Refund of unspent process fee or custody fee deposited in respect of attachment of movables. 1937 C. 86. The High Court can under its inherent powers assist an appellant who has erroneously paid excess Court-fee on his memorandum of appeal. What it does judicially in such a case is to decide what is the proper Court-fee and then issue a certificate to the party that excess Court-fee has been levied. It still lies with the Revenue Authorities to decide whether or not they will refund the excess in the circumstances. (Case-law reviewed.) 1932 M. 438=139 L.C. 131=62 M.L.J. 541. See also 7 R. 88=117 L.C. 585. A Court remanding a case under section 151 is equally competent to order a refund of Court-fee paid on memorandum of appeal. 136 L.C. 559=1932 L. 219; 141 L.C. 400=1933 L. 135=34 P.L.R. 270; 151 L.C. 721=40 L.W. 372=1934 M. 643. Court has the power under section 151 to grant a certificate for refund of Court-fee, in cases not covered by sections 13, 14 and 15 of the Court-Fees Act. The discretion of the Court is not barred by the fact that excess fee was paid by the mistake of party and not in consequence of any direction by Court. (55 M. 641, Foll.) 38 L.W. 983. 142 L.C. 633=34 P.L.R. 1=1933 L. 351. See also 152 L.C. 215=38 C.W.N. 185=1934 C. 615; 149 L.C. 1191=39 L.W. 762=1934 M. 409=67 M.L.J. 99. Court has no power, after appeal has been disposed of, to recover deficient Court-fee on memorandum of objections [140 L.C. 191; 46 C. 520; 82 L.C. 588; 51 L.C. 756 (F.B.), Foll.] 142 L.C. 25=1933 M. 321=1933 M.W.N. 330=37 L.W. 300. Provision of section 151 cannot be invoked in order to grant refund of Court-fees, where it is not allowed by the Court-Fees Act. The Court-Fees Act is self-contained enactment and exhaustive on the subject. There are certain provisions in that Act whereby a refund of Court-fee is mandatory and there are others in which a refund is permissive. To allow refunds under any other circumstances would be in effect adding to the Court-Fees Act, and therefore no refund can be granted when a remand is made under section 151. 1935 Pesh. 8. If application for refund of Court-fee is made after long unexplained delay, it is open to Court to refuse certificate to apply for refund to Government. 11 Pat.L.T. 476.

CROWN DEBTS, PRIORITY FOR.—The Crown has priority over unsecured creditors in the payment of debts and the Court can, on application and without a formal attachment being issued, order payment of a Crown debt due by the debtor where there are funds in Court belonging to the debtor. Where in execution of a decree the judgment-debtor's property is sold in Court-auction and money is realised, the Court can on the application of the Government order payment out of the sale proceeds money due by the judgment-debtor on account of income-tax assessed on and due by the judgment-debtor. It is not necessary for the Crown to file a suit for the amount due, when the debt is not disputed and is indisputable. The right to payment being indisputable, justice requires that it should be paid to the Crown when formal application for payment has been made. Both right and convenience demand that the Court should exercise its inherent power. No special Act of the Legislature is required to enable the Crown to apply to the Court for payment of money to which it has an undoubted right. The decree-holder who brings the property to sale is not, by reason of his attachment before sale, placed in the position of a secured creditor. Nor does section 46 of the Income-tax Act operate as a bar to the payment by the Court on mere application. Section 46 is not exhaustive and it cannot, without express words to that effect, take away from the Crown the right of enforcing payment by any other method open to it. Mockett, J.—The Court under such circumstances can rightly invoke its power under section 151, making the payment to the person entitled to it. I. L.R. (1938) Mad. 744=47 L.W. 368=1938 Mad. 360=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 351 (F.B.).

NOTES.

DELAY, which does not amount to waiver, acquiescence or abandonment of claim or has not created rights in the opposite party is no ground to deny relief under this section. 61 C. 711=1935 C. 39.

EVIDENCE.—Section 151 is not to be lightly invoked or intended to permit a Revenue Court to decide a case against the weight of evidence, even if it appears equitable. 1936 R.D. 457. See also 1941 A.L.J. 345.

EX PARTE DECREES AND ORDERS.—High Court can under the section or under its inherent jurisdiction set aside an ex parte decree which is shown conclusively to be irregular by the record. 38 I.C. 673=15 A.L.J. 24. See also 16 I.C. 677=34 A. 518; 133 I.C. 65=1931 S. 97 (F.B.) contra 101 I.C. 617=1927 L. 312. Ex parte decree against lunatic—Objection by sons of judgment-debtor in execution—Court has power under section 151 to reconstitute the suit and award relief. 34 C.W.N. 989. Court which has on an ex parte application granted an extension of time to file an appeal can revoke or alter its order before the appeal is admitted. 45 I.C. 725. Where ex parte application is made by a party for granting extension of time for filing an appeal it is the duty of the party to show to Court the points of law or fact in his favour as well as against him. 45 I.C. 725. There is no inherent power in Court to set aside an ex parte decree by summary procedure and the power of the Court in that connection is limited to the circumstances mentioned in O. 9, R. 13. 43 M. 94=37 M.L.J. 599; 27 I.C. 12; 98 I.C. 658=1927 N. 95; 1930 C. 387=34 C.W.N. 222; 1930 N. 48. Inherent power should be exercised not capriciously or arbitrarily but ex debito justitiæ on sound general principles and so as not to conflict with the intentions of legislature. 43 M. 94=37 M.L.J. 599; 100 I.C. 518=1927 C. 420; 32 C.W.N. 10. Where a definite period of limitation has been prescribed by Art. 164 of the Limitation Act for an application to set aside an ex parte decree, Court would not be entitled by purporting to act under section 151 in effect to extend that period. 65 I.C. 341=1 P. 277. A Court can set aside an ex parte decree passed by an oversight. 60 I.C. 368=2 Pat.L.J. 251. See also 62 I.C. 113=2 Pat.L.J. 270. Court can restore to file a suit in which an ex parte decree was obtained against a minor without a guardian, which decree was subsequently declared void. 106 I.C. 575.

EXECUTION OF DECREE.—The provisions of section 151 should not be applied to execution proceedings. 1936 Pesh. 115. When execution is delayed Court can award mesne profits. 63 I.C. 43. Power to grant time to judgment-debtor for payment of decree amount. 84 I.C. 134=48 M. 494; 31 C.W.N. 653. A Court has authority to set aside its order confirming a sale in favour of a person other than the bidder and there can be no question of limitation. 30 I.C. 230. Where an Act does not provide any clear procedure for execution of an order passed under it, the inherent powers of the Court to execute its own order should be invoked. 114 I.C. 890=1929 A. 211. See also 39 C.W.N. 1144; 39 P.L.R. 210=1937 L. 29; 161 I.C. 933=1936 P. 176 (Power to recall order in execution made ex parte without notice). Objections as to the validity of a decree and to its executability should be raised at the time when the decree is made a rule of Court and at the time when the decree is put into execution. After the decree has been fully satisfied and possession of the property under terms of the decree has actually been delivered to the decree-holder, no such objection can properly be raised by means of an application under section 151. The appropriate remedy of the applicant, if so advised is by a regular suit in the Civil Court and not by an application invoking the inherent powers of the Court. 1941 O.W.N. 965=1941 O.A. 678. A person obtaining a preliminary decree for partition, is not entitled to ask the Court under section 151, to direct the making of a proclamation about the share. No ground for action under section 151 arises where a remedy is provided by the Code itself. A preliminary partition decree is of a declaratory nature and it is implicit in it that further proceedings are required to complete the partition. 1941 O.W.N. 718=1941 O.A. 478.

EXECUTION, STAY OF.—High Court has inherent power to stay execution in view of an intended appeal to the Privy Council. 40 C. 955=18 I.C. 207. See also 7 L.L.J. 457; 89 I.C. 588. Insolvency Court has no power under section 151 to stay execution proceedings in another Court. 32 I.C. 897=3 L.W. 250. High Court has an inherent jurisdiction to stay any suit which is an abuse of the process of the Court. 27 I.C. 455=27 M. L.J. 645. See also 75 I.C. 419=1923 L. 514; 40 C. 955=18 I.C. 207. High Court has inherent jurisdiction as a Court of Appeal where appeal is made to it, to stay proceedings in lower Court as ancillary to its powers of reversing the order of the inferior Court. 1919 P. 145=52 I.C. 185. Court has inherent power to stay confirmation of sale. 1930 L. 793 (2). Where a claimant to attached property withdraws his claim petition and later files a declaratory suit under the Specific Relief Act to declare that the decree in execution of which the property was attached is not binding on the estate of the judgment-debtor of whom the plaintiff claimed to be sole legal representative, it is not open to the Court trying the case to stay the execution sale under that decree. The sale cannot affect the plaintiff's right, and if he succeeds then his interests in the property would be deemed not to have been disposed of by the sale. Section 151 cannot be invoked, for it is not necessary in the ends of justice, or to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court, to stay execution when the right, title and interest cannot be affected by the sale. 1940 Rang.L.R. 749. Under section 151 the Court has full power to correct suo motu defects which it discovers in its proceedings. It cannot be said that a Court is bound to proceed with the sale of property when it has been brought to its notice that by reason of the absence of attachment, misdescription in the proclamation or other defect any sale held is bound to be set aside. The Court is entitled to pause and require that the party concerned should correct an obvious defect. 1938 A.M.L.J. 97.

EXTENSION OF TIME.—Extension of time cannot be granted for payment of money under a decree in a suit to set aside a mortgage; the plaintiff should not be allowed to calculate his month from the date he got the copies of the decrees. 42 A. 639=57 I.C. 16. See also 1931 A.L.J. 1049=1931 A. 727 (F.B.) (Extension of time for tendering security in an application under section 17, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—Power of Court to extend time in exercise of its inherent powers). In a partition suit the Court has inherent power to fix time for filing objection to the report of the Commissioner and to reject objections filed afterwards. 50 I.C. 152=17 A.L.J. 498. Section 151 does not give Court any new powers and it cannot extend the time fixed by Art. 163 of the Limitation Act for setting aside dismissal for default. 55 I.C. 55. Courts cannot extend the time for making deposits prescribed by the Code under their inherent powers. 33 I.C. 996=3 L.W. 271. See also 1933 A. 157; (1941) 1 M.L.J. 638 (Extension of time for payment of money within a specified time). In a suit for specific performance of a contract of sale, neither the original nor the appellate Court has jurisdiction to extend the time fixed by a decree for performance of contract. 32 I.C. 401=3 L.W. 29. But see 32 I.C. 509=9 Bur.L.T. 83. Time fixed by a decree cannot be extended under section 151. That section is not meant to empower the executing Court to alter the decree, or in any way affect its finality. 49 I.C. 840. See also 1941 O.W.N. 965. Court has power under section 151 to extend time on an application made after the date fixed for payment of money, if it is necessary for the ends of justice, in a suit for specific performance of a contract to sell. 32 I.C. 509. So also in cases where as a condition for staying delivery of possession in execution, judgment-debtor was ordered to pay some money on a certain date every year. 1933 M. 563=38 L.W. 201=65 M.L.J. 138. But not where the default is wilful and deliberate. 1933 M. 879=65 M.L.J. 819.

EXPUNGING FROM RECORD.—Where the judgment of a Subordinate Court has not been brought before High Court on appeal or revision High Court has no power to expunge adverse remarks on the character and credibility of a witness from the judgment. 66 I.C. 1005=44 A. 401. High Court has power to expunge irrelevant and scandalous matters in the judgments of Subordinate Courts on an application by a person not a party to the proceeding. The power must be exercised in extremely exceptional cases and with caution. 47 I.C. 981=35 M.L.J. 368. See also 33 I.C. 608=3 L.W. 283.

C. C. M.—92

Where remarks made by a Judge in a judgment cast a slur on a Government department but was not required for the disposal of the main case and there was no justification for making such remarks, held, that those remarks should be ordered to be expunged from the judgment. 146 I.C. 215=34 P.L.R. 919=1933 L. 711.

FRAUD.—Court has inherent power to investigate questions of fraud for preventing injustice. 48 I.C. 135=20 Bom.L.R. 929. Not only has Court the power but it is its duty to set aside a consent decree obtained by fraud practised upon the Court when apprised of it. It is an inherent power of every Court to correct its own proceedings when it has been misled. 27 I.C. 628=19 C.W.N. 419. See also 1923 P. 197=2 P. 731; 6 P. 108; 1 Luck. 341. But see 23 N.L.R. 79=100 I.C. 220=1927 N. 212; 33 C.W.N. 883=1929 C. 470; 1929 N. 111. Court can vacate an order obtained by manifest fraud on it, in the exercise of its inherent power. 25 I.C. 213=27 M.L.J. 172. The weight of authority in the Calcutta High Court supports the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to interfere in cases involving a fraud on the Court, although there is a remedy by suit and it is the most appropriate remedy. 45 C.W.N. 392. Execution proceedings—Portion of property released from attachment with consent of parties—Decree-holder executing against whole property fraudulently—Power of Court to restore property wrongfully attached. 39 P.L.R. 210=1937 Lah. 29.

MATRIMONIAL SUITS.—Where a decree for dissolution of marriage has been made absolute, it is not open to a third party to seek the aid of the Court under S. 151, to set it aside on the ground that one of the parties to the divorce proceedings was a minor and has not been represented by a guardian ad litem. Nor is there any provision in the Divorce Act to set aside a decree absolute in the manner in which a decree nisi could be attacked. 15 Luck. 350=1940 C. 279.

MISREPRESENTATION.—Order obtained by misrepresentation of facts can be vacated by the Court in exercise of its inherent powers. 131 I.C. 717=1931 S. 111.

MISTAKE.—See under “Amendment,” supra. Court has inherent power to correct its own order passed on a mistaken basis. 56 I.C. 4=31 C.L.J. 48. See also 19 I.C. 916=19 C.L.J. 251; 39 C. 265=12 I.C. 151; 47 A. 546=87 I.C. 225; 38 M. 387=25 M.L.J. 198; 7 R. 88=1929 R. 158. Where rights of third parties have not intervened, it is not only in the power, but it is the duty of the Court to relieve a party of the injury done to him by it, by reason of its mistakes and defaults or mistakes or defaults of its officers inadvertently committed. 63 C. 1079=40 C.W.N. 680=1936 C. 343. Clerical error in plaint giving rise to error in decree and judgment. 1934 L. 561 (1); 144 I.C. 901=35 Bom.L.R. 365=1933 B. 200. Judg- ment pronounced without hearing parties. 151 I.C. 899=40 L.W. 34=1934 M. 506. Order passed under misapprehension of facts. 148 I.C. 614=1934 A.L.J. 862=1934 A. 287. Error apparent on the face of record. 1933 M.W.N. 1309. Court possesses inherent power to correct a mistake that would render infructuous an agreement between the parties which had been approved by Court and made the basis of the decree. Where in a suit for partition a compromise was arrived at on the basis of a map which allowed the plaintiff a passage of 11 inches to his house and none was aware at that time of the mistake and subsequently on an application made to the Court, held, that the Court had the power to correct the mistake and was justified in allowing the plaintiff a passage of two feet. 1933 A. 608=1933 A.L.J. 509. For the revocation of an erroneous order no sufficient cause other than the irregularity of the order itself need be considered and the Court has inherent power to rectify its own errors inadvertently committed. 145 I.C. 607=1933 A.L.J. 1318=1933 A. 517. See also 40 C.W.N. 1229 (Power of Insolvency Court to rectify omission). Where property is wrongly described in a plaint in a mortgage suit and the mistake is repeated in the preliminary and final decrees, without being noticed either by the parties or by the Court, the Court has ample powers to amend the plaint, the decrees and the judgment and correct the mistakes. 153 I.C. 378=1935 O.W.N. 31=1935 O. 92. But see also 151 I.C. 959=1934 P. 493; 8 Luck. 734=1934 O. 352; 147 I.C. 633=1934 A. 100. But all persons not parties to the action but who have acquired interests on the existing record acting in good faith and being purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of the existence of matters made clear by the amendment, are not prejudiced thereby without hearing by the Court determining that they have no equities as entitled them to be exonerated from the effect of the amendment. 39 C. 265=12 I.C. 151; 47 A. 304=84 I.C. 746. Where order of a Court fails to give effect to its intention it is the duty of the party to have it corrected. Court has power to do so. 40 M. 259=32 M.L.J. 477 (F.B.). In order to set aside the decree passed in pursuance of compromise by a lady whose signature was obtained by mistake or fraud of an agent, the remedy is by way of review petition. 43 M.L.J. 290=70 I.C. 42. Court has inherent power to rectify mistakes in judicial orders arising from the ignorance of the Court or of its subordinate officers. 69 I.C. 112; 39 I.C. 763=2 Pat.L.J. 861. See also 1935 A.L.J. 1076=157 I.C. 277=1935 A. 914 (Plaint naming X as defendant instead of Y—Application for amendment, if and when can be allowed—Procedure).

GUARDIAN AD LITEM.—To appoint a guardian ad litem, without issuing notice to the natural guardian is illegal and the Court has inherent power under S. 151 to correct the errors or mistakes committed by itself. 70 I.C. 867. Guardian giving up relief against one defendant—Court can re-open on application by minor. 22 L.W. 629=1926 M. 119.

GUARDIAN AND WARD.—District Judge has ample powers under S. 151 to recall the records of an order made under the Guardians and Wards Act on being apprised that the order was made on a misrepresentation of facts. 25 I.C. 275=19 C.W.N. 84.

IMPLEADING OF PERSON AGAINST WHOM APPEAL HAS ABATED.—The Court cannot use its inherent powers to extend the scope of a provision which places limitation on it. An appellate Court has therefore no jurisdiction to implead a person against whom an appeal has abated as such a person is not one "interested in the result of the appeal" within O. 41, r. 20. 156 I.C. 110=41 L.W. 111=1935 M. 175.

INJUNCTION.—Code is not exhaustive. Court possesses inherent powers to act ex debito justitiæ. A person asking Court to exercise its discretionary jurisdiction must make out a strong case and must show that there is no other remedy open to him by which he can protect himself from the consequences of the injury complained of. 55 I.C. 403; 140 I.C. 843=34 P.L.R. 51=1933 L. 73. See also 140 I.C. 843; 1925 L. 242; 1925 L. 618; 1927 L. 833 (2); 164 I.C. 16=1936 L. 567. Court will issue a temporary injunction if plaintiff shows that injunction is an appropriate relief and unless defendant is forthwith restrained irreparable injury will follow. 55 I.C. 403=24 L.W. 854=1927 M. 210. See also 1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 71 (Power to pass orders for interim protection of property which is the subject-matter of suit); I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 490 (Injunction restraining defendant from litigating in another Court); 43 Bom. L.R. 287 (Injunction restraining a party from proceeding with a criminal complaint filed by him). Whatever may be said as to the power of the High Court to issue injunction for purposes other than those mentioned in O. 39, and to punish disobedience thereof in exercise of its own inherent power as a Court of record, the power of the Subordinate Courts must be found within the four corners of the Code and it seems to be too much to suggest that when the Code has expressly dealt with injunction in O. 39, S. 151 can be invoked to add to the powers conferred. 1938 M. 190=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 888. High Court has inherent power to order an injunction against a person living within the jurisdiction of another High Court when the circumstances so require. 57 C. 1280=130 I.C. 252=1931 C. 279. P sued for declaration that D was not entitled to possession of property. According to P's own showing, he had no present right to possession of this property and he would at the most be declared to be entitled to a certain charge on it after the death of a widow. D had, on the other hand, purchased the property in execution of a decree. Held, that, under such circumstances, temporary injunction restraining D from obtaining possession of property from purchaser cannot be granted by resorting to S. 151. 150 I.C. 15=36 P.L.R. 142=1934 L. 79 (2). P deliberately chose the Civil Court as the forum for the determination of her claim against D. Having done so and having in the process of negotiations for settlement with D obtained from D a sum of money, he gave the go-by to the Civil Court and attempted to recover money alleged to be due to him under the agreement which was the subject-matter of litigation, by summary procedure under the District Local Boards Act. Thereupon D applied for an interim injunction. Held, that though the application did not fall under O. 39, Rr. 1 and 2, the equities were entirely in favour of D and as such the Court should exercise its inherent power and issue interim injunction to prevent abuse of the process of Court. 1934 S. 179; 1938 O.W.N. 931=1938 A. W.R. (B.R.) 383. The provisions of S. 151 are very wide and where the interests of justice so require, it is competent to the Court to order an interim injunction to issue even in execution proceedings. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 315.

INSOLVENCY.—Insolvency Court has the same jurisdiction that the ordinary Courts of law possess under the Code to correct any mistake either of a clerk or the parties themselves upon a question of fact when a mistake is proved. 51 I.C. 55. There is no provision in the C.P. Code or in the Provincial Insolvency Act which specifically empowers the High Court in revisional applications under S. 115, C.P. Code or S. 75 of the Provincial Insolvency Act to pass an order calling on the applicant to furnish security for costs. But under S. 151, C.P. Code, it is competent to the High Court to make such an order as is contemplated by O. 25, R. 1 or O. 41, R. 10, C.P. Code. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 743=40 Bom.L.R. 1025=A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 510. Decree-holder obtaining garnishee order against Official Assignee—Latter paying into Court dividend payable to creditor in insolvency—Decree-holder withdrawing amount from Court—Proof of claim of creditor subsequently expunged—Application by Official Assignee for refund—Powers of executing Court. 13 R. 722.

INSTALMENT DECREE.—Power of Court to relieve against condition in decree to pay instalments promptly—Clause giving concession to judgment-debtor only on regular payment not penal. S. 151 cannot be invoked to give relief to the defaulting party. I. L. R. (1941) Kar. 389. (Cited under S. 148.)

ISSUES.—Court has inherent power to frame issues going to the root of the matter in controversy between the parties at any stage of the case. 36 M. 607=23 M.L.J. 321.

JURISDICTION AND PROCEDURE.—Court is not justified in applying its powers of inherent jurisdiction to introduce a new form of procedure for which no provision is made by law. 1922 C. 1 (1). Suit dismissed under O. 17, r. 3—Appeal preferred—During pendency of appeal application for restoration allowed—Appeal dismissed for want of subsisting decree—On revision preferred by defendant order restoring suit was reversed—Application made to revive appeal—Appeal could be revived. 122 I.C. 402=1930 A. 100. Even if an order has been passed it can be recalled if it transpires that it has been made without jurisdiction. 20 C.L.J. 213=26 I.C. 275. Apart from the power to correct clerical or arithmetical error or to review a judgment, a Court has no inherent power to alter an order passed in Court. 74 I.C. 110=1924 P. 136. The Court can under its inherent powers postpone passing a decree in pursuance of a compromise. 9 P. 314. Jurisdiction—Recalling an order passed by the predecessor is beyond jurisdiction and invalid. 69 I.C. 742=1922 P. 204; 1929 M.W.N. 140.

LIMITATION.—Inherent powers of Court cannot be invoked to override or evade the Law of Limitation. 1932 O. 220=138 I.C. 149=9 O.W.N. 430; 62 C. 61=156 I.C. 126=1935 C. 336; 13 R. 595=1935 R. 466; 15 P. 299=160 I.C. 976=16 Pat.L.T. 813=1936 P. 48. See also 142 I.C. 185; 9 I.C. 246; 1 L. 363=58 I.C. 789; 57 I.C. 15; 47 C.L.J. 87; 37 L.W. 48=142 I.C. 185; 1935 L. 60; 43 P.L.R. 471; 1938 A.M.L.J. 124.

MAINTENANCE.—Court has got inherent power to make an interim order of maintenance during the pendency of partition suit. 40 L.W. 853=1935 M. 105. See also 1941 Mad. 55=52 L.W. 487=(1940) 2 M. L.J. 572.

PARTITION.—When the decree of the lower Court directs partition in an impossible manner, Court has power to set it right in exercise of its inherent power. 27 N.L.R. 347. Court has got power to order payment of interim maintenance pending partition suit. 40 L.W. 853=1935 M. 105.

RECONSTRUCTION OF RECORDS.—Where owing to accident or other cause the records of a Court of Justice have been destroyed or lost, Court has an inherent power to reconstruct its records. Appellate Court has the same power to reconstruct the records of Court from which an appeal lies to it. 46 M. 679=44 M.L.J. 673 (F.B.). Where a judgment has been lost the proper course for the Judge is to write it from memory and from materials before him and place it on record. 38 M. 488=25 M.L.J. 445. If any credible witness who read the judgment or the part of the judgment which contained the decision can depose to what he heard a decree can be drawn up. There is nothing in the Code to prevent that. 1923 R. 113. Judge could not take evidence regarding the question as to the matter on which a Court of law based its judgment in order to consider whether there was any arithmetical or clerical error in the judgment and he must rely solely on what it contained in the judgment itself. 100 I.C. 309=1927 C. 203. See also 1938 P.W.N. 192=1938 Pat. 593 (Power to recall order passed by mistake or inadvertence). See also 1938 All. 8; 32 S.L.R. 215.

REFUND OF MONEY.—Court has inherent power to re-call money paid out of Court in a land acquisition case. 21 I.C. 111=17 C.W.N. 1057. See also 43 C. 269=20 C.W.N. 188. One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors and when the expression "the act of the Court" is used, it does not mean merely the act of the primary Court, or of any intermediate Court of appeal, but the act of the Court as a whole from the lowest Court which entertains jurisdiction over the matter up to the highest Court which finally disposes of the case. (1922 P.C. 269, Rel. on.) 1935 Sind 214. See also 163 I.C. 121=38 P.L.R. 717=1936 L. 212; 1935 M. 212=68 M.L.J. 265; 1940 Sind 191. Where a decree is attached in execution of a decree and portion of proceeds is paid to one of decree-holders of decree attached before satisfaction of the decree of the attaching decree-holder, the Court can order refund under S. 151. 150 I.C. 174=36 P.L.R. 147=1934 L. 142. Where a Court-sale of properties in a mortgage suit is set aside on the ground that there was no valid final decree the Court has no power to direct a refund of the poundage paid. The most that could be done in such a case would be to give a certificate to the party that the case is a fit one for a refund and leave it to the revenue authorities to comply with it. That is no more than a recommendation. 149 I.C. 1191=39 L.W. 762=1934 M. 409=67 M.L.J. 99. Court has inherent jurisdiction to order refund of purchase-money allowed to be withdrawn by the auction-purchaser. (39 I.C. 763; 1922 P.C. 269, Rel. on. (1933 L. 850. During the pendency of appeal by petitioners an application was made for an injunction restraining the respondent from executing the decree in O.S. No. 6 of 1911 and drawing the money in deposit and an order was made that he might draw it on furnishing security to the satisfaction of the Ramnad Sub-Court. The security was furnished and the respondent having bound himself by the execution of the bond to obey any orders that may be passed for its refund withdrew the money. After the termination of the appeal, the petitioners applied to the Subordinate Judge of Ramnad for restitution. Held, that S. 144, was inapplicable but as money had been improperly drawn out under the decree it was competent for the Court to rectify the mistake and order restitution in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction. 57 M. 849=1934 M. 320=67 M.L.J. 49. The new Code contains no provision for the refund of amount deposited as security; Courts can deal with them under S. 151. 22 M.L.J. 190=12 I.C. 692. Section 151 empowers the Courts to order refund of Court-fees which was paid by mistake. 3 P.L.J. 452=46 I.C. 271; 1930 A. 471 (1)=122 I.C. 188; but not Court-fees paid on an appeal dismissed as not maintainable. 6 P. 599=105 I.C. 740.

RES JUDICATA.—Inherent powers of a Court ought not to be exercised against the express provisions of a statute. An application which is barred both by the law of limitation and by the principle of res judicata cannot legally be entertained or granted by a Court in the exercise of its inherent powers. 1935 L. 60.

RESTITUTION.—As to the power of Court to order restitution, see S. 144, supra. See also 69 M.L.J. 84; 43 L.W. 773=1936 M. 636; 1937 M. 195; 39 P.L.R. 210=1937 L. 29; 58 C. 1070=134 I.C. 906=35 C.W.N. 483; 35 C.W.N. 105=53 C.L.J. 49=134 I.C. 1185=1931 C. 779 (2); 1933 A.L.J. 60; 1939 Nag. 101; 53 L.W. 356=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 407; 1937 Mad. 95; 1937 Mad. 694; 19 Pat.L.T. 111. Where property has been taken away from a third party under an erroneous order of the Court, and that party has subsequently established by a suit that the property belongs to him, and not to the judgment-debtor in execution of a decree against whom the property was so taken, the Court must use its inherent powers to reconstitute to such innocent party his property of which he has been deprived by the erroneous order of the Court. The fact that a suit is maintainable at the instance of that party is no ground for refusing redress under S. 151 when the wrong has been done under the order of the Court. 19 Pat.L.T. 119=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 468; 34 C.W.N. 746=130 I.C. 236=1931 C. 42. ## NOTES.

L.W. 400. Appellate Court can direct refund where a Subordinate Court mistakenly orders payment to a decree-holder when that order is set aside. 21 C.L.J. 624=30 I.C. 49. Application by the judgment-debtors for compensation during the period they were kept out of possession of their property under an execution sale which they subsequently got set aside does not fall within S. 144 but would be covered by S. 151. 2 Pat.L.J. 206=39 I.C. 653; 1930 P. 280. A defeated claimant under O. 21, R. 58, whose properties have been sold in execution of the decree, consequent on his failure to comply with Court's order to pay one year's interest as a condition for stay of execution, is nevertheless entitled to apply for restitution under this section from the auction-purchaser, when he ultimately succeeded in appeal from the dismissal of his suit to establish his title by the trial Court. 1933 P. 564 (2). Where decree is nullity, as when suit was instituted against a dead man, and execution was levied thereon, Court has inherent power to rectify its mistake and to allow restitution of money paid in execution. 146 I.C. 564=38 L.W. 874=1933 M. 888 (1). It is not only permissible but imperative for the Court to order restitution in necessary cases. 55 A. 221=1933 A.L.J. 60=1933 A. 218. An order for restitution of mesne profits passed on an erroneous view of High Court passed on an application for stay is open to appeal. 146 I.C. 301=34 P.L.R. 938=1933 L. 485; 53 L.W. 356=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 407. Petitioners paid money to avoid attachment of their movables in execution of a decree. On their objections, the execution proceedings were set aside and they applied for refund of money paid under S. 151. The Court refused the application, but lower appellate Court allowed it. In second appeal it was contended that lower Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal as the order of lower Court was passed under S. 151. Held, that even assuming that no appeal lay, High Court was competent to revise the order of the execution Court and that it was equitable that the benefit received by the decree-holder under the execution proceedings should be restored to the petitioners when those proceedings were set aside. 149 I.C. 1105=1934 L. 108. Case where otherwise irreparable injury would result to a party. 122 I.C. 485=1930 L. 441. Section 151 should seldom be resorted to for the purpose of making a remand. The trial would have to be so radically defective as not to amount to a trial at all before its provisions could be availed of for such a purpose. 1941 N. L. J. 519=1941 N. 308. Where both the primary and the first appellate Court gave a decision in a case without understanding, it is not a proper decision and the High Court should in second appeal remit the case for re-trial. 19 A. L.J. 553=63 I.C. 501; 103 I.C. 854=1927 L. 480. An order refusing an adjournment is appealable and the appellate Court has power to set aside the decree and order a re-trial if the adjournment had been wrongly refused. 63 I.C. 478=23 Bom.L.R. 769. Appellate Court has the power to order a re-trial and this power is to be adopted in exceptional circumstances where the Code does not provide adequate procedure. 64 I.C. 599. See also 1936 N. 140; 1935 P. pp. 49 and 68; 139 I.C. 126=33 P.L.R. 487=1932 L. 443; 35 C.L.J. 345=70 I.C. 547. The power of an appellate Court to remand is not circumscribed within the Rr. 23 and 25 of O. 41, C.P. Code. An order of remand under section 151 would be a proper order, if it is made by the appellate Court in a case in which the evidence on the record is not sufficient for a correct decision on the point at issue to obtain further evidence before the trial Court which had refused to give an opportunity to produce that evidence. 1941 O.A. 503=1941 O.W.N. 754. taken in remand order. 27 A.L.J. 448=1929 A. 421; no appeal lies against an order of remand under section 151. 1929 L. 245; 1929 M. 205; 164 I.C. 1085=1936 P. 491. But see 117 I.C. 678. The effect of an order of remand for a new trial is entirely to nullify the first decision and to re-open the whole case. This rule however does not apply where the remand is for the determination of a particular point. 14 Pat.L.T. 138=1933 P. 220.

RESTORATION OF SUIT.—Section 151 cannot be invoked for the purpose of restoring to the file a suit which has been dismissed. 48 C.L.J. 596=1929 C. 158. But see 138 I.C. 248=34 Bom.L.R. 714=1932 B. 271; 13 L. 761; 1936 L. 759; 165 I.C. 268=1936 Pesh. 191; 42 Bom.L.R. 238. Application to restore suit time barred—No inherent power to restore suit. 37 L.W. 48. Though a plaint is rejected under O. 7, R. 13 a Judge has jurisdiction under section 151 to restore the suit. 1939 A.L.J. 335=A.I.R. 1939 All. 452. See also 1939 Pat. 678. Where owing to the death of a sole plaintiff before the hearing of the suit there was no appearance for him on that date, it is not competent to the Court to dismiss the suit for default of appearance under O. 9, R. 8 and 9. If, however, the Court dismisses the suit inadvertently as for default, it has inherent power to set aside the dismissal. The legal representative of the deceased plaintiff could apply to be made a party within six months of the death under Art. 176 of the Limitation Act 35 A. 31=25 M.L.J. 148 (P.C.). Where a suit is dismissed for default of plaintiff in ignorance of the plaintiff's death and subsequently an application is filed by his legal representative to bring him on record, the Court can set aside order of dismissal and restore suit to file under section 151 and substitute the legal representative's name for the deceased plaintiff. 31 N.L.R. 314=158 I.C. 602=1935 N. 189. See also 14 I.C. 28; 87 I.C. 438 (Restoration without notice to the other party); 3 R. 488; 89 I.C. 350=47 A. 878; 27 A.L.J. 1183=1929 A. 811. It is open to a District Judge acting under section 114, or under the inherent powers of the Court to reconsider an order granting letters of administration. 37 A. 380=29 I.C. 133. Restoration—Suit dismissed for want of letters of administration—Subsequent production of letters. 24 Bom.L.R. 738=70 I.C. 910. Court has jurisdiction under its inherent power under section 151 to restore a suit dismissed for default when it finds that it cannot be restored under O. 9, R. 9. 63 I.C. 440; 32 C.W.N. 811=1929 C. 17; 1939 Lah. 223. Contra see (Regarding dismissal under O. 9, R. 3). 103 I.C. 620=1927 P. 369. Appellate Court can restore and remand an ex parte decree.

32 C.W.N. 191. See also 134 I.C. 1169=1931 Sind 153 (Power to restore to file appeal dismissed for default of payment of printing charges in time). Section 151 expressly saves the inherent power of the Court, and every Court must be deemed to possess as inherent in its very constitution all such powers as are necessary to do right and undo a wrong in the course of the administration of justice. An application to set aside an order dismissing an appeal for not filing the appellant's list within the time allowed may be entertained under section 151, and neither O. 41, R. 19 nor O. 47, R. 1 would apply. 19 Pat. 159=20 Pat.L.T. 883=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 678 (F.B.). A surety who is a party to an order holding him liable for payment to the decree-holder can, on reversal of that order on appeal, apply to the Court for restitution under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court, apart from section 144. 40 P.L.R. 289=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 833. See also 1938 O.W.N. 911=1938 Oudh 221 and notes under section 144, supra. Suit on P.N. dismissed as a result of decision in another matter between plaintiff and another where the plaintiff's title to the P.N. was negatived. As appeal was filed in the other matter, the Court observed in the dismissal order that the suit may be revived if plaintiff succeeds in the appeal. Plaintiff succeeded in appeal and applied under section 151 for the restoration of the suit. Held, that it cannot be restored as there were other remedies open to plaintiff, add also as defendants were not parties to the appeal. 144 I.C. 103=1933 M. 485.

RESTORATION OF APPLICATIONS.—Court can restore claim petition under O. 21, R. 58, dismissed for default. 148 I.C. 584=23 N. L.R. 176=1933 N. 176. But see contra 40 L.W. 665=1934 M. 699; 165 I.C. 268=1936 Pesh. 191; 1935 Pesh. 186; 41 P.L.R. 544=1939 Lah. 233 (Application under O. 21, R. 90 dismissed for default can be restored under this section). Where a petition for recording a compromise presented by a party to a suit is dismissed owing to the absence of the petitioner on the date of hearing of the petition, his proper remedy is by way of an application under S. 151, to have the order of dismissal set aside. 43 C.W.N. 1113. Application under O. 21, R. 100, if dismissed for default cannot be restored. 152 I.C. 24=59 C.L.J. 218=1934 C. 653. The Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application made by the judgment-debtor for the restoration of his previous application made for setting aside the sale. 27 A.L.J. 1079=119 I.C. 851=1929 A. 721. plication to set aside an ex parte decree is dismissed for default, an application for the restoration of such application can be made, under inherent jurisdiction of the Court. 1929 A. 906; 1933 R. 406. Execution applications can be restored under inherent powers. 13 L. 761=142 I.C. 686=34 P.L.R. 70=1933 L. 99; 1935 A. 27. Even when the decree was not passed by it but only transferred for execution. 145 I. C. 995=1933 A.L.J. 1032=1933 A. 783 (F. B.).

RETURN OF PLAINT.—O. 7, R. 10 is not restricted only to those cases in which the Court for want of territorial jurisdiction returns the plaint. A plaint returned on the ground of pecuniary jurisdiction is also to be considered as returned under this provision and not under S. 151. Hence the order returning the plaint on this ground for presentation to proper Court is appealable. 175 I.C. 684=A.I.R. 1938 Sind 124.

REVIEW.—Every Court has no inherent power to review an erroneous decision. 53 I.C. 39=30 C.L.J. 1. See also 1936 P. 506; 1936 Pesh. 213; 40 P.L.R. 755=1938 Lah. 472; 138 I.C. 121=1932 M. 223; 141 I.C. 188=1933 L. 169; 47 I.C. 917; 89 I.C. 946; 2 R. 659=85 I.C. 284; 31 C.W.N. 822; 32 I.C. 527. But see contra 141 I.C. 188=34 P.L.R. 88=1933 L. 169. A review if forbidden by Code cannot be granted under S. 151. 42 I.C. 711=45 C. 519. Where a Subordinate Judge usurps an appellate jurisdiction which he does not possess and reviews an order made by his predecessor on the ground of an error of law, the order reviewing the predecessor's order is one without jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside in revision by the High Court. The fact that the order is made under S. 151, makes no difference. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 330=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 137. See also 1938 Oudh 103. The power of a Court to review its order exists only if it is conferred by statute, except possibly in cases where the order is made without jurisdiction. 63 I.C. 56=37 M.L.J. 162. The Court has power to review its order rejecting the petition under O. 7, R. 11. 2 P. 504=72 I.C. 629.

SCHEME SUIT.—Modification of Scheme. See 1940 O.A. 582.

SECURITY FOR COSTS OF PROCEEDING.—The mere fact that a case does not fall within the four corners of O. 25 does not prevent the Court from acting under S. 151 ex debito justitiae and to prevent the abuse of its process if there be any occasion for it. It is somewhat difficult to hold that because the legislature has provided for security for costs being ordered in certain specified cases the legislature thereby intended to deprive Court of its inherent jurisdiction to make similar orders in cases not specifically provided for. 26 S.L.R. 21=140 I.C. 233=1932 S. 33.

SURETY BOND.—Respondent and another executed a bond for the production of certain movables attached in execution of a decree by the appellant. The terms of the bond provided that "if any default is made in respect of the properties, overselves (the sureties) would be liable for all the loss that may be sustained thereby and for any amount that may be directed by the Court." On the failure of the sureties to produce the articles the assignee of the decree applied for the arrest of the second surety. Held, that although the case did not fall under S. 145 Court had inherent power to enforce the bond without recourse to a suit, the proper procedure would have been to get an order from Court, after notice to the sureties, that the bond is forfeited and then to proceed to execute that order. (42 A. 158 and 51 M.L.J. 239, relied on.) 145 I.C. 1004=1933 M. 722=38 L.W. 450=65 M.L.J. 507. See also 65 M.L.J. 342. Surety bond executed by plaintiff to the Court as condition for temporary injunction—Suit dismissed—Enforceability of bond in execution. Held, that (i) as the bond had been executed in favour of the Court and not in favour of any particular officer, it could not be assigned and sued on; (ii) S. 145 did not apply to a case where the executant of the bond was a party to the suit; (iii) even if S. 74 was not applicable, the Court had, nevertheless, inherent power to enforce its bond without recourse to a suit. 56 M. 989=1933 M. 691=65 M.L.J. 342.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Power to stay criminal proceedings pending civil suit. See 7 L. L.J. 73=88 I.C. 526. Court could order refund of the Court-fee apart from S. 15, Court-Fees Act. 7 R. 88=117 I.C. 585. The power to discharge and remove or to give directions to a Receiver are inherent in the Court which appointed the Receiver and the appellate Court has got all the powers of the original Court. 17 I.C. 583=1912 M.W.N. 1208. Assuming the Court has jurisdiction to allow an appellant to continue an appeal in forma pauperis it can be exercised only if on a perusal of the judgment and decree appealed from and the appeal memorandum the Court is of opinion that that decree is contrary to law. 38 M. L.J. 146=54 I.C. 761. See also 1933 A. 295. Objection to delivery of property not covered by the Court-sale certificate is not covered by S. 47 or O. 21, R. 100 but by S. 151. 1929 P. 391. Appeal relating to part of decree only—Memorandum accompanied by copy of that part of decree only—Copy of unnecessary portions of decree—Power of Court to dispense with. 40 C.W.N. 1298.

SETTING ASIDE SALE.—There is no inherent power in a Court to set aside a sale outside the provisions of O. 21. 1932 A.L.J. 392=1932 A. 403. See also 1938 Rang. 433; 1938 A.L.J. 1041. S. 151 does not confer an unlimited jurisdiction on the Courts to do what they please and further when another remedy was or is open to a party, he has no right to invoke the inherent jurisdiction of the Court. An application under S. 151 by a decree-holder purchaser to set aside the sale in execution of the materials of a house only, is incompetent where the decree-holder had submitted to the sale and had acquiesced in it and had allowed his other remedies to be barred by time. 1939 A. L.J. 398=A.I.R. 1939 All. 497. No doubt the Court has inherent power under S. 151 to set aside an execution sale before its confirmation, where there is an abuse of the process of the Court. But there is certainly no jurisdiction to set aside the sale under that section on the application of a third party on the ground that owing to a misapprehension due to the conduct of another third party he failed to be present on the day of the sale and therefore was unable to bid. It might be otherwise if that had been due to some omission or wrong procedure on the part of the Court. 43 C. W.N. 250=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 161. Where the Court directed that the property should be sold in execution of a mortgage decree free from a prior mortgage but the sale-proceeds should be deposited in Court for payment to the prior mortgagee and that the decree-holder would be entitled to the surplus alone, if any, but the decree-holder who purchased the property did not implead the prior mortgagee in the course of execution proceedings and did not deposit in Court any amount for him, the decree-holder did not conduct himself in an honest manner and the sale is liable to be set aside. 40 P.L.R. 128=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 232. STAY OF EXECUTION.—Under S. 151, the High Court has power to stay execution of decrees which form the subject-matter of petitions for revision. 1934 L. 909. Where an appeal has been preferred to the Privy Council against a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit, the appellate Court has under S. 151 power to stay further proceedings with regard to preparation of final decree, when no loss would be caused to the decree-holder by the stay of proceedings, e.g., where the judgment-debtors offer security for the decretal amount with interest. (1932 L. 271 and 40 C. 955, Rel. on.) 1934 L. 238=150 I.C. 47=36 P.L.R. 138. Where a claimant, after succeeding under O. 21, r. 58, fails in an action brought by the decree-holder to establish his right to sell the property in suit, the Court cannot order stay of execution either under O. 21, r. 29 or O. 41, r. 6 (2), but can order stay in its inherent jurisdiction. If however in such a case stay is ordered without putting the unsuccessful claimant to terms, the Court acts without jurisdiction. 152 I.C. 686=15 Pat.L.T. 783=1934 P. 637. See 54 A. 344 (Power of High Court to order stay of execution of final decree pending appeal from the preliminary decree); 1932 A. 238=136 I.C. 75. See also 1932 A.L.J. 582=1932 A. 655. Court can stay confirmation of sale. 123 I.C. 824=1930 A. 131; 1932 A.L.J. 861; 145 I.C. 307=1933 A.L.J. 221=1933 A. 259 (F.B.) (staying order of High Court suspending advocate from practice on such order being made the subject of appeal to Privy Council). See also 1931 B. 384. The Collector, as representing the Court of Wards which was in possession of the estate of certain Hindu widows, withdrew the suit brought by him just about the expiry of the period of limitation. A reversioner applied to the Court for being permitted to continue the suit. His application was dismissed, but on revision a Bench of the High Court allowed his application and directed that he be brought on the record as the plaintiff in place of the Collector and be permitted to proceed with the suit. Leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council from order passed in revision by High Court was granted under S. 109 (c) and the appeal before Privy Council was pending. The defendant applied that the proceedings in the Court below should be stayed till the disposal of the Privy Council appeal, held, that High Court had no jurisdiction to do so. Held, further, that even assuming it had such power under S. 107, Government of India Act, on merits no stay should be ordered. O. 45, r. 13 has no application where the party applied for the stay of proceedings in the Court below as distinct from the stay of execution of a decree. 150 I.C. 446=1934 A.L.J. 1191=1934 A. 585. STAY OF SUIT.—A plea as to the jurisdiction of a Court to entertain a suit involving questions of difficulty and importance should not be dealt with by an application for stay of the suit. It may be set down as a preliminary question of law for determination when the suit comes on for trial. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 497=44 C.W.N. 460=1941 Cal. 236. See also 1941 Pesh. 34. S. 151 cannot be invoked to stay a suit which cannot be legally stayed under S. 10, C. P. Code. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 85. See also 1941 Pesh. 34. In order to justify a stay or a suit it is, as a rule necessary that something more should exist than a mere balance of convenience in favour of proceeding in some other place. It must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that either the expense or the difficulties of trial of the suit in the place in which it is brought are so great for the litigant applying for stay as to result in injustice being done. 1940 Cal. 134=I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 199.

STAY OF SUIT.—Pending second appeal, 133 I.C. 222=53 C.L.J. 619=1931 C. 779; 1933 L. 50. See also 132 I.C. 257. The High Court has ample jurisdiction under S. 151, C.P. Code, to stay the proceedings in connected suits. 1938 N.L.J. 120. A Court in the United Provinces is not competent under S. 151 to issue a stay order to a Court in another province. I.L.R. (1938) All. 650=1938 A.L.J. 481=A.I.R. 1938 All. 434. As to stay of suit, see 163 I.C. 895=1936 P. 408. Where one party files a suit for recovery of possession and the opposite party files a counter-suit in the same Court for declaration of title against the first party, the proper action for the Court is that under the inherent powers of Court, the hearing of the possessory suit should be stayed until the question of title to the land has been decided. 1935 R. 355.

TRANSFER OF SUIT on the ground that the Judge had expressed a strong opinion on the evidence can be ordered under this section. 133 I.C. 876=32 P.L.R. 388. See also 56 A. 201; 12 R. 548=151 I.C. 573=1934 R. 265 (F.B.).

VAKALATNAMA.—Court can condone or correct formal defects in a vakalatnama. 12 Pat.L.T. 558=133 I.C. 171.

APPEAL.—No appeal lies from an order passed under S. 151. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 508. No appeal lies against an order under the section. 104 I.C. 331=1927 C. 867; 26 P.L.R. 130; 102 I.C. 28 (1)=1927 M. W.N. 286; 12 L. 602=134 I.C. 292=1931 L. 344; 140 I.C. 843; 14 Pat.L.T. 1; 43 L.W. 773=1936 M. 636; 30 S.L.R. 170=165 I.C. 305=1936 S. 166; 163 I.C. 121=38 P.L.R. 717=1936 L. 212; 1936 P. 491; 161 I.C. 21; 158 I.C. 998; 157 I.C. 1083; 117 I.C. 372; 1930 L. 468; 122 I.C. 102; 12 P. 202=14 P.L.T. 1=1933 P. 139; 1933 P. 564; 1934 L. 349. But see 31 C.W.N. 290=100 I.C. 735 (2)=1927 C. 285; 6 P. 381. An order under S. 151 is not appealable. It is not correct to say that when an order which does not strictly come under

S. 144 is passed under S. 151, it is appealable. The right of appeal is a creature of the statute and unless there are express provisions of law relating to the maintainability of an appeal, it would not be correct to say that because an appeal is allowed by statute in certain cases it must be allowed by way of analogy in other similar cases. Where an application for restitution is made under S. 151, and is treated as such by the Court and an order is passed, it is not appealable. 1939 O.W.N. 765=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 273. The nature of an order is not determined by the provision of law to which it may wrongly have been assigned. The true test is, what is the order itself. A Court cannot change its true order merely because it is given a wrong name. Where a Court amends a final decree passed by it purporting to do so under S. 151, it cannot be said that no appeal lies in the matter on the ground that an order under S. 151 is not appealable. A Court cannot evade the appellate jurisdiction of the Court above it by arbitrarily placing its order under a provision of law, orders under which are not appealable. The appellate Court should not treat the amending decree as an appealable order but it should regard the decree as amended by the order and the amended decree being appealable the appellate Court should deal with the matter as an appeal from the amended decree and proceed to hear and determine the same. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 428=A.I.R. 1939 Sind 303. As there is no specific provision in the Code of Civil Procedure for an appeal against an order passed under S. 151, no appeal lies from such an order and therefore the order of an appellate Court passed on appeal from such order is passed without jurisdiction. And where such an order has been passed without jurisdiction a further appeal or a revision application can be entertained to set aside the order which has been passed without jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 81. Judge passing orders under O. 32, r. 6 that money deposited should not be withdrawn—Successor's order cancelling it is not appealable. 1929 L. 884. An order under S. 151 can be challenged in appeal under S. 105 if it affected the decision of the case on the merits. Otherwise the appellate Court is not bound to set it aside. 147 I.C. 1013=35 P.L.R. 266=1934 L. 312. An order refusing to grant temporary injunction restraining the decree-holder purchaser from obtaining possession of property purchased is one passed under S. 151 and not under O. 39, r. 1; and as such no appeal lies from such order. 150 I.C. 15=1934 L. 79 (2). An appeal against an order of remand under S. 151, C.P. Code, is not competent; but when the lower Court has not exercised the power vested in it under the law, it can be set aside. 149 I.C. 1050=1934 L. 233. Where a suit is disposed of on the merits by the trial Court and on appeal the lower appellate Court remands the case for re-trial after amendment

152. Clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission may at any time be corrected by the Court either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties.

NOTES.

of plaint, the order of remand is one made under the inherent powers of the Court even though the appellate Court orders refund of Court-fee paid on the memo. of appeal and the order is not appealable. 141 I.C. 400=34 P.L.R. 270=1933 L. 135.

REVIEW.—See 40 Bom.L.R. 1180. Where an order permitting withdrawal of the suit was obtained by practising fraud upon the Court by a defendant acting in collusion with a minor plaintiff's next friend and the Court subsequently vacated its order. Held, that the Court had power under S. 151, C. P. Code, to vacate an order obtained by misleading and practising fraud upon Court and hence the order of the Court vacating its previous order was right. 1937 S. 101.

REVISION.—See 1940 Cal. 92=43 C.W.N. 1028. Propriety of order under this section cannot generally be questioned in revision under S. 115, C.P. Code. 59 C.L.J. 389=1934 C. 780. But see 140 I.C. 843=34 P.L.R. 51=1933 L. 73; 149 I.C. 1105=1934 L. 108; 27 A.L.J. 1079=119 I.C. 851=1929 A. 721; 1937 N. 151. Even if upon a strict construction of S. 115, High Court is precluded from interfering in revision with an order of a lower Court refusing to amend a decree, it is still open to it to interfere under S. 151. (1935 O.W.N. 968, Rel. on.) 167 I.C. 586=1937 O.W.N. 268=1937 O. 246. Unless a matter could be brought under S. 115, C.P. Code, S. 151 could not be used to set aside an order of a lower Court against which no appeal or revision lies. 1940 N.L.J. 93. It is perfectly competent to a Court to vacate its own prior order. The provisions of Ss. 151 and 154, C.P. Code, are wide enough to allow this being done. Where the Court feels that it is necessary in the interests of justice to vacate a previous order made by it, it can do so, and such an order vacating a prior wrong order cannot be said to be improper or without jurisdiction. 40 Bom. L.R. 1180. Ss. 151 and 152, C. P. Code, cannot apply to a case where there is no accidental slip or error or omission on the part of the Court or there is no accidental slip, error or omission or slip in the plaint which intended one thing and owing to an accidental slip stated another, but the parties were labouring under a mistake at the time of the decree and the mistake was embodied in the decree. 40 P.L.R. 100=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 331.

PRINCIPLES ON WHICH AMENDMENTS ARE GRANTED.—The object of empowering the Court to correct decrees and orders is to correct errors and if it may be shown that an alleged mistake falls within the class of errors dealt with by S. 152, it seems to put an unnecessary hindrance upon the power to do justice which the section gives, to say that the only mistakes of which the Court can take cognizance are those made either in the plaint or in subsequent documents in Court. There is nothing which limits the power of the Court under S. 152 to correcting errors, mistakes and omissions, which arise in the suit. Nothing prevents the Court from doing justice in an appropriate case where such mistake arose by reason of copying an erroneous document into the plaint. A suit for rectification of the instrument and decree is not the only remedy; an application for review may be appropriate, but that is no obstacle under S. 162 to an application. 1931 M. 260=61 M.L.J. 805. Under S. 152, there is no right in any party to have a clerical or arithmetical mistake corrected. The matter is left to the discretion of Court and the discretion has to be exercised in view of the peculiar facts of each case. 146 I.C. 310=10 O.W.N. 884=1933 O. 466. There is no right in any party under S. 152 to have a clerical or arithmetical mistake corrected. The matter is left to the discretion of the Court, and the discretion has to be exercised in view of the peculiar facts of each case. Where by the granting of an application to have the mistake corrected, the opposite party will be deprived of the advantage they have already gained by the applicant's omission to question the provision in decree in appeal the application should not be granted. 10 O.W.N. 1087=1933 O. 529. Where a suit for redemption was decreed and the entire amount due on the mortgage paid and the mortgage extinguished, by a mistake the decree was drawn up with reference to only half the property, but the mortgagee obtained possession over the whole, the mistake was held to be one of a clerical nature arising from an accidental slip or omission and that it could be corrected even after a lapse of many years. 1941 O.W.N. 474=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 281. A decree can be brought into conformity with the judgment even after the lapse of years; the only limitation is that the Court may deem it inexpedient or inequitable to exercise its powers where third parties have acquired under the erroneous decree without a knowledge of the circumstances which would tend to show that the decree was erroneous. 60 Cal. 753=146 I.C. 658=37 C.W.N. 500=1933 Cal. 627. There is no time limit prescribed by law within which an application for amendment of a decree under S. 152, C.P. Code, has got to be made. It is true that when there are undue laches on the part of the decree-holder or the interest of third parties has intervened, the Court should be reluctant in allowing amendments of this description. But where the omission of the schedule of the mortgaged properties in the final decree for sale was due to a mistake, if any, on the part of the Court officers and the misdescription in the name of the decree-holder was also a palpable error apparent on the face of it, the decree-holder applying for amendment of the decree is under no obligation to satisfy the Court that really there were no laches on his part. 41 C.W.N. 1330=65 C.L.J. 455. Person against whom decree for costs had been passed did not appear in Court and hence had no knowledge of the discrepancies between judgment and decree. Consequently there was great delay in making the application for amendment of the decree. Held, that in these circumstances the equities were not so much against the applicant and therefore the application should be granted. 171 I.C. 207=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 96. Court has a discretion in allowing amendment and there is no right in any party to have a clerical mistake corrected. Where, therefore, the applicants, even after they became aware of the defect in the decree, took no effective steps to set matters right but allowed the other party to obtain decrees against them as though there was nothing wrong with the decree, a subsequent application for amendment of the decree cannot be allowed. 142 I.C. 880=15 N.L.J. 124. Where property is wrongly described in a plaint in a mortgage suit and the mistake is repeated in the preliminary and final decrees, without notice either by the parties or by the Court, Court has ample powers to amend the plaint, the decrees and the judgment and correct the mistakes. 153 I.C. 378=1935 O.W.N. 31=1935 O. 92. If a decree is subsequently amended, the amendment does not take effect from the date of the decree so as to affect the rights of a purchaser who has acquired the property after the decree and before the making of the amendment. 1937 O.W.N.

NOTES.

25=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 217 (F.B.). Although after the case has been decided and the decree has been satisfied, the Court becomes functus officio, yet it does not debar the Court in appropriate cases, to rectify an error which has crept into its record either by accident or by design. The only limitation upon the exercise of such a power by Court may be found in cases where third parties have acquired rights under the erroneous judgment in the interval. Lapse of time however considerable, is no bar to the correction of errors either under S. 151 or 152. 1941 O.W.N. 474=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 281. An application for amendment of a decree to bring it into conformity with the judgment will be rejected, if it is made long after a third party acquires an interest in the decree by taking an assignment of the decree without being aware of the defect in it. 44 C.W.N. 708; 1932 A.L.J. 784=1932 A. 587 (Incorrect description of mortgaged property in the deed repeated in plaint, preliminary and final decrees, execution proceedings and sale certificate discovered late in mutation proceedings in Revenue Court can be corrected under this section); 136 I.C. 850=1932 M. 275=62 M. Where the decree follows the judgment in its entirety and there is no incidental slip or omission, an application for amendment of the decree under S. 152, is not maintainable. If the judgment and the decree are a bit ambiguous, it is a matter of interpretation of the decree, having regard to the pleadings of the case and the other relevant papers, but it is not a matter for which an application for amendment could be made. 65 C.L.J. 452. The judgment in appeal directed 'the costs in appeal would be costs in the suit' and no mention was made of the costs of the lower Court. The decree was drawn up stating that costs of the original hearing and costs of re-trial ordered by the decree and the costs of appeal should abide by the result of the re-trial. Held, that the language of the decree was different from that of judgment and as doubts and difficulties arose thereby, the decree could be amended to be in agreement with judgment. 171 I.C. 207=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 96. Mistakes anterior to suit cannot be corrected under this section. 8 N.L.R. 13=14 I.C. 407. Rectification may be ordered for mistake and not where there is gross negligence of the party. 11 I.C. 537; 9 I.C. 433. Where after the passing of a decree, an application for its amendment on the strength of certain accounts newly filed, is allowed, and the decree amount is reduced, the Court in so doing has not merely corrected any clerical error but has altered the decree in a substantial manner, in the light of accounts produced, at a stage when the Court had no jurisdiction to receive fresh documentary evidence. The procedure is not justified by the powers of the Court under S. 152. 1938 A.L.J. 1080. Sale ordered for a sum larger than what was due under the decree—Court has power to set aside sale. 27 Bom.L.R. 657=89 I.C. 569=1925 B. 389. Where there is no variation between decree and judgment no amendment can be allowed. 11 I.C. 896; 101 I.C. 147=1927 L. 403; 103 I.C. 298 (2). But see 25 L.W. 102=99 I.C. 655=1927 M. 435; 1930 L. 210; 42 I.C. 66=4 O.L.J. 475 (obvious error in judgment may be corrected). A consent decree can be varied only by consent. 27 I.C. 830=16 Bom.L.R. 668. See also 27 I.C. 134=16 Bom.L.R. 670 (Note); 50 I.C. 497=4 P. L.J. 205; 21 I.C. 115. A judgment ordering a decree to be entered up in terms of a compromise is not such a judgment as is contemplated by this section. 7 C.W.N. 880. See also 1933 P. 135. S. 152 does not empower a Court to rectify a decree merely because the decree is wrong or unfair or because the parties have not realised their rights and put them before the Court in such a way as to enable a correct decree to be passed. The powers given under that section only relate to arithmetical mistakes or errors arising from an accidental slip or omission. And the Court has no jurisdiction under S. 152 to add to a term in a consent decree without the consent of both parties to the decree. Ordinarily the High Court will not entertain a revision petition when a remedy by way of appeal is available. But in very special circumstances if there is a clear error relating to jurisdiction it may at its discretion do so. (24 Mad. 646, considered). 51 L.W. 252=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 538=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 310. An application by the plaintiff to amend the decree to bring it in conformity with the judgment must be made to the Court which passed it and not to the Appellate Court. 57 I.C. 710. Any divergence between the decree and the judgment is a matter for amendment of the decree and not for a fresh suit for setting the decree aside. 43 C. 217=31 I.C. 13=19 C.W.N. 1228; 31 I.C. 478=1915 M.W.N. 914. The exercise of the power of amendment under S. 152 is discretionary and an application for amendment of a decree should be rejected as too late if the rights of third parties acting in good faith have intervened. 43 M.L.J. 559=1923 M. 57. Mistake in suit record owing to misdescription of suit property in plaint may be corrected by the Court under this section. 21 A.L.J. 328=72 I.C. 483=1923 A. 349; 25 L.W. 102=99 I.C. 655=1927 M. 435. Court can extend time for performance in case of decree for specific performance. 5 R. 615=105 I.C. 467=1927 R. 311. The Court has power to correct a mistake made in both the judgment and the decree. It should not refuse to correct the error on the ground that since the mistake appears in the judgment, the error in the decree is not accidental. 41 P.L.R. 119. S. 152 is not restricted to mistakes or errors which occur for the first time in the plaint or the subsequent proceedings in Court. The section applies also to cases where the mistake occurred in the earlier document evidencing the transaction itself and was copied in the plaint and the decree in the suit brought to enforce the transaction. 54 L.W. 344=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 452. See also 22 Pat.L.T. 267. Where in a suit instituted against the legal representatives of a deceased mortgagor as such, the Court passes a personal decree against them, there is an accidental omission in the decree in failing to limit their liability. The Court has power under S. 152, which it should exercise, to correct the omission in the decree. The Court is not debarred from exercising its power merely because that error has been brought to its notice in the course of an application in which the decree-holder is seeking to execute the decree. An executing Court has power to rectify such error when it is the same Court which passed the decree. The omission by the legal representatives to raise an objection to the form of the decree in a previous execution application, does not operate as res judicata. Nor can the doctrine of estoppel be introduced when there is no ground for suggesting that the decree-holder has thereby altered his position to his detriment. 1940 Cal. 202=I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 305=43 C.W.N. 490.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—A decree against one person cannot be amended by adding another as judgment-debtor when no decree has been passed against him. 40 I.C. 47. The fact that a dead man had been made a party by mistake does not deprive the Court of the power to implead his legal representatives and proceed with the hearing of the appeal. S. 153 allows the Court a discretion to do so in a fit case, e.g., where the mistake is a bona fide one. 165 I.C. 201=1936 Pesh. 192. See also 29 S. tence embodied a relief as to payment of costs not mentioned in the award the defect can be cured only by an appeal or review. 34 I.C. 787=3 L.W. 499. An application to correct an error made in a decree awarding costs will be refused, if the applicant is guilty of laches. 42 P.L.R. 263=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 182. The award of costs to which the party successful may be entitled is neither an arithmetical mistake nor an accidental slip or omission under S. 152. A decree cannot, therefore, be amended under that section, if the method of assessment of costs is wrong. 42 P.L.R. 263=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 182. There was an appeal against an interlocutory order passed in a suit, and during the pendency, the plaintiff died. His legal representative was brought on record. After the disposal of the appeal, legal representative carried on the litigation, resulting in a decree being passed against the plaintiff, but the decree as drawn up was against the plaintiff. Held, that no joinder of the legal representative was necessary in the suit before the decree was passed, as the Court could have brought it in conformity with the appellate decree which contained the names of the legal representatives of the plaintiffs. 45 C. 94 (P.C.), Foll. Held also that the decree could be executed against the estate of the deceased in the hands of the legal representative. 120 I.C. 516=1930 S. 96. A person who purchases a decree purchases the rights in the decree and if one of these rights vesting in the vendor is a right to have the decree amended under the law, this right also passes to vendee. 41 P.L.R. 99=A.I.R. 1939 L. 255. See also 22 Pat.L.T. 267.

RIGHT OF SUIT.—Mistake anterior to suit can be rectified only by separate suit. 8 N. L.R. 13=14 I.C. 407.

BAR TO SUIT.—A suit for amending a judgment or decree passed by a competent Court on the ground of mistake is not maintainable in a Civil Court. 15 C.L.J. 675=14 I.C. 93=17 C.W.N. 82 (10 C.W.N. 1024; 6 C.W.N. 889; 3 C.W.N. 575, Rel.; 8 C.W.N. 473, Dist.). See also 133 I.C. 366=1931 P. 296. (8 C.W.N. 473, Diss.).

JURISDICTION.—Where an appeal is summarily dismissed under O. 41, R. 11, the decree remains the decree of the lower Court and not of High Court. So, it is the lower Court and not High Court, that can entertain an application for amendment of the decree. 11 P. 409=138 I.C. 908=1932 P. 238 (21 B. 548, Foll.; 24 C. 759, Not Foll.).

APPEAL.—There is no appeal from an amendment under S. 152. 54 I.C. 387; 24 P.R. 1911=10 I.C. 850; 73 I.C. 679=1923 L. 147 (2). But see 61 I.C. 992 (appeal lies where the whole system of calculation adopted by the Court was challenged). Where a Court purporting to act under S. 152, wrongly passes a fresh decree, an appeal is competent from that decree. The mere fact that the new decree is wrongly passed does not take away the right to appeal. 35 P.L.R. 610=1934 L. 839. No appeal lies against an order granting an amendment, but an appeal lies against the amended decree. 3 C.L.J. 188; 1 A.L.J. 701; 22 M. 646. No appeal lies to His Majesty in Council, 33 C. 679; nor under the Letters Patent, 14 A. 226 (F.B.). Application for amendment on ground that costs had been assessed on an erroneous principle is bad. Proper remedy is by way of appeal. Amendment would not be granted on ground that an appeal is barred. 17 I.C. 418=47 P.R. 1913. When judgment simply states "decreed as prayed for and costs" and the sum awarded in the decree differs from that claimed in the plaint decree can be rectified under this section. 22 B. 370. Appeal lies against an order under this section extending time for performance in the case of a decree for specific performance. 105 I.C. 467=1927 R. 311.

REVISION AND APPEAL.—An order under this section is subject to revision. 28 C. 177; 7 A. 876 (F.B.); 31 B. 447; 1936 A. M.L.J. 117; 1940 O.W.N. 1010; 24 P.R. 1911=10 I.C. 850; 18 A.L.J. 501=55 I. C. 963; 37 A. 323=29 I.C. 50=13 A.L. J. 449; 1941 Lah. 419. An order to amend the decree is different from the amended decree and a revision lies from the former order. 147 I.C. 633=1934 A. 100 (2). An application under section 152, the Court is not bound to correct the decree. Court has a discretion to make the amendment or not. And in such case the applicant has no right in revision proceedings to demand an adjudication upon any point; his right is merely to bring the matter to the notice of High Court and to leave it to the discretion of the Court to interfere, if interference is necessary in the interests of justice. High Court will not interfere unless the lower Court has exercised its discretion in such a manner that it was obviously wrong and unjust for it to make the order it did. 10 O.W.N. 958=1933 O. 425. Where a decree is amended and the amendment is substantial in that it alters the amount declared due on a mortgage, at least so far as the additional amount is concerned, there is a new decree from which there is an appeal. It cannot therefore be revised. But in the appeal it is open to the appellant to challenge the decree on the ground of jurisdiction. 1938 A.M.L.J. 88. Simply because an order is passed under the inherent powers it does not necessarily become appealable. If however the inherent powers are used to expand a remedy in order to do justice to cover a case not within the exact words of but within the purpose of a procedural section, the Court is in effect using its inherent powers to act as if the orders were made under the section in question. In such a case, even justice demands that one side should be given a remedy and the other side should, as a matter of justice, be allowed the right to appeal that would have existed had a parti-

153. The Court may at any time, and on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it may think fit, amend any defect or error in any proceeding in a suit; and all necessary amendments shall be made for the purpose of determining the real question or issue raised by or depending on such proceeding.

ular section really applied instead of its being applied by means of a fiction. 1933 Nag. 326. Where an objection to the passing of a final decree or a mortgage is raised on the ground that certain payment made after the preliminary decree has not been given credit to, but the objections are dismissed owing to default in appearance, a refusal to restore such application is not appealable, for it is an order passed on an application to exercise the Court's inherent jurisdiction under section 151. A.I.R. 1939 A. 28 = 1938 A.L.J. 1055.

REVIEW.—Circumstances might, however, arise, which would render amendment necessary on review, as when the description of the mortgaged property as given in the decree differs from that given in the bond, the remedy was one by way of review. See 16 M. 424; 1906 A.W.N. 220; 156 I.C. 585 = 1935 Pesh. 91. If judgment is attacked the matter is one for review. 5 Pat. L.J. 253 = 1 Pat.L.T. 219 = 58 I.C. 510.

LIMITATION.—Applications under this section are not governed by the Limitation Act. 10 M. 51; 11 B. 284; 21 C. 259; 11 A. 267; 40 C.W.N. 83; 74 I.C. 842 = 1924 A. 127; 21 I.C. 540 = 7 S.L.R. 53. Although there is no limitation for an application to amend a decree under section 152, it is obvious that such an application must be made before the decree has become unexecutable owing to the 12 years limitation provided by section 48. 1939 A.M.L.J. 27. S. 152—Amendment of decree after expiry of 12 years does not revive right to execute decree. See (1940) 1 M.L.J. 235 (F.B.).

SECS. 152 AND 153.—Where a partition follows a mortgage and other properties are allotted to the mortgagor in lieu of the mortgaged property, there can be no doubt that the mortgagee can proceed against the substituted security and can bring to sale the property which represents the property originally mortgaged. When the mortgagee does not proceed against the substituted security but ignoring the partition proceeds against the property originally mortgaged and bring the same to sale and difficulties arise after the whole proceedings are over in obtaining delivery of possession, he may be permitted to amend the plaint, preliminary decree and final decree, but no further amendment can justifiably be made, i.e., no amendment can be made in any of the relevant documents and proceedings following the final decree, such as the execution petition, sale proclamation and the sale certificate. If an amendment were allowed in the latter, the result would be that property will have been bought and sold which has never been even put up for sale. After such amendment fresh steps will have to be taken to bring the substituted property to sale. But when there is a serious dispute as to what was the subject-matter of the mortgage, proceedings for amendment of the relevant documents in the case are not appropriate. A question involving the identity of the property mortgaged cannot be dealt with on an application to amend. A case of misdescription can be dealt with by amending the plaint, and decree, but not a dispute as to the identity of the properties which are the subject-matter of the mortgage. 22 Pat. L.T. 267.

SEC. 153 [N.B.—See Notes under sections 151 and 152].—Under sections 99, 152 and 153 the Court has ample powers to afford opportunity to rectify defects in pleadings and under section 153 is bound to do so. 1933 A.L.J. 110 = 1933 A. 295. See 139 I.C. 491 = 1932 A.L.J. 784 = 1932 A. 587; 1935 O.W.N. 471 = 1935 O. 369. Where plaint was presented by a vakil whose name was omitted from body of his vakalatnama and who had signed on the back in token of acceptance, it was held that it was a mere clerical error and that an order of Court, on an application to correct the mistake, that that correction should be made and given retrospective effect, was not without jurisdiction. 1934 A. 810. Court ought to give all reasonable indulgence with regard to amending. However negligent or careless the first omission and however late the proposed amendment, the amendment should be allowed, if it can be allowed without injustice to the other side. Per Lopes, L.J., in 19 Q.B.D. 394, cited in 32 C. 600. The verification in an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis not being in the manner prescribed by the Code, the Court rejected it. Held, in revision, that it was the duty of the Court to allow the applicant a chance to correct the defect in the verification before rejecting the application itself. 1937 N. 108 = 168 I.C. 894. The expression "any proceeding" is general enough to include filing of an appeal. 123 I.C. 824 = 1930 A. 131. The term "proceeding" in section 153 must be interpreted as any application to a Court of justice, however made, "for aid in the enforcement of rights, for reliefs, for redress of injuries, for damages or for any remedial object". An application for a challan for depositing the necessary amounts for the purpose of setting aside an execution sale, and a memorandum accompanying the receipt obtained for the deposit are "proceedings" within the mean-

Saving of present right of appeal.

154. Nothing in this Code shall affect any present right of appeal which shall have accrued to any party at its commencement.

155. The enactments mentioned in the Fourth Amendment of certain Acts. Schedule are hereby amended to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.

156. [Repeals.] Repealed by S. 3 and Schedule II of the Second Repealing and Amending Act, 1914 (XVII of 1914).

ing of section 153, though they may or may not be treated as applications to set aside the sale under O. 21, R. 89 for want of a formal prayer to set aside the sale. Such a challan or memorandum may be amended so as to add a prayer therein that the sale be set aside, under section 153. The fact that the period of limitation for making an independent application for setting aside the sale has expired is no ground for refusing the amendment under section 153. 45 L.W. 633=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 342=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 658. To proceed to recall and cancel an invalid order is the duty of the Judge. 5 C.L.J. 611. Also an order improperly or fraudulently obtained. 6 C.L.J. 662. Over-valuing suit to get round a previous decision which will operate as res judicata—Decision is an abuse of process of Court. 83 I.C. 1=1925 A. 142. Section allows the Court to give leave for amendment at any time in any proceeding in a suit. 25 Bom.L.R. 888=77 I.C. 171=1924 B. 166. Where a decree is passed if it is final, the original Court is, generally speaking, functus officio, and the occasion for amendment of pleading cannot arise. (Ibid.) Suit on pronote found to be insufficiently satmped cannot be amended into one on the original cause of action. 138 I.C. 783=34 Bom.L.R. 643=1932 B. 394. (3 R. 183, Not Foll.; 48 C. 32 (P.C.), rel.on.) Addition of legal representatives in a suit against a dead man is illegal. 45 M.L.J. 231=75 I.C. 739=1924 M. 56. Appeal against dead respondent—Amendment of cause title allowed. 1925 M. 1210=49 M.L.J. 590 (F.B.). The fact that a dead man has been made a party by bona fide mistake does not deprive the Court of the power to implead the proper legal representatives and proceed with the hearing of the appeal. See 165 I.C. 201=1936 P. 192. Suit in name of non-existing or non-juristic person—Amendment by substitution—Power of Court. 20 N.L.J. 65=1937 N. 173=171 I.C. 763=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 514. Under the provisions of section 153 a Court may, subject to the provisions of section 5, Limitation Act, allow the amendment of an appeal against the person who had died before the date of the presentation of the memorandum, although it is found that no appeal in law exists. Such discretion is not however available to a Court where it is sought to substitute a person for the potential appellant who died before the memorandum of appeal was filed. 1934 N. 274. Mistake discovered on appeal may be corrected. 20 A.L.J. 159=66 I.C. 208=1922 A. 81. See also 66 I.C. 693=8 O.L.J. 416. Amendment of sale certificate without notice to judgment-debtor is irregular. 65 I.C. 732=16 L.W. 760=1922 M. 63. Want of signature and verification does not entail rejection of the plaint as they can be supplied at any stage. 25 M.L.J. 174=17 I.C. 580. Application for sale after dismissal of execution application is defective, but can be cured under this section. 25 I.C. 883=1 L.W. 665. On this section, see also 3 Pat.L.T. 149=1922 P. 121. It is open to a party in a suit to invoke the inherent power of the Court to get the judgment and the decree amended under the provisions of sections 151, 152 and 153 of the Code quite apart from the limitation applicable to the institution of the appeal or review. He has a right to apply but it is for the Court to see whether his application deserves consideration. 6 O.W.N. 604=118 I.C. 753=1929 O. 385 (F.B.).

SEC. 154.—The general law that a right of appeal is more than a matter of procedure and an alteration of law of procedure would not re-act upon the right of appeal is superseded by this section. 6 S.L.R. 168=19 I.C. 348. This section has no bearing on the powers of an appellate Court in dealing with appeals before it. 9 I.C. 815. Where in a suit instituted before the coming into force of the new Code an order of remand is passed after the new Code has come into force, the right of appeal against the order is regulated by the new and not by the old Code. 1 P. R. 1913=15 I.C. 725. (21 M.L.J. 631, Diss.). The words "any present right of appeal" in this section mean a right of appeal in esse. (Ibid.)

SEC. 157.—Rules framed by the Local Government under section 269 of the old Code are in force until rules are made by the High Court under the power given by section 128 (2) of the new Code. 24 M. L. J. 637=37 M. 17. But rules under old Code which were ultra vires then are not valid simply because they could be made under the new Code. 29 M.L.J. 663=31 I.C. 924. The words "consistent with the Code" mean only consistent with the sections of the Code and not with the rules which are alterable by the High Court. 24 M.L.J. 637=20 I.C. 775=37 M. 17.

Continuance of orders under repealed enactments. agreements filed, scales prescribed, forms framed, appointments made and powers conferred under Act VIII of 1859 or under any Code of Civil Procedure or any Act amending the same or under any other enactment hereby repealed shall, so far as they are consistent with this Code, have the same force and effect as if they had been respectively published, made, appointed, filed, prescribed, framed and conferred under this Code and by the authority empowered thereby in such behalf.

158. In every enactment or notification passed or issued before the commencement of this Code in which reference is made to or to any Chapter or section of Act VIII of 1859 or any Code of Civil Procedure or any Act amending the same or any other enactment hereby repealed, such reference shall, so far as may be practicable be taken to be made to this Code or to its corresponding Part, Order, section or rule.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

ORDER I.

PARTIES TO SUITS.

1. All persons may be joined in one suit as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same act or

Who may be joined as plaintiffs. transaction or series of acts or transactions is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, where, if such persons brought separate suits, any common question of law or fact would arise.

NOTES.

SCH. I: RULES, CONSTRUCTION OF.—The C.P. Code must be regarded a whole and it came into being as a whole as its first section will show. The scheme was to make the body of the Code confer jurisdiction and the schedules to detail the mode in which that jurisdiction is to be exercised.

Therefore, if there is any conflict between the body and the schedules the former must prevail. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 250=1939 N.L.J. 228=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 186 (F.B.).

O. 1, R. 1: SCOPE OF.—The rule is only an enabling one allowing a number of plaintiffs, with the same right to relief, to join in one suit, instead of bringing separate suits. 24 C. 385 (388). See also 38 M. 406=28 M.L.J. 535 (P.C.). The words "in respect of the same transaction" are wider than the words "in respect of the same cause of action". 25 M. 745. Suit by one member for recovery of family debt, other members being impleaded as defendants not bad for non-joinder. 99 I.C. 565=1927 L. 129 (1); 1927 M. 984=106 I.C. 140.

APPLICABILITY.—O. 1, R. 1 applies not only to joinder of plaintiffs, but also to joinder of causes of action. So under that rule several causes of action can be joined in one suit if some common question of law or fact would arise. 41 C.W.N. 27=1936 C. 650. Rule applies to appeals also. 75 I.C. 950=1923 L. 638.

PERSONS.—A ship is a person. 12 B. 241.

EFFECT OF.—The words "in the alternative" apply to cases in which there is doubt as to who is the person entitled to sue. 6 M. 243. See also 18 A. 433.

WHO MAY BE JOINED AS PLAINTIFFS.—Where the interests of two plaintiffs are identical and not antagonistic, they can sue jointly. 16 B. 119. Plaintiffs who have separate interests in subject-matter of suit may join. 4 A. 261 (F.B.); 1929 A. 790. All persons having a common cause of action are entitled to join as plaintiffs. 15 B. 309. A plaintiff is entitled to join as co-defendants, persons against whom he has different causes of action in cases where common questions of law and fact are involved. 55 C. 164. Suits by different sets of plaintiffs claiming in the alternative is maintainable, provided there is a common question of law or fact. 10 P.R. 1916=32 I.C. 526; 43 M.L.J. 277. Several persons having distinct shares in certain properties can join in a suit against a person in possession under a deed of gift sought to be set aside. 4 A. 261 (F.B.). See also 33 C. 367. Several persons could not file a joint suit for damages for their wrongful detention in jail after the expiry of their term of imprisonment. 11 C. 524. Suit by several plaintiffs—Each plaintiff having separate cause of action in which others are not interested—Misjoinder of causes of action arises. 1926 M.W.N. 723=1926 M. 1140=98 I.C. 463. Parties and causes of action—Misjoinder—Suit by temple servants to set aside order of dismissal by temple trustee if and when bad for misjoinder. 1926 M. 57=91 I.C. 525. Joinder of different causes of action permitted by change of phraseology if other conditions are satisfied. Co-plaintiffs—All defendants not interested in relief—Joinder of different causes of action—Effect of. 17 L.W. 25=69 I.C. 402=1923 M. 331 (2). Same person can be plaintiff and defendant in two distinct capacities in the same suit. 93 I.C. 214=1926 S. 4. Where a defendant in a suit claims relief as against a co-defendant, in respect of the same transaction as that with reference to which the suit is brought, he could be added as a co-plaintiff, for, if he brought a separate suit a common question of law and fact would arise. 178 I.C. 286=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 157.

CO-MORTGAGEES.—Suit for sale by one—Others refusing to join to be added as defendants—Form of decree to be passed. 47 C. 175=46 I.A. 272=37 M.L.J. 483 (P.C.).

CO-SHARERS.—Co-sharer landlords can sue tenants collectively even if they collect rent separately and the rent refers to different periods. 10 I.C. 891=14 C.L.J. 373. A co-owner of immovable property can sue for injunction against intending trespassers without joining the other co-owners as parties. 35 I.C. 147=3 L.W. 542. Where auction-purchaser of a residuary share of an estate sued the co-sharers for joint possession in separate suits, no secret arrangement among the co-sharers regarding the mode of enjoyment of the property will bind the purchaser and the suits will not be bad for splitting up of claim. 44 C.L.J. 293=99 I.C. 177=1927 C. 237. One co-sharer cannot sue for enhancement of his share of rent. 4 C. 96 (F.B.). See also 20 C. 107; 19 C. 610. All co-sharers are necessary parties in a suit for profits for jerait land held by defendants in addition to their shares. 1 P.L.J. 573=35 I.C. 868 (F.B.). All co-owners must join in a suit to recover their property. 10 B. 32. One of several joint proprietors cannot sue in ejectment. 4 C. 961. See also 1936 R. D. 85. One of several joint lessors cannot sue for his share of rent, payable under a lease to all the lessors. 5 A. 40. See also 4 C. 89.

CO-TRUSTEES.—Ordinarily all trustees should be co-plaintiffs, and only such of them should be made defendants as are unwilling to join as plaintiffs, or have done some act precluding them from being plaintiffs. 1932 C. 27=35 C.W.N. 478 (5 C. L.J. 527, Foll.; 48 I.A. 302, Fef.) See also 1 P.L.J. 437=24 I.C. 806; 30 M.L.J. 619=33 I.C. 52.

CO-PROMISEES.—Suit by one of them—Others joined as co-defendants—Suit not bad when the other promisees have raised pleas contrary to plaintiff. 133 I.C. 871=1931 L. 445.

EJECTMENT.—A plaintiff who has made the co-sharer landlords pro forma defendants in a suit for ejectment is entitled to get a decree for recovery of possession of the property in suit to the extent of his share jointly with the pro forma defendants in the suit. 58 C.L.J. 133. See also 1936 R.D. 85. On a suit for ejectment of a trespasser, all the joint owners are not necessary parties. 1933 L. 999=147 I.C. 505.

JOINT TORT-FEASORS.—Frame of suit against—Single suit by several injured persons, if proper. See 138 I.C. 77=1932 A. L.J. 497=1932 A. 401.

MAINTENANCE SUIT.—Where same decree ordered a person to pay maintenance to mother as well as widow of his deceased nephew, held, the two women could jointly sue for arrears of maintenance and it was not necessary that they should file separate suits. 1933 P. 644.

OTHER ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Benamidar for another in a transaction need not be joined in a suit in respect of such transaction. 10 I.C. 779=4 Bur.L.T. 74. A trustee of temple properties cannot sue singly for rent without making other co-trustees parties to the suit. 1 P.L.J. 437=24 I.C. 806; 35 C.W.N. 478. But see 30 M.L.J. 619=33 I.C. 52, contra. Manager of a joint family can sue on contract entered into by him in his own name without impleading the other members as parties to the suit. 35 M. 685=21 M.L.J. 508; 71 P.R. 1911=13 I.C. 305; 23 Bom. L.R. 1135=46 B. 358. Mortgage suit by manager on behalf of all members is maintainable. 39 I.C. 427; 38 I.A. 45=33 A. 272 (P.C.); 35 M. 685. A karnavan of a Malabar tarwad can alone sue for the tarwad property. 15 M. 19.

WHO ARE NECESSARY PARTIES.—All members of a tarwad are necessary parties to suit by one member against the karnavan for an increased rate of maintenance. 7 M. 428. Receiver is a necessary party to appeal by a claimant whose claim with regard to property sold by Receiver as belonging to an insolvent has been dismissed. 94 I.C. 660 (1)=1926 L. 696. Transferee of property sold in execution is necessary party to set aside the sale if the proceedings have been commenced after transfer. 15 I.C. 176=39 C. 881. Some of the executors under a will cannot maintain an action without impleading the other executors. 44 M. L.J. 249. In a suit for accounts of the partnership on death of a partner, all representatives of the deceased partner should join. 33 C. 564. All members of a firm are proper parties to a suit on a pro-note in favour of the firm when the obligation on it was contracted. 15 I.C. 380=11 M.L.T. 246. In an appeal against an order in a partition suit that the property be sold as it was incapable of partition all shares are necessary parties. 100 I.C. 17 (2)=1927 L. 189. See also 91 I.C. 567=1926 C. 741.

not a necessary party. 17 C.W.N. 835=16 C.L.J. 385. See also 59 I.C. 292. In respect of a private water-course, where no relief is asked against Government, the latter is not a necessary party. 50 I.C. 299=177 P.W.R. 1918. In a partition suit, persons who have no interest whatsoever in the suit properties need not be made parties. 39 I.C. 160=5 L.W. 207. But all interested parties should be joined either as plaintiffs or as defendants. 23 O.C. 62=56 I.C. 304. A dormant partner is not a necessary party in suit on a contract either with the firm or with one of its members. 31 I.C. 913 (2); 38 I.A. 45=21 M.L.J. 378 (P.C.); 33 A. 272. In an appeal by a secured creditor, or an insolvent debtor, where Receiver is a party, it is not necessary to join all creditors. 58 I.C. 10=24 C.W.N. 401. When defendant's tenants in a rent suit plead title of a third person, the third person is not a necessary party to the proceedings. 32 I.C. 553. See also 146 I.C. 15. Suit by one lessee against another lessee for possession is not bad for not joining the landlord as party. 94 I.C. 3=1926 O. 422. In suit under section 9, Specific Relief Act, the owner who is not in physical possession is not a necessary party. 5 B. 208. It is doubtful whether alienees or trespassers on trust property can be joined as parties to a suit under section 92. 38 M. 1064=27 M.L.J. 266. A Hindu widow and her two daughters can sue in one suit for maintenance and for the marriage expenses of the daughters. 6 A. 632. Strangers to the contract claiming adverse possession are not proper parties to a suit for specific performance of the contract. 35 I.C. 871=4 L.W. 397. See also 5 B. 177; 10 C. 1061. Suit under section 53, Transfer of Property Act, for a declaration that a conveyance is voidable must be brought by or on behalf of all the creditors. 34 C. 999. One of two partners cannot sue in his own name as agent of the firm for breach of contract. 27 M. 80. A person has no right to sue for damages for slander of his sister. 1 M. 383. Neither can a father sue for defamation of his daughter. 11 A. 104. Superintendent of a State cannot sue for the recovery of property belonging to the State. 2 A. 690. Secretary of State is not necessary party to a suit for setting aside sale under Punjab Excise Act, section 60. 96 I.C. 927 (1) [25 C. 833 (P.C.), Foll.].

O. 1, R. 2.—See 18 I.C. 181; 21 I.C. 438.

O. 1, R. 3: SCOPE OF.—1928 B. 91=30 Bom.L.R. 162. This rule applies to joinder of causes of action as well as joinder of parties. 33 Bom.L.R. 1291 following (1921) 2 K.B. 1 and 55 C. 164. See also 134 I.C. 689=33 Bom.L.R. 624=1931 B. 330; 45 C. 111=21 C.W.N. 794; 41 C. W.N. 27=1936 C. 650. Before a plaintiff can join several defendants in the same suit, both the conditions laid down in the rule must be fulfilled. Under O. 1, R. 3, a plaintiff can in the same suit combine distinct causes of action against several defendants provided that the relief claimed arises from a series of acts or transactions and that there is a common question of law or fact arising in the suit. 144 I.C. 202=1933 M. 622. The plaintiff in order to avail himself of the provisions of this rule, has to satisfy two conditions: (1) that the right to relief alleged to exist in him arises out of the same act or same transaction, and (2) that the suit is of a character that if separate suits were instituted against the defendant any common question of law or fact would arise. Both these conditions must co-exist, the two conditions not being in the alternative. 1930 A.L.J. 99=123 I.C. 324; 1934 S. 176; 1933 P. 653. See also 151 I.C. 257=60 C.L.J. 199=1934 C. 405. This rule must be read with Rr. 9 and 10 (2). 27 C. 493, 497. The general principle regarding the joinder of defendants would seem to be that, there must be a cause of action in which all the defendants are more or less interested, although the relief asked against them may vary; and that separate causes of action against separate defendants cannot be joined in one action. 31 B. 516; 49 M. 836. (See also Rr. 5 and 7.) R. 3 relates to a joinder of parties and it assumes the existence of a suit in a proper forum, the Court having jurisdiction to try the suit. 49 C. 895=27

WHO ARE PROPER PARTIES.—If a person has a right to defend the suit, it is the same thing as saying that he is a necessary party. 146 I.C. 72=1933 M. 664=65 M.L.J. 290. Creditors are proper parties to a suit by sons against a Hindu father for partition and for declaration that the debts contracted by father were not valid and binding on the family. 45 M. 194=42 M.L.J. 97. Where the sons of a Hindu father sued him and his creditors and alienees for a declaration that the father's debts are immoral debts and hence not binding on them, the suit is not bad for misjoinder of defendants and causes of action, for the several alienations made by the father constitute 'series of acts or transactions' and they are the same series of acts or transactions because, as alleged by the plaintiffs, they were all vitiated by one circumstance, namely, that they were incurred for immoral purposes. This feature put all debts in one category, and the successive borrowings formed one series of acts or transactions. O. 1, R. 3 contemplates not only joinder of defendants but also causes of action. O. 1, R. 5 is to be read with R. 3 and hence it is not necessary for every defendant to be interested in all the reliefs in suit. 1938 N.L.J. 210=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 461. A single suit against all tenants, where every one of them removes crops on the land and when conspiracy is neither alleged nor proved, is bad for misjoinder of causes of action. 24 I.C. 813=4 L.W. 399. Government is a necessary party to a suit by mirasdars for declaration that the right of fishery leased out by Government to grammattars belonged to them. 38 I.C. 100. In suit for settlement of accounts, the plaintiff's plea was that the defendant was his agent and that a sum of money was due from him on accounts and the defendant's plea was that the accounts had been settled with the plaintiff's brothers who were partners of the firm with the plaintiff. The plaintiff applied to implead the brothers but this application was rejected by the lower Court as being multifarious. Held, that the whole question between the parties belonged clearly to the same set of transactions and the plaintiff had a right to join the brothers as parties if he wished to do so, and that there was no multifariousness. 1933 A. 957. WHO ARE NOT NECESSARY OR PROPER PARTIES.

—The allegations in the plaint alone should be looked into in order to come to a finding whether a certain defendant is or is not a necessary party. 47 L.W. 760=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 329. To a suit between rival claimants to an occupancy holding, the landlord is not a necessary party. 70 I.C. 958=1923 A. 11 (2). See also 104 I.C. 845. In a suit by a tenant of Ghatwali land against his landlord, the Secretary of State is not a necessary party. 35 I.C. 788. In suit for the administration of an estate, debtors of the estate are not necessary parties. 24 L.W. 425=1926 M. 1110. The receiver of the property of a party to litigation is not a necessary party if no attempt is made thereby to interfere with the right of the receiver to the property entrusted to his care, and especially so when the property covered by the suit is not in the possession of the receiver at the time of the suit. 38 C.W.N. 996. In a suit to establish easement owners of servient tenement not resisting plaintiff's right are not necessary parties. 96 I.C. 665=1926 C. 1201. But every person who resists or denies plaintiff's right is a necessary party. 1936 C. 534. There is no justification for the view that all persons interested, no matter what the nature or character of their respective interests may be, are necessary parties. The general rule is that all owners of the servient tenement as regards which there is a cause of action and over which the easement is claimed should be made parties. For instance, if a co-owner is left out, the decree would be infructuous. The same is the case where persons having a possessory interest are not impleaded. 60 C. 1072=1933 C. 882. See also 163 I.C. 630=1936 R. 241. The vendor is not a necessary party to a suit for pre-emption. 26 A. 549. To a suit to enforce a mortgage persons claiming under a title adverse or paramount to the mortgagor and mortgagee are not proper parties. 33 C. 425. A question of paramount title ought not to be agitated in a mortgage suit, since it introduces a different cause of action, in which only some of the defendants are likely to be substantially interested. 59 C. 548=138 I.C. 671=1932 C. 512. In a suit by the vendee of mortgagee rights on the mortgage, to which both the mortgagor and the original mortgagee are made parties, common questions of fact and law do arise and the suit is not barred by the provisions of O. 1, R. 3. In such a suit, the original mortgagee may be impleaded and the plaintiff is entitled to ask for a relief against him, if he failed to obtain a decree against the mortgaged property. Such a suit could not be said to be either premature or bad for multifariousness. 1940 O. W.N. 807. A decree for damages for PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—The Court has the power to dismiss a suit for multifariousness but its power should generally be exercised with a liberal discretion. O. 1, R. 3 is the provision governing the question of multifariousness; it applies to joinder of cause of action as well as joinder of parties. The question whether joinder is proper or not has to be determined with reference to the facts of each case. 57 M. 1031=1934 M. 367=66 M.L.J. 451. Where plaintiff is obstructed from worshipping the village deity by some of the villagers, and he impleads only such villagers as defendants in the suit and not all the villagers, the suit is not bad for non-joinder of all the villagers and a decree can be passed against the person so impleaded; but he has to take the risk that obstructions may come from some other person who is not bound by the decree. 145 I.C. 1014=38 L.W. 333=1933 M. 726.

O. 1, R. 4.—Where trial Court found that one of the defendants and not the plaintiff was entitled to the suit money and transposed the defendants into the array of plaintiff, such a procedure was in accordance with the rule. 105 I.C. 473=1927 O. 484. One person may sue or defend on behalf of all in same interest.

dants in a suit brought by holder of such bills. 3 C. 541. See also 3 B. 182. The drawer is a necessary party to a case based on a hundi. 25 I.C. 881=243 P.L.R. 1914. It is not incumbent on a person dealing with partners to make them all defendants in suit for recovery of money due by the firm. 21 M. 256. Where several persons are jointly and severally liable for a single liability, all of them are not necessary parties to a suit against some of them only and they may not be added even as "proper" parties when the suit can be decided without them and no multiplicity of suits would arise. 1934 Pesh. 94.

O. 1, R. 8: SCOPE OF RULE.—The principle of a representative suit is to prevent a defendant from being vexed and molested by other similar suits by other persons of a particular body. Personal service cannot, obviously, be made, on non-existing persons and it is only when such existing persons are numerous that there may be another form of service such as public advertisement. Hence O. 1, R. 8 deals with persons in existence at the time the suit is brought and is to prevent an actual existing danger, namely the bringing of suits by such persons and not merely a possible future danger which may never mature, namely, the coming into existence at some unknown period of persons who become creditors of the defendant in that suit. 15 Luck. 503=1940 O.W.N. 285=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 200. The rule is merely an enabling rule and does not prevent a representative suit being brought in any other manner that the law permits. 94 I.C. 47=28 Bom. L.R. 309=1926 B. 179. See also 60 I.A. 278=56 M. 657=65 M.L.J. 87 (P.C.); 150 I.C. 364=58 C.L.J. 534=1934 C. 345. R. 8 does in no way debar a member of a community from maintaining a suit in his own right, although the act complained of may also be injurious to the whole community. 60 I.A. 278=56 M. 657=37 C.W.N. 853=1933 P.C. 183=65 M.L.J. 87 (P.C.). The rule requires that the Court should exercise a judicial discretion in permitting some definite person or persons to sue or be sued on behalf of all the persons interested. 17 C. 906 at 910. See also 10 P. 568=133 I.C. 463=1931 P. 418. This rule is only intended to enable some of a class of persons (e.g.) shareholders of a company to sue on behalf of all of them. It is not intended to enable individuals to sue on behalf of the general public in respect of an encroachment on a public highway. 10 P. 568; 9 M. 463. O. 1, r. 8 is merely permissive and is intended to provide a remedy for cases in which it might be difficult or impossible to implead all the persons it is sought to affect. 63 I.C. 963=13 Bur.L.T. 183. O. 1, r. 8, C.P. Code, is subordinate to O. 34, r. 1. 36 I.C. 542=1 Pat.L.J. 468. The permission need not be express. 101 I.C. 738=1927 C. 608. An order for representation can be made even when a party objects so to represent. 101 I.C. 738=1927 C. 608. Even when some of the plaintiffs chosen to represent a community go over to the defendant's side and admit the defence, the representative nature of the suit is not altered. 1928 C. 741 O. 1, r. 8 if controls section 11, Expl. (6). 54 M. L.J. 8 (F.B.). O. 1, R. 8 has been enacted for the benefit of the defendants only to this extent, namely, to prevent multiplicity of suits. 27 L.W. 212.

APPLICABILITY OF RULE.—For principle governing representative action, see 27 L.W. 212; 5 P. 539=94 I.C. 433=1926 P. 321. O. 1, R. 8 cannot be applied unless the plaintiffs truly represent the persons whom they seek to represent. Where in a suit by certain persons claiming to be representatives of a large body of persons entitled to be in occupation of the property in suit, varying legal claims are put forward, some claiming to be owners, some to be permanent tenants, some to be tenants entitled to certain benefits under the City Tenants' Protection Act and others having no other title than that of being mere trespassers, the Court will not allow the various plaintiffs to continue the suit, because they cannot be said truly to represent the whole body of occupants, unless they reduce themselves to the level of those among the occupants who have the weakest case to put forward, i.e., unless the plaintiffs describe themselves as trespassers and nothing else, the Court will not be justified in granting permission to them under O. 1, R. 8. 49 L.W. 165=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 428. The provisions of O. 1, R. 8, are applicable to a suit brought on behalf of a panchayat of a village. If in such a suit all the members of the panchayat are not upon the record, and those who are upon the record have not obtained permission under O. 1, R. 8 to represent the other members of the panchayat who are interested in the suit, the suit is liable to be dismissed. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 190=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 63. O. 1, R. 8 is only an enabling section and it does not debar some of the members of a community from maintaining a suit in their own right; but it may not affect persons who are no parties to it. I.L.R. (1939) All. 754=1939 A.L.J. 821=A. I. R. 1939 All. 586. See also 44 C. W. N. 1029. Rule 8 is an enabling rule of convenience prescribing the conditions upon which persons when not made parties to a suit may still be bound by the proceedings therein. For the section to apply the absent persons must be numerous; they must have the same interest in the suit, which so far as it is representative, must be brought or prosecuted with the permission of the Court. On such permission being given it becomes the imperative duty of the Court to direct notice to be given to the absent parties in such of the ways prescribed as the Court in each case may require; while liberty is reserved to any represented person to apply to be made a party to the suit. The obtaining of the judicial permission and compliance with the succeeding orders as to notice are the conditions on which the further proceedings in the suit become binding on persons other than those actually parties thereto and their privies. 60 I.A. 278=56 M. 657=37 C.W.N. 853=1933 P.C. 183=65 M.L.J. 87 (P.C.); 44 M.L.J. 116; 151 I.C. 225=35 P.L.R. 420=1934 L. 366. It is a rule of convenience founded on the old Chancery practice to prevent delay, expense and multiplication of suits to establish the same right. The scope of a suit under the rule is essentially different from that of a suit to enforce a claim based on a general right, but in an individual and personal character. Plaintiffs derive their authority to represent others of the class from the Court. 39 C.W.N. 303=157 I.C. 224=1935 C. 413. See also 17 Pat.L.T. 926=49 L.W. 664 (as to maintainability of a representative suit under this rule for damages for tort). The rule applies only to cases where many persons are jointly interested in obtaining relief, and not to cases in which an individual right has been violated. 7 A. 178 (F.B.). R. 8 is applicable even when the dispute is between two groups inter se of the same caste or body. The rule only requires that there should exist a common interest and a common grievance. The rule also allows representation on both the sides in the same suit. 156 I.C. 956=41 L.W. 574=1935 M. 542. The rule applies not only to concurrent interests but also to similar ones, though distinct. 15 I.C. 399=1912 M.W.N. 105. See also 98 I.C. 553=1927 A. 96. What O. 1, R. 8, contemplates is that the plaintiff or plaintiffs must have a common interest with those whom he or they claim to represent. All that is necessary is that there must be a common interest and a common grievance. 1939 M.W.N. 458=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 751. Where numerous members of a caste seek to enforce rights as against strangers or as against certain other members of the caste, r. 8 applies. 64 I.C. 618; 156 I.C. 956=41 L.W. 574=1935 M. 542. O. 1, r. 8 does not draw a distinction between cases (1) in which the public or a large part of the public, are interested in the subject-matter of dispute and some persons sue, or sued, on behalf of this indeterminate body; and (2) cases in which the persons interested are named in the record and only some of them have been permitted to sue or defend the suit as a matter of convenience, because after an order under O. 1, r. 8 has been passed, the only effective parties to the suit or appeal are the nominees of the Court and not the other persons interested even though their names are allowed to remain on the record. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 199=A. I. R. 1939 Lah. 572. It is well settled that where a suit is brought on behalf of or against an association or an unregistered body, no one member thereof can alone sue or be sued. The suit must be brought by or against all the members thereof. A decree passed against one of the members will not be binding upon the unregistered body unless the procedure laid down by O. 1, r. 8, has been followed. If that procedure is not followed, the result of the suit has no binding effect on those who are not on the record. An objection as to the procedure under O. 1, r. 8 not having been followed is not an objection as to non-joinder, or misjoinder of parties but goes to the root of the case. The prejudice is obvious if all the members of an association are made bound by a decree although they were never either parties to the suit or properly represented by some one else. 15 Luck. 253=185 I.C. 330=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 129. A Shamlat Committee is not a legally constituted corporation either by prescription or by any other operation of law. It is a kind of representative body of the khewatdars of a village. Before a suit in respect of the lands in the khewat could be brought all the khewatdars must join together for that purpose. The course to be followed is set out in O. 1, r. 8. 1941 A.M.L.J. 14. A representative suit on behalf of the inhabitants of a group of contiguous villages the object of which is to restrain the discharge of surplus rain water from the defendant's mouza to the plaintiffs' lands in those villages which are at a lower level, is maintainable under the provisions of O. 1, R. 8. 74 C. L.J. 95. The term "numerous parties" does not mean that the suit should be on behalf of an ascertained or ascertainable body of persons. (20 C. 307, Not. Foll.). 143 I. C. 742=1933 L. 749. There can be no hard and fast rule as to how many persons should represent the public or the rest of the class of the persons of the same interest. Three persons held to be sufficient. 145 I.C. 387=14 Pat.L.T. 361=1933 P. 302. One or two persons can sue in respect of maladministration of property belonging to the community. 94 I.C. 47=1926 B. 179. A suit for a declaration that a certain pathway was a public one, can be maintained with the permission of Court under R. 8. 69 I.C. 910=25 C. W.N. 587. See also 62 C. 692=39 C.W.N. 590=61 C. L. J. 182; 17 Pat. L. T. 842; (1938) 2 M. L. J. 148. A representative suit would lie as much in respect of a declaration as for an injunction. But the law is quite clear that the procedure pertaining to representative suits is inapplicable to action of debt to money claims or its liabilities in contract or in tort. 1938 M. W.N. 740=48 L.W. 109=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 755=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 148. A suit for a declaration that there is no public right of way over the lands in suit belonging to the plaintiff is not bad although members of the public have not been impleaded in the way contemplated by O. 1, R. 8, when according to the plaintiff the defendants alone are interested in opposing or resisting his rights. Whatever conclusion the Court may come to in the case, the decision can be binding only as between the parties to the suit. Other members of the public not being represented will not be affected one way or other. 44 C. W.N. 1029. See also 1939 All. 586. Suit under O. 21, R. 63, by decree-holder—Prayer for declaration of bogus character of sale deed and for setting aside the same as a fraud on creditors—Leave of Court to sue on behalf of all creditors is essential. See 1940 M. 789=51 L.W. 608=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 872.

(2) Any person on whose behalf or for whose benefit a suit is instituted or defended under sub-rule (1) may apply to the Court to be made a party to such suit.

LOC. AM.—[CALCUTTA]. O. 1, R. 8.—In sub-rule (1) of O. 1, R. 8 for the first sentence substitute the following:—

APPEALS.—Principle of R. 8 can be given effect to in a proper case by the appellate court. But the appellate Court will not readily take action if an application under the rule had not been made in the trial Court, or if made, had been rejected. 132 I.C. 657=1931 L. 610. Representative suit—Omission to obtain sanction of Court—Objection to frame of suit not raised in lower Court cannot be sustained in appeal. 8 O.W.N. 722=1931 O. 375. When a suit is brought in a representative capacity after obtaining the permission of the Court under R. 8 then the representatives appointed by the Court are the only parties to the suit. And when such persons compromise the suit and the compromise is given effect to by the Court, others cannot appeal from such decree. 1935 L. 33=157 I.C. 733.

ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS.—The provisions of this rule apply to an application under S. 14 of the Arbitration Act to set aside an award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrator. The Court has power to grant leave under O. 1, R. 8 to a petitioner applying under S. 14, Arbitration Act. A petition under S. 14 is one which can be heard and tried as a suit. 60 B. 645=38 Bom. L.R. 380=1936 B. 259.

CHANGE IN LAW.—The word "persons" has been substituted for the word "parties" so as to give effect to the opinion expressed in 9 C. 604.

MEANING OF TERMS.—The "numerous persons" mentioned in the rule mean persons capable of being ascertained. The whole Hindu community is incapable of being ascertained and a suit on their behalf if relating to any public trust, can only be instituted under Ss. 91 and 92. 20 C. 397, 407. See also 9 M. 463; 33 C. 905; I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 199=42 P.L.R. 731 (as to who are or are not parties to suit). Where persons are not among those who have been appointed by the Court to defend a suit under O. 1, R. 8 on behalf of any class and they have not applied under sub-R. (2) of R. 8 to be impleaded as defendants in their own name, they are not parties to the suit in the real sense of the term and their absence from the record is wholly immaterial. A I.R. 1939 Lah. 572.

PERMISSION WHEN TO BE OBTAINED.—Permission may be obtained before the commencement of the suit or after its commencement. 21 B. 784 (F.B.); 22 A. 269; 23 M. 29; 25 M. 399; 21 C. 180 (188). See also 29 C. 100; 17 C. 906, 910. The permission may be given even after the filing of the suit. 47 B. 809=25 Bom.L.R. 689=1923 B. 305; 105 I.C. 113. See also 101 I.C. 200 (2)=1927 R. 134 (1). ceedings in the trial Court. 143 I.C. 742=34 P.L.R. 608=1933 L. 749. It is not necessary that all the persons having a common interest should agree before one of them should be allowed to bring a suit as their representative. The mere fact that a member of a society objects to the institution of a suit does not show that he has not the same interest as other members in the suit or that it is not for his benefit as such member. 1934 R. 347. Leave to file a suit may be granted on behalf of a whole community or body of persons though some persons object to it. 45 I.C. 423=8 L.W. 160. No person is obliged to have his name added as plaintiff in a suit without his consent, as if the suit is improper, he might be made liable for costs. In such a case the proper course is to make him a pro forma defendant. 1934 R. 347. Before instituting a suit under O. 1, R. 8 leave of the Court must be obtained and the requirements of the rule must be complied with before the suit can be proceeded with and unless this is done the suit must be dismissed. See 1929 A. 806. But its provisions may be complied with subsequent to the filing of the suit and when that has been done the suit cannot be dismissed. 44 C. 258=21 C.W.N. 1144. Once the permission of the Court had been obtained, further permission of the Court of appeal is not necessary. 51 I.C. 437=46 P.R. 1919; 101 I.C. 738=1927 C. 608.

DEATH OF ONE OF THE PARTIES.—When the authority is conferred to more persons than one, they in a body represent the class; and when one of such persons dies, his legal representative cannot come in his right of succession. If he falls within the class, he can come only by obtaining the permission of the Court to represent the class or under R. 8 (2). 39 C.W.N. 303=60 C.L.J. 556=1935 C. 413. See also 17 Pat.L.T. 926. Representative suit—Death of one of the parties—Procedure—Heirs of the deceased person not competent to continue suit—Proper procedure is for the remaining parties to apply to the Court for directions as to whether the remaining party is sufficient, or whether it is necessary, whether additional parties who need not necessarily be the legal representatives of the deceased person should be joined. 54 M. 527=1931 M. 452=61 M.L.J. 135. Two of the defendants out of the twelve representatives appointed under O. 1, R. 8, died pendente lite. Held, that the remaining representative defendants should have applied to the Court for directions as to whether they should conduct the case on behalf of all the defendants as before or whether any other persons should be added. 190 I.C. 112=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 272. See also 54 M. 770=132 I.C. 289=60 M.L.J. 135 (On death of a plaintiff, suit does not abate—Any person interested on whose behalf suit was filed may apply to be made a party—Art. 181, Limitation Act, applies to such an application); 1 L. 582; 53 C. 844; 9 L.W. 166; 59 C. 961=55 C.L.J. 8=1932 C. 275.

CHANGE IN PERSONNEL OF COMMITTEE.—In a suit against a school, all members of the managing committee on date of suit were impleaded. A member who came into the committee subsequently owing to a change in the personnel of the committee was added as a party only long after the time in the appeal. Held, that O. 1, R. 8 did not apply to the case and that as the Committee stood in law for the decree against them binds the school irrespective of the change in the personnel of the committee. 37 C.W.N. 495=1933 C. 329=60 C. 794.

NOTICE.—Notice under this rule is required and the provisions of the rule are mandatory. 47 B. 809=1923 B. 305. The Court is bound to give notice at the plaintiff's expense of the institution of the suit to all such persons whom the plaintiffs purport to represent either by personal service or by public advertisement as the Court may in each case direct. 145 I.C. 387=14 Pat.L.T. 361=1933 P. 302. The issue of a proper notice and its service either personally or by public advertisement on the persons concerned is an indispensable preliminary to the trial of the suit under this rule. If there was no proper notice, the irregularity vitiates the entire proceedings in the lower Court and cannot be condoned under S. 99. The insertion of a notice in a newspaper published in English and having little or no circulation among the class of persons to which the members of the Sabha belonged could not be said to be effective service in accordance with the provisions of this rule. 143 I.C. 742=34 P.L.R. 608=1933 L. 749. Notice must include the names of the persons who have been permitted to represent others. 17 C. 906 (910). Even a defective notice will bind those who have appeared and contested the suit. 101 I.C. 738=1927 C. 608. Even where plaintiffs claimed a right for themselves as well as for others, but took no notice as ordered by Court, the suit can be decreed at least, so far as the plaintiffs on record are concerned. 101 I.C. 500=8 Pat.L.T. 267=1927 P. 221. There is no warrant in the Code for the suit to be dismissed especially by the appellate Court on the ground that the notice under R. 8 was defective. The proper course would be for the appellate Court to send the case back to the trial Court with direction to take up the proceedings from the state at which it ought to have issued the notice. 143 I.C. 742=34 P.L.R. 608=1933 L. 749. A president of a community authorised to file suits cannot sue in his own name and notice under R. 8 to all the members of the community must be given. Permission also is necessary under R. 8. 46 B. 132=1922 B. 109. See also 101 I.C. 375=1927 M. 666.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—One member of an unincorporated association cannot sue in damages on behalf of the other members

O. 1, R. 8 is not applicable to suits under S. 92, it cannot therefore be said that the procedure laid down in O. 1, R. 8 must be followed in suit under S. 92. 43 Bom.L.R. 706. See also 19 Pat. 208 (Suit under S. 91, C.P.C.—Suit in respect of obstruction to village pathway—S. 91, C.P.C., does not override the provision of O. 1, R. 8 even in the case of a public nuisance). Where the plaintiff brought a suit on a promissory note executed by five persons who, he alleged, were managers appointed by the community and invested with powers of borrowing and dealing with the common property, it is open to the Court to allow the defendants to be sued as representatives of the community. The question, if the managers were competent to contract the debt or bind the common property being an issue in the case, no substantive rights of those who have not been impleaded are affected by this order. 136 I.C. 315=1932 M. 163.

EXECUTION OF DECREES IN SUITS UNDER THIS RULE.—As to how decrees in suits instituted under this rule are to be executed, see 14 M. 57; 12 M. 356. An injunction in cases falling under R. 8 does not bind persons not parties on record. 36 M. 414=22 M.L.J. 109=12 I.C. 1006. Where a plaintiff is allowed to represent the public, a judgment by consent will not bind the public, even if the consent was not purchased and a fortiori if such consent was purchased. 23 I.C. 72=26 M.L.J. 315. A private individual cannot obtain a declaration that a right is a public one, but he can sue for damages for injury sustained by him in the exercise of his privileges connected with a public right. 44 I.C. 367=8 L.W. 377. An individual worshipper can sue anybody interfering with his right to worship in a Mahomedan mosque. 35 A. 197. The devotees of a mutt have a sufficient interest under r. 8 to maintain a representative suit. 41 M. 124=33 M.L.J. 367. Where a person was permitted to represent the public and he knew of it even though he did not contest the suit as representing the public, the public will be deemed to have been well represented. 101 I.C. 738=1927 C. 608. The consent of defendants on the record is not necessary to enable a Court to allow a plaintiff to sue persons as representing themselves and others, having the same interest in the subject-matter of the suit. 36 M. 418. sent the village it should give an opportunity to the particular party to supplement the existing number by the addition of other persons according to the directions of the Court. 150 I.C. 26=1934 M. 202 (2)=66 M.L.J. 175. See also 17 Pat.L.T. 926; 39 C.W.N. 303. A suit by certain persons on behalf of the villagers of a village for a declaration that the suit property is Devadaya inam land belonging to a temple in the village, and that certain alienations thereof by the defendants, pujaries, are void and not binding on the temple and for a permanent injunction restraining the alienees from bringing the property to sale in execution of a mortgage decree obtained by them, can be maintained under O. 1, R. 8, apart from the provisions of S. 92. The existence of a more effective remedy is obviously no answer to the suit and cannot justify its dismissal. 50 L.W. 658=1939 M.W.N. 1137=1940 Mad. 81=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 920. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 706. Where one of the plaintiffs permitted under O. 1, R. 8 to bring a suit on behalf of a proprietary body intimates to the Court that he does not wish to prosecute the suit, the proper course for the Court to follow is to decide whether it will permit the remaining plaintiff or plaintiffs to continue to prosecute the suit, or whether it will insist upon the original number, in which case it should notify to the members of the proprietary body so that they may authorise another person to conduct the case on their behalf as a co-plaintiff. COSTS.—The object of instituting a representative suit under R. 8 is to create the bar of res judicata by reason of Expl. (6) to S. 11. But in any case the persons whom the plaintiff represents cannot be saddled with the costs of the suit if the plaintiff should fail to win his case. 155 I.C. 236=1935 O.W.N. 471=1935 O. 369.

REVISION.—Where an application under R. 8, sub-R. (2) has been made mala fide, apparently with a view to defeat the claim against a quondam trustee in respect of a public trust the order of the Court dismissing application is not liable to interference by High Court under S. 115, notwithstanding the fact that the reasons for the order were not correct. The powers under S. 115 are intended to be exercised with a view to sub-serve and not to defeat the ends of justice. 144 I.C. 904=1933 A. 154.

ABATEMENT.—In a representative suit under this section, death of some of the plaintiffs would not result in the abatement wholly or in part of the suit. 146 I.C. 841=34 P.L.R. 1035=1933 L. 654; 150 I.C. 26=66 M.L.J. 175=1934 M. 202.

O. 1, R. 9: SCOPE OF THE RULE.—R. 9 is confined to cases where the Court can deal with the matter in controversy with regard to the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. 52 I.C. 18; 95 I.C. 856=24 L.W. 181=1926 M. 806. This rule pre-supposes that there are certain parties properly before the Court and certain other necessary parties are not before the Court. It has no application to a case where there is no party on the one side present in Court at all. 9 L. 375=1928 L. 375. R. 9 does not do away with the necessity for bringing a necessary party on the record. If a necessary party is not on record the proper course is to apply to have him joined. If he is not brought on record at all, or if when he is brought on record the suit as against him is barred by limitation, the suit will be dismissed, especially where the defendant has taken the objection even at the earliest possible moment and the plaintiff has not asked for amendment of the plaint for bringing on record such party. 1936 C. 193. See also 62 C. 324=1935 Cal. 269. O. 1, R. 9 lays down the general principle that a suit shall not be dismissed merely because of the non-joinder of some person necessary to suit; but admittedly an exception has been made by the Courts to those cases in which the plaintiff has persisted in two or more Courts in not adding the necessary party, even when he was given an opportunity to do so. It cannot be said that there is any rule of thumb by which a Court can say whether the plaintiff shall be allowed to add a party at a late stage or not. O. 1, R. 9 is still the rule to be applied at any stage of a proceeding, and a plaintiff should only be refused that equitable relief when his conduct has been such as to disentitle him to it. Nor will the Courts lightly dismiss a plaintiff's suit unless his conduct has been such that he does not deserve the consideration of the Courts. If he has behaved in a fair and straightforward manner and the adding of a party would not unduly prejudice the defendant, his suit should not be dismissed because of some technicality such as the adding of a party even if it be at a very late stage of the litigation. 45 L.W. 648=A. I.R. 1937 Mad. 520.

NON-JOINDER OF PARTIES—IF FATAL—RULE AND THE EXCEPTIONS STATED.—The general rule is that no suit shall be defeated by reason of nonjoinder of parties, and the Court may, in every suit, deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. There is an exception to this general rule, viz., that a Court will refrain from passing a decree which would be ineffective and infructuous. The inability of the Court to pass an effective decree, when all the parties interested in the subject-matter of the suit are not before it, may be due either to the nature of the action or to the nature of the interest that the person, who is not made a party to the action, has in the subject-matter of this suit. An illustration of the former class of cases is furnished by suits for partition or dissolution of partnership and rendition of accounts. An illustration of the latter class of cases is furnished by suits with respect to some property belonging to a joint Hindu family when all the coparceners are not made parties. But these rules have no application to cases in which the interest of the person, who has not been impleaded as a party in the subject-matter of the suit, is ascertained or ascertainable, as in such cases the decree, while binding the interests of the persons who are parties to the decree, cannot adversely affect the separate and distinct right of the person who has not been made a party to the suit. 152 I. C. 1008=1934 A.L.J. 1006. In cases of misjoinder or nonjoinder of parties, R. 9 provides against the dismissal of the suit. The only course open to the Court under such circumstances is formally to call upon the plaintiff to make his election and confine the suit to one set of defendants. 142 I.C. 542=15 N.L.J. 111. In a suit against the legal representatives of a deceased debtor, it is sufficient if the plaintiff sues those persons whom he considers to be the legal representatives after enquiry. If such persons are sued, the suit is a good one and the decree will be effective to the extent of the property of the deceased which has reached their hands. A suit of this nature cannot be defeated by reason of the fact that some of the legal representatives have not been impleaded though the legal representatives who are not impleaded will not be bound by the decree. 35 P.L.R. 598=1934 L. 657. Where a suit is instituted against a trustee, all the trustees should be impleaded. If not, no decree can be made against any of the trustees. R. 9 which provides that no suit can fail for non-joinder of parties does not mean that only one trustee may be sued in contravention of O. 31, R. 2, and a decree passed against the trustee singled out for the suit. 55 A. 687=1933 A.L.J. 1933.

APPLICATION OF RULE.—R. 9 applies to a mortgage suit as well as to other suits. 54 C.L.J. 113=134 I.C. 1068. See also 1940 O.A. 191=1940 O.W.N. 209; 36 C.W.N. 1138; 148 I.C. 903=11 O.W.N. 524=1934 O. 220. In the case of mortgage suits R. 9 is controlled by O. 34, R. 1. 60 C. 777. See also 1934 O. 220. Though a Court has a power to join a party under O. 1, R. 9 it cannot join a party, which the litigant in whose interest the joinder is to be made refuses to have the necessary parties joined. 1940 N. L.J. 151. The provisions of O. 1, R. 9 are clear enough and make it incumbent on the Court to deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. It may be that a Court would in certain exceptional cases refrain from passing a decree in favour of a plaintiff when it finds that all the parties interested in the subject-matter of the suit have not been impleaded. But this rule can have no possible application to a case in which on account of the death of the other party jointly interested with the plaintiff, though it occurred during the pendency of the suit, the plaintiff has become the only person, when the case is taken up for trial, entitled to the relief claimed. Courts can take notice of events happening after the institution of the suit and at times it is essential for the Court to do so in order to avoid a further unnecessary litigation and to do complete justice between the parties. A. I. R. 1940 Mad. 412=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 240.

CONSTRUCTION.—Rr. 9 and 10 should be construed together. 39 I.C. 160=5 L.W. 207. R. 9 does not do away with the obligation to bring a necessary party on the record. 20 I.C. 262. The rule amounts to a direction to the Court not to dismiss a suit on the ground of nonjoinder. 21 M. 373 (382). See also 11 A. 104; 26 M. 647; 28 B. 94. But see 44 C.L.J. 557=99 I.C. 901=1927 C. 238.

WHO ARE NECESSARY PARTIES.—Under R. 9 a person who is a necessary party to a suit is a necessary party to the appeal. 3 Pat. L.T. 456=66 I.C. 780. In a suit for a declaration of an easement right to dam up a stream, the riparian proprietors are proper parties. 26 M.L.J. 385=24 I.C. 547. Plaintiff brought a suit to eject the defendant from a site and to remove a pial erected by him thereon. The plea of defendant was that the land belonged to the Municipal Council, that he put up a pial with its permission and that Municipal Council was a necessary party to the suit. The trial Court held that, as plaintiff claimed the suit property as his, it was unnecessary to implead Municipality on the contention of defendant. Held, that Municipality was a necessary party to the suit and not having been made one, in spite of objection taken from the start, the suit must be dismissed. (Case-law reviewed.) 146 I.C. 72=1933 M. 664=65 M.L.J. 290. Suit for recovery of khas possession—Dismissed as against minor defendants for steps not being taken to have proper guardians on record—Suit not maintainable against other defendants in the absence of minor defendants who are necessary parties. 33 C.W.N. 742=1929

NOTES.

C. 669. Suit for specific performance against father—Son impleaded as having joined father in alienating the property in breach of contract to sell—Son is a necessary and proper party. 33 C.W.N. 687=1929 C. 667. See also 36 C.W.N. 1138. R. 9 does not apply to an appeal in a case where the defect has been brought to the notice of the party concerned from the very outset of the proceedings, and he has had ample opportunity of remedying it in the previous stages which, however, he failed to avail himself of. 35 C.W.N. 977=1931 P. C. 229=61 M.L.J. 294 (P.C.). See also 1933 L. 93=145 I.C. 178=20 N.L.J. 65. Partnership—Suit for accounts—Non joinder of one partner—Subsequent joinder as pro forma defendant after limitation—Dismissal of whole suit not proper. See 1937 A.L.J. 571=1937 All. 502.

WHO ARE NOT NECESSARY PARTIES.—In a suit by one of the several heirs of a deceased Muhammadan to recover her share in the property left by the deceased, the other heirs are not necessary parties. 20 I.C. 658=11 A.L.J. 619. See also 44 C.L.J. 293=99 I.C. 177=1927 C. 237. On this point, see also 144 I.C. 753=1933 P. 259. Suit by a manager of a joint Hindu family does not necessarily fail, because of his omission to implead other members of the family in the suit. 34 A. 572. Grandsons of a member of a joint Hindu family are proper though not necessary parties to a suit and a suit by a stranger is not defeated by mere non joinder of the grandsons where all the sons have been already made defendants. 1930 S. 147. As regards non-joinder, the objection as to procedure to be followed is disposed of by the application of S. 99. 42 M.L.J. 133=1922 M. 317.

PARTITION SUIT.—Grandsons not necessary but proper parties. 67 I.C. 156=3 Pat.L. T. 238; nor a mortgagee. 35 C.W.N. 296=1931 C. 594.

SUIT BY MANAGER OF JOINT HINDU FAMILY.—It is not the form in which the manager sues which determines his capacity to sue on behalf of the joint family but the fact that nobody except him has the right to interfere in the business of the joint Hindu family or to give a discharge or a receipt for a debt due to or from that joint family which confers the capacity on the manager. It is a question of fact whether he is the manager or not and not the form in which he sues which determines the question. It is not necessary that the manager must sue as such in order to bind, or to be capable of suing on behalf of, the joint family. Where a suit for recovery of money due to a joint family which was instituted by the manager along with some other members of the family was dismissed for nonjoinder of a grandson, held, that the suit as brought by the manager was properly framed and that it should not have been dismissed (Case-law discussed.) 12 L. 428=133 I.C. 116=1931 L. 559.

EFFECT OF NONJOINDER.—A suit cannot be defeated for nonjoinder of parties. 25 I. C. 480=3 P.R. 1915; 1929 A. 439, nor of causes of action. 25 I.C. 438=19 C.L.J. 316. See also 15 R.D. 657; 14 I.C. 35=9 A.L.J. 410. Once a multifarious suit is allowed to proceed to trial and results in a decree, without the procedure for amendment prescribed by O. 1, R. 9, being followed, the defect of multifariousness is considered to have been waived. 187 I.C. 49=20 Pat. L. T. 889=A. I. R. 1940 Pat. 145; see also 1939 All. 235=1939 A. L. J. 123. O. 1, R. 9, is wide in its scope and is subject to no qualification whatever. No suit whatever is to be defeated by the non-joinder of parties, and in every suit the Court is to proceed to do justice as between the parties thereto, no matter if there has been non-joinder. It is for the Court to decide in each case, whether it is possible to do justice as between the parties despite non-joinder. The answer to the question as to whether the suit falls to be dismissed in case of non-joinder because it is barred by limitation as against the party not impleaded, must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. 1939 A.L.J. 123=A.I.R. 1939 All. 235. A Court should not dismiss a suit for non-joinder of necessary parties, but should add them, of its own motion, or direct the plaintiff to do so. 63 I.C. 548; 10 I.C. 212. A Court should not dismiss a suit for non-joinder or misjoinder where plaintiff by amendment can remedy the defect. 41 I. C. 615=21 C.W.N. 939; 1930 A.L.J. 247=122 I.C. 597 (2); 1930 R. 295. The plaintiff should be given an opportunity to amend it. 10 I.C. 737=7 N.L.R. 43. Or elect to confine the suit against one set of defendants or one set of causes of action. 15 N.L.J. 111. Where a plaintiff is ordered to add necessary parties and he refuses to do so, Court can dismiss the suit. 63 I.C. 548=19 A.L.J. 525. An appeal cannot be dismissed for nonjoinder of parties. 32 I.C. 749. But see 44 C.L.J. 557=99 I.C. 901=1927 C. 238. Where there is a misjoinder of either plaintiffs or causes of action, proper course is to return the plaint for amendment and not to reject it. 18 I. C. 181=5 Bur.L.T. 234. A suit for declaration of title to land entered in the Survey Khatian as ghair mazrui is not bad for non-joinder of parties, if the general public are not made parties to it. 72 I.C. 634=1922 P. 447. Court can decide question of misjoinder or nonjoinder in so far as the parties are actually before it. 13 I.C. 123=16 C.W.N. 639. Whether the entire mortgage suit is to be dismissed for impleading a puisne mortgagee beyond limitation time, see 101 I.C. 775=1927 A. 488; 1939 A.L. J. 123=1939 All. 235.

PLEA BY WHOM TO BE RAISED.—Plea of non-joinder of others as plaintiffs can be raised only by the defendants who have an interest in the subject-matter of the suit and not by

10. (1) Where a suit has been instituted in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff or where it is doubtful whether it has been instituted in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court may at any stage of the suit, if satisfied that the suit has been instituted through a bona fide mistake, and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do, order any other person to be substituted or added as plaintiff upon such terms as the Court thinks just.

NOTES.

those found subsequently not to have any interest therein. 22 I.C. 129.

SECOND APPEAL.—High Court cannot make any person a party in second appeal, when he was not a party in the lower appellate Court. 37 A. 57. Plea of nonjoinder cannot be raised in second appeal for the first time. 1930 R. 295=129 I.C. 508. The expression "all questions involved in the suit" can only be questions as between parties to the litigation. (Ibid.).

REVISION.—Where an application under R. 8, sub-R. (2) has been made mala fide apparently with a view to defeat the claim against a quondam trustee in respect of a public trust, the order of Court dismissing the application is not liable to interference by High Court under S. 115, notwithstanding the fact that the reasons for the order were not correct. The powers under S. 115 are intended to be exercised with a view to subserve and not to defeat the ends of justice. 1933 A. 154=144 I.C. 904.

PRACTICE.—Where in a suit for rent proper parties are not added, Court should give an opportunity to bring them on record and not dismiss the suit. 15 R.D. 657. See also 15 N.L.J. 111.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—Where a party to a suit contends that the suit is defective for want of parties, the party that puts forward this point has to show which, if any, of the parties are absent from the record. 1934 P. 44.

O. 1, R. 9 and O. 34, R. 1: MORTGAGE SUIT.—It is not correct to say that O. 1, R. 9 is subordinate to O. 34, R. 1. The rule laid down in O. 34, R. 1 is merely a rule of procedure enacted with the object of avoiding multiplicity of suits. The combined effect of O. 1, R. 9 and O. 34, R. 1 is that all persons whose rights and interests may be adjudicated upon and determined in a mortgage suit ought to be added as parties, but the failure to add one or more such persons cannot have the effect of defeating the suit, if the Court, in their absence, can deal with the matters in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. Whether the Court can do so or not must depend upon whether the presence of those not added is essential to enable the Court to adjudicate on the rights and interests of those actually before it. If no decree can be passed without affecting the rights of absent parties, the suit cannot proceed in their absence and must be dismissed. Otherwise the suit can proceed and the Court can determine the matters in controversy between the parties actually present, though the other parties might properly have been added as parties to the suit. Since it is beyond controversy that any one of several co-mortgagors can redeem a mortgage, the omission to implead some of the proprietors interested in the equity of redemption as parties to a suit for redemption of the mortgage is not fatal to the suit, when the presence of those persons is not essential to enable the Court to decide the matter in controversy in suit. 18 Pat. L.T. 289=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 414.

O. 1, R. 10: SCOPE OF RULE.—Clause (2) of R. 10 cannot be read as requiring that all persons who have or claim to have or are likely to have any sort of right, title or interest in respect of any portion of the subject-matter of a suit should be made parties. 1926 M. 836=95 I.C. 214. See also 59 C. 329=138 I.C. 104=1932 C. 448. Where a person applies to be made a party the Court ought to see whether there is anything which cannot be determined owing to his absence or whether he will be prejudiced by his not being joined as a party. 116 I. C. 137 (2)=1929 M. 291. "Questions involved in the suit" refer only to questions between parties to the suit. Further, they refer only to questions as between plaintiffs and defendants, and not to questions which may arise between co-plaintiffs or between co-defendants inter se. 158 I.C. 814=1935 S. 194. Even in cases where the application for addition or substitution of parties does not fall within the language of the rules of the Code, Courts have power to pass necessary orders for the addition or substitution of parties. 55 A. 825=1933 A.L.J. 1512=1934 A. 40. See also I.L.R. 1939 Bom. 503=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 366 (P.C.); 21 Pat. L.T. 329. Court can impose terms on a person who seeks to be added as a party to the suit. Court can also allow a party to be added on the condition that he can only intervene at a particular stage in a suit and cannot question an order passed before he applied to the Court. 1931 C. 580=58 C. 801=35 C.W.N. 122. R. 10 draws a distinction between two classes of persons, namely, persons who ought to have been joined and persons whose presence is necessary to enable the Court to completely and effectively adjudicate upon and settle all questions involved in the suit. The first part deals with necessary parties, the second with proper parties. Even against the plaintiff's consent a new party may be impleaded as a defendant and he may be so added though he may thereby be in a position to may appear to the Court to be just, order that the name of any party improperly joined, whether as plaintiff or defendant, be struck out, and that the name of any person who ought to have been joined, whether as plaintiff or defendant, or whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, be added.

counter-claim against the plaintiff. 29 L. W. 753=118 I.C. 780=1929 M. 443. See also 1934 P. 106. Order 1, R. 10 (2) is wide enough to give a Court power to add any person, i.e., whether already a party or not, so as to enable it effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit. 59 I. C. 233=12 L.W. 25; 24 L.W. 738=51 M.L. J. 148; (1939) 2 M.L.J. 366 (P.C.); 1939 Bom. 188; 21 Pat.L.T. 329. A Court has large discretion under the rule and any attempt to diminish that discretion ought to be deprecated (circumstances justifying joinder of plaintiffs discussed). 105 I.C. 114=53 M. L.J. 264; also 29 Bom.L.R. 418=103 I.C. 225=1927 B. 424. As a general rule a plaintiff cannot be added without the consent of the existing plaintiffs more so in the case of substitution. A simple rent suit cannot by adding of parties be converted into a title suit. 45 C.L.J. 146=101 I.C. 527=1927 C. 340. See also I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 232=1939 Bom. 188. Court has no power to join a person as a co-plaintiff, who is a stranger and has no personal interest in any of the reliefs claimed by the plaintiffs. 120 I.C. 517=1930 S. 73. Where the prayer for khas possession is not maintainable by reason of the fact that all the persons who should have joined as plaintiffs in the suit were not on record, Court should not allow an amendment of the plaint so as to enable some of the parties to claim joint possession. 145 I.C. 170=37 C.W.N. 138=1933 C. 498. Joinder of party after preliminary decree in mortgage suit. See 49 A. 664=25 A. L. J. 369; 17 N.L.J. 266; 1935 R. 23. As to the scope of the rule in general, see 50 M. 34 (P.C.) (addition after limitation). See 60 M.L.J. 229 (Case of addition in a suit for partition in a Hindu joint family). R. 10 covers the case of an application made to implead as parties to a suit the legal representatives of a deceased defendant (wrongly impleaded as such) in their individual capacity and not as such legal representatives. 32 I.C. 320. Scheme suit—Addition of party defendants—Whether permission of Government Advocate necessary. 5 R. 263. See also 133 I.C. 823=1931 B. 388. The rule covers a case where a major is wrongly assumed as a minor and the suit is brought by a next friend. 41 I. C. 510=40 M. 743. R. 10 refers to any stage short of decree. 39 I.C. 849=13 N. N. R. 69. Suit is to be dismissed in entirety where a necessary party is added after period of limitation. 100 I.C. 859=1928 L. 33; 1929 C. 591. See also 104 I.C. 526. In a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts, a person who was not in partnership as a member of the firm, but possibly in a superior partnership of which he was one side and the whole firm as a suit was on the other side, is not a necessary party. 31 C.W.N. 857=1927 P.C. 70=53 M.L. J. 245 (P.C.). Where the suit is not for partition of the properties between all the alleged coparceners inter se but what is prayed for is a division between the two branches of the family, the really necessary parties are the heads of each branch of the family. It is not obligatory on the plaintiff to implead all the members of the two branches. 1932 L. 641.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL—PROPER PARTY.—Per Gwyer, C.J.—It can but rarely happen, in cases between private persons involving the constitutional validity of a statute, that an Advocate-General is a 'necessary' party. He is a proper party in the sense that without him the Court cannot effectually and completely adjudicate upon and settle all questions involved in such cases, and where the executive authority of the province is likely to be affected by the decision. It by no means follows that because the Advocate-General of a province has been permitted to be placed on record as an intervener he is also entitled to prefer an independent appeal to the Federal Court.

Per Sulaiman, J.—In a suit between a landholder and his tenant, the Provincial Government cannot be considered a necessary party at all. But when in such a suit the validity of an Act of the Provincial Legislature is in question, the adjudication would affect a large section of the public and the Provincial Government would be indirectly interested in such an adjudication. Where the Provincial Government has been made a party in the High Court in the absence of any restriction in the language of S. 205 of the Government of India Act and in view of the fact that an appeal lies even on a constitutional question alone without raising any other ground, it cannot be held that the Provincial Government who were a party in the High Court have no right of appeal at all to the Federal Court.

Per Varadachariar, J.—The Indian C.P. Code does not contemplate an 'intervention' by the Advocate-General as distinguished from an addition of the Advocate-General or the Government as a party. When either of them has been impleaded as a party with

(3) No person shall be added as a plaintiff suing without a next friend or as the next friend of a plaintiff under any disability without his consent.

(4) Where a defendant is added, the plaint shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be amended in such manner as may be necessary,

Where defendant added, and amended copies of the summons and of the plaint shall be served on the new defendant and, if the Court thinks fit, on the original defendant.

NOTES.

a view to give them a hearing, the Court would fail to give full effect to the language of S. 205 (2) of the Constitution Act, if it should hold that notwithstanding such joinder as a party, the Advocate-General or the Government had no right to prefer an appeal. The right of appeal being a creature of the statute, the right of one who is within the terms of the statute cannot reasonably be denied when, even on the broader ground of interest in the litigation, it is conceded that he is sufficiently interested to justify his claim being heard. 45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 27 = 1941 O.W.N. 297 = (1941) 2 M.L.J. (Sup.) 65 = A.I.R. 1941 F.C. 16.

APPLICABILITY.—Under r. 10 a person may be added as a party to a suit in the following two cases: (1) When he ought to have been joined as plaintiff or defendant, and not so joined, or (2) when without his presence, the question in suit cannot be completely decided. Where by allowing a person to be impleaded as a party the nature of the suit will be altered the application should not be allowed. 158 I.C. 814 = 1935 S. 194. See also 50 L.W. 777 = (1939) 2 M.L.J. 872 = A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 225. The rule does not apply to the case of substitution, dismissal, or addition of parties, in divorce proceedings. 30 C. 489; see 6 C. 370. The existence of a valid plaint or memorandum of appeal is a sine qua non for the application of the provisions of R. 10 (1). 148 I.C. 241 (2) = 1934 N. 55. The rule applies to suits under S. 92. The son of a hereditary trustee can be made a party to a suit for the removal of a hereditary trustee. 6 L.W. 9 = 38 I.C. 133 = 1917 M.W.N. 550. See also 1937 N. 121 (Son in joint Hindu family). Where a person, who has wrongly filed a suit in his name, does not desire to clothe himself with a right to sue, but by an application he expressly divests himself of any claim and prays for the substitution of a person who has a cause of action, admitting that he himself has none, the case clearly falls within R. 10. 150 I.C. 895 = 1934 N. 159. Court has no power to add parties after the passing of a preliminary decree in a suit for partition although the parties sought to be added might have been proper parties if joined before. The words "any stage of the proceedings" in R. 10 (2) mean proceedings not concluded by a decree. 17 N.L.J. 266. See also 1937 P. 49 (Application by necessary party after passing ex parte decree allowed).

"AT ANY STAGE."—The power given by the rule ought to be exercised before the first hearing of the case. 6 C. 370; 166 I.C.

794 = 18 Pat.L.T. 278 = 1937 P. 49; 17 N.L.J. 266. But see 27 B. 157; 39 I.C. 849 = 13 N.L.R. 69; 1939 Pat. 397. An order directing a party to be added can be made before the suit terminates. 32 C. 483. See also 17 N.L.J. 266 = 1935 N. 64. A Court has a discretion to order the addition of necessary parties at any stage of the proceedings, and plainly this discretion always ought to be exercised when its exercise will tend to finality of the litigation. Parties can be added to a suit after a preliminary decree therein has been passed. 154 I.C. 465 = 1935 R. 23. See also 40 C.W.N. 1173 (even after final decree in mortgage suit).

PARTY WHEN TO BE ADDED.—Under R. 10, Court may, at any stage of the proceedings, order the addition of any person as party to the suit. 35 B. 393. It authorizes the Court to make an order for transfer of a party from the category of defendant to that of plaintiff at any stage of the proceedings. 24 C.W.N. 110; 105 I.C. 473 = 1927 O. 484; 97 I.C. 1023. See also 1937 M. 529 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 672. Where several disputes arise out of one subject-matter, all the parties interested in such disputes should be brought before the Court and all questions in controversy between them should be completely settled in that action. 50 L.W. 494 = 1940 M. 69 = (1939) 2 M.L.J. 551. A person who would be represented by a party on the record and bound by the decision against that party is entailed to be impleaded under R. 10, Cl. (2), to protect his interest. 44 M.L.J. 322 = 1923 M. 521. A party may be added on his own application. 13 C. 90. It is not desirable to add or substitute as parties persons whose right to sue has already become time-barred. 25 A.L.J. 991. A substitute can only be added to enforce a single right pleaded in a suit and not to bolster up a suit by pleading his own individual right. 120 I.C. 517 = 1930 S. 73. Person financing litigation is not a necessary party. 68 M.L.J. 236. The mere fact that a person might be affected by the result of the suit, whether by dismissal after contest or by a collusive withdrawal, is no ground for allowing him to be added as a plaintiff in the suit. 41 L.W. 126 = 1935 M. 394 = 68 M.L.J. 236. Suit for damages for rashly driving motor car—Employer added as a party defendant—Defence that some third person was the master—Amendment of plaint so as to add such third party might be granted. 30 Bom.L.R. 162 = 1928 B. 91. suit in firm name—Objection to form of suit—Amendment. 134 I.C. 1200=1931 C. 770. Rights of party added under R. 10 (2) are safeguarded by Limitation Act, S. 22. 55 I.A. 7=6 R. 29=54 M.L.J. 88 (P.C.). See also 1937 All. 502. Where judgment-debtor appellant became insolvent pending appeal to set aside an auction sale and the Official Assignee elected not to prosecute the appeal, held, that a mortgagee from the judgment-debtor who had not taken any steps to assert his rights till that stage could not be allowed to step in and prosecute the appeal. 32 C.W.N. 304. Suit filed in the name of Chairman of District Board—Amendment in appeal allowing substitution of District Board as plaintiff—Permissible. 32 C.W.N. 396. A general question which is of interest to the whole community cannot be effectually and completely adjudicated and settled in a suit by adopting the expedient of joining a member of that community to the suit as a plaintiff. 120 I.C. 517=1930 S. 73.

MISDESCRIPTION.—A suit for rent had been brought against the proper person who was misdescribed owing to his own action in giving his son's name instead of his own when he rented the premises and who had since been refusing to receive the summons on the ground that he was not the proper person. He was the proper person against whom the decree had been rightly made. On an application in execution proceedings to bring on record the real judgment-debtor's name, held, that the record could be corrected by virtue of the powers under S. 151 if not under O. 1, R. 10. 144 I.C. 903=35 Bom.L.R. 365=1933 B. 200. O. 1, R. 10 on a plain reading contemplates that a suit should have been filed in the name of a wrong person irrespective of whether he is a living or a dead person. Such a defect is capable of being cured, if the mistake is shown to have occurred in good faith and provided that in permitting the amendment no injustice results to the defendant. 175 I.C. 911=1983 Nag. 458. A suit brought in the name of a non-existing or non-juristic person can be allowed to be rectified by way of amendment. 20 N.L.J. 65=1937 Nag. 173=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 514.

SUIT AGAINST A DEAD PERSON.—A suit against a dead person is a nullity and no question of adding a party arises. 6 L.W. 359=33 M.L.J. 418. See also 1937 Sind 92=31 S.L.R. 406=168 I.C. 784; 1938 Nag. 458; 1937 S. 47=168 I.C. 860. A plaintiff cannot claim the benefit of the institution of a suit against a dead person for the purpose of extending the period of limitation against his heirs. 47 I.C. 894=5 O.L.J. 596. Though suit in the name of a dead person as sole plaintiff cannot be amended a suit in the name of two plaintiffs one of whom is dead, it can be amended. 104 I.C. 623=1927 C. 880. The words "wrong person" appearing in R. 10 cannot be construed to

TRANSPPOSITION OF PARTIES.—A Court can make a transposition of parties. 34 I.C. 186=20 C.W.N. 752; 32 C. 483; 97 I.C. 1023; 1927 O. 484=105 I.C. 473; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 672; 24 C.W.N. 110; 50 L.W. 494= (1939) 2 M.L.J. 551; 52 L.W. 828=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 918. But it cannot transpose a defendant to the array of plaintiffs without the party's consent and in the absence of an application to that effect. 58 C.L.J. 240. R. 10 is in the widest possible language and transposition of a defendant to the side of the plaintiff should be adopted in all cases where it is necessary for the complete adjudication upon the question involved in the suit and to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. (1932 Pat. 346, Ref.) 160 I.C. 149=1936 P. 107. See also 1939 Mad. 467; 1940 O.W.N. 1007=1940 A.W.R. (C.C.) 431; 21 Pat.L.T. 329; 1940 Cal. 284=44 C.W.N. 589. It is no good reason for refusing the transposition of a pro forma defendant into a plaintiff that the effect would be to assist the plaintiff, nor is it necessary before making an order under R. 10 to determine whether the suit as constituted is bad. The transposition cannot also be disallowed on the ground that it would affect limitation since the object of S. 22 (2) of the Limitation Act is to provide for cases of this nature. 14 Pat.L.T. 252=1933 P. 239. In a partition suit, the Court can make a defendant a plaintiff and continue the suit. 45 B. 983=23 Bom.L.R. 391. Where in a suit on a promissory note, the plaintiff alleged that he was the real beneficiary and that the holder who was impleaded as a defendant was a mere benamidar for the plaintiff, and for the purpose of giving a valid discharge, the holder desires to be transposed as a plaintiff, the Court ought to allow him to do so, even if the transposition is applied for a date when a suit by the holder would be barred. The provisions of S. 22 (1) of the Limitation Act are inapplicable to a case of transposition of parties. 11 P. 616=140 I.C. 572=1932 P. 346 (9 Pat.L.T. 288, Diss.) Joinder of pro forma defendant after limitation is no ground for dismissal of whole suit. 1937 A.L.J. 571=1937 All. 502. In a suit on a pronote in the name of the son by the father of the payee, the note having been allotted to the father in a partition between the father and son, the son having been impleaded as a party defendant, held, that the case was a fit one in which the Court should exercise its powers under R. 10, in appeal, and transpose the defendant son as a plaintiff-appellant and that the suit should not fail for want of an endorsement by the son in favour of the father. 36 Bom.L.R. 807=1934 B. 356. As to the object of transposition of parties, see 58 I.A. 229=1931 P.C. 162=61 M.L.J. 632 (P.C.); (1939) 2 M.L.J. 551=A.I.R. 1940 M. 69. Withdrawal of part of claim by the plaintiff—Transposition of some of the defendants as parties can be ordered. 12 L.W. 563. In administration suits, a person originally arraigned as a defendant can be made plaintiff to claim his shares. 1918 M.W.N. 929=9 L.W. 79=49 I.C. 130. The appellate Court has the power to transpose a respondent to the category of appellants in order to further the ends of justice. 44 C.L.J. 243=1927 C. 37. See also 1930 A.L.J. 926.

STRUCK OUT.—Where no cause of action is mentioned against a party to a suit and no relief is claimed against him it will be improper and unnecessary to retain him and he may be struck off from the suit. 133 I.C. 507=61 M.L.J. 563. See also 39 P.L.R. 342=1937 L. 67. When O. 1, R. 10 provides that the Court may strike out the name of a party who has been improperly joined as plaintiff or defendant, these words have reference to the suit as framed. It was never intended that the claim of a necessary party should be first tried and that his name should then be struck off the record on the ground that his claim ought to be dismissed before any decree has been passed. Such a procedure can only lead to multiplicity of proceedings. See 40 P.L.R. 805=1938 L. 799. When a Court makes an order striking the names of certain persons off the record, it is immaterial whether their names are actually removed or not. 32 C. 315 (P.C.). An order striking out a defendant from the record cannot be made after the first hearing. 18 A. 53; 20 M. 360 (362). An order striking off the names of a party is appropriate to cases of actual misjoinder under R. 10, and not to cases of voluntary abandonment by a plaintiff of his claim against a particular defendant, where the proper order to pass is an order of dismissal. 1934 L. 737. Where a cause of action against a defendant is specifically pleaded and a distinct relief has been claimed against him, order directing the removal of his name from the array of the parties is in substance although not in form a decree; because the effect of the order is the refusal to grant the relief to plaintiff which he had prayed for. The proper remedy for the party aggrieved from the order is to file an appeal from it and not an application in revision under S. 115. 131 I.C. 548=1931 A. 333 (2).

POWER OF COURTS TO PASS ORDERS UNDER RULE.—Nothing in the Code affects the inherent power of Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice. 35 B. 393. Court has, under R. 10, power to bring on record any person as a party at any stage. 61 I.C. 378=31 Bom.L.R. 476=1929 B. 337. It is open to the Judge in his discretion under O. 1, r. 10 to add as a party to the suit the representative of a person against whom the suit has abated for the purpose of giving effect to the rights of the parties. 67 I.A. 406=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 594=45 C.W.N. 226=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 215 (P.C.). Court has power under R. 10 (1) to substitute a right plaintiff in the place of a wrong one, only if the right to sue is not barred under S. 22 of the Limitation Act on the date of substitution. 58 B. 536=36 Bom.L.R. 814=1934 B. 385. Court has no power for addition of plaintiffs after passing of decree. 44 M.L.J. 222. Neither R. 10 nor R. 8 empowers the Court to join a person as plaintiff, who could not have been originally joined. 57 I.C. 784. In a representative suit it is not open to the plaintiff to put an end to the litigation by merely withdrawing the suit. He may go out of the suit, but that does not put an end to the litigation where other people are interested in it and have a right to come in and continue it. Thus where a trustee brings a suit for the benefit of the beneficiaries and then wants to nullify the result of the litigation, the beneficiary may be properly brought on the record to continue the litigation. Similarly, the junior members of a Malabar tarwad have been allowed to prosecute a second appeal which the head was anxious to compromise. So also where in a suit instituted by the Collector representing the estate of the last male owner under the Court of Wards Act he sued for the recovery of certain properties but subsequently wanted to withdraw the suit, held, that the suit was a representative suit instituted for the benefit of the two widows of the last male owner and a reversioner to that estate and that in such a case it was open to the Court to allow the reversioner to be made a party and then to allow the Collector to go out of the suit, if he did not want to prosecute it. 1934 A. 4=1933 A.L.J. 1512. Mortgage suit—Administratrix creating mortgage without sanction of Court—Beneficiaries are necessary parties to mortgage suit. 28 B. L.R. 1360. Person financing the litigation has no right to be impleaded as a party. 41 L.W. 126=68 M.L.J. 236. Suit on mortgage by benamidar—Real owner can be added as party under this rule. 55 M.L.J. 856. As to the object of the rule, see 5 M. 52. See also 9 A. 447 (449); 2 A. 738; 13 M. 32. A receiver cannot be made a party without the leave of the Court appointing him. 30 C. 724. Court can allow a party to be added on the condition that he can only intervene at a particular stage in the suit and cannot question an order or orders passed before he applies to the Court. 58 C. 801=35 C.W.N. 122. Party unnecessarily added at defendant's instance. That party's cost may be made payable by the defendant. 1930 M.W.N. 679. See also 1933 B. 304=35 Bom.L.R. 569. Persons improperly impleaded. POWER OF COURT TO ACT SUO MOTU.—Under

NOTES.

O. 1, R. 10 (2) it is not necessary that there should be an application from the parties; the rule, however, does suggest that the Court will not act on its own initiative unless the presence of the party added is necessary in order to settle effectually and completely and to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit. 1938 A.L.J. (Supp.) 9=1938 A.W.R. (B.R.) 97.

PARTY WHETHER CAN BE ADDED IN APPEAL.—A person, if he is not made plaintiff or defendant, in the Courts below, cannot claim to be made a party in appeal. 31 I.C. 27. A necessary party to an appeal should be added before deciding it. 31 I.C. 814. See also 1938 Mad. 329. Application to add his legal representative as parties in an appeal against a dead man is covered by section 153 and O. 1, R. 10. 45 M.L.J. 231; 102 I.C. 710 (2). This rule applies to appeals, but there is no power in the Code to make a party to a suit a co-appellant. 10 R. 227; 2 A. 487; 18 A. 332; 2 A.L.J. 516; 12 M.L.J. 355. But see 1927 C. 880. Where parties are allowed to intervene in an appeal, they should be joined as parties to the suit, and not to the appeal. 12 M.L.J. 355. Appellate Court will not interfere with the trial Court's discretion in changing plaintiff to defendant or vice versa. 95 I.C. 171=1926 N. 393. In some circumstances, it may be right and proper that the Court should add as parties to the proceedings, even at the appellate stage, persons who were not amongst the original parties to the suit. But the circumstances must be exceptional and such as renders it really necessary in the interest of the original parties to the suit, that some other persons should be added to the proceeding; so that the matters originally in dispute may be properly adjudicated upon and finally determined as between the original parties to the suit. 59 C. 329=138 I.C. 104=1932 C. 448. See also 180 I.C. 833=1939 Pat. 397; 1939 Mad. 467; 14 Luck. 447=1939 O.W.N. 181=1939 Oudh 102; 31 S.L.R. 486; 38 L.W. 539=1933 M. 806=65 M.L.J. 548. A person who does not consent to be added as plaintiff may be added as a defendant. 7 C. 242. No question of limitation can arise with respect to the Court's power to make an order adding a party defendant to a suit. 12 C. 642 (651); 24 C. 640; 27 C. 540; 17 M. 12. See also 28 B. 11 (18). There is considerable doubt as to whether section 32 of the Code of 1882 authorises the addition of a party to a suit after decree. 42 C. 72=41 I.A. 251 (P.C.). A suit might be continued even where the original plaintiff had no right to sue, provided that the defective institution was due to a bona fide mistake. (30 M. 419; 43 M. 707, Rel.); 69 I.C. 413=1923 M. 180 (1). A mistake can be called bona fide even if it was made without the exercise of due care and caution, provided it was honestly made. 27 N.L.R. 335. See also 1938 Nag. 458. Valid but wrong substitution of legal representatives in appeal—Case remanded for fresh decision—Order of remand not a nullity—Application to bring true legal representatives on record before passing of final decree should be granted. 1928 P. 197. See also 1930 M. 930=129 I.C. 469=60 M.L.J. 97. Addition of parties—Remand by appellate Court for the purpose of—Indicating order to be passed by trial Court—Impropriety. 136 I.C. 632=63 M.L.J. 369 (P.C.). Where a suit for sole possession is not maintainable for want of certain necessary parties Court cannot allow the suit to be amended as one for joint possession as such amendment will materially alter the nature of the suit. 37 C.W.N. 138. Persons claiming as adopted son of plaintiff's husband is not a necessary party to a suit on mortgage. 1928 M. 978=113 C. 310. A suit filed by the karnavan of a Malabar Tarwad as such is a representative suit. Consequently where it appears that the Karnavan is not acting bona fide in the interests of the tarwad in seeking to withdraw an appeal, it is open to the Court to permit the Anandravans to be added as supplemental appellants before the Karnavan is permitted to withdraw the appeal. In such a case the appeal as originally filed should be taken to be pending till orders are passed on the application for its withdrawal. 34 L.W. 548=61 M.L.J. 549.

PROPER PARTY.—In a suit on a promissory note by an endorsee, an application was put in by the endorser that he should be joined as a co-plaintiff. He alleged that he endorsed the promote to the plaintiff merely for collection; and that the plaintiff was dishonestly claiming that he was a holder for valuable consideration. Held, that as one of the original payees of the promissory note was the applicant and in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit between the plaintiff and the defendants, the applicant was a proper party. He was added as defendant though not added as co-plaintiff. 1934 Sind 182. See also 150 I.C. 670=36 P.L.R. 217=1934 L. 328. The Secretary of State is not a proper or necessary party to every suit in which any question is raised with regard to the legality of any statute. 1926 M. 836=95 I.C. 214. Addition of parties—Claim to vacate site against Municipality—Plea of title in Government—Latter—If necessary party—Addition as party justified. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 597. When a pro forma defendant becomes on his own application a co-plaintiff, he adopts all the statements made in the plaint which support the cause of action and those statements only. He does not adopt statements made therein which are not essential to the cause of action as stated in the plaint. 41 C.W.N. 501. See also 66 I.A. 210.

BENAMIDAR AND REAL OWNER.—It is open to the real owner to apply to be joined in a suit brought by the benamidar, after the latter's death. He can be added either under O. 1, R. 10 or section 151. He can be joined at any stage provided the suit brought by the benamidar is still pending and provided of course no injustice or inconvenience is caused to the other side. 1941 N.L.J. 293.

EJECTMENT SUIT.—Landlord and tenant—Proper parties. 59 C. 739=35 C.W.N. 1132; 129 I.C. 860=1931 C. 76=58 C. 561. See also 139 I.C. 679=1932 M. 688. A suit instituted by an assignee of a bond under an assignment which is void under section 136, T.P. Act, can be said to have been instituted in the name of a wrong person, and where the assignee has acted under a bona fide mistake the Court can remove the name of the assignee and order substitution of the name of the assignor as plaintiff under R. 10. 162 I.C. 229=1936 O. W. N. 414=1936 O. 275.

PROMISSORY NOTES—SUIT ON.—Where a later promissory note in renewal of an earlier one is found to have been insufficiently stamped and hence inadmissible in evidence the prior promissory note cannot be said to have been merged in or wiped off by the later document. An endorsee of a promissory note which was in renewal of an earlier one brought a suit and when it was discovered that the suit promissory note was inadmissible in evidence, the endorser (the payee of earlier promissory note) who had been impleaded as a defendant can be transferred as a plaintiff and permitted to amend the plaint and continue the suit on the original promissory note. The powers conferred on Courts under O. 1, R. 10 are wide enough to enable the Court to make such an order. [58 Bom. 536 and 39 L.W. 387, dist.] 52 L.W. 828=1941 Mad. 364=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 918.

MORTGAGE SUIT.—Under R. 10 (2) Court has power to add parties in two cases only. The first is when he ought to have been joined and has not been joined. In a suit upon a mortgage, the plaintiff is not bound to join everybody who chooses to set up a title to the property unless he chooses. If, then, he is given an option to join them or not and he chooses to exercise that option by ignoring them, it is impossible to say he ought to have joined them. The clause can apply only when he was bound to join them and has not done so. The second case in which a party may be added under R. 10 is when his presence is necessary to enable the Court to make a complete adjudication upon the questions involved in the suit. If a full and final adjudication is possible between the existing parties of all questions involved in the suit, the Court has no jurisdiction to add parties. Further it is often undesirable in a mortgage suit to change its character altogether and convert it into a general administration suit. 148 I.C. 720=1934 N. 228. See also 7 Cut.L.T. 49.

The Court has ample power under O. 1, R. 10, even after the passing of the final decree in a mortgage suit to order that a person whose presence may be necessary to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon the questions involved in the suit be added as a party to the proceedings. If it appears that there is an equitable mortgagee who, under O. 34, R. 1 was a necessary party, and that he ought to be joined as a party, the Court can add him as a party although the final judgment has been passed in the suit. 40 C.W.N. 1173.

MAINTENANCE SUIT.—See 1937 M. 338.

PARTIES TO REDEMPTION SUIT.—1936 M. W.N. 1184=44 L.W. 563=1936 M. 950=71 M.L.J. 614. Powers of Court—Mortgage suit—Omission to implead interested party—If fatal. 1936 P. 153. Suit on mortgage—Holder of money decree against mortgagor getting receiver appointed in execution—Power of Court to implead him as party in mortgage suit. 40 C.W.N. 974.

PARTITION SUIT.—Sale of property in execution of mortgage decree during pendency of suit—Mortgagee-purchaser if proper party to partition suit. 35 C.W.N. 296=1931 C. 594. Where the Appellate Court is of opinion that a certain person is a necessary party and ought to have been impleaded in a partition suit the proper procedure is to remand the case to the Court of first instance with a direction that the Court should implead that person and then proceed to dispose of the case. 190 I.C. 384=A.I.R. 1940 All. 399. Under O. 1, r. 10 (2), the Court has power to add as a party in a partition suit a mortgagee of an undivided share of the property, where the extent of the mortgagor's share is in dispute. There can be no doubt that the addition of the mortgagee as a party in the suit would avoid multiplicity of proceedings. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 284=44 C.W.N. 589=A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 284.

POSSESSORY SUIT.—R. 10 enables the Court to add a third party where it is necessary so to do in order to enable the Court to effectually adjudicate and settle all the questions involved in the suit. In a suit for possession of the subject-matter of a sale, by the purchaser against his vendor and tenant, a third party alleged that the vendor had no right to sell the whole property, and that he was entitled only to a half share and applied to be made a party. He had also filed a suit against the purchaser, the vendor and the tenant claiming half the property. Held, that the proper course was to join the third party as a party to the suit for possession by the purchaser, in order that the Court might properly work out the rights as between the parties and avoid possible conflict of decisions. (1929 M. 268 and 5 M. 52, Ref.) 1935 M. 353.

SCHEME SUIT.—In a scheme suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, an application by a close relation of the creator of the trust should be allowed though he is not a beneficiary under the trust. 1937 O.W.N. 271=1937 Oudh 229.

SUIT AGAINST FIRM.—Where a suit was brought in a firm's name which had only a sole proprietor and the defendant had notice at the very outset of this and such proprietor was examined on commission and no objection was taken till the trial was over regarding the maintainability of suit in firm's name. Held, that the amendment of plaint by substituting the name of the proprietor for the name of the firm should be allowed as it was only a change in form and not in substance and that the appellate Court could order such amendment in plaint, judgment and decree without ordering a remand to the original Court for rehearing. 159 I.C. 138=1935 R. 240. In a suit against a firm under O. 30, C. P. Code, it is not possible for a person who has not been served with a writ but who apprehends that at some future time the plaintiff will eventually seek to hold him liable in execution proceedings on the basis of partnership, to enter appearance and defend the suit on the merits unless he admits that he is not in fact a partner. But when such person is interested in some way or other in the assets of the firm, and denies that he is a partner in the firm, he can apply to the Court under O. 1, R. 10, and it will be proper for the Court to add him as a party to the suit even in opposition to the wishes of the plaintiff. 40 C.W.N. 677.

PROCEDURE.—Where an application is made in a suit under O. 1, R. 10 by certain persons to be brought on record as additional plaintiffs, the Court should dispose it without further delay. It should not keep the application pending till the disposal of the suit and then dismiss the application on the dismissal of the suit itself. Such an ex post facto method of disposing of applications of this kind must be condemned unreservedly. 1941 Mad. 79=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 615.

SETTING ASIDE EX PARTE DECREE.—Where a suit is decreed ex parte and persons entitled to be added as parties to the suit make an application to add them as parties and to set aside the ex parte decree, Court should add them as parties and give them an opportunity to set aside the ex parte decree. 166 I.C. 794=18 Pat.L.T. 278=1937 P. 49.

ORDER WHETHER APPEALABLE.—An application of plaintiff to be added as co-plaintiff cannot be treated as an application under O. 22, R. 10. An order passed under O. 1 is not appealable. See 1939 Oudh 102=14 Luck. 447=1939 O.W.N. 181. An application to be added as co-plaintiffs cannot be treated as one under O. 22, R. 10. 36 I.C. 919. An order rejecting an application to be made a party is not appealable. 13 C. 100; 2 A. 904. But see 12 M. 489. Order under O. 1, R. 10 does not come within the definition of "decree" in S. 2 (2) and there can be no appeal. 42 M.L.J. 97=45 M. 194.

APPEAL.—Where an application is made under O. 1, R. 10 but it is dealt with by the Court also under O. 22, R. 10, an appeal lies against the order on the application. 1937 M. 200=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 279. No appeal lies from an order awarding costs under O. 1, R. 10 (2). 39 P.L.R. 342=1937 L. 67.

REVISION.—An order refusing to add a party as a defendant is not subject to revision under S. 115; but the High Court may interfere under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, if there is a denial of the right of fair trial. 13 C. 90; 4 P. 723=93 I.C. 32. See also 1939 Oudh 102=14 Luck. 447=1939 O.W.N. 181; 41 L.W. 126=1935 M. 394=68 M.L.J. 236. Ordinarily High Court is reluctant to interfere with an order refusing to make certain persons parties to the suit. But where the lower Court instead of addressing itself to the important question, whether the addition of the petitioners as parties was necessary in order to enable the Court to effectually and completely adjudicate and settle all the questions involved in the suit, rejected the petition of the sons of a full sister of the deceased owner of certain properties on the ground that it was opposed by the step-sisters on record, held, that the entire responsibility in the matter of adding parties was with the Court and did not depend upon the wishes of the parties on record; the order of the lower Court really amounted to a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it and that it should be set aside in revision. 148 I.C. 347=15 Pat.L.T. 602=1934 P. 425. The trial Court is vested with wide discretion and where that Court has acted in aid of justice to prevent the suit being defeated upon a more or less technical ground, the High Court would not interfere. 152 I.C. 778 (2)=1934 P. 370.

ADDITION OF PARTY, WHAT AMOUNTS TO.—An amendment of the plaint, by leave of the Judge, that the plaintiff is suing in a representative capacity as a shebait, does not amount to an addition or substitution of a new plaintiff within the rule. 28 I.C. 818=19 C.W.N. 1193. In a suit to enforce rights of trust by persons interested in the trust, addition of more representatives out of time, does not bar the suit. 33 A. 272; 25 M.L.J. 452 (17 B. 413, Foll.). But see 43 I.A. 113. See also 9 L.W. 377=50 I.C. 358. A pro forma defendant is not known to law. 41 I.C. 468=2 Pat.L.W. 108.

O. 1, R. 10 (5).—The proviso applies only as regards limitation. Where a person is the proceedings as against any person added as defendant shall be deemed to have begun only on the service of the summons.

Conduct of suit.

11. The Court may give the conduct of the suit to such person as it deems proper.

12. (1) Where there are more plaintiffs than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead or act for such other in any proceeding; and in like manner, where there are more defendants than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead or act for such other in any proceeding.

(2) The authority shall be in writing signed by the party giving it and shall be filed in Court.

13. All objections on the ground of non-joinder or misjoinder of parties shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity and, in all cases where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, unless the ground of objection has subsequently arisen, and any such objection not so taken shall be deemed to have been waived.

NOTES.

added as party defendant under R. 10 the proceedings should be taken to have commenced against him from the date he was impleaded as party. 50 C.L.J. 208. See also 1930 L. 747; 55 I.A. 7=6 R. 29=54 M.L.J. 88 (P.C.). For other purposes such as calculation of costs, etc., the date on which summons is served will be the starting point. 8 L.R. 79 (Rev.).

COSTS.—Where parties are added as defendants at the instance of a co-defendant, and no cause of action is found against them, the proper order to pass is to strike off the names of those defendants, under r. 10 (2), and not to discharge them. When such defendants are struck off under R. 10 (2) as being improperly added, Court can impose such terms as it considers proper and can order the party to pay costs to such defendants. This power of the Court is analogous to its power of adjourning proceedings in which case the Court is empowered to make the defaulting party to pay costs to other party and there is no limitation as to the amount which can be awarded under such circumstances. 39 P.L.R. 342=1937 L. 67.

O. 1, R. 10 AND O. 6, R. 17.—Plaint instituted by living persons in name of and verified on behalf of, dead person—Substitution of name of living person not permissible—Gross neglect of plaintiff cannot be condoned. See 1937 Sind 92=31 S. L. R. 406.

O. 1, R. 11.—The question of conduct is one of discretion, and the appellate Court will not as a rule interfere. See Dowbiggin v. Trotter, 20 W.R. 1024 (Eng.). Suit by one trustee—Death of plaintiff—Co-trustee can be made plaintiff. 40 M.L.J. 208=52 I. C. 560. The word "person" in R. 11 means a party to the suit and a person who is a stranger to the suit cannot be given the conduct of the suit within the meaning of the rule. 106 I.C. 854=46 C.L.J. 530.

O. 1, R. 13: GENERAL.—The words "unless the ground of objection has subsequently arisen" have been added to give effect to the rulings in 5 B. 609; 7 C. 603. No person (including a corporate body) can be made a plaintiff without his consent expressly given. 46 P.R. 1911=10 I.C. 515.

OBJECTIONS AS TO NON-JOINDER WHEN SHOULD BE TAKEN.—An objection as to non-joinder of parties should be taken before the settlement of issues. The rule applies even in cases where the plaintiff claims a joint right along with others but does not make the latter parties to the suit. 41 C. 527 (25 B. 433, Dist; 25 I.C. 122, Foll.). See also 35 P.L.R. 616=1934 L. 459; 143 I.C. 838=1933 O. 129; 1941 R.D. 733=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 687. Objections as to misjoinder and jurisdiction owing to undervaluation, when not raised in Court of first instance are no ground for reversing a decree when they do not affect the merits of the case. 25 I.C. 25. (36 I.C. 780; 17 I.C. 97; 22 M.L.J. 25; 7 M.L.T. 78; 9 M.L.T. 173, Foll.) An objection as to non-joinder cannot be taken for first time in revision before High Court. 46 I.C. 648. See also 13 I.C. 123=16 C.W.N. 639; 25 I.C. 122; 16 B. 119; 10 M. 322; 17 C. 580. Where no objection as to suit being bad for defect of parties has been taken in the written statement, or in the grounds of appeal in lower Court, it cannot be raised in second appeal. 145 I.C. 325=1933 P. 270. When objection to want of parties is not raised by the defendant, it must be deemed to have been waived. But Court can add any one as a party if it thinks it necessary. 3 A.L.J. 474. Where a defendant is permitted to file an additional written statement and he therein raises an objection as to non-joinder, which is later on made the subject-matter of a fresh issue, the provisions of R. 13 are not infringed. 137 I.C. 274=1932 M. 583=62 M.L.J. 154. Where objection as to non-joinder of necessary parties is taken at

FRAME OF SUIT.

1. Every suit shall as far as practicable be framed so as to afford ground for final decision upon the subjects in dispute and to prevent further litigation concerning them.
Frame of suit.
2. (1) Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court.
Suit to include the whole claim.

NOTES.

the very outset and plaintiffs do not implead them, the suit may be dismissed. 1933 L. 93=145 I.C. 178. (1923 M. 337; 61 M.L.J. 294, Ref.).

O. 2, R. 1: OBJECT OF.—The object of this rule is to give effect to the maxim interest rei publicae ut sit finis litium. 27 B. 382. See also 9 C. 919; 2 M.H.C.R. 131; 26 M. 760 (763); 28 A. 482 (P.C.); 26 A. 236; 9 C.W.N. 498; 4 C.L.J. 367. The intention of the legislature is that all matters in dispute should be disposed of in the same suit. 25 C. 371; 31 M. 385.

SCOPE OF.—R. 1 has reference mainly to joinder of causes of action rather than to joinder of parties. 25 I.C. 480=3 P.R. 1915. "Subject in dispute", meaning of. See 23 L.W. 13=91 I.C. 660=1926 M. 234. Under this rule and R. 2 plaintiffs must bring their entire claim, and every remedy enforceable in respect of that claim, into Court at once. 9 C. 919; 2 M.H.C.R. 131. But all causes of action need not be joined. 59 I.C. 517. On this rule, see also 132 I.C. 684=35 C.W.N. 307=1931 C. 670; 1935 N. 226 (Holder of two mortgages—Right to sue separately on each); 1940 Mad. 903= (1940) 2 M.L.J. 281.

O. 2, Rr. 1 and 6: PLAINTIFF JOINING IN ONE SUIT TWO INDEPENDENT CLAIMS—DUTY OF COURT TO ASK PLAINTIFF TO ELECT.—Where the plaintiff sues in one suit for a declaration of his title as proprietor in respect of a portion in certain land and for partition of his share after declaration of his title and also sues in the same suit the admitted *raiya*ts of the land, calling upon them to remove a building from his holding and thus joins two claims and causes of action which are absolutely independent and unconcerned with one another, the suit should not be tried in the form in which it is instituted. The Court should ask the plaintiff to elect to proceed with one of the claims. 161 I.C. 695=1936 P. 142.

O. 2, R. 2: SCOPE AND OBJECT OF THE RULE.—This rule must be read with Expl. V of section 11. See 1939 Sind 367. R. 2 is directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a cause of action, and not to the inclusion in one action of different causes of action even though they arise from the same transactions. 41 I.A. 142=18 C.

W.N. 617 (P.C.); 38 M. 1162; 45 B. 805; 30 C.W.N. 873=97 I.C. 73=1926 C. 1022; 110 I.C. 554=1928 M. 840=56 M.L.J. 52; 1930 L. 688=122 I.C. 733. See also 1935 L. 156; 1935 L. 842; 1937 O.W.N. 1146. R. 2, when it operates as a bar merely deprives the claimant of his remedy by suit founded on the same cause of action. It cannot have the effect of vesting any right in any of the defendants. 1933 A. 228=144 I.C. 152. See also 161 I.C. 820=1936 R. 167. O. 2, R. 2 does not control section 130, T. P. Act. 18 Pat. 839=21 Pat.L.T. 928=1940 Pat. 170. O. 2, R. 2 covers cases of accidental omission and is not confined to a deliberate omission. A subsequent suit purely to rectify a mistake committed in a prior suit is barred by O. 2, R. 2. 1941 Pat. 37=21 Pat.L.T. 790. A plaintiff is not obliged to put forward in one suit every claim which he may have against the defendant, as the causes of action in such cases may be different, but he must include the whole claim based on the particular cause of action. 1936 N. 268. R. 2 does not bar per se a subsequent suit brought on a different cause of action. It only purports to bar suits for claim omitted from former suits and arising from the transaction under which the claim was made in the former suit and splitting up of the reliefs in respect of the same cause of action. It does not require that where several causes of action arise from one transaction, the plaintiff should sue for all of them in one suit. The rule is directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a cause of action, and not to the inclusion in one and the same action of different causes of action, even though they arise from the same transaction. 161 I.C. 820=1936 R. 167. R. 2 refers to a case where there has been a suit in which there has been an omission to sue in respect of a portion of a claim and a decree has been made in that suit. 45 C. 305=22 C.W.N. 611. Rule requires that every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising from one and the same cause of action and not that every suit shall include every claim or every cause of action arising out of the same transaction. 1929 P. 241=120 I.C. 479. See also 48 C. L.J. 368=1929 C. 93. R. 2 is directed against two evils—the splitting of claims and the splitting of remedies. 1926 L. 509=97 I.

(2) Where a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquishes, any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.

(3) A person entitled to more than one relief in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of such reliefs; but if he omits, except with the leave of the Court, to sue for all such reliefs, he shall not afterwards sue for any relief so omitted.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this rule an obligation and a collateral security for its performance and successive claims arising under the same obligation shall be deemed respectively to constitute but one cause of action.

NOTES.

C. 396. The rule only prevents the splitting up of claims and does not bar a subsequent suit on the whole claim against a different person. 18 C.W.N. 129=19 C.L.J. 191; 41 C.W.N. 1179. It does not contemplate claims under separate causes of action as well as claims affecting different defendants. 40 B. 351=18 Bom.L.R. 45; 104 I.C. 820; 1 Luck. 1=91 I.C. 976=1926 O. 77; 161 I.C. 820=1936 R. 167. It bars only those suits where the causes of action and defendants are the same. The dispossession of plaintiff from two properties held under different titles gives rise to two causes of action. 7 A.L.J. 658=50 I.C. 905. See also 25 B. 161; 41 C.W.N. 1179. R. 2 is framed to protect the defendant being twice vexed for one and the same cause. 41 C. 825. This rule does not debar a plaintiff from including in his claim certain additional profits omitted in a previous suit under a misapprehension that the profits were paid annually and not, as was subsequently ascertained to be the fact half yearly. 65 I.C. 585=1923 A. 230. Two reliefs can be joined in the same suit, the parties being the same. 75 I.C. 597=1923 A. 306. Suit to declare a person mutawalli—Declaration of the ownership of the property as an essential part of the plaintiff's claim. 1 Luck. 592=1928 O. 67=109 I.C. 895. The rule does not apply when the prior suit was withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit. 1930 L. 634.

APPLICATION OF THE RULE.—This rule cannot apply to defendants at all and can only apply to plaintiffs. 1933 L. 569=148 I.C. 484. It applies only where the defendant in the subsequent suit was the defendant in the previous suit. It does not apply where the subsequent suit is brought against a different defendant. 47 I.C. 896. See 17 I.C. 434=1912 M.W.N. 1071; 1929 M. 96=116 I.C. 116. O. 2, r. 2 (3) has no application where the cause of action in the subsequent suit is not the same as that in the earlier suit. A suit should include the whole claim with respect to one and the same cause of action, but need not include every cause of action or every claim which the plaintiff may have had against the defendant at the time. 43 P.L.R. 44. O. 2, r. 2 is not directed to the inclusion in one and the same action of different causes of action even though they arise from the same transactions. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 118. As to suit on alternative causes of action, see 103 I.C. 888. It applies not only to cases of deliberate relinquishments but also of accidental or involuntary omission. 35 C.L.J. 304=1922 C. 101. Rule does not apply to proceedings in the Revenue Court. 38 A. 302=14 A.L.J. 373; 1927 O. 498. Nor to proceedings under S. 144 of the C.P. Code. 53 I.C. 552; 47 I.C. 47=3 P.L.J. 367. Nor to proceedings in execution of decree. 62 I.C. 507; 19 A. 98 (F.B.); 18 C. 515; 53 C. 582=1926 C. 1019. Nor to a plea raised in defence. 57 I.C. 348 (L.); 7 L. 297=1926 L. 494=96 I.C. 360; 1926 L. 21. Nor to any part of a dismissed claim abandoned in appeal. 54 I.C. 655. Nor to the amendment of plaint by the addition of claim which had been omitted. 45 C. 305=22 C. W.N. 611. See also 52 I.C. 464=84 P.R. 1919. The rule does not apply where the previous suit was not a regular suit, but an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis which was rejected. 21 A. 359. Nor where the cause of action for a prior and a subsequent suit in respect of the same property are different. 41 C. 80; 104 I.C. 820. See also 153 I.C. 73=1935 A. 174. A person is not affected by r. 2 if at the time he brought his former suit, he was not in a position to know all his rights. 21 O.C. 307=49 I.C. 54. It cannot be said that the rule has no application to a suit where plaintiff is a minor. 22 M. 309. There is a distinction between splitting of the same cause of action into two or more suits, and instituting different suits upon distinct causes of action. 11 M. 210. On this section, see also 1933 B. 437=35 Bom.L.R. 946. A bar of fresh suit which O. 2, r. 2 creates does not extinguish the right but merely bars the remedy. Therefore, where a mortgagee omits to include in his suit on the mortgage a portion of the mortgaged property but brings the entire property to sale in execution of his decree and purchases it himself, he can rely by way of defence on the security of the portion of the property omitted in the suit in a proceeding brought under S. 51 of the Provincial Insolvency

NOTES.

Act by the Receiver of the estate of the judgment-debtor who has been adjudicated insolvent, although he is precluded by the provisions of O. 2, r. 2, from filing a fresh suit in respect of that portion. 42 P.L.R. 29=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 160. See also (1938) 2 M.L.J. 642.

PART ASSIGNMENT OF DEBT.—O. 2, R. 2 has the effect of barring a particular plaintiff from splitting up his cause of action. In the case of a part assignment of a debt, the assignment itself gives the cause of action and the assignee is, therefore, not prevented from maintaining a suit on the actionable claim assigned to him. 43 P.L.R. 439.

MEANING OF THE TERMS.—The word "claim" is treated as something arising out of a "cause of action" and as something distinct from the term "cause of action." 17 A. 535. The claim and the remedy mentioned in this rule have reference to the cause of action litigated in the previous suit. 10 M. 350. It has to be construed with reference to the substance, rather than the form of action. 19 C. 372. The "cause of action" for a suit is the sum total of the facts and circumstances which the plaintiff has to prove in order to entitle him to the relief claimed. 38 A. 217=14 A.L.J. 257; 13 O.L.J. 448=93 I.C. 269.

"CAUSE OF ACTION" includes every fact which it would be necessary for the plaintiff, to prove, if traversed, in order to support his right to the judgment of the Court. It does not comprise every piece of evidence which is necessary to prove each fact, but every fact which is necessary to be proved. 16 A. 65 (F.B.). See also 18 A. 131; 184 I.C. 714=1940 P. 76; 1937 Mad. 804; 45 A. 376=21 A.L.J. 267; 1 R. 694=1924 R. 145; 93 I.C. 269=1926 O. 365; 152 I.C. 199=4 A.W.R. 744. "Cause of action" in r. 2 is used more comprehensively than in S. 17. 25 I.C. 579. It does not depend upon the character of the relief prayed for but refers to the media upon which a Court is asked to come to a conclusion. 38 B. 444; 60 I.C. 596=1921 P. 125; 52 I.C. 929. It has no relation to the defence set up by the defendant nor does it depend on the character of the relief prayed for. 52 I.C. 929. An event to which no legal effect attaches, cannot enter as an element into the creation of a cause of action. 31 C. 283. Every adjustment of account is a new cause of action. 11 I.C. 540=15 C. W.N. 862. Every alienation by Hindu widow gives a separate cause of action to reversioners. 66 I.C. 455=1922 O. 171. If the cause of action in the subsequent suit is different from that in the first suit, the subsequent suit is not barred. 77 I.C. 590. Suits for kattubadi due in successive years—Kattubadi not fixed in money or kind but on gross produce—Causes of action are different and suits are not barred under O. 2, r. 2. 147 I.C. 756=39 L.W. 65=

1934 M. 46. First suit for declaration of title dismissed—Second suit for refund of purchase money—Causes of action different. 1933 L. 1017=147 I.C. 651. Where a suit is brought either on a non-existent cause of action or upon a false cause of action it will not disable a plaintiff from filing a fresh suit on the true cause of action. 7 L.W. 557=45 I.C. 969.

WHERE TWO SUITS ARE FILED ON THE SAME DAY.—The presumption is that they were presented and admitted in the order in which their numbers appear in the suit register kept in Court. 1937 R.D. 86.

RELINQUISHMENT OF PORTION OF CLAIM.—There is no reference in this rule to the jurisdiction of the Court trying the claims. Where a person chooses a Court by relinquishing a part of his claim, a subsequent suit for the relinquished portion of the claim will be barred by this rule. The fact that the two suits are triable for two different Courts is immaterial. 14 Pat.L.T. 663=1933 P. 715. See also 1937 Rang. 324. A person must be taken to have relinquished or abandoned his claim on the real cause of action, when he files his suit on another known to him to be false. 6 M.L.J. 5. But see 26 M. 777. The relinquishment by a plaintiff of a portion of the claim under r. 2 applies primarily to relinquishment before institution of the suit. 54 I.C. 655. Amendment of plaint, on objection, omitting one relief—Effect of on subsequent suit for relief omitted. 104 I.C. 370=1927 R. 237. The possession of a right, without knowledge of it, cannot be said to be a portion of his claim, which can be intentionally relinquished. 37 I.C. 119=94 P.R. 1916. [15 C. 800 (P.C.), Ref.] A statement in the plaint that a portion of the claim which is not sued upon is not relinquished is of no effect. 2 N.W.P. 90. Relinquishment may be either accidental or involuntary, as well as deliberate. 11 M.I.A. 551.

"OMITS TO SUE."—See 1937 Rang. 324; 1938 Rang. 290. The words "to sue" mean to make a legal claim or to take legal proceedings. It does not necessarily mean to file a suit by means of a plaint. 7 Bom.L.R. 138; 38 A. 217. To constitute an omission to sue it is necessary that the claim must be known to the plaintiff. It is only a claim or remedy known at the time of the institution of the suit, which if omitted will be barred under O. 2, R. 2. Actual knowledge of the claim, and not constructive knowledge, is necessary in order that the relief may be barred in a subsequent suit. Where a plaintiff is unaware of a claim at the time of his suit, though he may, by proper inquiry make himself aware of its existence, the non-inclusion of that claim will not preclude him from subsequently suing in respect of that claim. 44 L.W. 379=1936 M. 699=71 M.L.J. 264. It is not necessary to determine whether the omission arose from a mistake or otherwise. 3 Beng. L.R. 265. See also 170 I.C. 946=1937

NOTES.

Rang. 324. Casual omission to include some items of property from the schedule to the plaint does not mean abandonment of claim by plaintiff with respect to those items. 50 I.C. 331.

"PORTION OF CLAIM."—The right which a litigant possesses without knowing or ever having known that he possesses it can hardly be regarded as a "portion of his claim." 15 C. 808 (P.C.).

LEAVE OF THE COURT.—Where there has been an omission to sue for all reliefs in respect of the same cause of action, the remark of the Court in its judgment that a suit in respect of the omitted relief could be brought later on, does not amount to the leave of the Court in the sense in which it is used in O. 2, R. 2 (3). 1937 O. W. N. 1146. See also 48 L. W. 292=1938 Mad. 865=(1938) 2 M. L. J. 534; 1938 Rang. 290. Per Baguley, J.—There is no provision of law by which a plaintiff can reserve the right to split his claim arising out of the same cause of action. He may ask the Court to allow him to do so under O. 2, R. 2 (3), but the Code gives no unilateral right to reserve a claim of this sort. 1937 Rang. L.R. 447=174 I.C. 794=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 76. Under O. 2, R. 2, the omission to ask for a particular relief is not a defect that goes to the maintainability of the very suit in which leave should have been asked; it only entails a disability as regards subsequent proceedings. There is no reason for insisting that the application for leave to omit must precede, or at least be contemporaneous with the plaint in the first suit. It cannot be said that the Court has no power to grant leave unless the application is made before the institution of the suit or along with the presentation of the plaint. The Court, when called upon to deal with such an application, has ordinarily to consider whether the grant of leave to reserve certain remedies would in the circumstances be appropriate in the sense that it will not give an unfair advantage to the plaintiff or impose an unfair burden on the defendant. A question of this kind can as well be dealt with by the Court during the pendency of the suit as before its institution. The legislature did not wish to insist upon leave being obtained before the first hearing. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 979=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 642.

"SHALL NOT AFTERWARDS SUE."—It is only remedy of suing which is barred. The right subsists. 7 Bom.L.R. 138. This rule is laid down with reference to suits brought under this Code. 9 C. at 46. See also 21 M. 236. It has reference to the subject-matter of the claim, and not to the persons against whom it may be brought. 10 C. at 929. See also 19 A. at 384. A set-off is subject, as a claim in a cross-suit would be, to the provisions of this rule. 32 C. 654.

TEST.—Whether the causes of action in two suits are different or identical can be ascertained by the test whether the same evidence will maintain both actions. 40 B. 351=33 I.C. 950=18 Bom.L.R. 45. If the cause of action in the subsequent suit is different from that in the first suit the subsequent suit is not barred by R. 2. 66 I.C. 923=34 C.L.J. 465; 114 I.C. 871; 1930 A. 116=121 I.C. 827. The mere fact that the title to the property in dispute in both suits is the same and that the property is the same does not necessarily show that the cause of action is the same. 59 I.C. 517. Where the plaintiff was unaware of her assets and liabilities in respect of 1339 and 1340 fasli at the time of the institution of the prior suit in respect of arrears of revenue for 1337 fasli, it was held that a second suit in respect of 1339 and 1340 was not barred by O. 2, R. 2. 1941 O.W.N. 681=1941 O.A. 465=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 411.

PLEADINGS, PROOF AND PRACTICE.—A plea of bar under R. 2 must be specifically pleaded and established to the Court's satisfaction. 46 I.C. 119. A statement made in a previous suit by a party that he reserved the right of bringing another suit for damages cannot avoid the operation of the rule of limitation or of R. 2. 34 I.C. 51. Two suits presented on the same day must be presumed to be presented and admitted in the order in which their numbers appear on the register. 1 R. 682=1924 R. 161; 1937 R.D. 86. But see 49 M. 869=51 M.L.J. 351. Where it has been held that the numbering is not prima facie evidence of respective dates of admission and it could not be said that the suit bearing the later number was afterwards presented within the meaning of R. 2. Held also, that the plaintiff may elect as to which of the two suits should be held to be barred. (Ibid.) A second suit will not be barred by the rule unless the same cause of action is to be found within the four corners of the plaint in the first suit. 28 I.C. 301=82 P.L.R. 1915. Subsequent suit on alternate cause of action. 103 I.C. 888=1927 N. 322.

SPECIAL CASES: ACCOUNTS, SUIT FOR.—Where in a former suit between the parties, for accounts of a dissolved partnership, the Court on the basis of a Commissioner's report found that there was a certain amount due to a defendant therein, who, however, remained ex parte and did not choose to ask for a decree in his favour for that amount, though he could have done so; and the judgment in the former suit is capable of being read as declaring the rights of all parties, it is not right to say that that party has no right to make a claim on the basis of the prior judgments or, to obtain a decree for the amount in a suit instituted for the purpose. 67 M.L.J. 413=40 L.W. 792=1934 M. 665. See 158 I.C. 378=1935 L. 321. In order to ascertain whether a suit is barred by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2, it is necessary to consider what facts had to be proved in the first suit and what facts have to be proved in the second suit. Where in the earlier suit what had to be proved was the fact that the defendants had received certain sums of money from the military department on behalf of the plaintiff in respect to bills which had been submitted by the latter and in the later suit what had to be proved was the terms of a sub-contract between the plaintiff and the defendant and the liability of the defendant to render account, it was held that the cause of action in the two suits was different and that hence the provisions of O. 2, R. 2 did not operate as a bar. 1941 A.L.J. 288=1941 O.W.N. 676=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 169. A suit for accounts brought subsequent to a suit for dissolution of partnership is not barred under R. 2 as the two suits are not based on the same cause of action. 39 P.L.R. 197. Suit to set aside purchase of mortgage-deed and for reconveyance of properties—Claim for accounts not pressed—Subsequent suit for accounts barred by O. 2, R. 2. 35 C.W.N. 977=1931 P.C. 229=61 M.L.J. 294 (P.C.). Where careful perusal of the plaint in the first case indicated that the plaintiff was confining his claim to certain specific items said to have been appropriated by the respondent quite apart from his liability to render accounts as an agent which was the subject-matter of the second suit. Held, that the second suit was not barred under R. 2. 145 I.C. 1010=34 P. L. R. 905=1933 L. 542. Accounts of a partnership can only be taken and must be taken once for all in a suit to which all partners or their representatives are parties, and the law does not contemplate successive suits for accounts taking at the instance of the various partners. 40 L.W. 792=1934 M. 665=67 M.L.J. 413.

ALIENATION.—A plaintiff may either file a single suit or separate suits to set aside alienations made by a widow. 12 M.L.J. 103. See also 16 A. 279; 7 M.H.C.R. 290; 1 Luck. 1; 1930 N. 3=26 N.L.R. 121.

COMPROMISE.—When a suit is compromised, and the compromise provides for possession being given, a suit for possession based on the compromise is not barred. 2 A. L. J. 680. The fact that the previous suit is compromised is no bar to the application of the rule. 22 W.R. 424. See also 7 B. 182.

CONTRACT.—Where there are two breaches of one term in one contract, and both occur before any suit is brought, the cause of action is non-performance of the promise, and only one suit will lie. 12 C. at 348. But see also 135 I.C. 801=33 Bom. L. R. 1563=1932 B. 86; 19 C. 372. It is only when the party complaining of the breach of contract suffers damage that a cause of action is said to arise and till then only a term of the contract is broken. 38 M.L.J. 470. A cause of action might include claims upon several contracts provided they form part of a continuous course of dealing. 26 I.C. 209=41 C. 825. Suit on account—Different members of a joint Hindu family executing different khata—Suit on one specific khata—Running account produced referring to all khata—Subsequent suit on another khata—Bar. 54 B. 11=122 I.C. 417=1930 B. 60. When one instrument contains two separate contracts and performance of each is secured in a different manner each gives rise to a separate cause of action, although they may be joined in the same suit. 58 I.C. 18=16 N.L.R. 136. Second suit is not barred when the former suit was one for an injunction and value of fodder taken away and the second suit is one for a refund of money advanced and damages for breach. 2 L.L.J. 304. (25 M. 669, Foll.)

CONTRIBUTION.—Where one of several co-debtors satisfies the debt, his cause of action for contribution accrues against all at one and the same time. The contributories may all be included as defendants is one plaint. 3 M.H.C.R. 187. See also 12 A. 110. First suit as manager for rendition of accounts against heirs of brother—Second suit for contribution towards joint liability—Suit not barred. 152 I.C. 199.

DAMAGES.—Where A sued B on the 2nd June, 1879, for damages for not having made over possession of certain leasehold properties during 1875-1876, and got a decree, a subsequent suit on the 14th June, 1880, for damages for 1876-77 to 1878-79 is barred. 9 C. 143. See also 1937 O. W. N. 1146. Prior suit for possession does not bar subsequent suit for compensation. 11 L.L.J. 64=1928 L. 534 (1). The same set of facts cannot give ground for two actions, i.e., for a tort and a conspiracy to cause damage. The one excludes the other. 40 C. 898=23 I.C. 25=18 C.W.N. 185. First suit for damages for failure to repair a motor car—Subsequent suit for the price of the car refused to be returned—Maintainability. 122 I.C. 733=1930 L. 688. Transaction giving rise to two different claims based on different causes of action—Separate suits not barred—Illegal distress by mamlatdar—Suit for recovery of amount levied and interest—Subsequent suit for compensation and damages not barred. 41 Bom.L.R. 1223. See also I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 721=1940 Bom. 20.

DIVORCE.—A suit for divorce based on the wife's misconduct does not bar a subsequent suit for partition of the common properties of the husband and wife. 38 C. 629=15 C. W. N. 766 (P.C.). See also 187 I.C. 380=1940 Rang. 29.

EJECTMENT.—Suit for ejectment of tenant from one plot—Subsequent suit regarding other plots in the same holding barred. 14 R.D. 632. The fact that the plaintiffs brought a previous suit for ejecting defendants from some of the plots in the plaintiff's holding is no bar to a second suit for ejecting the defendants from the remaining plots omitted in the first suit. For this purpose it makes no difference if the previous suit was withdrawn or dismissed for default or the plaintiffs omitted a portion of their claim. 17 R.D. 114. Where one of the proprietors reclaims shamilat land and a suit for ejectment by the proprietary body is dismissed and the former reclaims a further piece of shamilat land, a subsequent suit to eject him from the land reclaimed subsequently is not barred under R. 2. 158 I.C. 112=1935 L. 156. Where two separate and unconnected buildings are erected on a land and the plaintiff's suit for demolition of one of the buildings and possession of land underneath is dismissed, a subsequent suit for demolition of the other construction and for possession of land lying underneath it is not barred either by R. 2 or by res judicata. Each construction gives rise to a separate cause of action. 158 I.C. 620=1935 A.L.J. 948=1935 A. 790. See also 14 L.R. 134 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 176.

EXECUTION APPLICATION.—R. 2 does not apply to applications for execution. Application for partial execution is no bar to a subsequent application for execution of the rest of the decree. 28 N.L.R. 77=130 I. C. 120=1932 N. 89.

INSTALMENT BOND.—An instalment bond containing a provision that on default of payment of any two instalments, the whole amount would become payable and the creditors would be at liberty to sue for the entire amount, gives an option to the creditor either to sue for the whole amount in case of two successive defaults or to sue for the instalments only. If the creditor exercises his option of suing for the instalments only and waives the right to sue for the whole amount there is no longer any cause of action left to him for suing for the whole amount. It follows that at the time when the suit is brought, he disentitles himself from suing for the whole amount, and therefore R. 2 would not be a bar to a future claim brought by him when further instalments fall due. As a matter of fact R. 2 does not deal with cases where there is an option to sue for the whole amount and the option is waived before the suit is brought. 158 I.C. 53=1935 A.L.J. 456=1935 A. 461. See also 183 I.C. 425=1939 Rang. 251; 157 I.C. 643=1929 M.W.N. 204. Omission to sue for instalments which had accrued due bars subsequent suit therefor. 44 A. 663. But see also 1931 M.W.N. 1246. Two or more causes of action to recover money may be joined, but only if they arose within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is brought. 12 M. L.J. 11. As to money suits, see also 8 C. 483 (F.B.); 7 B. 134; 5 C. 597; 12 B.L.R. 37; 28 B. 447. "Claim for a portion does not bar another claim for balance." 29 M.L.J. 474. On this point, see also 1931 M.W.N. 1246=35 L.W. 424=138 I.C. 340; 1938 Rang. 364.

MAINTENANCE.—A subsequent suit for a declaration that the maintenance decreed in a former suit is a charge on certain property, is barred. 12 M. 285. See also 11 M. 127. The mere ground that the wife entertains any apprehension as regards the husband's transferring his property would not afford her a new cause of action for the relief sought for by her in the second suit. 167 I.C. 123=1937 A. 56. A subsequent suit for maintenance at an increased rate is not barred. 22 M. 175. Where under the terms of a will an amount is payable from the income of a property by way of maintenance, a suit for recovery of arrears of such maintenance can be framed as such, without framing it on the charge of the property left by the will. See 132 I.C. 684=35 C.W.N. 307=1931 C. 670.

SUIT ON MORTGAGE.—21 B. 267; 18 M. 257; 20 A. 322; also 24 A. 429 (P.C.) and 24 M. at 109; 30 B. 156; 10 Bom.H.C. 369; 6 Bom.H.C. (A.C.) 97; 7 B. 377; 3 A. 857. Two mortgages—Each can be sued on separately. 33 C.L.J. 232. A person holding two mortgages on a property can sue for sale on the second mortgage reserving his rights under the first. Each mortgage is a separate cause of action and the mortgagee is not bound to sue on them all. 38 M. 927=29 M.L.J. 195 (F.B.). This was held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court. It is not now good law since the enactment of S. 67-A of the Transfer of Property Act by the Amending Act of 1929. Option to sue—Mortgagee authorized to sue for interest or for possession in default by mortgagor—Suit for interest—Subsequent suit for possession not barred. 2 L. 13 (F.B.). See also 44 M.L.J. 123=38 C.L.J. 126=4 L. 32=50 I.A. 115 (P.C.); 44 A. 121=49 I.A. 9 (P.C.); 26 A. L.J. 57; 102 I.C. 187=1927 M. 580=52 M. L.J. 636. Where the deed of anomalous mortgage contained a covenant by which the mortgagor undertook to pay interest yearly, a suit by the mortgagee to recover the interest only due under the document is maintainable. (4 Luck. 32 and 64 I.C. 953, Rel. on.) 152 I.C. 494=1934 R. 159. Suit for sale on mortgage—Court gave a decree declaring plaintiff's mortgage right and giving him liberty to enforce his right in a separate suit—Second suit for enforcing the mortgage right not barred. 1931 M.W.N. 1008=1931 M. 830. First suit for sale of mortgaged property for interest only may bar a second suit for recovering principal and balance of interest. The question whether any default accelerates the claim on which the principal money can be called in would depend entirely on the wording of the mortgage. English cases are not proper guides for deciding Indian cases. 6 R. 771=115 I.C. 671=1929 R. 71. A mortgage deed provided that the principal money would be payable on the expiry of four years. Interest was payable at 9 per cent. monthly and if it remained unpaid for three months, the mortgagee was entitled to compound interest and also if he chose, to realise the whole amount of principal and interest.

NOTES.

During the third year, interest fell in arrears and the mortgagee brought a suit for interest and realised it. After the expiry of four years, he brought the present suit for principal. Held, that the default clause was one for the benefit of the mortgagee, which he was entitled to waive and as in the previous suit instituted before the expiry of four years, the principal was not recoverable, the present suit was not barred under r. 2. (Case-law referred.) 141 I.C. 613=34 P.L.R. 520=1933 L. 463. See also 1940 Lah. 498. Mortgage by tenant with possession—Malguzar suing mortgagee for declaring mortgage as void—Subsequent suit for possession—If barred. 122 I.C. 697=1930 N. 119. Where a mortgage and lease form one transaction and the lease is only a mode for realizing the interest due on the mortgage, a suit on the mortgage cannot be brought subsequent to a suit for rent on the lease. 63 I.C. 928=3 Lah.L.J. 390. Where the mortgagee brought a suit for principal and interest a subsequent suit for possession is barred. 97 I.C. 396=1926 L. 559=8 L.L.J. 381. The right of the mortgagee to recover the money from the mortgagor personally arises out of the covenant to repay the loan and his right to realise the security, viz., to have the mortgaged property sold to satisfy his claim, accrues from the hypothecation. Each of these two rights furnishes an independent and distinct cause of action to the mortgagees. R. 2 makes it obligatory on the plaintiff to include in the suit the whole of the claim and all the reliefs which he is entitled to make and pray for only in respect of the cause of action. It therefore follows that a mortgagee is not bound to sue for the realisation of his security in a suit to enforce the personal covenants of the mortgagor to pay the overdue interest as the two claims arise out of distinct causes of action. 16 L. 640=158 I.C. 228 (2)=1935 Lah. 672 (F.B.). See also 1938 Mad. 255=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 184. Where the original obligation is single and entire, but when one party has chosen to execute separate documents for portions of the obligation and the other party has chosen to accept the said documents each document constitutes a distinct cause of action. Hence where in pursuance of a settlement of accounts promissory notes and mortgage are executed, and a suit is filed only on the promissory notes, a subsequent suit on the mortgage is not barred by R. 2 as the notes and mortgage constitute distinct causes of action, even though made in settlement of single debt. 159 I.C. 720=1935 R. 365. Suit for return of mortgage money on the ground of failure of security is barred under R. 2, if the mortgagee first sues for possession and having failed there, institutes the second suit for the money. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.—A suit for redemption is barred when the plaintiff had first sued for recovery of excess balance realised by the mortgagee. 48 I.C. 799; 103 I.C. 290=1927 N. 302. (Suit for mesne profits accruing after institution of previous suit, not barred). (Case-law discussed.) 1931 A. 429; 1937 Mad. 849; 1940 Mad. 934. If a person is wrongfully kept out of possession of immovable property he is entitled to sue for possession and for mesne profits and under the provisions of O. 2, R. 2 (3), he is bound to include both claims in one suit. If he sues only for mesne profits he cannot in a subsequent suit sue separately for possession. In other words he is no longer entitled to possession, and if he is not entitled to possession, he is not entitled to mesne profits. A subsequent suit for mesne profits is therefore barred. I.L.R. (1940) All. 781=1940 A.L.J. 727=1940 All. 524. A claim for mesne profits for the period covered by a prior partition suit is a claim based on a different cause of action and is not barred by the provisions of R. 2. A previous application for restoration of possession does not bar a subsequent claim for mesne profits by way of restitution. 38 C.W.N. 1197. Suit for redemption followed by decree and deposit of decretal amount—Failure of defendant to deliver possession—Fresh suit for mesne profits from final decree to delivery of possession not barred. 152 I.C. 921=1935 A.L.J. 115=1935 A. 96. Decree by consent for mesne profits up to date of judgment—Defendant wrongfully continuing in possession—Suit for subsequent mesne profits not barred. 56 B. 292=34 Bom.L.R. 447=138 I.C. 578=1932 B. 222. But see 49 A. 597=25 A.L.J. 409. Where in a prior suit for possession and future mesne profits the Court did not purport to decide the question of future mesne profits a subsequent suit for mesne profits pendente lite is not barred. 40 A. 292. A prior suit for partition and possession does not bar a subsequent suit for mesne profits in respect of the same property. 4 R. 103=95 I.C. 380=1926 R. 137. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 36=185 I.C. 702; 1940 Mad. 934=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 487 (Prior suit for cancellation of deed is no bar to subsequent suit for mesne profits). A prior suit for possession does not bar a suit for mesne profits due for a period subsequent to the institution of the prior suit. 71 I.C. 972=1923 C. 442; 12 L.L.J. 152. Claims for possession and claims for mesne profits are separate causes of action. 38 M. 828=28 M.L.J. 127 (F.B.). Suit for profits accrued between date of deposit of mortgage-money and delivery of possession is maintainable. 35 I.C. 799. A party is not bound to include mesne profits after the institution of suit though he is required to do so for profits before suit. 32 I.C. 696. See also 49 A. 597=25 A.L.J. 409. The institution of a suit for mesne profits only consequent on dispossession is a bar to a subsequent suit for possession. 29 I.C. 939=9 S.L.R. 23; 1938 A.L.J. 997=1939 A. 52=180 I.C. 356. A suit for proprietary profits against a lambardar does not bar a subsequent suit for mesne profits against the same lambardar and other trespassers. 41 A. 286.

PROFITS.—Where a plaint in a suit for one year's profits was not re-presented after being returned, a subsequent suit for account is not barred under R. 2. 40 M. 291=30 M.L.J. 341. See also 1937 Sind 300.

PARTNERSHIP SUIT.—When a suit for accounts of a partnership has been instituted no second suit for accounts is maintainable in connection with the same partnership, when the claim involved in the second suit could have been included in the prior suit. 158 I.C. 378=1935 L. 321. See also 67 M. L.J. 413. Suit for accounts after previous suit for dissolution of partnership is not barred. 39 P.L.R. 197=1937 Lah. 633.

PARTITION SUIT.—See 20 C. 385; 23 B. 597; 8 M.L.J. 92; 7 B. 182; 23 A. 216; 28 A. 39; 28 A. 50. A subsequent suit for partition of property in one district is not barred merely because the plaintiff had sued for partition and possession of some property in another district. 16 I.C. 383. A suit for partial partition though dismissed does not bar a suit for partition of all joint properties. 87 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 463. Second suit for partition of lands not included in the first suit by mistake or fraud of the defendant is not barred either on the principle of res judicata or R. 2. 130 I.C. 552=1931 S. 27. See also 170 I.C. 946=1937 Rang. 324. But not so where there was intentional omission. 9 I.C. 424. Suit for partition—Subsequent suit for rent barred except as regards rent for the period subsequent to the prior partition suit. 137 I.C. 775=1932 L. 448. Where a property is inherited from the collaterals of the parties to a previous suit for partition, there is no bar to a fresh suit for partitioning the property held by them jointly with other collaterals. 15 I.C. 214. An omission in a suit by the next friend of a minor of a portion of the property to which the minor is entitled, will not bar a second suit by the minor for the partition of property omitted. 45 B. 805; 14 I.C. 95. Where the first suit to set aside order for re-delivery under O. 21, R. 101 is decided against plaintiff a subsequent suit for partition is not barred. 49 M. 596=50 M.L.J. 681=1926 M. 683. A fresh suit for mesne profits is not barred under R. 2, by reason of the plaintiff having already sued and got a decree for partition and separate possession, when in the prior suit the plaintiff did not pray for mesne profits, past or future, and the decree therein said nothing about the same. 59 B. 454=157 I.C. 634=37 Bom.L.R. 336=1935 B. 306. A dismissal of a declaratory suit by reason of the plaintiff not being in possession at the time of suit does not bar his subsequent suit for recovery of possession. 9 L.B.R. 37=37 I.C. 15=10 Bur.L.T. 189. Suit for bare declaration—Subsequent suit for possession not barred. 95 I.C. 892=1926 R. 123; 120 I.C. 509. Suit for mere declaration that property unattachable—Subsequent suit to recover damages for wrongful attachment is not barred. 95 I.C. 219. A suit for possession of property will not be barred by reason of the dismissal of a previous suit for declaration and injunction. 52 I.C. 434; 34 A. 172=13 I.C. 154=9 A.L.J. 111. Where the plaintiff, in a suit for possession on the basis of a lease, omits to include a relief for demolition of the building standing on a portion of the property, and obtains a decree for possession, he cannot afterwards bring a separate suit for that purpose. 155 I.C. 268=1935 P. 222. Where the right to recover possession would arise only on the sale being set aside the plaintiff suing for cancellation of the sale need not pray for possession and a fresh suit for the latter relief will not be barred by section 11 or O. 2, R. 2. 57 B. 456=35 Bom. Prior suit for declaration and possession of certain share—Partition by Collector before decree—Fresh suit for distribution of decreed share to newly formed estates. 15 P.L.T. 747=1934 P. 515. Applicability—Former suit to recover movables—Same occasioned by order of Magistrate—Later suit to recover possession of immovable property—Defendants the same in the suits—Causes of action different—Subsequent suit if barred. 31 Bom.L.R. 1123=1929 B. 460. See also 1938 Lah. 492. Applicability—Prior suit to recover one item of property in the adverse enjoyment of one member—Subsequent suit for remaining property on the basis of tenancy-in-common—Bar. 113 I.C. 785=1929 O. 1. Earlier suit based on a conveyance for difference of the area of the land mentioned in conveyance and actual area is no bar under O. 2, R. 2 to a second suit for a different land on an agreement to convey. 1929 R. 285.

RENT, SUIT FOR.—See 15 C. 145 (F.B.). See also 21 M. 236; 6 C. 791; 12 C. 50; 5 M. H.C.R. 419; 5 C. 24; 27 M. 116; 16 M.L.J. 24. A prior suit for account of rents bars a subsequent suit for rent due prior to the date of the first suit. 46 B. 229=23 B.L.R. 1086; 103 I.C. 74=1927 M. 791; 1937 A.W.R. 867=1937 R.D. 394; 189 I.C. 204. Where rent is in arrears for several months the landlord cannot maintain separate suits for the several instalments but should institute a single suit, the cause of action being the same. The fact that payment is pleaded in one of the suits does not render the separate suits maintainable. Where separate suits are erroneously instituted the effect is that the moment one of the two suits is decreed the other suit must fail. 146 I.C. 351=37 C. W.N. 730=1933 C. 821. The non-inclusion of a claim for rent in the previous suit for possession is not a bar to a subsequent suit for rent. 35 A. 512; 101 I.C. 816 (2); 25 L.

3. (1) Save as otherwise provided, a plaintiff may unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant, or the same defendants jointly; and any plaintiffs having causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly may unite such causes of action in the same suit.

(2) Where causes of action are united, the jurisdiction of the Court as regards the suit shall depend on the amount or value of the aggregate subject-matters at the date of instituting the suit.

NOTES.

W. 11=100 I.C. 40=1927 M. 273. See also 1937 Sind 300. A suit to recover arrears of rent is not barred by reason of an earlier suit for ejectment. 63 I.C. 978. The relationship of owner and trespasser and that of mortgagor and mortgagee are different and the dismissal of a suit for ejectment is no bar to a suit to enforce a right to redeem as mortgagor. 63 I.C. 684. Suit for rent—Second suit for possession and future mesne profits—Suit for mesne profits for the period between the two suits not barred. 97 I.C. 389=1926 M. 1015=51 M.L.J. 252. (38 M. 829, Foll.). See also (1939) 2 M.L.J. 329=1939 M. 724.

SET OFF PLEA OF, set up in previous suit and not pressed may be raised again in a subsequent suit. O. 2, R. 2 is no bar. 1937 O.W.N. 831=1937 Oudh 394.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, SUIT FOR.—See 158 I.C. 1119=18 N.L.J. 76. Suit for specific performance of contract of sale does not bar subsequent suit for possession. 178 I.C. 157=1938 Rang. 290. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 293.

SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE.—The executors under a will declined to pay a legacy to the legal representatives of the legatee, except on production of a succession certificate, but agreed to pay interest thereon. Legal representatives, after first suing for interest alone, subsequently sued for the amount of the legacy after getting succession certificate. Held, R. 2 was no bar to the second suit. 132 I.C. 196=1931 M. 313. [51 A. 439 (P.C.), Rel. on; 8 C. 422; 21 B. 267; 48 M. 703; 18 M. 466; 1922 P.C. 23, Ref.]

RESTITUTION.—Previous application for restitution of a sum of money recovered in execution does not bar a subsequent application for interest due on the said sum. 40 M. 780. The bar which the Code provides in O. 2, R. 2 and section 11, Expl. 4 in regard to suits does not apply to the case of an application for restitution under section 144. Therefore an application by the judgment-debtor for restitution of the principal amount under section 144 does not bar a second application by him to recover interest for the period during which the decree-holder had the use of the money. 153 I.C. 572=1935 A. 195.

WAY, RIGHT OF.—The fact that a right of way was not claimed in a previous title suit does not bar a subsequent suit for declaration of a right of way. 57 I.C. 852.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—Plaintiff sued on a running account for a particular period and obtained a decree. Subsequently he brought a suit on an account for a prior period alleging that the accounts in the two suits were separate. Held, that it was for the defendant to prove that the cause of action in both the suits was the same, in order that second suit may be barred under R. 2. 1933 A. 852.

COURT-FEE.—Dismissal of suit—Rejection of plaint after refusal of permission to withdraw—Failure to give proper valuation and to pay deficit Court-fee—Subsequent suit on the same cause of action—If barrad. 40 C.W.N. 1390. See also 1935 C. 764.

O. 2, R. 2, O. 9, R. 9 and O. 23, R. 1.—On an application by the plaintiff, an amendment of plaint by addition of a relief for possession of the suit property was allowed and he was directed to give the value of the property to put in the deficit Court-fee in view of the relief claimed. On his failure to comply with the order, the Court dismissed his suit in default, on refusing permission to withdraw under O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code. Held, that the proper order in the circumstances would not be a dismissal of the suit, but the rejection of the plaint under O. 7, R. 11, C. P. Code. Held also, that the effect of the order of dismissal would be the same if the Court had passed the order in correct form, namely, an order rejecting a plaint. A fresh suit was therefore not barred either by O. 9, R. 9, O. 23 R. 1 or O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. 1935 C. 764. See also 40 C.W.N. 1380.

O. 2, R. 3: MEANING OF TERMS.—The expression "cause of action" means causes of action which are distinct upon the fact or facts as stated in the plaint itself, or as proved at the hearing. Facts alleged by defendant need not be considered. 7 Bom.L.R. 925; 6 A. 106. See also 5 A. 163 (F.B.). The policy of the rule is to avoid needless expense where it can be done without injustice to any one. 103 I.C. 811 [(1910) 2 K.B. 1021; 1921 K.B. 1, Rel. on]. The words "jointly interested" do not mean jointly interested as a matter of affection, but jointly interested as to the subject-matter of the suit which the causes of action have in contemplation. 6 M. 239 (242). See also 103 I.C. 811; 140 I.C. 317=1932 R. 132.

SCOPE OF RULE.—Rr. 3 to 6 allow a plaintiff to unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant and to order separate trials if necessary. 75 I.C. 438=5 Pat.L.T. 49. Under R. 3 a plaintiff cannot join in the same suit several causes of Only certain claims to be joined for recovery of immovable property.

4. No cause of action shall, unless with the leave of the Court, be joined with a suit for the recovery of immovable property, except—

(a) claims for mesne profits or arrears of rent in respect of the property claimed or any part thereof;

(b) claims for damages for breach of any contract under which the property or any part thereof is held; and

(c) claims in which the relief sought is based on the same cause of action:

Provided that nothing in this rule shall be deemed to prevent any party in a suit for foreclosure or redemption from asking to be put into possession of the mortgaged property.

5. No claim by or against an executor, administrator or heir, as such, shall action against several defendants unless they are all jointly interested in each separate cause of action. 52 I.C. 927=12 Bur.L.T. 106. See also 55 C. 164. A plaint presented by two or more plaintiffs claiming different reliefs against the defendant is not improperly framed nor is it bad for misjoinder of causes of action. 26 M.L.J. 343. See also 140 I.C. 317=1932 R. 132. O. 2, R. 3 is not controlled by Ss. 3 and 4, Limitation Act. (1941) 2 M.L.J. 244.

APPLICATION.—The rule does not apply to suits for rent under the N.W.P. Rent Act. 29 A. 18. A good test to see whether two suits filed separately ought to have been filed together is to see if they could have been filed as one without a misjoinder of defendants. 1 R. 682=1924 R. 161. The cause of action for a personal decree upon the promissory note is incompatible with, and could not be joined to, a cause of action upon the mortgage; for the relief sought in respect of the claim based on a promissory note is a personal decree against the promisors, whereas the decree in a mortgage suit does not impose any personal obligation upon the mortgagor to pay the mortgage debt. 158 I.C. 828=1935 R. 315.

REQUISITES.—Joint interest in the main question raised in the litigation is a condition precedent to the joinder of several causes of action against several defendants. 6 A. 106. Claims against different estates cannot be joined in one suit merely because all such estates are represented by the same person, unless they are based on the same instrument affecting plaintiff's rights against all the estates. 50 I.C. 528=11 Bur.L.T. 222. Though the plaintiffs satisfied two different claims against themselves and the defendant separately, on two different occasions, the causes of action, which were different could be joined in one suit for contribution. 51 I.C. 826. A single suit lies against several alienees to whom different portions of an estate are alienated, although defendants set up different titles to the various portions held by them. 29 A. 267. See also 1901 A.W.N. 115; 29 C. 871. But see 7 B. 290. Where a member of a joint Hindu family sues to set aside the alienations made by the karta of the family ranging over a number of years and all the alienees are made defendants, the various sets of defendants have a community of interest in the sense that they all derive their title from one and the same person (i.e.) the karta, and the cause of action against them is the same as it would have been against the karta, if he were alive, and hence the suit is not bad for misjoinder of causes of action. 1941 A. 209=I.L.R. (1941) All. 370=1941 O.W.N. 457. In a suit for partition and for setting aside a number of alienations, the best course is to order separate trials in respect of each alienation. 8 M. 75. A suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent at an enhanced rate is maintainable. 5 C.W.N. 88. A suit against several persons to whom assets have been wrongfully distributed in execution is valid. 13 C. 159. A mortgagor suing for redemption of a mortgage with possession can join with that claim a claim for rent paid by him to the mortgagee's use. 189 I.C. 109=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 579. Suit on mortgage by assignee of mortgage—Prayer for mortgage decree—Alternative prayer for decree against assignor—No misjoinder. See 22 Pat.L.T. 196. A suit on several mortgages executed in favour of plaintiff on various items of family properties of defendants is not bad. 17 M.L.J. 515. See also 1937 Nag. 99. For other illustrative cases, see 35 B. 297; 12 I.C. 684=15 C.L.J. 258.

O. 2. R. 4.—See 43 Bom. L. R. 293. The rule prohibits not the joinder of several causes of action entitling a plaintiff to recover immovable property, but a joinder with such causes of action, of causes of action of a different character, except as excepted in the rule. 5 M. 161. See also 10 C. 1061; 31 C. 262; 1925 P. 674; 17 M.L.J. 135; 51 B. 800=29 Bom.L.R. 937. A mortgagee who purchases part of the mortgaged property in execution of his decree is entitled in a suit for partition and separate possession of his share, to claim also rendition of accounts regarding that share from those in possession. 159 I.C. 463=1935 Pesh. 161. The new cl. (c) has been inserted in order to avoid the possibility of mistake and to make it clear that there is nothing irregular in seeking to recover in one suit immovable and movable property if the cause of action is the same in both. 19 I.C. 981=4 P.R. 1914.

Claims by or against executor, administrator or heir. be joined with claims by or against him personally, unless the last-mentioned claims are alleged to arise with reference to the estate in respect of which the plaintiff or defendant sues, or is sued as executor, administrator or heir, or are such as he was entitled to, or liable for, jointly with the deceased person whom he represents.

6. Where it appears to the Court that any causes of action joined in one suit cannot be conveniently tried or disposed of together, the Court may order separate trials or make such other order as may be expedient.

Power of Court to order separate trials.

7. All objections on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity and, in all cases where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, unless the ground of objection has subsequently arisen, and any such objection not so taken shall be deemed to have been waived.

Objections as to misjoinder.

NOTES.

Where in a suit for possession of immovable property and for mesne profits different claims have been made in consequence of separate orders having been passed in respect of different parcels of the same property but all these claims are based on the same cause of action, namely, the assertion of the adverse title by the defendant all these claims fall within the purview of cl. (c), R. 4, and the suit is therefore clearly a suit which is permissible under R. 4 without leave of the Court. 156 I.C. 702=1935 S. 129.

APPEAL.—No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application for leave. 3 A. 191.

O. 2, R. 5: SCOPE OF.—The case contemplated by R. 5 is one where the causes of action joined in the same suit are essentially different. 36 I.C. 29. It is contrary to the principle of R. 5 to attach money in the hands of an executor, administrator or heir as such, in execution of a decree against him personally, though the executor is a legatee and the money in his hands is due to him personally as legatee. 38 I.C. 563=9 Bur.L. T. 226.

MEANING OF TERMS.—The word "estate" means not only the "estate" rightly and properly held by executors but also the "estate" in its physical sense. 41 I.C. 615=21 C.W. N. 939. The words "arises with reference to" are very general, and cover a case where the plaintiff's personal claim can only be determined after calculating the amount due to him as administrator. 43 M.L.J. 218=1922 M. 436. A suit by a Hindu widow against the surviving coparceners of her deceased husband to recover stridhanam illegally detained by them and to enforce her right to maintenance is not bad for misjoinder. 38 B. 120. Where promissory notes are passed in the name of a Hindu, his son cannot after his death institute a suit to recover the amounts due thereunder, basing his claim on being the sole surviving coparcener of an undivided family or in the alternative on his being the sole heir and legal representative of his deceased father. The two claims cannot be joined together under the terms of R. 5, and it makes no difference that the second claim is in the alternative to the first. 59 B. 573=37 Bom.L.R. 405=1935 B. 343. A suit by the assignee of a Mahomedan widow, for the recovery of part of the assignor's dower and of part of the estate of the assignor's late husband, does not contravene the provisions of the rule. 18 A. 256. On this rule, see also 31 B. 105. A claim against an executor as such can be joined with a claim against him personally when both the claims arise in reference to the same estate. 41 I.C. 615=21 C.W.N. 939. In an administration suit there can be an enquiry as to accounts of a partnership in which the deceased was a partner and of question of misjoinder of causes of action under O. 2, Rr. 4, 5 and 7. 51 B. 800=29 Bom.L.R. 937=1927 B. 470.

O. 2, R. 6.—On this rule, see 8 M. 75; 1938 Rang.L.R. 397; 8 B. 616. As to the scope of the rule, see 27 M. 80. As to what course the Judge ought to pursue where there has been a misjoinder of causes of action, see 8 W.R. 15; 9 Bom.L.R. 241; 113 I.C. 865=1928 M. 764. An objection as to misjoinder cannot be taken for first time in second appeal. 5 Bom.L.R. 185. As to waiver of objection, see 49 C. 37. The joinder of causes of action and parties is not invariably fatal to the suit. No doubt the misjoinder of claims and parties is to be discouraged when it is calculated to defeat the ends of justice; but such joinder would be unexceptionable unless it is apparent that the defence will be embarrassed by confusing different issues and proofs in the same litigation. Where a mortgagee files a suit against the mortgagors and also against others who had damaged and thereby rendered the mortgage security insufficient, the suit cannot be said to be bad for multifariousness. 1939 N.L.J. 338=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 256=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 63. It is not the intention of the legislature, and where the Court proceeds under O. 2, R. 6, the plaintiff should be required to file separate plaints.

LOC. AM.—[LAHORE]. Add

"8. (1) Where an objection duly taken has been allowed by the Court, the plaintiff shall be permitted to select the cause of action with which he will proceed and shall, within a time to be fixed by the Court, amend the plaint by striking out the remaining causes of action.

(2) When the plaintiff has selected the cause of action with which he will proceed, the Court shall pass an order giving him time within which to submit amended plaints for the remaining causes of action and for making up the court-fees that may be necessary. Should the plaintiff not comply with the Court's order the Court shall proceed as provided in R. 18 of O. 6 and as required by the provisions of the Court-Fees Act."

ORDER III.

Recognized Agents and Pleadors.

1. Any appearance, application or act in or to any Court, required or authorized by law to be made or done by a party in such Court, may, except where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, be made or done by the party in person, or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader <sup>1</sup>[appearing, applying, acting, as the case may be,] on his behalf:

NOTES.

The proper order to pass in such a case is that the plaintiffs should be given an opportunity so to amend his plaint that the allegations against each set of defendants in respect of the various alienations shall be separately set out in order that separate issues may be framed in respect of each transaction, thus enabling the Court to try the suit in sections, each section forming part of the same proceeding and when this has been done, the Court will proceed with the trial of the suit. 1941 O.W.N. 457=I.L.R. (1941) All. 370=1941 A. 209. Court cannot select one claim on which to proceed when plaintiff insists on pressing all. 2 Beng.L.R. at 343. Suit in ejectment of two holdings of different classes—Discretion of Court to order separate trials. 7 L.R. 139 (Rev.). See also 1937 A.L.J. 1139.

TRUST.—Suit for removal of trustee and for possession of trust property wrongfully alienated—Alienees also made defendants—Separate suits if to be instituted. 112 I.C. 649=1928 C. 514.

O. 2, R. 7.—The principle of the exception to the rule against multifariousness recognised before 1908 and now embodied in the rule is that where a party has, without objection, gone to trial on issues on the merits, he will not be allowed to plead after failing on the merits that his was a paramount title and one that ought not to have been adjudicated in the mortgage suit. 10 P. 234=1931 P. 64. See also 33 Bom.L.R. 603; 13 Bom.L.R. 56 (P.C.); 18 Bom.L.R. 763. Issue unnecessary or inappropriate—Raising of, by consent of both parties—Striking of issue subsequently at instance of one party without consent of the other—Power of Court—Mortgage suit—Paramount title—Issue as to. 113 I.C. 865=1928 M. 764.

the intention of acting as a party in the suit. 1926 M. 971=97 I.C. 517=51 M.L.J. 290. The language of this rule means no more than that a recognised agent can appear, make applications and take such steps as may be necessary in the course of the litigation for the purpose of the case of the principal being properly laid before the Court. It cannot justify his being allowed to argue and plead. 161 I.C. 538=1936 O.W.N. 351=1936 O. 261. The words "except where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force" in O. 3, R. 1 do not mean other parts of the Code but refer to laws other than the Code. 193 I.C. 707. It is intended primarily for the moffusil Court. It does not authorise an attorney of the High Court to file an appearance for a limited purpose only in an ordinary case under the civil jurisdiction of the High Court. 36 Bom.L.R. 987=1934 B. 450. An advocate can "act" on behalf of his client and perform all the duties of a pleader. 4 P. 766; 9 A. 617. One pleader can appoint another to hold his brief. 9 A. 613; but the legality of this practice was doubted in 20 B. 293. Pleadors can perform certain ministerial duties through their clerks. 15 C. 638. See also 101 I.C. 205=1927 L. 428 (accepting notice on behalf of client). Pleader appointed by recognized agent of party is duly appointed pleader. 44 M. 736=48 I.A. 584=41 M.L.J. 645=26 C.W.N. 376 (P.C.); 25 I.C. 136=7 Bur.L.T. 199.

O. 3, R. 1 and O. 41, R. 1.—O. 3, R. 1 contains a general provision relating to procedure in Courts and is as much applicable to the presentation of suits as to that of appeals and applications for execution. O. 41, R. 1 is in fact a combination of the provisions of S. 26 and O. 3, r. 1. The presentation of every document in Court must therefore be governed by O. 3, R. 1. The presentation of a plaint, memorandum of appeal, or an application to the munsarim of a Court is undoubtedly an 'act in any Court' so that it is imperative that presentation should be made by the party in

Provided that any such appearance shall, if the Court so directs, be made by the party in person.

Recognised agents.

2. The recognized agents of parties by whom such appearances, applications and acts may be made or done are—

(a) persons holding powers-of-attorney, authorizing them to make and do such appearances, applications and acts on behalf of such parties ; person or by his recognized agent or by pleader. Though the presentation of a plaint by a person not duly authorized is an irregularity curable at the discretion of Court, when no attempt has been made to get it cured in the trial Court, it is too late to get it cured in appeal. A.I.R. 1941 O. 169=1940 O.W.N. 1253.

PRESENTATION OF PLAINT.—As there is no specific rule either requiring or expressly authorising the plaintiff to present the plaint in person, it is doubtful whether O. 3, R. 1 would apply to such a case. If it does not apply the presentation by a person orally authorized to do so would be valid. 134 I. C. 26=1931 A.L.J. 777=1931 A. 507 (S.B.).

POWERS OF PLEADER.—A pleader duly appointed to act for a party can make any application including an application for a reference to arbitration. 34 I.C. 845=9 S. L.R. 183 (14 B. 455, Dis.). A pleader who appears on behalf of a duly empowered pleader, has no power, in the absence of specific authorization, to join in a reference to arbitration. 136 I.C. 712=1932 L. 373. A recognised agent as such has no right of audience. 28 I.C. 838=19 C.W.N. 64. An agent with a power of attorney to appear and conduct judicial proceedings has no right of audience in Court. Nor is he entitled to notice if his principal wants to appear and conduct the proceedings himself in person or appoints an advocate to appear for him. Such a power of attorney agent cannot carry on business as a solicitor or attorney, drafting, engrossing and filing plaint, Judge's summons, affidavits and generally issuing legal process and charge fees to the principal. I.L.R. (1938) M. 12=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 937=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 552 (F.B.). There is no law which requires the vakalat to be dated. 26 M. 197 (199). 102 I.C. 476=1927 L. 552; 1937 R.D. 5. A person alleged to be a lunatic may appear either by vakil or in person. 7 C. 242. Where the power of attorney in favour of the director of a company authorised him "to appear for and on behalf of the company, to conduct and represent the company in the proceedings in the application in the High Court and for the proper prosecution of the proceedings to do all acts as he may deem necessary," held, that the director had no right of audience in Court. The power only authorised him to appear and not to plead. (19 C.W.N. 64, Foll.) 61 C. 324=151 I.C. 753 (1)=1934 C. 563. When an appeal is dismissed for default a fresh vakalat is not needed to enable the vakil to have the appeal re-heard. 15 A. 55. Omission or failure to obtain leave before hand for signing and verifying plaint as plaintiff's agent is only an irregularity. 1925 M. 660=48 M.L.J. 721. Pleader has no power to bind his client by the oath of the opposite party. 34 C.W.N. 310=1930 C. 463. On this section, see also 65 M.L.J. 734=1933 M. 821.

O. 3, Rr. 1 and 4.—The presentation of a plaint by a pleader who is not authorised in writing is not a valid presentation in law. A vakalatnama accepted by the pleader but not signed by the plaintiff is not a proper authority. The omission by the Amending Act of 1926 of the words "duly appointed to act" in R. 1 does not make oral authorisation sufficient. The effect of O. 3, R. 4 read with rule is to make a written authority filed in Court the one and only manner in which the authority of a pleader can be brought to the notice of the Court. 39 C. W.N. 534=62 C.L.J. 277.

O. 3, R. 2: RECOGNIZED AGENTS.—A political agent appointed as the agent of the estate of a minor chief is not a recognized agent. 11 B. 53. A gumasta of a firm ceases to be a recognized agent when the business ceases. 5 Beng.L.R. App. 11. But if engaged in collecting the assets of the firm, he is a recognised agent. 9 Bom.H.C.R. 427. Person looking after Zamindari property of a judgment-debtor is not his recognized agent. 132 I.C. 808=1931 A.L.J. 404=1931 A. 449. O. 3, R. 2 is applicable to proceedings under the Madras Estates Land Act. A person who is looking after a factory on behalf of his master and is doing general business for him in the off-season cannot be regarded as a recognised agent of his master for the purpose of presenting an application on behalf of that another under S. 131 of

(b) persons carrying on trade or business for and in the names of parties not resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which limits the appearance, application or act is made or done, in matters connected with such trade or business only, where no other agent is expressly authorised to make and do such appearances, applications and acts.

LOC. AM.—[BOMBAY]. O. 3, R. 2 (a)

"Persons holding on behalf of such parties either (i) a general power of attorney, or (ii) in the case of proceedings in the High Court of Bombay an Attorney of such High Court or an Advocate, and in the case of proceedings in any district, any such Attorney or any Advocate, or a Pleader to whom a sanad for that district has been issued, holding the requisite special power-of-attorney from parties not resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which limits the appearance, application or act is made or done, authorizing them or him to make and do such appearances, applications and acts on behalf of such parties."

NOTES.

the Madras Estates Land Act to set aside a sale of a holding for arrears of rent. Such a person cannot be held to be a person "carrying on business" under R. 2, in respect of the management of the land of his master, so as to entitle him to apply on behalf of his master under S. 131 of the Estates Land Act. An application to set aside the sale presented by such a person is not validly presented. 1937 M. 293=44 L.W. 567=71 M.L.J. 607.

POWER OF ATTORNEY—CONSTRUCTION—AUTHORITY TO FILE APPEAL.—An appeal is a proceeding in a suit and the prosecution of a suit includes the prosecution of all the proceedings till a final decree is passed. Where a power of attorney authorises the agent to "prosecute the claim", it confers an authority on him to file an appeal. 36 P.L.R. 135=1934 L. 973 (1). See also 151 I.C. 753=61 C. 324=1934 C. 563; 145 I.C. 760; 146 I.C. 363. But where a vakalatnama contains a clause to the effect that fresh power would be necessary to enable the Counsel to act in an appellate Court, the pleader is appointed only for the purpose of performing acts, necessary for proceedings in the first Court and it does not authorize the pleader to file an appeal. 145 I.C. 760=29 N.L.R. 295=1933 N. 219. A vakalat filed by a pleader engaged by an applicant for leave to sue as a pauper under O. 33 is not a vakalat merely for the petition, but becomes a vakalat for the purposes of the suit also, when the petition becomes converted into a suit by operation of law. No fresh vakalat is necessary to conduct the suit, unless the original vakalat is distinctly confined to the pauper application alone. 152 I.C. 132=1934 M. 690=67 M.L.J. 594. Each of two vakalatnamas in the usual form were on two sheets of paper, attached together, the typewritten portion of the authorisation continuing from the first page on to the second. On the first page, appeared the signatures of three petitioners and the second page bore the signature of the fourth. It was beyond question that the first three who had signed on the first page had never seen the second page; the fourth petitioner who had signed the second page had never seen the first page, but in both cases it was equally clear that the device was adopted to save time, that all of them knew what the other sheet was and the purport of what they were signing. Held, that the vakalatnama was the act of all the four of them and perfectly in order. 149 I.C. 596=15 Pat.L.T. 233=1934 P. 290.

O. 3, R. 2 (b).—The agent contemplated by cl. (b) is one who has an initiative and independent discretion. 4 B. 416. See also 16 A. 241 (F.B.); 28 A. 135; 14 M.L.J. 223. A power-of-attorney authorising an agent to do all acts relating to the execution of the decree in favour of the principal is a general power-of-attorney and the agent under the power can act. 38 M. 134=24 M.L.J. 180; 1929 L. 759. See also 33 I.C. 661=18 O.C. 372. Where the vakalat executed by the agent within the period of limitation without the knowledge or approval of the principal has, however, been subsequently ratified by the principal, it is in order even though the ratification was made beyond the period of limitation. 149 I.C. 596=15 Pat.L.T. 233=1934 P. 290 (2). Where a power-of-attorney does not confer the power to confess judgment, a pleader appointed by the power-of-attorney agent has no such power either. 102 I.C. 470=1927 O. 222. Under Bombay High Court rules a person holding general power of attorney can act. 72 I.C. 1003=1923 B. 41 (1). See also 41 B. 40=18 Bom.L.R. 821. A recognized agent cannot prosecute or defend a suit in his own name. 5 Beng.L.R. App. 11; 12 B. 68; 15 W.R. 245. As to filing suit and signing plaint by recognised agent, see 101 I.C. 698=1927 A. 514; 138 I.C. 797=34 Bom.L.R. 628=1932 B. 367.

"CARRYING ON BUSINESS"—MEANING OF.—The expression "carrying on business" in R. 2 (b) must be interpreted in a restricted sense, viz., as relating to commercial business as in section 20. The appearance, application or act made or done must relate to matters connected with the trade or business only. 44 L.W. 567=71 M.L.J. 607. The management of an estate is "business" and the service of summons on the Karinda who carries on the management of the estate under the instructions of the proprietor is sufficient. But he cannot be regarded as an agent authorised by himself to file objections to a Commissioner's report. 12 L.L.T. 13.

BOMBAY AMENDMENT.—The word "persons"

Service of process on recognized agent.

3. (1) Processes served on the recognized agent of a party shall be as effectual as if the same had been served on the party in person, unless the Court otherwise directs.

(2) The provisions for the service of process on a party to a suit shall apply to the service of process on his recognised agent.

<sup>1</sup>[4. (1) No pleader shall act for any person in any Court, unless he has been appointed for the purpose by such person by a document in writing signed by such person or by his recognized agent or by some other person duly authorized by or under a power-of-attorney to make such appointment.

(2) Every such appointment shall be filed in Court and shall be deemed to be in force until determined with the leave of the Court by a writing signed by the client or the pleader, as the case may be, and filed in Court, or until the client or the pleader dies, or until all proceedings in the suit are ended so far as regards the client.]

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> This rule was substituted by S. 2 of Act XXII of 1926.

in the first part of O. 3, R. 2 (a) Bombay Amendment is comprehensive and does not exclude an attorney of the High Court. What is meant under the second part is that an attorney of the High Court can also appear under a special power of attorney. A person who is not an attorney can only act under general power of attorney. The words "requisite power of attorney" do not mean that only a special power of attorney is required, but they mean that special power of attorney must be a proper one. An attorney of the High Court can therefore act both under a general and a special power of attorney, but a person who is not an attorney can only act under a special power. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 295=184 I.C. 673=1939 Bom. 347.

O. 3, R. 4: SCOPE OF.—Rule only provides in what manner and till what time a pleader should be appointed. 48 M. 676=49 M.L.J. 366=1925 M. 1201. O. 3, R. 4 does not lay down an absolute rule, but is subject to the rules of the High Court regulating procedure. 59 C. 370=35 C.W.N. 1100=1932 C. 1. See also 1935 Pesh. 2. An advocate unlike a pleader can be verbally appointed to act on behalf of his client. 4 P. 766=1926 P. 73=92 I.C. 179; 94 I.C. 841=1926 P. 246=5 P. 255. See also 1935 Pesh. 2. To act for a client in Court is to take on his behalf in the Court, or in the offices of the Court, the necessary steps that must be taken in the course of the litigation in order that his case may be properly laid before the Court. But there is nothing in O. 3, R. 4, which prohibits a pleader from delegating some of his functions, and the Code plainly contemplates that certain functions of a ministerial nature may be delegated. 1939 Rang. See also 91 I.C. 30=6 L. 461=1926 L. 32. But see contra 20 C.W.N. 283. A pleader did not accept the vakalatnama in writing, but his name appeared in it and was allowed to appear and conduct the case. Held, there was an acceptance of the vakalatnama by him, and that he had all the powers which are mentioned in the vakalatnama. 61 C.L.J. 193=39 C.W.N. 938=62 C. 642. See also 153 I.C. 937=1935 Pesh. 2; 1937 A.W.R. 80; 1937 R.D. 5. An application for execution of a decree duly signed and verified by the decree-holder was filed in Court and acted on by the Court. The pleader had not, however, filed a vakalatnama along with the petition and on the omission being noticed he filed a vakalatnama duly stamped, but without having been accepted by him. Later the omission was made good, the pleader signing his acceptance in the back of the vakalatnama with the permission of the Court. Held, that the application was in order and was duly filed on the date it was presented to the Court, and that there was nothing wrong about it. 63 C. 733=40 C.W.N. 730. The acceptance must be unconditional. 14 W.R. 7. The writing need not be dated. 26 M. 197 (199). But see 41 I.C. 685; 1937 R.D. 5;

LOC. AM.—[MADRAS.] In sub-rules (1) and (2) to R. 4, substitute the words "a document subscribed with his signature in his own hand" for "in writing signed."

(3) For the purposes of sub-rule (2) an application for review of judgment, an application under S. 144 or S. 152 of this Code, any appeal from any decree or order in the suit and any application or act for the purpose of obtaining copies of documents or return of documents produced or filed in the suit or of obtaining refund of monies paid into the Court in connection with the suit shall be deemed to be proceedings in the suit.

LOC. AM.—[BOMBAY.] In sub-rule (3) the words "or any application relating to such appeal" shall be inserted between the words "order in the suit" and "and any application or act."

(4) The High Court may, by general order, direct that, where the person by whom a pleader is appointed is unable to write his name, his mark upon the document appointing the pleader shall be attested by such person and in such manner as may be specified by the order.

LOC. AM.—[PATNA.] Substitute for O. 3, R. 4 (4):—

"Notwithstanding anything contained in O. 3, R. 4 (3) of the First Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, no advocate shall be entitled to make or do any appearance, application or act for any person unless he presents an appointment in writing, duly signed by such person or his recognised agent or by some other agent duly authorised by power of attorney to act in this behalf; or unless he is instructed by an attorney or pleader duly authorised to act on behalf of such person."

As such no fresh power of attorney is necessary to make an application for the restoration of the suit as he is authorized to do all acts necessary for its prosecution. 10 L. 570=114 I.C. 76=1929 L. 96. So also pleader can present petition for restoration of suit dismissed for default without a fresh vakalatnama. 1938 N.L.J. 98=1938 Nag. 272. An application to set aside an ex parte decree or dismissal order is part of the proceedings in a suit and so in the same way to oppose or consent to such an application is also part of the proceedings in a suit. Hence ordinarily a pleader appointed for the purposes of suit has power to consent to the restoration of the suit dismissed for default. He does not require a fresh power or appointment for that purpose. 1941 Rang.L.R. 254. R. 4 takes no notice of the termination of an appointment of a pleader by mutual consent between him and his client unless and until the Court is apprised of the fact by writing in the manner stated in the rule and leave of the Court obtained. 1930 L. 134=31 P. L.R. 551. A pleader who appears on behalf of another pleader engaged by a party, can appear for the latter pleader only "to plead" on behalf of the party, but he has no power "to act" on his behalf without a document in writing being executed in his favour in the manner prescribed by R. 4. The presentation of an appeal amounts to "acting" and not "pleading". If the appellant engages a certain Advocate for filing the appeal and duly executes a power of attorney in his favour, he alone could present the appeal. Where the memorandum of appeal presented in Court is not signed by him but by another Advocate for him, there is no proper appeal before the Court. 17 L. 610=163 I.C. 141=1936 L. 500. The mechanical act of handing over an appeal to the clerk of Court or another officer appointed for receiving appeals does not amount to "acting" as contemplated by O. 3, R. 4. It is only a ministerial work and similar in nature to the payment of process-fee, etc., which the clerks of counsel usually do. Consequently another counsel can present an appeal on behalf of the counsel duly authorized under O. 3, R. 4 without a document in writing authorising him to do so. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 1. But see 17 Lah. 610=1936 Lah. 500. A party appointed a general agent to conduct litigation on his behalf and gave him all powers necessary for conduct of case. The agent appointed a pleader by a vakalatnama duly signed and filed and gave him power to appoint another pleader if necessary. The pleader in his turn appointed another pleader by a vakalatnama duly signed by himself and such pleader filed the appeal. Held, that the appeal was properly constituted as the agent was duly authorized under the power of attorney to give a pleader a power to appoint another pleader and the pleader who filed the appeal had been duly authorized by the pleader engaged by the agent. 19 N.L.J. 207=1937 N. 65. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 138.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.—As to power of pleader to join in reference to arbitration, see 136 I.C. 712=1932 L. 373; 34 I.C. 845, cited under O. 3, R. 1, supra.

LIMITATION.—The appellant's advocate filed the appeal on the last day of limitation with a telegram attached to it authorising him to file the appeal and stating that the power of attorney was being sent by post. Nine days later the power of attorney was filed. Held, that the appeal was not presented within time. 33 P.L.R. 517 (1). A pleader who has not been appointed by a document in writing as required by R. 4, is wanting in capacity or competence to act. If a pleader purports to do something which he has no power or capacity to do, it can have no legal effect. The presentation of an execution petition by a pleader who holds no vakalat from the decree-holder is a nullity. An execution petition presented by such a pleader though in proper form and duly signed by the decree-holder is not an application "in accordance with law" within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act, and cannot therefore operate as a step-in-aid, especially when the application was ultimately withdrawn and dismissed without any execution really taking place. Quære: Whether if anything has really been done upon such an application, it can be treated as mere waste paper. 165 I.C. 659=44 L. W. 528=71 M.L.J. 604. See also 1937 R. D. 99. It is contrary to the spirit of justice that a litigant should fail simply because, through some perfectly bona fide and reasonable mistake, the Counsel appearing for a party is not duly authorized. Where it appears that he is not duly authorized, it will doubtless be the duty of the Court in question to treat the proceedings that he has set on foot as of no effect; still the Court should so far as is possible, safeguard the litigant from his litigation coming to so unsatisfactory a conclusion, by pointing out to him the desirability of making the necessary application to set the matter on foot again, and, if an application is made, be indulgent as regards time, and should give effect to the provisions, in a suitable case, of S. 5, Limitation Act. 1937 N. 65.

AUTHORITY OF PLEADER ENGAGED IN TRIAL COURT—AUTHORITY IN APPEAL.—R. 4 (2) provides that every appointment of a pleader shall be filed in Court and shall be deemed to be in force until all proceedings in the suit are ended so far as the client is concerned. So where a pleader validly represents a party in the trial Court, he can present a memorandum of appeal on behalf of his client and prosecute the appeal. 165 I.C. 274=1936 L. 583. If the appointment of a pleader is not specifically revoked and the engagement is not specifically limited to acting in the trial Court, the statutory provisions of R. 4 apply and the counsel must be held to have been duly authorised to appear in the appellate Court. 146 I.C. 363=1933 Pesh. 67. See also 36 P.L.R. 135=1934 L. 973; 151 I.C. 753=61 C. 324=1934 C. 563; 145 I.C. 760=29 N.L.R. 295=1933 N. 219.

O. R. R. 4 (5).—See 5 Bur.L.J. 221. O. 3, R. 4 (5) is inconsistent with the rules of the Calcutta High Court framed under

- (a) the names of the parties to the suit ;
- (b) the name of the party for whom he appears ; and
- (c) the name of the person by whom he is authorized to appear :

Provided that nothing in this sub-rule shall apply to any pleader engaged to plead on behalf of any party by any other pleader who has been duly appointed to act in Court on behalf of such party.]

LOC. AM.—[MADRAS.] Insert as Cl. (6) to O. 3, R. 4, C. P. Code :—

“(6) No Government or other pleader appearing on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council, or on behalf of any public servant sued in his official capacity, shall be required to present any document empowering him to act.”

5. Any process served on the pleader of any party or left at the office or Service of process on pleader ordinary residence of such pleader, and whether the same is for the personal appearance of the party or not, shall be presumed to be duly communicated and made known to the party whom the pleader represents, and, unless the Court otherwise directs, shall be as effectual for all purposes as if the same had been given to or served on the party in person.

LOC. AMS.—[MADRAS.] At the end of rule add—

[NAGPUR.] In R. 5, substitute the words “on a pleader who has been appointed to act for any party” for the words “on the pleader of any party.”

[PATNA.] Add—

“(5-B) Notwithstanding anything contained in O. 3, sub-rules (2) and (3) of R. 4 of the First Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, no pleader shall act for any person in the High Court, unless he has been appointed for the purpose in the manner prescribed by sub-rule (1) and the appointment has been filed in the High Court.”

6. (1) Besides the recognized agents described in R. 2 any person residing Agent to accept service. within the jurisdiction of the Court may be appointed an agent to accept service of process.

(2) Such appointment may be special or general and shall be made by an Appointment to be in writing and to be filed in Court. instrument in writing signed by the principal, and such instrument or, if the appointment is general, a certified copy thereof shall be filed in Court.

LOC. AM.—[SIND.] Add the following as sub-R. (3) to R. 6 of O. 3:—

“(3) The Court may at any stage of a suit and whether upon application made to it, or of its own motion, direct any party to the suit : not having a recognised agent residing within the jurisdiction of the Court, to appoint within a time to be specified, an agent within the jurisdiction of the Court to accept service of process on his behalf. To every appointment made under the sub-rule the provisions of sub-rule (2) shall be applicable.”

NOTES.

S. 37, Letters Patent, and O. 3, R. 4 (5) being contrary to rules, under S. 37 the latter must prevail. 1932 C. 1=59 C. 370 =35 C.W.N. 1100.

TERMINATION OF POWER OF ATTORNEY—TRANSFEREE COURT, IF EMPOWERED TO GRANT LEAVE.—The Court which is contemplated by O. 3, R. 4 (2) includes not only the Court where the original power of attorney is filed but also in view of the provisions of S. 150, the Court to which a case is subsequently transferred. A Court which has ceased to exercise jurisdiction in a case cannot grant leave to determine a power of attorney. 158 I.C. 922=1935 Pesh. 145.

O. 3, R. 5: NOTICE SERVED TO PLEADER—PRESUMPTION OF COMMUNICATION OF CLIENT.—Under R. 5, there is a presumption that notice which was served on the pleader is communicated to the client. The only method by which a pleader can avoid his duty of communicating notices served upon him is to file a document in writing under R. 4, sub-Cl. (2) showing that his authority is determined. Else the irrebuttable presumption under R. 5 arises. 152 I.C. 589 (1)=1934 P. 592.

ORDER IV.

Suit to be commenced by a plaintiff. 1. (1) Every suit shall be instituted by presenting a plaint to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf.

(2) Every plaint shall comply with the rules contained in Orders VI and VII, so far as they are applicable.

LOC. AMS.—[ALLAHABAD.] O. 4, R. 1:—

“(1) Every suit shall be instituted by presenting to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf a plaint, together with a true copy for service with the summons upon each defendant unless the Court for good cause shown allows time for filing such copies.

(2) The Court-fee chargeable for such service shall be paid in the case of suits when the plaint is filed and in the case of all other proceedings when the process is applied for.”

Sub-rule (2) will be sub-rule (3).

[OUDH.] 1. (1) Same as original sub-rule (1) of the Allahabad High Court.

(2) To the above sub-rule (2), add the following words:—

“and, except with the permission of the presiding officer, for reasons to be recorded, no plaint shall be admitted until the necessary process-fee has been paid into Court.”

[NAGPUR.] Substitute the following for R. 1 (1):—

Add the following as sub-rule (2) to R. 1 and re-number the present sub-rule (2) as sub-rule (3)—

NOTES.

O. 4, R. 1.—The date on which the plaint is presented to the Court or to the officer appointed in that behalf is the date on which it is instituted, although it is not admitted until a subsequent date owing to insufficiency of Court-fee. In this respect the language of O. 4 is in conformity with S. 3 of the Limitation Act. The date of presentation of the plaint, and not the date of its admission, is the date of institution for purposes of S. 10. The entry in the Register of suits as to the date of presentation is only prima facie evidence of the date of presentation, but not conclusive. 62 C. 1115. The absence of signature or verification or for the matter of that the absence of presentation on the part of some of the plaintiffs out of several does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court and the suit must be deemed to have been duly instituted on their behalf if it was filed with their knowledge and authority. 134 I.C. 26=1931 A.L.J. 777=1931 A. 507 (S.B.). The omission to comply with the provisions regarding presentation of plaint is a mere irregularity and not an absence of jurisdiction, and if a person presenting it is not properly authorized the presentation would be irregular and the Court would have the discretion to allow the irregularity to be cured. If the plaintiff has acted in good faith and without gross negligence and it is fair and just to allow the defect to be cured, the Court would do so by directing an amendment of the plaint. (Ibid.) Presentation of plaint at residence of Judge after Court hours is valid. 65 I.C. 674=1922 N. 167; 20 L.W. 655=82 I.C. 928; 47 M. 312=46 M.L.J. 78. But see 7 N. W.P.H.C.R. 5 (contra). The placing a petition on the table when the officer is not present, is not a presentation to him. 3 N. W.P. 341. Where the same Judge has to preside over two Courts in different places the presentation of a plaint to him when presiding at one place, with reference to property within the jurisdiction of the other Court, is a valid presentation. The Judge has jurisdiction to accept such a plaint. 1939 N.L.J. 503. The presentation of petition to clerk not valid. 14 I.C. 221. But presentation to the Head Ministerial Officer is legal and proper where authorised to receive plaints. 40 I.C. 587=6 L.W. 18. See also 40 M.L.J. 229=13 L.W. 321. Presentation out of office hours. See 23 I.C. 360; 82 I.C. 928=20 L.W. 655. The reception of a plaint on a Sunday or other holidays is not illegal. 11 W.R. 537; 16 W.R. 231. Presentation of plaint—Time and place—Presentation to clerk outside Court house and outside Court buildings is valid. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 136=38 Bom.L.R. 1196=1937 B. 25. District Court is not competent to receive the plaint which is to be presented to Sub-Court. 10 B.H.C. 495. A Nazir of a Court of Small Causes is not authorised to receive plaints. 18 W.R. 172. Also a karkum left in charge of a Court during the vacation. 6 B.H.C. (A.C.) 254. Where according to the practice laid down in Vol. I, Ch. 1-B, R. 4 of the Rules and Orders of the High Court of Lahore, a plaintiff presents his plaint to the District Judge and the District Judge then sends it for disposal to a Subordinate Court, the real date of presentation of the plaint is the date on which it is presented to the District Judge and not the date on which it is sent to the Subordinate Court. 1935 S. 225.

2. The Court shall cause the particulars of every suit to be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose and called the register of civil suits. Such entries shall be numbered in every year according to the order in which the plaints are admitted.

LOC. AM.—[CALCUTTA.] In O. 4, R. 2, insert the following words after the words “particulars of every suit” :—

ORDER V.

ISSUE AND SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

Issue of Summons.

1. (1) When a suit has been duly instituted a summons may be issued to the defendant to appear and answer the claim on a day to be therein specified :

Summons. Provided that no such summons shall be issued when the defendant has appeared at the presentation of the plaint and admitted the plaintiff's claim.

(2) A defendant to whom a summons has been issued under sub-rule (1) may appear—

(a) in person, or

(b) by a pleader duly instructed and able to answer all material questions relating to the suit, or

(c) by a pleader accompanied by some person able to answer all such questions.

(3) Every such summons shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court.

LOC. AM.—[OUDH.] O. 5, R. 1-A:—

“A party shall file with his application for the issue of a summons to the defendant or opposite party a printed summons form, in duplicate, one part being in the Urdu and the other in the Nagri character, duly filled up, except in respect of the date of appearance and of the summons, in a bold, clear and easily legible handwriting : provided that—

(a) if the party to be served is a European British subject, the party applying for the issue of the summons shall file a special form which shall be filled up in English, and

(b) the presiding officer may, in his discretion, direct that such forms in general or that any such particular form be filled up entirely in the office of the Court.”

Copy or statement annexed to summons.

2. Every summons shall be accompanied by a copy of the plaint or, if so permitted, by a concise statement.

NOTES.

O. 5, R. 1.—It is the duty of a Judge on receiving a plaint to issue a summons on a defendant even if he is a minor. 14 C. at 217. But see 26 C. 267. Appearance by pleader instructed only to apply for an adjournment is not appearance in person or by pleader. 24 M.L.J. 235=18 I.C. 360; 92 I.C. 517=1926 M. 971=51 M.L.J. 290; 99 I.C. 717=1927 R. 46; 4 R. 408. The onus of proof of service is on plaintiff. 52 C. 453. The report of a peon that a summons or notice was served on a person is not evidence as to service unless the person is examined and the report is proved. 91 I.C. 711=1926 C. 539.

‘APPEARANCE.’—All that appears to be necessary for a party to ‘appear’ is for the party to be present in Court. If the appearance is by a pleader, unless he is able to answer all material questions or is accompanied by some one who can, there is no appearance, and, for this reason, when the only representative of the party in Court is a pleader who is only instructed to ask for an adjournment, there is no appearance in the case itself, because directly the Court leaves the question of adjournment aside and goes on to deal with the main question there is no appearance by the party or by any properly instructed pleader. But where both the pleader and party appear and the pleader withdrew from the case on the refusal of the Court to grant adjournment, the party must be deemed to have appeared. The purpose for which he appears or the action which he takes on appearance is immaterial. 1935 R. 123.

LOC. AM.—[ALLAHABAD AND OUDH.] In O. 5, R. 2 omit the words “or, if so permitted, by a concise statement.”

3. (1) Where the Court sees reason to require the personal appearance of the Court may order defendant defendant, the summons shall order him to appear or plaintiff to appear in person. in person in Court on the day therein specified.

(2) Where the Court sees reason to require the personal appearance of the plaintiff on the same day, it shall make an order for such appearance.

No party to be ordered to appear in person unless resident within certain limits.

4. No party shall be ordered to appear in person unless he resides—

(a) within the local limits of the Court's ordinary original jurisdiction, or

(b) without such limits but at a place less than fifty or (where there is railway or steamer communication or other established public conveyance for five-sixths of the distance between the place where he resides and the place where the Court is situate) less than two hundred miles distance from the Court-house.

LOC. AM.—[ALLAHABAD.] O. 5, R. 4-A:—

“Except otherwise provided, in every interlocutory proceeding and in every proceeding after decree in the trial Court, the Court may, either on the application of any party or of its own motion, dispense with service upon any defendant who has not appeared or upon any defendant who has not filed a written statement.”

Summons to be either to settle issues or for final disposal.

5. The Court shall determine, at the time of issuing the summons, whether it shall be for the settlement of issues only, or for the final disposal of the suit; and the summons shall contain a direction accordingly:

Provided that, in every suit heard by a Court of Small Causes, the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit.

LOC. AM.—[MADRAS.] Delete the first paragraph of R. 5 in O. 5 and substitute the following in lieu thereof:—

(1) for the settlement of issues only; or (2) for the defendant to appear and state whether he contests or does not contest the claim and directing him if he contests to receive directions as to the date on which he has to file his written statement, the date of trial and other matters and if he does not contest for final disposal of the suit at once; or (3) for the original disposal of the suit; and the summons shall contain a direction accordingly.”

6. The day for the appearance of the defendant shall be fixed with reference to the current business of the Court, the place of residence of the defendant and the time necessary for the service of the summons; and the day shall be so fixed as to allow the defendant sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on such day.

Summons to order defendant to produce documents relied on by him.

7. The summons to appear and answer shall order the defendant to produce all documents in his possession or power upon which he intends to rely in support of his case.

LOC. AM.—[LAHORE.] Substitute the following for R. 7, O. 5:—

“The summons to appear and answer shall order the defendant to produce all documents in his possession or power upon which he bases his defence or any claim for set-off and shall further order that where he relies on any other documents (whether in his possession or power or not) as evidence in support of his defence or claim for set-off, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added or annexed to the written statement.”

NOTES.

O. 5, R. 3.—There are only two cases in which the personal appearance of the plaintiff can be required and these fall under O. 5, R. 3 and O. 10, R. 4. 140 I.C. 716=1932 N. 135. R. 3 is confined to those cases in which the Court before issues are framed desires the personal attendance of a party. Besides, a Court acting under R. 3 cannot compel the attendance of a party who is pardanashin. Such an order would be against the provisions of S. 132. 55 A. 666=1933 A.L.J. 1384=1933 A. 551.

O. 5, R. 6.—Where the time allowed is manifestly insufficient, the appellate Court will interfere. 3 M.H.C. 167. See also 9 B.H.C. 138.

On issue of summons for final disposal, defendant to be directed to produce his witnesses.

8. Where the summons is for the final disposal of the suit, it shall also direct the defendant to produce, on the day fixed for his appearance, all witnesses upon whose evidence he intends to rely in support of his case.

Service of Summons.

9. (1) Where the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is instituted, or has an agent resident within that jurisdiction who is empowered to accept the service of the summons, the summons shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be delivered or sent to the proper officer to be served by him or one of his subordinates.

Delivery or transmission of summons for service.

(2) The proper officer may be an officer of a Court other than that in which the suit is instituted, and, where he is such an officer, the summons may be sent to him by post or in such other manner as the Court may direct.

10. Service of the summons shall be made by delivering or tendering a copy thereof signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, and sealed with the seal of the Court.

Mode of service.

LOC. AMS.—[LAHORE.]

"Provided that in any case if the plaintiff so wishes, the Court may serve the summons in the first instance by registered post (acknowledgment due) instead of in the mode of service laid down in this rule."

[N.-W.F.P.] Add the following proviso:—

"Provided that in any case the Court in its discretion may attempt to serve the summons in the first instance by registered post instead of in the mode of service laid down in this rule; and provided always that should the defendant not appear in answer to the summons so issued, the Court shall have service effected in accordance with the provisions of this Order."

[PATNA.] To rule 10 of O. 5, the following proviso shall be added:—

"Provided that in any case the Court may of its own motion, or on the application of the plaintiff, send the summons to the defendant by post in addition to the mode of service laid down in this rule. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant or an endorsement by postal servant that the defendant refused to take delivery may be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service."

Service on several defendants.

11. Save as otherwise prescribed, where there are more defendants than one, service of the summons shall be made on each defendant.

Service to be on defendant in person when practicable, or on his agent.

12. Wherever it is practicable, service shall be made on the defendant in person, unless he has an agent empowered to accept service, in which case service on such agents shall be sufficient.

NOTES.

O. 5, R. 9.—Residence is not synonymous with ownership for purposes of the service of summons. 38 C. 394. In mofussil Courts the "proper officer" is the Nazir. 13 B. 500. A special bailiff cannot be sent to serve a civil process in foreign territory. 2 B.L.R. (A.C.) 59. O. 5, R. 15: PARDANASHIN LADY—MODE OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS.—A pardanashin lady cannot be considered to be a person who cannot be "personally served," even though it may not be possible for the process-server to have access to her. It is the duty of the process-server to make an attempt to find ways and means of delivering or tendering the summons to the pardanashin lady for whom it is intended. He can very often find some one living with her on in the neighbourhood, male or female, who can take the summons to her. If the pardanashin lady accepts service, it is personal service as contemplated by Rr. 10 and 15 of O. 5. He should in ordinary cases obtain the attestation of the witness taking the summons to the pardanashin woman concerned which should also be done in case of refusal by her to accept the summons. If the process-server cannot find any one, male or female, who can take the summons to her, it may be a

The provision of R. 19 will apply to all cases in which return of summons is made under R. 17 whether due to absence or refusal of person to be served. Even in the case of a refusal, unless there is a declaration by the Court that the service under R. 17, is sufficient as required by the provisions of R. 19 any order passed by the Court in the absence of judgment-debtor will not constitute as res judicata. 1937 M. 84. Rule 19 of O. 5, C. P. Code, casts a duty on the Court, when a summons is returned under R. 17, to either declare that the summons has been duly served or to order such service as it thinks fit. It is not enough for the Court to merely act mechanically on the affidavit of the serving officer. The rule requires that the Court ought to be satisfied on the affidavit of the serving officer and on the verification in the return that it can safely declare the summons properly served. When there is no such declaration, the mere fact that the Court declares the defendant ex parte, does not lead to the conclusion that the Court has impliedly made such a declaration of due service. There must be a strict compliance with R. 19. 1937 M.W.N. 184 (2). See also 71 M.L.J. 317=1936 M. 812. (Summons not personally served—Omission to declare service sufficient—Effect).

PRINCIPLE OF CONSTRUCTIVE res judicata—APPLICABILITY OF.—When a notice of an execution application is ordered by Court to be served on the defendant and the notice has to be affixed to the door of the dwelling-house owing to the reported absence of the defendant, the Court must either declare it sufficient or order such service as it thinks fit, as it is imperatively required to do so under R. 19 and in a case where it is sought to apply the constructive principle of res judicata against the defendant, the omission of the Court to make such a declaration as enjoined by the Code is fatal. 1933 M. 466=64 M.L.J. 329. Where the notice of the application for arrest was fixed on the outer-door of the defendant's residence when he was absent and there was no declaration by the Court under R. 19, that the notice was duly served. Held, that it was not due service for the purpose of creating constructive res judicata and that the defendant was not precluded from showing that the application was out of time. (1927 M. 813; 55 M. 233 and 40 M. 1016, Foll.) 142 I.C. 765 = 1933 M. 406 = 64 M.L.J. 637.

O. 5, R. 20.—The advisability of effecting service by substituted service is a matter primarily for the trial Court and if it is satisfied on the matters set out in R. 20, it should order substituted service, which is as effectual as if service was made personally. An appellate Court has no power to go into the question whether the substituted service ought to have been ordered unless the trial Court has made some error of law. All that the appellate Court can see is whether the summons is issued according to law. 131 I.C. 344 = 1931 L. 118 (102 I.C. 243, Foll.) Substituted service when to be ordered. 69 I.C. 467; 48 I.C. 28 (30); 120 I.C. 594. See also 138 I.C. 146 = 1932 M. 472. Under O. 5, R. 20 (2), service substituted by the order of the Court is as effectual as if it had been made on the defendant personally, but, it does not follow that substituted service is necessarily due service, the adequacy of which can never be questioned by the party concerned. 171 I.C. 617 = 1937 O.W.N. 1141. Substituted service may or may not be sound service. It is not sound service if the person on whom the notice was sought to be served can prove that in actual fact he was not evading service and knew nothing whatever about the hearing in question. 1938 A.M.L.J. 124. See also 1937 O.W.N. 141. "Effectual", meaning of, see 1939 Rang.L.R. 606. From the mere fact that when the notice of execution was taken to the house of the judgment-debtor for the first time, the house was found to be locked, it is very unsafe to infer that he was avoiding service; and it is not proper to order substituted service in such case. 1940 O.A. 864 = 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.). 141. Where in an order for fresh summons a Court remarked that "if the defendant evaded service or could not be found after due care and diligence substituted service would be effected', it was held that such a conditional order was illegal, as it was for the Court and not for the serving officer to determine whether there was evasion of service. O. 5, R. 20 allows substituted service only when the Court is satisfied that defendant is evading service. 1938 A.M.L.J. 43. If at the time substituted service is ordered the Court is satisfied as to the grounds for the order, it is doubtful, if it can be invalidated by showing that its belief was erroneous. 138 I.C. 146 = 1932 M. 472. Affixing of summons on outer-door is not sufficient service. 29 I.C. 26. Copy attached to tree near house if sufficient. 69 I.C. 549 = 1923 N. 13. Where the Court finds that the defendants evaded service and refused postal notices, a finding that there was no due service is inconsistent. 1930 M.W.N. 1227. When substituted service is ordered sufficient time ought to be given for notice of the fact to reach the defendant, wherever he may be. 2 B. 449. The publication of a notice in a newspaper in Lahore requiring a party at Hardoi to appear in Gurdaspur Court on the next day of issue of the paper is not valid substituted service. 116 I.C. 620 = 1929 L. 235. The mode of substituted service must be settled according to the circumstances of each case. 10 B. at 205. Notice affixed to the judgment-debtor's house occupied by other members of his family is good service. 130 I.C. 485 = 1931 A.L.J. 62 = 1931 A. 159. The rule that substituted service is to be taken as effectual as personal service only means that the Court hearing the case may proceed with the suit as if the summons had been personally served on the defendant. But if for no fault of the defendant a defendant was never put in a position to know that a suit had been instituted against him whatever steps might have been taken for serving the summons on him, these steps can never be taken as amounting to "due service". It is therefore open to the defendant, when he appears to show that the method employ-

20-A. (1) Where the defendant resides in British India outside the province of Oudh or within the limits of headquarters town of a district in that province, a summons may be served on him by registered post, and in this case, where an acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant or an endorsement by a postal servant that the defendant refused service has been received, the process, shall, unless the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been served.

(2) Where the registered address of the defendant or opposite party, as defined in O. 8, R. 11, is within the limits of a headquarters town or of a municipality of India (including Burma) or Ceylon, a notice, summons or other process may be served on him at that address by registered post and such service shall be deemed to be as effectual as if the notice or process had been personally served.

[RANGOON.] After R. 20, the following shall be inserted as R. 20-A, namely :—

" 20-A. (1) Every plaintiff, appellant or applicant on presenting or on entering an appearance to prosecute a plaint, memorandum of appeal, or originating petition or application, shall at the same time file in Court a proceeding stating his address for service.

(2) Every defendant or respondent who intends to appear and defend any suit, appeal or originating petition or application shall on or before the date fixed for his appearance in the summons or notice served on him file in Court a proceeding stating his address for service.

(3)* Such address for service shall be within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit, appeal, or petition or application is filed or of the District Court within whose jurisdiction the party ordinarily resides.

(4) Where any party fails to file an address for service as required by sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2), he shall, if a plaintiff, appellant or applicant, be liable to have his suit, appeal, petition or application, dismissed for want of prosecution, and if a defendant or respondent, be liable to have his defence, if any, struck out and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended. Any party may apply for such an order against an opposite party, and the Court may on such application make such order as it thinks just.

(5) Where a party is not found at the address given by him for service, and no agent or adult member of his family on whom a notice or process can be served is found at the address, a copy of the notice or process shall be affixed on the outer door or some other conspicuous part of the house or place which has been given as the address for service; and such service shall be deemed, to be as effectual as if the notice or process had been personally served on the party.

(6) Where a party is represented by an advocate or pleader notices or processes for service on him shall be served in the manner prescribed by O. 3, R. 5, unless the Court directs service at the address for service given by such party.

(7) A party who desires to change the address for service given by him under sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2) shall present a verified petition to that effect, and the Court may direct the amendment of the record accordingly. Notice of every such petition shall be given to all other parties to the proceedings.

(8) Nothing in this rule shall prevent the Court from directing the service of a notice or process in any other manner if it thinks fit to do so.

ed was not calculated to effect the purpose of informing the defendant of the institution of the suit, and in order to see whether there was due service or not, the Court must consider all the circumstances of the case, for example, the place where the defendant was when the summons was issued to him and where and how the summons was served. 1931 A.L.J. 1049=1931 A. 727 (F.B.). Even if the defendant is served personally, it is open to him to come to the Court and show that that was not really due service because it did not really give him knowledge of a claim against him. A fortiori it is open to the defendant who is served only by the inference through substituted service to show that he was never properly served at all and that he had no knowledge of the claim. 134 I.C. 1202=1931 M. 813=61 M.L.J. 920. Nor is the defendant precluded from afterwards showing that in fact there had been no service on him at all and that the order for substituted service was procured on misrepresentation of facts. Nor will an order recorded by the Court to the effect that substituted service was effected on the defendant preclude the Court from entering into the merits of the defendant's application in spite of such order. 152 I.C. 830=38 C. W.N. 1066=1934 C. 745. When the order for substituted service is procured and such service is effected on misrepresentation of fact, the service so effected is not due service. (Ibid.). Substituted service obtained by fraud is not due and proper service. 153 I.C. 80=1935 L. 129.

PROCEDURE.—Granting of order for substituted service is at the discretion of the trial Court. Appellate Court will not interfere with such discretion. 102 I.C. 243=1927 M. 507=52 M.L.J. 472. See also 1935 L. 169. Service of summons whenever it is practicable, must be in person and it is only when reasonable grounds exist for believing that the defendant is keeping out of the way to avoid service, or that for other reasons it cannot be served in the ordinary way that substituted service should be ordered. Mere affixing the summons to the defendant's house is not sufficient service. 134 I.C. 279=1931 N. 119 (29 M. 324; 21 M. 419; 2 N.L.R. 62, Foll.). Service of summons where defendant resides within jurisdiction of another Court.

"21-A. The Court may, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing rules and whether the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of the Court or not, cause the summons to be addressed to the defendant at the place where he is residing, and sent to him by registered post pre-paid for acknowledgment, provided that at such place there is a regular daily postal service. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant shall be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service. In all other cases the Court shall hold such enquiry as it thinks fit and declare the summons to have been duly served or order such further service as may in its opinion be necessary."

21-A. [NAGPUR]. The Court may, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing rules, cause the summons of its own Court or of any other Court in British India to be addressed to the defendant at the place where he ordinarily resides or carries on business and sent to him by registered post pre-paid for acknowledgment provided that such place is a town or village in the Akola revenue taluq. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant or an endorsement by a postal servant that the defendant refused service may be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service."

[RANGOON.] In O. 5, the following shall be inserted as R. 21-A :—

"21-A. When any summons is sent for service by a Court to any Court situated beyond the limits of Burma, it shall, unless it is written in English, be accompanied by a translation in English or in the language of the locality in which it is to be served."

Rule 21-A was originally inserted by High Court Notification No. 2502, dated the 15th October 1930, published at page 2621, of the Bombay Government Gazette, for 1930, Part I and it ran as follows :—

"21-A. Service of Summons by prepaid post wherever the defendant may be residing if plaintiff so desires.—Where the plaintiff so desires, the Court may, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing rules and whether the defendant resides within the jurisdiction of the Court or not, cause the summons to be addressed to the defendant at the place where he is residing and sent to him by registered post prepaid for acknowledgment provided that such place is at a town or village in British India which is the head-quarters of a district or recognised sub-division of a district, such as a taluka, tahsil or mahal, or in which a municipality has been established, or to which the provisions of this rule may from time to time be extended by a Notification by the High Court published in the Bombay Government Gazette. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant shall be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service. In all other cases the Court shall hold such enquiry as it thinks fit and either declare the summons to have been duly served or order such further service as may in its opinion be necessary."

REFUSAL TO ACCEPT SERVICE—SUBSTITUTED SERVICE, IF NECESSARY.—It is obligatory on the Court to effect substituted service under

R. 20, only if the summons could not be served in the ordinary way. Where the process-server and the postal peon had reported that the appellant had refused to accept the service and the Court was satisfied about the correctness of their reports. Held, that the Court was entitled to hold that the appellant had been duly served and to proceed ex parte against him. 1935 L. 171.

SUBSTITUTED SERVICE—STATEMENT OF PROCESS-SERVER AS TO—PRESUMPTION FROM—IF REBUTTABLE.—Where the trial Court was careful to obtain the statement on oath of the process-server before passing the ex parte decree, and the trial Court was satisfied that substituted service had been duly effected. Held, that this did not raise any unrebuttable presumption and it was open to the appellant to prove, if he can, that in fact substituted service was not duly effected. However difficult that task may be and however strong the presumption that there was proper substituted service, he must be given an opportunity to rebut the presumption. 157 I. C. 878=1935 Pesh. 112.

TRANSFER OF CASE.—Where the first summons was duly served, and it appeared that he intentionally neglected to ascertain the dates of hearing after the suit was transferred, held, that the ex parte decree passed by the transferee Court could not be set aside for want of due service. 139 I.C. 354=1932 L. 539.

O. 5, R. 21.—Service outside jurisdiction can only be done by an officer of the Court, with an order from a Court having jurisdiction over the place where he resides. 3 R. 239=89 I.C. 870=1925 R. 325. There is no provision of law by which summons may be issued by post on a defendant residing within British India. 1937 A.M.L.J. 70.

22. Where a summons issued by any Court established beyond the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras <sup>1</sup>[and Bombay] is to be served within any such limits, it shall be sent to the Court of Small Causes within whose jurisdiction it is to be served.

LOC. AM.—[BOMBAY.] The following proviso be added to O. 5, R. 22 :—

“ Provided that where any such summons is to be served within the limits of the town of Bombay, it may be addressed to the defendant at the place within such limits where he is residing and may be sent to him by the Court by post registered for acknowledgment. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant or an endorsement by a postal servant that the defendant refused service shall be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service. In all other cases the Court shall hold such enquiry as it thinks fit and either declare the summons to have been duly served or order such further service as may in its opinion be necessary.”

[RANGOON.] The following proviso shall be added, namely :—

“ Provided that where such summons is to be served within limits of the Town of Rangoon, the Court may, in addition to or in substitution of any other mode of service, send the summons by registered post to the defendant at the place within such limits where he is residing or carrying on business. An acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the defendant, or an endorsement by a postal servant that the defendant refused service may be deemed by the Court issuing the summons to be prima facie proof of service thereof.”

23. The Court to which a summons is sent under rule 21 or rule 22 shall, upon receipt thereof, proceed as if it had been issued by such Court and shall then return the summons to the Court of issue, together with the record (if any) of its proceedings with regard thereto.

LOC. AM.—[RANGOON.] The following shall be added as O. 5, R. 23-A :—

“ 23-A. (1) Before re-transmitting a summons, received from another Court for service, the Court shall either take down the deposition of the peon serving the summons as to the time when and the manner in which the summons was served, or cause the peon to make an affidavit before the bailiff if the bailiff has been empowered to administer oaths and shall transmit the same, together with the summons, to the Court whence the summons originally issued. In the case of processes received from other provinces, the deposition or affidavit of the peon serving the summons, if not recorded in English, shall be translated into English, before the summons is returned to the issuing Court.

“ (2) In the case of process received from India if the person on whom the summons is to be served is not personally known to the process-server, an affidavit or deposition by the person who pointed out to the process-server the said person or his ordinary residence or place of business shall also be attached to the summons.

“ (3) When a process is forwarded for service by one Court in Burma to another Court in Burma and when the person on whom the process is to be served is not personally known to the process-server, the case in connection with which the process was issued shall not be heard ex parte without an affidavit or deposition of some person who pointed out to the process-server the person to be served or his ordinary residence. The onus shall be upon the person at whose instance the summons is issued, either himself or by an agent, to point out to the process-server the person on whom the process is to be served or his ordinary residence or place of business.

“ (4) When the summons has been returned by the process-server under R. 17, a declaration of due service or of failure to serve shall be recorded in Form (Civil) 47, and sent with the summons to the Court by which it was issued.”

24. Where the defendant is confined in a prison, the summons shall be delivered or sent by post or otherwise to the officer in charge of the prison for service on the defendant.

Service on defendant in prison.

25. Where the defendant resides out of British India and has no agent in British India empowered to accept service, the summons shall be addressed to the defendant at the place where he is residing and sent to him by post, if there is postal communication between such place and the place where the Court is situate.

30. (1) The Court may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, substitute for a summons a letter signed by the Judge or such officer as he may appoint in this behalf, where the defendant is, in the opinion of the Court, of a rank entitling him to such mark of consideration.

(2) A letter substituted under sub-rule (1) shall contain all the particulars required to be stated in a summons, and, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (3), shall be treated in all respects as a summons.

(3) A letter so substituted may be sent to the defendant by post or by a special messenger selected by the Court or, in any other manner which the Court thinks fit; and, where the defendant has an agent empowered to accept service, the letter may be delivered or sent to such agent.

LOC. AMS.—[ALLAHABAD.] To O. 5, add the following as Rr. 31 and 32 :—

"31. An application for the issue of a summons for a party or a witness shall be made in the form prescribed for the purpose. No other forms shall be received by the Court.

"32. Ordinarily every process, except those that are to be served on Europeans, shall be written in the Court vernacular. ## ORDER VI.

Pleadings generally.

Pleading.

1. "Pleading" shall mean plaint or written statement.

2. Every pleading shall contain, and contain only, a statement in a concise form of the material facts on which the party pleading relies for his claim or defence, as the case may be, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved, and shall, when necessary, be divided into paragraphs, numbered consecutively. Dates, sums and numbers shall be expressed in figures.

NOTES.

O. 6.—The provisions of O. 6 apply to petitions under O. 33. 138 I.C. 652=1932 L. 548. Where a portion of the written statement is too vague and too general to indicate what is meant by the defendant and though no attempt is made on behalf of the plaintiff to seek a clarification of the plea contained therein, it is the duty of the Court to call upon the defendant to furnish definite particulars of the plea. The practice of introducing obscure pleadings with a view to taking the adversary by surprise is open to grave objection and is not unoften likely to lead to grave miscarriage of justice. The law imposes a duty on the Judge to clarify the pleadings. 194 I.C. 588=1941 O.W.N. 801=1941 Oudh 457.

O. 6, R. 1.—Pleadings in Indian Courts must not be construed with the same strictness as in English Courts. 6 A. 406. They must be very liberally construed. 5 C.L.J. 25. An amendment of the pleadings can be allowed at any stage of the proceedings where the sole result of the refusal would be to drive the plaintiff to a separate suit, to avoid which is one of the principal objects of the much wider rule as to amendment which has been introduced into the present Code. A plaint in a suit for rent and possession may be allowed to be amended by the addition of a prayer for declaration of title. 113 I.C. 296=1929 M. 273. A statement by a pleader is not a pleading under O. 6, R. 1. 114 I.C. 113=1929 O. 204.

O. 6, Rr. 1 and 4: SCOPE.—The Court under its inherent jurisdiction, is entitled to interfere and direct particulars if it considers that a litigant is substantially embarrassed owing to lack of precision in a petition or affidavit; and a party disregarding this opponent's request for particulars will be doing so at his own risk. Any relevant statement which could have been incorporated in the petition or furnished by way of particulars will not, on failure to furnish particulars, be allowed to be imported in an affidavit in reply at the hearing of the petition. 165 I.C. 24=40 C.W.N. 913.

O. 6, R. 2.—As to frame of plaint in collision cases, see 25 C.W.N., 519=34 C.L.J. 178. In election enquiry under Municipal Act, in which allegation of corrupt practice is made. See 39 C. W. N. 910. The law of pleadings may be tersely summarised in four words "Plead facts not law". It is the duty of the parties to state only the facts on which they rely for their claim. It is for the Court to declare the law arising out of those facts. 1933 S. 103=143 I.C. 713; 1926 N. 265. Every practitioner when pleading should have particular regard to R. 2. Nearly all pleadings in this country offend against this rule in one way or another. Either they lack conciseness or they state immaterial facts and a mistake, which is frequently made, is to include in the pleading either directly or indirectly by reference to some document annexed, the evidence by which material facts are to be proved. 58 C. 418=134 I.C. 538=1931 C. 458.

ESSENTIALS OF PLAINT.—What it should contain. 22 C.L.J. 254=20 C.W.N. 310. The object of pleadings is to bring the parties to an issue. 25 M.L.J. 329. Inconsistent pleas are not prohibited. 1925 O. 120=27 O.C. 175. Pleas and facts constituting them should be clearly expressed. 6 Pat.L.T. 465=1925 P. 168. Pleadings are confined to facts and a point of law need not be raised in the pleadings. 92 I.C. 926=1926 N. 265. See also 1933 S. 103. In a suit for damages for breach of contract, the defendant may be allowed to give evidence of a previous contract between the parties, although it is not pleaded. The fact can be proved as part of the circumstances, and when the defendant does not rely on it except as evidence, it is not necessary to plead it. 152 I.C. 117=38 C.W.N. 908.

In all cases in which the party pleading relies on any misrepresentation, fraud, breach of trust, wilful default, or undue influence, and in all other cases in which particulars may be necessary beyond such as are exemplified in the forms aforesaid, particulars (with dates and items if necessary) shall be stated in the pleading.

NOTES.

O. 6, R. 3.—Evidence has no place in pleading. 1925 P. 410.

O. 6, R. 4.—In an action for damages for injury done, the nature of the injury ought to be set out. 13 W.R. 246; 10 Bom. H.C. 182. In a suit for money advanced, defendant pleading illegality of contract must clearly plead and prove illegality. 3 R. 275=1925 R. 275. [23 M. 227 (P.C.), Foll.] A custom should be specifically pleaded and all the essential requisites to its validity and binding effect should be proved. 66 I.C. 640=34 C.L.J. 319. Ordinarily a party should not be allowed to prove a custom different from that set up by him. Where plaintiffs set up a particular custom and the defendants in terms deny the custom set up by the plaintiffs and go on to plead different custom it is not permissible in such a case to split up the custom but the case as regards the custom set up either by the plaintiffs or by the defendants must be taken as a whole and not piecemeal. 114 I.C. 113=1929 O. 204. A plea of a special nature must be distinctly pleaded and made the subject of a distinct issue. 25 I.C. 729=18 C.W.N. 622. See also 60 C. 733=37 C.W.N. 504=1933 C. 632. But the omission to set forth particulars and details of the conspiracy, by which the plaintiff has been fraudulently deprived of his property, does not contravene the provisions of R. 4, when the transactions alleged by the plaintiff speak for themselves and furnish internal proof of a well-thought-out design on the part of the defendants to deprive the plaintiff of his property. 152 I.C. 468=11 O.W.N. 1323. Points as to fraud or forgery shall be specifically pleaded. 31 C.W.N. 538=97 I.C. 543=1926 P.C. 109 (P.C.). Fraud of one kind alleged—Relief of another ground cannot be given. 34 C.L.J. 529=26 C.W.N. 177.

See also 24 C.W.N. 662=30 C.L.J. 475. To call a deed both 'fraudulent' and 'bogus' is not a clear piece of pleading. Though fraud may be present in both cases, a deed may be fraudulent without being bogus and hence it is better to keep the two distinct. 1938 N.L.J. 279=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 546. Where a person relies on the fraud of another, it is his duty to say so in his pleadings. In the absence of any pleading, even if there is evidence of fraud, the Court would not be able to consider it. 1941 N.L.J. 230. Charges of fraud and collusion must be proved by those who make them by established facts or inferences legitimately drawn from those facts taken together as a whole. 29 I.C. 482; 45 M.L.J. 363=39 C.L.J. 165=1923 P.C. 73 (P.C.). Suit for money advanced—Defendant pleading illegality of contract—Defendant must clearly plead and prove illegality. 92 I.C. 270=1925 R. 275. Coercion, undue influence, fraud and misrepresentation are all separate categories in law. 39 B. 441=42 I.A. 135 (P.C.). (15 I.A. 119, Ref.) If there are facts on the record to justify the inference of undue influence, the omission to make an allegation of undue influence specifically is not fatal to the plaintiff's case. All that the Court has to see is that there is no surprise to the defendant. 132 I.C. 452=1931 N. 63. Where fraud or coercion or misrepresentation is alleged, it must be supported by particulars. 39 B. 149; and also strictly proved. 13 R. 175=155 I.C. 890=1935 R. 73; 1935 L. 222. New case of fraud must not be allowed to be set up on appeal. 26 Bom.L.R. 622. Plea of estoppel should preferably be raised and issue framed. 1926 M. 1052=96 I.C. 915 (2). Special damage—Particulars to be given. 91 I.C. 728=1926 C. 549. O. 6, R. 5.—If averments in a plaint are not precise, the defendant can apply for particulars. Failure to do so operates as estoppel in second appeal. 1 Pat.L.T. 34=52 I.C. 964. On this rule, see also 137

NOTES.

I.C. 842. O. 6, R. 5 permits merely a further and better statement of the nature of the claim or further and better particulars of any matter stated in any pleading, and not the submission of new material altogether based on an entirely different cause of action. This would be really repugnant to R. 7 of the same Order which unequivocally prohibits the raising of any new ground of claim or the alleging of any fact inconsistent with previous pleadings. 1937 Lah. 795. It is not open to a defendant to make a grievance of any vagueness in the plaintiff's pleadings at an appellate stage because if they so desired, it would be open to them to apply for further and better particulars under R. 5. I. L. R. (1937) 1 C. 491=41 C.W.N. 88=1937 C. 51.

O. 6, R. 5 only permits a better statement of the claim being put in when it is ordered by the Court. If the Court considers that no replication is called for, it has the discretion to reject it. 41 P.L.R. 650=A.I. R. 1939 Lah. 386. Court will not allow a party to take advantage purely on technical grounds which are devoid of any merit. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 498=1937 Nag. 376. Where a plaintiff is ordered to give particulars one of the terms of the order may be that the action shall be dismissed unless the particulars are delivered within a certain time. Where a trial Judge makes an order of dismissal and makes it fairly giving every kind of chance, an appellate Court, if indeed it has any power at all to interfere with such a discretion so judicially exercised, should be exceedingly slow to do so. Broadly speaking, it is not desirable that cases should be lost in this way. It is not desirable that Judges should be stringent where it comes to dealing with litigants who may have gone wrong because of ignorance or wrong advice. It is not advisable on the other hand to allow litigants to take up a contumacious attitude, holding their facts back until they have an opportunity of fishing about in their opponent's evidence. 190 I.C. 719=1940 N.L.J. 307=1940 Nag. 261.

O. 6, R. 6.—Scope of contract—Condition precedent—Specific plea necessary. 94 I.C. 304=1926 L. 318. A claim cannot fail for mere failure to comply with mere technical rules of pleading—especially in the mofussil. 1937 Nag. 345. Where a suit is instituted after the expiration of limitation, the plaintiff should no doubt state the ground of exemption, but where he has stated a particular ground, he is not precluded thereby from relying on any other ground, and particularly when such ground is a ground furnished by an act of the legislature. Where in the plaint, the plaintiff relied only upon an acknowledgment to save limitation, it was held that it was open to him to rely upon S. 5 of the U.P. Temporary Postponement of Execution of Decrees Act, 1937, as saving his suit from the bar of limitation. 1940 O.W.N. 988=1941 Oudh 111. See also 1941 Rang. 37.

O. 6, R. 7.—A plaintiff must be limited to the case which he puts forward in his plaint. 54 I.C. 43. Statement made by a party on being questioned by Court before framing issues is in the nature of a supplementary pleading and no plea inconsistent with it can be raised at a later stage except by way of amendment of pleading. 117 I. C. 813=1929 L. 165. Court can ignore subsequent pleadings. 57 I.C. 684. Amendment of plaint should not be allowed where the object is to get round the effect of some admissions made by the plaintiff himself. 80 I.C. 355 (2). Alternative plea not raised in trial Court cannot be allowed to be set up on appeal. 8 L.R. 156 (Rev.). Section applies even to minors. 1937 P.W.N. 720=1937 Pat. 625.

O. 6, R. 8.—Plea of want of consideration can be raised even when execution of the document is denied. 4 Bur.L.T. 24=9 I.C. 469; 5 C. 684; 13 M. 549; 18 A. 125.

9. Wherever the contents of any document are material, it shall be sufficient in any pleading to state the effect thereof as briefly as possible, without setting out the whole or any part thereof, unless the precise words of the document or any part thereof are material.

Effect of document to be stated.

10. Wherever it is material to allege malice, fraudulent intention, knowledge or other condition of the mind of any person, it shall be sufficient to allege the same as a fact without setting out the circumstances from which the same is to be inferred.

Malice, knowledge, etc.

11. Wherever it is material to allege notice to any person of any fact, matter or thing, it shall be sufficient to allege such notice as a fact, unless the form or the precise terms of such notice, or the circumstances from which such notice is to be inferred, are material.

Notice.

12. Whenever any contract or any relation between any persons is to be implied from a series of letters or conversations or otherwise from a number of circumstances, it shall be sufficient to allege such contract or relation as a fact, and to refer generally to such letters, conversations or circumstances without setting them out in detail. And if in such case the person so pleading desires to rely in the alternative upon mere contracts or relations than one as to be implied from such circumstances, he may state the same in the alternative.

Implied contract or relation.

13. Neither party need in any pleading allege any matter of fact which the law presumes in his favour or as to which the burden of proof lies upon the other side unless the same has first been specifically denied (e.g., consideration for a bill of exchange where the plaintiff sues only on the bill and not for the consideration as a substantive ground of claim).

14. Every pleading shall be signed by the party and his pleader (if any):

NOTES.

O. 6, R. 10.—Allegations of fraud must be taken in the pleadings and must not be allowed to be made at a later stage of the suit. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 180; 15 C. 533 (P.C.). Mere want of diligence is not fraud. 61 I.C. 823=2 Pat.L.T. 401.

PLEA OF INSANITY—PLEADINGS.—Though it may be that a party seeking to avoid the effect of a deed by pleading insanity at the time of execution of the deed is not bound to plead circumstances from which he was bound to establish insanity and though it is permissible for him to lead evidence in proof of general insanity from which an inference of unfit mental condition at the time of the deed could be drawn and the burden lay on the opposite party to prove the contrary, that does not absolve the Court from the liability to scrutinise the pleadings of the parties when pleas have been made and if these pleas appear to be destructive of the case of usual insanity it will not be proper for the final appellate Court of fact to infer usual insanity from the statement of some witnesses ignoring the pleading. 177 I.C. 80=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 204.

O. 6, R. 13.—See 99 I.C. 538=1927 L. 83. Flaw in title appearing from pleadings of person bound to prove it—Objection can be raised on such disclosure—Pleadings. 1929 P.C. 303=124 I.C. 575.

This rule has no application to cases falling under O. 29, R. 1. 21 C. 60 (P.C.). What is required by this rule is that the plaint must be in existence before the signature is put in. 15 A. at 60. See also 22 A. 55; 6 M.L.J. 213; 17 C. at 582 (P.C.). There is no rule providing that a person named as co-plaintiff is not to be treated as a plaintiff unless he signs the plaint. 17 C. at 582 (P.C.); 80 I.C. 141=1925 S. 159.

SIGNATURE, OBJECT OF.—The object of the signature to a plaint is to prevent as far as possible disputes as to whether a suit was instituted with the plaintiff's knowledge and authority or not. 87 I.C. 1002=1925 S. 275; 139 I.C. 114=1932 S. 9. Such authority may be established by other means than the signature. 139 I.C. 114=1932 S. 9. The provisions of R. 14 relate to a mere matter of procedure and any mistake or omission therein may be amended at any time subsequent to the institution of the suit. 1932 S. 9. See also 80 I.C. 141; 104 I.C. 747; 167 I.C. 158=1937 Pesh. 17. R. 14 of O. 6 which requires a pleading to be signed by the parties is merely a matter of procedure. So, where it is found that a suit was duly authorized by a person the question whether his signature was made by him or by somebody else on his behalf be-

Pleading to be signed. Provided that where a party pleading is, by reason of absence or for other good cause, unable to sign the pleading, it may be signed by any person duly authorized by him to sign the same or to sue or defend on his behalf.

LOC. AM.—[CALCUTTA.] O. 6, R. 14-A. Add after R. 14 :—

"14-A. Every pleading when filed shall be accompanied by a statement in a prescribed form, signed as provided in R. 14 of this Order, of the party's address for service. Such address may from time to time be changed by lodging in Court a form duly filled up and stating the new address of the party and accompanied by verified petition. The address so given shall be called the registered address of the party and shall, until duly changed as aforesaid, be deemed to be the address of the party for the purpose of service of all processes in the suit or in any appeal from any decree or order therein made and for the purposes of execution and shall hold good subject as aforesaid for a period of two years, after the final determination of the cause or matter. Service of any process may be effected upon a party at his registered address in all respects as though such party resided thereat."

15. (1) Save as otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, every pleading shall be verified at the foot by the party or by one of the parties pleading or by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case.

When the trial Court is not moved to strike out inconsistent defences which are embarrassing, re-trial cannot be claimed on the ground of embarrassment in second appeal. 32 L.W. 61=1930 M. 814. When an order is made under R. 5 of O. 6, for delivery of particulars and the defendant makes default, it is open to the Court to direct that the defence should be struck out even though it was not a term of the original order that the defence should be struck out. In such a case the defaulting party comes within the reach of this rule. 53 M. 645=59 M.L.J. 22=1930 M. 473.

O. 6, R. 17: SCOPE OF THE RULE.—Under this rule the powers of amendment vested in the Court are very wide. 10 M. L.T. 116=12 I.C. 119; 3 L. 382; 96 I.C.

79; 1925 M. 585 (2)=48 M.L.J. 349; 49 I.C. 441; 87 I.C. 950=1925 O. 692; 29 I.C. 132; 84 P.R. 1919=52 I.C. 464; 58 I.C. 665=24 C.W.N. 749; 100 I.C. 469=1927 C. C. 477; 1931 L. 595. See also 36 P.L.R. 253=1934 L. 1009; 155 I.C. 1016=41 L.W. 429=1935 M. 286. O. 6, R. 17 is not exhaustive of the powers of Court in matters of amendment of pleadings. 19 Pat.L.T. 101=1938 Pat. 209. See also 1938 Lah. 270. The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code allow a wide discretion to the Courts in the matter of amendment of pleadings. The main considerations to be borne in mind while allowing amendment of pleadings are the advancement of the interest of substantial justice and the avoidance of the multiplicity of litigation. 1937 O.W.N. 1131=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 484. See also 1937 Rang. 413; 1941 O.W.N. 704. It is not by a mere change in the wording of the plaint or the introduction of fresh details that the nature of a suit is altered. The alteration which affects the case is one where the original suit is wholly displaced by the proposed amendment or where a totally different or inconsistent case is introduced. But where this is not the case, leave to amend cannot be refused merely on the ground that the words which did not find place in the original plaint had been introduced in the subsequent plaint, even though the effect of those words is not to introduce a new or an inconsistent case. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 712. Though O. 6, R. 17 begins with the words 'the Court may', the latter portion indicates that if the amendment is permissible under the law otherwise the Judge has no discretion but to allow it, if it is necessary for determining the real question in controversy between the parties. Where a suit was for monies due on a mortgage as evidenced by a pronote and a deposit of title-deeds, but the pronote was found to be inadmissible in evidence, the plaintiff could be permitted to amend his plaint, so as to base his cause of action on the original debt for which the defective pronote was given. There could be no prejudice to the other party such as could not be compensated by costs, and the suit, would still remain after the amendment, a suit to recover money on a mortgage created by deposit of title-deeds. 1938 Rang.L.R. 521=1938 Rang. 461. A Court has no right to direct the amendment of a plaint when it has no jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the plaint. Hence where a suit is filed in a Court for a sum beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, the Court has no right to allow amendment of the plaint reducing the amount claimed so as to bring it within the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court. (33 M. 262, Rel. on.) 158 I. C. 516=1935 A.L.J. 981=1935 A. 842. To allow or not to allow an amendment is in the Court's discretion which must be liberally exercised. 1925 M. 794=48 M.L.J. 489; 1925 N. 9; 25 I.C. 567=19 C.L.J. 518; 13 I.C. 128=15 C.L.J. 439; 41 C.W. N. 1084=1937 Cal. 485; 1941 O.W.N. 704=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 188; 11 I.C. 481=14 C.L.J. 188; 9 I.C. 267; 45 I.C. 649; 37 I.C. 914; 34 C.L.J. 529=26 C.W.N. 77; 27 M. 80. It must be exercised in a judicial manner and according to well-settled principles. It is within the power of the Court to allow parties to add to their pleadings and where this is done without any objection by the parties, it is too late in the day for one of the parties to raise objections to it in appeal for the first time. 1941 O. 498=1941 O.W.N. 768. In many cases where the plaint is allowed to be amended the subject-matter of the claim is necessarily enlarged and the defendant can hardly be heard to say that it is unjust that the plaint should be allowed to be amended simply because it will result in his having to pay the just dues of the plaintiff. Hence an amendment of plaint by which the subject-matter of the claim is enlarged by including the right to enforce the mortgage bond against the properties which the plaintiffs were entitled in law to enforce by the right of subrogation which they possessed and to which they had expressly referred in their written statement in an earlier suit is justified. 195 I.C. 428=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 276. 1931 L. 595=133 I.C. 646. An amendment of the plaint should not be allowed when plaintiff seeks to amend in order to sue on an entirely different legal relationship between himself and the defendant from that relied upon in the original plaint, and when the entire nature of the suit is sought to be changed. 1937 A.M.L.J. 104. See also 1939 Sind 173; 1941 Rang. 37. It is generally most desirable that a party desiring to amend his pleadings should submit his proposed amendments in explicit form before leave sought is granted. 1940 Rang.L.R. 603. An amendment which only seeks to develop the original cause of action without varying it can well be allowed. 41 L. W. 37=1935 M. 137. As to conditions which should be satisfied before granting amendment, see 103 I.C. 455=23 N.L.R. 81=1927 N. 310; 103 I.C. 670=1927 M. 859; 92 I.C. 926; 55 I.A. 360

=55 M.L.J. 523=52 B. 597 (P.C.); 1930 N. 295. A written application is not necessary to move the Court for an order allowing an amendment. An oral application is sufficient. 52 I. C. 758. Discretion in allowing amendment should be freely exercised but not where the suit by amendment would relate to a different subject-matter. 32 I.C. 624= (1916) 1 M.W.N. 171.

NOTICE.—Where a plaint was returned for amendment and was amended without notice to the other side, and the amendments were all important, the order was set aside and case remanded for trial on the original plaint. 1939 A.M.L.J. 112 (1).

LEAVE TO AMEND WHEN GIVEN.—Principles as to allowing amendment. See 132 I. C. 311=1931 M. 1=60 M.L.J. 713. See also (1938) 2 M.L.J. 846. The nature of the defence can be looked into for the purpose of seeing whether an amendment of the plaint should be allowed. 154 I.C. 720=41 L.W. 37=1935 M. 137. The only thing which must not be altered by an amendment is the fundamental character of the suit which expression refers to the foundation on which the suit is based and not the prayer in the plaint. Hence when a plaintiff leaves the foundation of the case entirely unchanged but seeks to amend the plaint by asking for a different relief, the amendment may be allowed. 1933 R. 247. O. 6, R. 17, restricts amendments to matters necessary for determining the real question in controversy between the parties. Where the amendment sought would introduce a new and inconsistent case involving fresh trial with fresh pleadings and fresh evidence, it ought not to be allowed. 1940 N. 8=1939 N.L.J. 525. See also 1941 Rang. 37. If the plaintiff had put forward one ground of exemption from limitation, he is not precluded from applying at the hearing of the suit to amend the plaint claiming exemption on another and not inconsistent ground of exemption. 156 I.C. 531=37 Bom.L.R. 165=1935 B. 213; 41 C.W.N. 1084=1937 Cal. 485. In a case where it appeared that the appeal was authorised by the Government the Court allowed the amendment of cause title by substituting the words "The Secretary of State for India in Council" for "Karachi Municipality (The Special Land Acquisition Officer, Karachi)". 131 I.C. 118=1931 S. 63. Amendment to change the date when cause of action arose and not to change the cause of action itself should be allowed. 1925 M. W.N. 781; 30 I.C. 391. See also 48 C. 932 (P.C.); 15 R.D. 293. One distinct cause of action cannot be substituted for another. 133 I.C. 646=1931 L. 595. Where a person, an heir of M, claims that the mortgages in question were assigned to him by way of a family partition as his share of inheritance but being unable to rely on that deed, as it was not registered, he subsequently desires to bring the suit as heir to M since deceased, and he has joined the other heirs

as defendants as they did not wish to be plaintiffs, it cannot be said that one distinct cause of action has been substituted for another nor that the subject-matter of the suit has been changed. The proposed amendment is purely an amendment and not a transformation and the amendment should be allowed. 1934 R. 234. Plaintiff sued her deceased husband's brother and his sons for an injunction to restrain them from trespassing on her land, claiming title to the land as heir to her husband who got the same on a partition between him and the defendants. The defendants admitted the partition but denied that the land was family property at any time. Before trial, plaintiff applied for an amendment of the plaint by further basing her title on adverse possession against the defendants and asking for a declaration that the land belonged to her and was in her possession and enjoyment. It was held, the amendment ought to be allowed. There is no objection to amendments which just develop the original cause of action so long as they do not vary it. 154 I.C. 720=41 L.W. 37=1935 M. 137. Where a suit was based on an acknowledgment and on the defendant's plea for re-opening the earlier transactions, an application to amend the plaint by basing the suit on the original transaction was made, it was held that the amendment though it sought to introduce a new case, did not seek to introduce an inconsistent case and that as the amendment was in pursuance of a request of the defendants for re-opening earlier transaction it should be allowed. 196 I.C. 190=1941 N.L.J. 340. Cause of action can be amended if the frame of the suit is thereby not altered. 14 L.R. 60 (Rev.). All amendments necessary for deciding points in dispute should be allowed—Revision lies against improper refusal. 21 L.W. 639=87 I.C. 90=48 M.L.J. 349; 85 I.C. 344; 22 L.W. 26=1925 M. 950; 1930 L. 278 (2). The Court ought to give all reasonable indulgence with regard to amending. 32 C. 582 (600). Amendments of plaint should be allowed to avoid multiplicity of suits. 86 I.C. 615=1925 C. 944; 45 A. 220; 19 I.C. 250=11 A.L.J. 423; 56 I.C. 115; 64 I.C. 99; 28 P.L.R. 15=1927 L. 103; 155 I.C. 1016=41 L.W. 429=1935 M. 286, or to rectify mere technical defects. 42 P.L.R. 139=1940 Lah. 201. Suit in firm name by sole proprietor may be allowed to be amended on terms by inserting the words "(plaintiff) carrying on business under the name and style of (firm)". 35 C.W.N. 432=134 I.C. 1200=1931 C. 770. See also 1935 A.M. L.J. 11 (Amendment to insert statement that the suit is on behalf of the family). When the amendment is only asked for out of abundant caution because of a conflict of decisions on the point it should be allowed as it does not injure the defendant and prevents plaintiff being formally driven to a fresh suit on the same matter. Where a minor files a suit for accounts of the partnership alleging that the release deed by his mother was not binding on him as his mother was neither de jure nor de facto his guardian in executing it, an amendment of adding a specific prayer for a declaration that the release deed executed by his mother as his guardian is not valid or binding against plaintiff should be allowed. (1925 M. 188, Foll.; 1930 M. 322; 1927 M. 973 and 1927 M. 182, Dist.) 148 I.C. 869=39 L.W. 476=1934 M. 267. A prayer for confirmation of possession can be changed into one for recovery of possession on the same facts. 35 C.W.N. 620. See also 1940 P. W.N. 986. So also a prayer for declaration of plaintiff's right to an office in a temple by terms and for possession of the same for a particular year, can after the lapse of the year, without the suit being taken up for hearing be changed into a prayer for possession during alternative years. 155 I.C. 1016=41 L.W. 429=1935 M. 286. Where a suit is wrongly instituted in the name of the deity when the property is bequeathed to the temple, but the irregularity had neither occasioned any injustice nor misled any of the parties to the suit and had not resulted in any of the questions at issue being improperly tried, it would not be right to dismiss the suit altogether and amendment would meet the ends of justice. 1941 N.L.J. 184. No power has been given to Courts to enable one distinct cause of action to be substituted for another nor can the subject-matter of a suit be changed by an amendment. 42 P.L.R. 194=1940 Lah. 225. Amendment should not be refused on the ground that a fresh party shall have to be joined. 10 I.C. 737=7 N.L.R. 43.

LEAVE TO AMEND WHEN REFUSED.—Mere delay is not an adequate ground for refusing amendment. 157 I.C. 64=1935 P. 463; 79 I.C. 1033=1925 O. 291; 26 N.L.R. 359. But amendment sought for at a very late stage would be disallowed. 51 B. 749=29 Bom.L.R. 1071=1927 B. 521; 1930 C. 721 (1); 1940 Nag. 8. Amendment of plaint is not allowed if it alters the nature of the suit. 35 C.L.J. 25=26 C.W.N. 73; 51 I.C. 435; 35 I.C. 91; 10 I.C. 250; 54 I.A. 55=6 P. 323=1927 P.C. 18=52 M.L.J. 402 (P.C.); 10 I.C. 218; 1931 L. 595; 154 I.C. 103=1935 P. 86. Substitution of one plaint for another cannot be allowed by amendment. 27 Bom.L.R. 277. It is not enough for a plaintiff to show that the amendment does not alter the character of the suit. 21 B. 571. The test is whether the evidence to be offered after the amendment will be substantially the same as that offered if the plaint stood as originally framed. 3 C.654 at 661. See also 1940 Lah. 63. =1931 B. 590. It is not an inflexible rule to disallow an amendment which modifies to some extent the original cause of action or adds another. 122 I.C. 174; 30 L.W. 557. See also 1937 A.M.L.J. 16. The main point in considering whether leave should be granted to any party to amend his pleading is whether the amendment is necessary for the determination of the real questions in controversy. But the Court will not allow an amendment that would involve a complete change of front in the defence. 157 I.C. 764=1935 P. 463. See also 48 L.W. 498=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 846. Improbability of defence is no ground for refusing permission to raise it by amendment of pleadings. 157 I.C. 764=1935 P. 463. An application for amendment of plaint was dismissed on merits; subsequently plaintiff put in another application similarly worded and no further fact was mentioned on the merits. Held, that no reasonable ground was made out for granting the application. 1934 S. 193. Amendment seeking *to introduce a new claim would not be allowed where no cause is shown for introducing new matter which was not included in the original plaint. See 4 O.W.N. 1219=1928 O. 135. The fact that an issue would have to be tried again is no ground for refusing an amendment. 1906 A.W.N. 220. In the absence of special circumstances leave to amend a plaint ought not to be given where the effect of the amendment is to deprive the opposing party of an acquired right. 145 I.C. 630=35 Bom.L.R. 929=1933 B. 450; 154 I.C. 103=1935 P. 86. See also 40 C.W.N. 1233 (Suit for declaration that a patni sale is collusive and fraudulent—Objection that suit is not maintainable as contravening the procedure prescribed in S. 14 of the Bengal Patni Regulation—Amendment at late stage not allowed. 40 C.W.N. 1233). Amendment changing plaintiff's name from temple to idol not applied for in trial Court—Amendment cannot be allowed. See also 1930 O. 43; 30 P.L.R. 41=9 L. 588. A party deliberately omitting to join a necessary party and actually concealing his existence is not to be allowed to amend the plaint at a late stage by adding such party. The benefit of O. 6, R. 17, is not to be given to such party, 1938 R.D. 137=1937 A.W.R. (B.R.) 44. Declaratory suit—Consequential relief not asked though objected—Subsequent amendment to ask the relief should not be allowed. 115 I.C. 911. A suit based on adoption cannot be treated as a suit for partition of undivided family property. 21 I.C. 737=1913 M.W.N. 828. An alteration in the relief claimed does not alter the character of the suit. 20 C. 805 at 808. Different causes of action—Mortgage suit—Dismissal for want of proof of mortgage—Mortgage deed not executed—Application in second appeal to convert suit into one for possession—Maintainability. 7 R. 140=117 I.C. 577=1929 R. 179. Plaint verbose and unintelligible—Suit for breach of contract—Details of contract and special damage not alleged—Striking off of plaint and ordering amendment of the same. 114 I.C. 906=27 A.L.J. 496. A suit by plaintiff as reversioner to the estate of the last male holder cannot be converted into a suit by him as heir to the widow of the last male holder on the basis that the properties were her stridhanam properties when the new claim set up is time-barred. 132 I.C. 311=1931 M. 1=60 M.L.J. 713. In this case the defendants had no merits at all. They had taken the money of an old pardanashin lady; they had refused to pay it on demand; and the only ground upon which they resisted payment was purely a technical one under the Limitation Act. Held, that an application by defendant for permission to amend pleadings to include the plea ought to be dismissed. 1934 A. 11=154 I.C. 415.

SUIT ON PRO-NOTE.—Suit on promissory note, insufficiently stamped—Amendment can be allowed to sue on original consideration. 1922 L. 394 (1); 52 I.C. 758; 99 I.C. 625=1927 M. 378. Such amendment can be allowed even after limitation. 14 R. 383=165 I.C. 810=1936 R. 508. See also 44 L.W. 267=1936 M. 632=71 M.L.J. 166; 1937 Rang. 413; 1938 Rang.L.R. 521=1938 Rang. 461; 1940 Rang.L.R. 603. Where all the facts of the original loan and all its terms are set out in the plaint, but the plaint is based on a promissory note which is either insufficiently stamped or barred by limitation, the plaintiff is entitled to succeed alternatively on the original loan, although there is no such prayer in the plaint. Such an amendment ought to be allowed and the plaintiff given a decree on that basis. 44 L.W. 258=1936 M. 785=71 M.L.J. 250 (F.B.). Where liability of the members of a joint Hindu family is disputed in a suit on a promissory note because of sections 26 and 27 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, it is permissible to amend the plaint so as to base the suit on the original consideration. 32 Bom.L.R. 1035=1930 B. 424. See also 130 I.

NOTES.

C. 347=1931 O. 54; 131 I.C. 1=1931 M. 533 (Plaintiff ordered to pay court-fee afresh). Suit on pro-note signed by one partner in his name only—Creditor contending to hold all partners liable—No clear indication in plaint whether creditor based his suit on independent liability—Amendment of plaint. 1930 M. 168=123 I.C. 358. An amendment of plaint in a suit on a promissory note with a view to base the cause of action on the loan itself, cannot be allowed, when the application is made for such amendment not only after the claim had become barred by limitation, but after the trial and before delivery of judgment—Anticipating an adverse finding on the genuineness of the pro-note on the ground that the defendant had deceived the plaintiff, a suit on a pro-note cannot be converted into one based on fraud or deceit and that at a late stage. 153 I.C. 266=1935 M. 50=67 M.L.J. 918. Where at the time of a loan two documents are executed, a promissory note and a voucher containing all the terms of the loan, and intended to be the record of the transaction, and the promissory note is given only as a collateral security, if the promissory note is under-stamped and inadmissible in evidence, the creditor can fall back on his cause of action based on the voucher independently of the promissory note; and he can prove it and obtain a decree on the same. In such a case, the plaint in a suit based on the promissory note alone ought to be allowed to be amended and the claim decreed on the basis of the voucher, notwithstanding that on the date of such amendment the claim is barred by limitation, especially when the defendant is not in any way prejudiced, when his defence is a total denial of the whole transaction. Such an amendment when refused in the trial Court was allowed by the High Court on appeal. 39 C.W.N. 1235. In a suit to recover money lent under a promissory note executed by the karta of a joint Hindu family, the plaintiff's case substantially being that the loan was taken by the joint family through the manager for purposes of the joint family and the joint family business, the suit cannot be regarded as one simply for recovery of the amount on the note only; and when the other members of the family are also impleaded as defendants to the suit, the suit must be taken as one on the promissory note as well as on the original consideration, namely, the debt incurred by the manager for the purpose of the family and the family business. In such a case if the plaintiff applies for an amendment of the plaint so as to avoid any future dispute as regards the real nature of the claim, the plaintiff ought to be allowed leave to amend the plaint and should also be allowed to adduce evidence relevant to the alternative claim. Even if the plaint contains only a claim on the note only, leave to amend ought to be given, especially when the defendant has raised no objection to the issues about the purpose of the loan and has not been taken by surprise. The question of limitation does not arise and will not be bar to the amendment, when the original consideration is already included in the plaint. 1935 C. 102=38 C.W.N. 1146. The cause of action based on dealings between the parties is distinct from that based on a promissory note for the amount due in respect of such dealings. It cannot be laid down as a proposition of law that in a suit on a promissory note an amendment claiming in the alternative on the consideration for the note should never be allowed at the trial; whether such an amendment should be allowed or not depends on the circumstances of the case and various other considerations. 35 Bom.L.R. 965=1933 B. 476. Suit on contract of sale of land—Contract found to be void—Refund of purchase money—Amendment of plaint—Permissible. 1938 Lah. 244.

AMENDMENT WHEN MAY BE ALLOWED IN APPEAL.—An amendment which is not of such a character as to be objectionable either as changing the subject-matter of the suit or as being otherwise unfair is within the competence of the Court under O. 6, R. 17 and can be made even in appeal. 16 P. 149=41 C.W.N. 418=1937 P.C. 42 (P. amendment of the plaint on the ground of mistake having been made in the typing of the draft plaint, but no sufficient explanation is offered why the alleged mistake was not discovered by the plaintiff till after the disposal of the case by the lower Court, it is not a case in which the High Court would in appeal exercise its discretion in allowing the amendment. 161 I.C. 862=1936 P. 191. New cause of action—Suit on Hundi—Application in appeal to amend plaint so as to introduce claim for moneys lent—Permissibility. 115 I.C. 400. It is open to the appellate Court to allow an amendment of the plaint so as to convert a suit for a declaration into one for possession. 157 I.C. 1024=1935 L. 91. The plaintiff sued for a mere declaration though on the facts it appeared that consequential relief was necessary. The plaintiff persisted in the above course in the appeal. Held, that the Court need not allow an amendment of the plaint so as to include consequential relief. 35 P.L.R. 136=1934 L. 235. Where a suit for injunction is found to be not maintainable for want of a prayer for a declaration, it is not proper that the suit should be dismissed. The plaintiff who desires an amendment of the plaint in the appellate Court and is willing to pay the costs to the other side, must be allowed to amend his plaint by inserting the prayer for declaration on payment of costs. 152 I.C. 340=1934 M. 600=67 M.L.J. 245. Per Aston and Rupchand, A.J.Cs.—A suit for possession of land was dismissed with costs on the ground that the defendants were not licensees as alleged and that the defendants had been in adverse possession for more than the statutory period. It was not made a ground of appeal that plaintiff had not understood the defence, but the appellate Court granted the plaintiff's application for an amendment of the plaint and directed a re-trial of the suit on the basis of the defendants being trespassers. Held, that the Court of first appeal was in error in allowing the applications for amendment of the pleadings and in permitting the plaintiffs to re-agitate the same questions and lead further evidence by resorting to the device of asking for amendment of the pleadings; it was a gross abuse of the process of the Court to permit the plaintiff to do so. 146 I.C. 777=1933 S. 279 (F.B.). See also 1939 Lah. 172=41 P.L.R. 715. Where in a suit by a sub-mortgagee for foreclosure of the original mortgage the suit was dismissed by the first Court on the ground that the proceedings were defective under Regulation XVII of 1806 and therefore the plaintiffs had not acquired the rights of the original mortgagees, the plaintiffs cannot be allowed in appeal to amend the plaint so as to enable them to sue on the sub-mortgage, because, apart from delay, that would be to introduce an entirely different cause of action. 14 L. 640=1933 L. 676. SUIT AGAINST DEAD PERSON.—A suit filed against a dead person is no suit at all and no question of amendment of the plaint arises. Such a suit cannot be maintained by substituting the representatives of the deceased. 31 M. 86; 42 I.C. 539; 30 I.C. 679=2 L.W. 828. But see 105 I.C. 284. See also 1937 S. 92. Where a suit is filed against several defendants, one of whom was dead at the time, the suit cannot be considered to have been instituted against the dead person, but it cannot be said that there is no validly instituted suit against any one. In such a case the Court can exercise all the powers which the C.P. Code confers on it as regards addition of parties and amendment of the plaint. 147 I.C. 782=1934 A.L.J. 126=1934 A. 25.

PAUPER SUITS.—An order directing a plaintiff to pay in cash the costs of an amendment of the plaint, after he has been found to be a pauper, is improper. 24 Bom.L.R. 924=47 B. 104. See also 19 Pat.L.T. 101=1938 Pat. 209 (Amendment of application to sue in forma pauperis by adding an item of property originally omitted is within this rule).

PARTITION SUITS.—Failure to include certain items in partition suit—Amendment—Permissibility. 6 O.W.N. 142=117 I.C. 412=1929 O. 162.

PRE-EMPTION SUIT.—A pre-emption suit should state the ground on which right is claimed; and though the Court has discretion to allow amendment in all cases where it may be just and proper to do so, where the effect of the amendment of the plaint by which plaintiff seeks to change the ground on which his right is claimed is to take away from the defendant a legal right which has accrued to him by lapse of time, such amendment should not be allowed. (83 P.R. 1917, Rel. on.) 144 I.C. 822=1933 L. 774 (1).

REDEMPTION SUIT.—A suit for redemption can be converted into one in ejectment. 28 B. at 161; 24 A. 456; 5 B. 496; 7 B. 146; 9 B. 355; 3 B. 222. EJECTMENT SUIT.—A suit in ejectment cannot be converted into one for partition 37 M. 529=23 M.L.J. 189. Where in a suit in ejectment, the landlord based his cause of action on illegal sub-letting by the tenant and by a subsequent amendment he was allowed to plead illegal transfer by way of mortgage in the place of sub-letting as his cause of action, the frame of the suit is not thereby altered and for the purposes of limitation, the suit must be deemed to have been filed on the original date and not on the date of amendment. 14 L.R. 60 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 71. Suit for ejectment and for damages for use and occupation—Death of original defendant and his legal representative setting up possession in his own right—Amendment to include prayer in the alternative for possession on title. 1935 A.M.L.J. 100.

SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS.—A suit for dissolution of an alleged partnership and rendition of accounts cannot be converted into a suit for remuneration as an agent or servant of defendant as it would necessitate the altering of the whole nature and frame of the suit. 148 I.C. 253=1934 L. 38 (2). See also 161 C. 505=1936 Sind 9, where such amendment was refused in the circumstances of the case. The plaint as originally presented was one for a specific sum ascertained on the striking of a balance of the accounts of a dissolved partnership. The plaintiff subsequently amended his plaint to the effect that the accounts were settled between the parties, and the defendant agreed to pay his share. Held, that the amendment that the balance had been struck was not one altering the nature of the suit as the suit was one for a balance of the partnership account whether the balance was struck or no. 29 N. L.R. 115=1933 N. 82. A and B were partners in cloth business. A brought a suit against B wherein he averred that the partnership was started in April, 1921, and prayed for an order directing that partnership accounts be taken. But later on it was found that the partnership was started in December, 1919. A accordingly applied for an amendment which was opposed and disallowed. Held, that the suit being essentially one for accounts, there was no splitting of the causes of action; and under such circumstances even if A had not sought the amendment it was open for him whilst in the witness-box or even earlier to intimate to the Court that there had been a mistake in the plaint with regard to the date. 144 I.C. 250=1933 S. 131.

ADMINISTRATION SUIT AND PARTITION SUIT.—A suit for administration of an estate is a different kind of suit from a suit for partition of a piece of land. Different considerations arise in the two cases. It is not possible that a suit for partition should be tried as a suit for administration by amending the plaint. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 525.

SUIT FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.—A Court cannot at a late stage convert a suit for specific performance into a suit for compensation or damages, and a Court should not in Letters Patent appeal grant an amendment by adding a prayer for compensation or damages in a suit for specific performance unless such relief is asked for at an early stage. 19 Pat. 90=1939 P.W.N. 880=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 92.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.—Section 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act makes the provisions of O. 6, R. 17, C.P. Code, applicable to proceedings in insolvency. An insolvency petition by a creditor, which sets out clearly the acts of insolvency but is formally defective owing to the omission of the words "with intent to defeat and delay his creditors", may be amended so as to add the said words. And it makes no difference, because the amendment is made more than three months after the alleged acts of insolvency, whether the said period of three months be regarded as a condition precedent or as a period of limitation. 67 M.L.J. 924=1935 M. 202. Ordinarily an application for amendment should not be granted where it deprives the opposite party opportunity of raising the plea of limitation but under special circumstances it can be allowed. The petitioning creditor was not aware of the several acts alleged to have been committed by the debtor with the object of defeating his creditors. Immediately on his becoming aware of the acts relied upon by him in the insolvency application, he came to the Court. He was subsequently apprised of the fact that another transfer was also made with the like intent and he came to Court within three months of the date of the transfer and applied for amendment of application. If instead of applying for amendment, he had presented a fresh petition on that day incorporating this act as an additional act of insolvency and had craved leave to withdraw the original petition he would have been justified in doing so. Held, that the amendment should be allowed. 148 I.C. 974=1934 S. 33.

SUIT AGAINST SECRETARY OF STATE.—Where the notice under S. 80 of the C.P. Code was not given, permission to amend the pleadings by discharging the Secretary of State from the record and allow the suit to proceed against the orders could not be given in a case where it would not be possible to proceed without a material change in the nature of the suit, the cause of action and

DECLARATORY SUITS.—A suit for declaration of title cannot be changed into one for specific performance. 133 I.C. 646=1931 L. 595. Plaint in a suit for declaration can be allowed to be amended by including a prayer for setting aside the decree. See 33 Bom. L.R. 141=131 I.C. 886=1931 B. 218. OTHER ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—In a suit for injunction, an addition of subsequent prayer for possession can be allowed by way of amendment. 105 I.C. 784=1927 O. 513. See also 1937 Nag. 84. Application for probate can be converted into one for letters of administration. 9 L.L.J. 152=102 I.C. 194. As to amendment of written statement in an action for libel, see 54 C. 73. Where the basis of plaintiff's right to sue has been jeopardised by a decision in another suit after the plaint in the suit was filed, an application for the amendment of the plaint put in promptly ought to be allowed. 23 L.W. 618=1926 M. 754. Suit by a person who had no right to sue—Amendment of plaint to enable proper party to sue should not be allowed. 93 I. C. 305=1926 M. 577. LATE STAGE.—Under the Rule, the Court can allow amendment at any stage. 156 I.C. 531=37 Bom.L.R. 165=1935 B. 213. Delay by itself is not an adequate reason of refusing permission to amend a pleading. The significance of delay lies not in the quantity of time that has elapsed but in what has transpired during that time. 157 I.C. 764=1935 P. 463. An amendment at a very late stage should not be allowed. 45 C. 305; 46 C. 168; 48 C. 110 (P.C.); 48 C. 832 (P.C.); 3 L.L.J. 437; 47 I.C. 906; 3 L. L.J. 184; 67 I.C. 132; 51 B. 749=29 Bom. But it can be allowed provided that no injustice is caused to the other side. 61 I.C. 328; 1938 Mad. 388=(1938) 1 M.L. J. 106. See also 36 C.W.N. 112. Where amendment was allowed at a late stage and further trial directed. A belated amendment can be allowed only on condition of payment of costs by the petitioner to the opposite party and the latter being given an opportunity to adduce evidence on the new case adopted for the petitioner. 56 A. 428=1934 A.L.J. 1129. Where in a suit for money due on account of business transactions, after the ex parte decree was set aside, the defendant pleaded in his written statements that certain items were barred by limitation and in answer thereto, the plaintiff applied to amend his plaint by inserting therein an acknowledgment made by the defendant to save limitation and the lower Court refused the application on the ground that it was "unduly delayed," held, that the delay may influence the Court in deciding whether the acknowledgment was genuine but as the amendment did not in any way alter the nature of the suit, the application should not have been dismissed. 55 A. 256=1933 A.L.J. 268=1933 A. 374. A contract between the parties was that commission was to be paid on "steam coal, rubble coal, hard coke and soft coke" that was manufactured out of a mine. The contract also provided that "no commission or royalty shall be paid on dust coal". In a suit brought by the plaintiff to recover the commission, 13 months after the filing of the plaint, the plaintiff applied for amendment of the plaint to admit of his claiming commission on the coke manufactured from all coal whether rubble, slack or dust. Held, that the amendment could not be allowed, as it was made at so late a stage and as it substantially changed the character of the suit. 145 I.C. 428=1933 P. 443.

NEW CASE.—Courts must be careful not to allow a volte de face which would completely change the complexion of the pleadings and confront the defendant with a surprise attack, for which he cannot be expected to be prepared. 1939 A.W.R. 78=1939 A.L.J. (Supp.) 66. The plaintiff brought a suit on the basis of a bahi entry against the defendant alleging that money had been advanced by him. On the date fixed for evidence the scribe of the entry was examined on behalf of the plaintiff. He stated that the loan was advanced by the father of the plaintiff. The plaintiff closed his evidence on that date and the counsel for the defendant stated that he had no evidence to produce. On the same date the plaintiff made an application asking the Court to grant him permission to amend the plaint by adding that the loan was advanced by the father of the plaintiff and the father having died, the plaintiff succeeded him as his son and heir and was, therefore, entitled to sue on the basis of the bahi entry in favour of his father. Held, that an order allowing the amendment was fully justified and that there was no new case set up in the amended plaint and all that was done was a change in the history of the transaction. 36 P.L.R. 264=1934 L. 974. See also 171 I.C. 437=1937 O.W.N. 1121.

ALTERNATIVE CLAIMS.—Suit against members of a joint family can be amended by including an alternative claim against them as members of a partnership. 33 Bom.L.R. 1385=1931 B. 590. But see 34 Bom.L.R. 35=1932 B. 117, holding that such an amendment should not be allowed if the suit on that basis is barred on the date of the application.

AMENDMENT OF PRAYER FOR RELIEF.—“Amendment” is a very wide term and includes addition of claims; and claims which are not time barred can always be added if otherwise permissible. In a suit on a first mortgage executed by a Hindu father, if the plaintiff applies for an amendment of the plaint for addition of a claim under a second mortgage executed to him by the father and his son, on the allegation that the mortgagor in both cases is the joint Hindu family of the father and son, the amendment is one which ought to be allowed. 156 I.C. 479=1935 P. 365. A prayer for plaintiff's share of an amount due on a bond may be altered into a prayer for the whole amount due on the bond including the share of his co-obligee added as defendant. 166 I.C. 992=1937 O. 290. A suit was brought for recovery of a sum being the amount of unpaid purchase-money still due by the vendee on account of a certain piece of land purchased by him. In his written statement the vendee pointed out that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 111. The plaintiff then filed an amended plaint setting forth the same facts but asking for a different relief, thus bringing her claim within Art. 132. This application was still within time under that Art. 132. Held, that it is permissible to allow a plaintiff without amending his cause of action to amend his prayer for relief when it is a relief which he is entitled to claim and that, as the vendee would not be deprived of any defence which he might have put forward before, the amendment should be allowed. 152 I.C. 125=1934 R. 266; 98 I.C. 458=1927 M. 212. See also 54 I.A. 55 (P.C.). Suit under O. 21, R. 103, for declaration and possession—Amendment of plaint by deleting claim for possession to avoid payment of additional Court-fee—Application for leave to re-amend plaint in second appeal by including claim for possession cannot be allowed. 1938 P.W.N. 455=1938 Pat. 558.

INCONSISTENT PLEA.—An amendment inconsistent with the plaint should not be allowed. 34 I.C. 541; 101 I.C. 280; 188 I. C. 23=1940 Nag. 8; I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 593=(1940) Lah. 63. See also 148 I.C. 1044=11 O.W.N. 453=1934 O. 118. By means of an amendment, the subject-matter of the suit cannot be changed, or one distinct and inconsistent cause of action cannot be substituted for another. 42 M.L.J. 43=68 I. C. 703=1922 M. 49. If an amendment changes the cause of action, and the suit if brought on that date would be barred, the amendment should be refused. 28 I.C. 828=29 M.L.J. 464; 183 I.C. 436=1939 Oudh 245=1939 O.W.N. 755; 14 Luck. 701; 31 M. Amendment of plaint must be allowed when it merely amplifies and does not vary the original cause of action. 1925 M. 188; 41 L.W. 37; 23 L.W. 771=1926 M. 827. See also 1939 Nag. 23. Where a person brings a suit for recovery of possession of land but it is found that in fact his claim is for redemption of an unprovable usufructuary mortgage, such person cannot be allowed an amendment of the pleadings by basing his suit on his title, the causes of action for the two suits being different. 176 I.C. 631=A. I.R. 1938 Rang. 125. When a claim is made on a document the fact that at one stage when a plaint was presented it was read in a particular way and at another time, when it is sought to be amended, it is sought to be read in another way, will certainly not justify the view that a new and inconsistent claim is sought to be introduced. These are really alternative ways of reading the document and it will be for the Court ultimately to decide what its correct construction is and in such a case amendment of the plaint should be allowed. 160 I. C. 989=1936 Mad. 151. It is indisputable that leave to amend a pleading is more or less a discretionary matter and the power to grant leave ought to be liberally exercised. Although mere delay would not be a ground for refusing leave to amend, where the amendment is being proposed with the object of introducing an entirely new and inconsistent case, it cannot be allowed. It might be possible for a defendant to raise an inconsistent or an alternative case when he files his written statement, in the beginning, but he cannot be permitted to advance new positions at the time of arguments before the trial Court or ask for the written statement to be amended before the appellate Court. Leave to amend a written statement so as to set up a plea of jus tertii, in answer to the plaintiff's claim for recovery of possession of property, ought not therefore to be granted on an application preferred to the appellate Court. Where an amended plaintiff did nothing more than furnish particulars and did not introduce any new cause of action, no question of limitation could arise in such a case. 181 I.C. 106=1939 N.L.J. 21=A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 23. See also 1938 Mad. 265. Where on the date of the application for leave to amend the plaintiff, the claim in the suit was barred by limitation, the Court has power to make amendments in the plaintiff if there are special circumstances. 44 L.W. 267=1936 M. 632=71 M.L.J. 166; 1937 O.W.N. 163=1937 Oudh 290. In a suit on a promissory note, claiming exemption from limitation on the ground of a part-payment, the Court has power under O. 6, R. 17, C. P. Code, to allow an amendment of the plaintiff, which seeks to add an acknowledgment of liability as a further ground of exemption. Under the rule, the Court is not only given the power, but is under a duty, to allow all such amendments as will enable the real questions in issue to be raised, provided such amendment does not take away an existing right of the defendant. 67 M.L.J. 921. See also 1938 Mad. 265; 156 I.C. 531=37 Bom.L.R. 165=1935 B. 213; 20 N.L.J. 42. Leave to amend the plaintiff should be refused when a person who was a necessary party to a suit was not impleaded and a step is taken to implead him after the suit is barred against him. 1935 P. 86=154 I.C. 103. See also 104 I.C. 700 (where it is laid down that there may be special considerations that may necessitate an amendment even in such cases). An agreement to appropriate a part of claim was not proved and the plaintiff amended the suit, so as to cover the full claim after the period of limitation. Held, that the suit was not barred by limitation, as no new claim was made. 150 I.C. 739=1934 L. 412. RECTIFICATION OF MISTAKES.—Inclusion of wrong property owing to mistaken identity—Amendment can be allowed. 51 I.C. 757=56 P.W.R. 1919. See also 1938 Lah. 718 (misdescription of defendant firm can be rectified by amendment). Amendment may be allowed when a claim has been left out by mistake or inadvertence and not deliberately. 17 I.C. 646=17 C.W.N. 311; 97 I.C. 896 (2)=1926 L. 460. See also 63 M.L.J. 725=140 I.C. 500. Where it is proved that notice required under S. 80 has been served on the Secretary of State, the omission of amendment in the plaintiff of service of such notice as required by that section can be allowed to be rectified by amendment. 154 I.C. 103=1935 P. 86. A plaintiff cannot be amended when it would expose the defendant to an injury which could not be compensated in costs. 40 B. 158. See also 139 I.C. 441=33 P.L.R. 694. Amendments should be allowed to rectify technical defects. 34 A. 348; 47 B. 785=25 Bom.L.R. 513; 40 C. 541; 30 I.C. 323; 82 I.C. 177; 1926 A. 672. The proper signing of a plaintiff is a matter of practice only and, if defective, it may be amended at any time. 138 I.C. 797=34 Bom.L.R. 628=1932 B. 367. The amendment of the plaintiff will relate back to the date of the institution of the suit for purposes of limitation. 1932 B. 367. See also 143 I. C. 504=1933 M. 153; 14 L.R. 60 (Rev.). Major suing as minor—Plaintiff can be amended if the party was under a bona fide mistake. 136 I.C. 710=1932 L. 322. Events that happen even after the filing of the suit may be taken notice of and an amendment of the plaintiff for including a prayer for relief on the foot of such events ought to be allowed to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. 90 I.C. 881=49 M.L.J. 479; 22 L.W. 120=1925 M. 1021=91 I.C. 503; 155 I.C. 1016=41 L.W. 429=1935 M. 286.

COSTS.—Where an amendment of the plaintiff is ordered on condition of payment of costs to the opposite side and the opposite side has accepted such costs without demur, it is not thereafter open to that party to challenge the order. 1941 N.L.J. 371. If under the terms of an order a party receives the costs subject to which the other party has been allowed a relief the former will not be permitted to challenge the order, unless he accepts the costs expressly reserving his right to challenge the order. 30 N.L.R. 347=150 I.C. 845=1934 N. 163. But where before the date fixed for payment of costs, the other party appeals, the appeal is valid though he accepts costs when tendered on the due date. 1936 N. 20.

COURT-FEES.—Where an appeal by one defendant only from a decree against two is objected to on the ground that the valuation of the appeal is restricted to that part only which relates to the appellant, if the appellant offers to amend the valuation and pay the difference of Court-fee, the same must be accepted by the Court especially when the appeal in form is against the whole decree. 1938 P.W.N. 523=1939 P. 162. No party has an absolute right to abandon any portion of his claim at any stage. It is always in the discretion of the Court whether to allow an amendment of the plaintiff or memorandum of appeal or refuse it. Where a

If a party who has obtained an order for leave to amend does not amend accordingly within the time limited for that purpose by the order, or if no time is thereby limited then Failure to amend after orders. within fourteen days from the date of the order, he shall not be permitted to amend after the expiration of such limited time as aforesaid or of such fourteen days, as the case may be, unless the time is extended by the Court.

ORDER VII.

Plaint.

Particulars to be contained in plaintiff. 1. The plaintiff shall contain the following particulars :—
 (a) the name of the Court in which the suit is brought ;
 (b) the name, description and place of residence of the plaintiff ;

NOTES.

party has obtained an adjudication of his claim from the trial Court or has argued his case in respect of it in the Court of appeal, he cannot thereafter be permitted to amend his plaint or memorandum of appeal by abandoning a part of his claim with a view to save himself from the payment of Court-fee. 1938 O.W.N. 1138=1938 A.W.R. (C.C.) 131. See also 1938 Pat. 558.

REVISION.—An order refusing leave to amend the plaint can be set aside in revision. 40 I.C. 65=26 P.R. 1917; 78 I.C. 510; 1937 A.M.L.J. 104; 1940 O.A. 1126; 1941 Pat. 44=1941 A.W.R. (Supp.) 3; 1941 N.L.J. 340; 1925 N. 195; 21 L.W. 639=87 I.C. 90=48 M.L.J. 349; 85 I.C. 344; 22 L.W. 26=1925 M. 950; 1930 M. 278. See also 1927 M.W. N. 175=1927 M. 504; 41 M.L.J. 525; 4 L. W. 654; 60 C.L.J. 91=38 C.W.N. 1146. Unless the discretion is exercised injudiciously and arbitrarily by the lower Court High Court will not interfere in revision. 1938 Lah. 270=178 I.C. 176. The power to allow an amendment of pleadings has been conferred on Courts in the interests of justice, with a view to correcting mistakes and bringing out the real matters in issue between the parties. But this power should not be exercised in favour of one party so as to cause prejudice to the other party—where an amendment is very drastic and changes the nature of the suit itself, a Court, if it allows such an amendment, exercises its jurisdiction with material irregularity, if not illegality and its order is liable to be set aside in revision. 16 Luck. 65=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 367. A Court has no jurisdiction to direct a party to amend his plaint. If it thinks that there are grounds for rejecting the plaint, it may do so, but it cannot insist on a party amending his plaint. If it passes an order calling on the party to amend the plaint, the High Court will interfere and set aside the order as it is without jurisdiction. 190 I.C. 754=21 P.L.T. 946=1940 P.W.N. 797. Amendment ordered on payment of costs—Costs drawn out under protest—Such order cannot be impeached in revision. 105 I.C. 620=1927 M. 1009. The plaintiff sued for recovery of a certain sum on the basis of a note of hand, the consideration for which being the balance which was found to be due from the defendant upon an accounting between the parties. Execution of the note of hand was apparently denied and the plaintiff applied for amendment of his plaint in such a manner as to base his claim alternatively on the bahi khata account. The application was rejected by the Court below on the ground that the amendment sought for would change the basis of the suit. Held, in revision, that the object of O. 6, R. 17, C. P. Code, is to prevent multiplicity of proceedings and that a Court is bound therefore to allow such amendment to be made as may be necessary for the purposes of determining the real question in controversy between the parties, that the real question in controversy in the case was whether the balance of account as shown in the promissory note was or was not due from the defendant and the foundation of the claim was the account-books and that the lower Court ought to have allowed the desired amendment and by refusing to do so it disregarded an express provision of law and failed to exercise a jurisdiction which was vested in it. 1934 A.L.J. 989=153 I.C. 65=1935 A. 353.

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT.—Amendment takes effect from date of presentation of plaint or application. 98 I.C. 658=1927 N. 95; 93 I. C. 625=50 M.L.J. 442. See also 143 I.C. 504=1933 M. 153.

COURT COMPELLING PLAINTIFF TO AMEND PLAINT—WHO CAN COMPLAIN.—Where the Court compels the plaintiff to amend the plaint, only the plaintiff can complain; and it is not open to the defendant to complain that the Court has no jurisdiction to compel the plaintiff to do so. 1934 M. 220=66 M.L.J. 315.
